ROCKWELL OFFICIALS PICNIC SATURDAY

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

We went out to Frank Harrell's Rockwell Bros. & Co. picnic dinner at Lake Cisco last night for the most "scrumptious" outdoor meal that I ever ate. Chicken ordinarily doesn't arouse any gastronomic enthusiasm in me, but the Italian broiled fryers that Frank served up were so tempting that I forgot my Methodist bringing up and ate two halves. Whenever you need an appetite stimulator turn to Washington Irving's description of the meal which the good Dutch housewives of the Legend of Sleepy Hollow prepared and read it. I'll venture your mouth will start watering before you have read the first two paragraphs of that description.

Better still, if a Frank Harrell picnic is handy, look over the table. You won't need the help of any imagination. It was all there last night, even to the ice cream in half cantaloupes. You could eat either or both, as you preferred.

The picnic was a big success all the way through. Even the music was good, with Harry Schaefer, Ernest Hittson, Ray Judia and the other boys doing their stuff.

J. W. Rockwell, Houston, head of the Rockwell Bros. & Co. organization was the honor guest for the picnic, first that the company has held, and one that is certain to be repeated. A native of Cisco, he told us that Cisco does not appreciate the attraction it has, and offered to send a man who could really sell Cisco on itself. We told him to send him on, that there were numbers of us who needed a little inoculation of community pride.

Such gatherings as this serve to accent the opportunity that exists in Lake Cisco and its environs. I do not think a place more ideal for wholesome recreation and for state and regional gatherings of this character exists. It is a hole card upon which we can wisely bet a great deal.

The beauty experts tell women to discover their best features and built their attractiveness about these features. The same logic will apply to community development. We cannot hope to build on another's resources and good points, nor can we hope to profit from another's bad features. Our own good ones are our resources, and these must be developed.

With the best place in Texas to live, to play and to work, we have a bright opportunity to build here, I believe.

Cord Resigns After Federal Judge's Order

CHICAGO, Aug. 7. (AP)—E. L. Cord resigned today as head of the corporation bearing his name, an announcement by the company said, soon after Federal Judge Charles Woodard issued an order restraining Cord and Morris Markin, president of the Checker Cab company, from alleged manipulation of securities on stock exchanges.

The company's announcement said the resignation followed an exchange of stock between Cord and L. B. Manning, presumably giving Manning a dominant position in the Cord company.

Friends were informed Saturday of the death of Mrs. Chunn, sister-in-law of Mrs. W. C. Shelton.

The telegram telling of the death was sent to Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Mancill. Mrs. Mancill is the daughter of Mrs. Shelton. The latter is visiting in Bella Vista, Ark., and will be unable to attend funeral, to be held in Dawson at 4 p. m. Saturday.

BRITAIN IRED BY 'MYSTERY' PLANE ATTACK

Probably Executed by 'Anti-Government' Craft, Says

LONDON, August 7. (AP)—Britain dispatched a strong note today to Spanish insurgent authorities at Palma, Malloca, protesting Friday's "mystery" plane attack on the Tanker British Corporal.

The British consul - general at Algiers reported the machine gun and bomb attack was "probably" executed by an "anti-government" aircraft.

Three monoplane of unidentified nationality which sprayed the Corporal with machine gun fire also were believed responsible for a similar attack on the Italian steamer Mongiola. Franco Solari, captain of the latter, and one of the wounded, died in an Algiers hospital today.

Band Directors' Meeting at 2:30 This Afternoon

Probably the first band leaders' meeting to be held in Cisco will be today at 2:30 p. m. today when Robert L. Maddox, Cisco bandmaster, is host to an expected 20 band leaders and directors of this section of the state. The group will convene at the high school.

The meeting is for the betterment of band music in schools and closer cooperation of band leaders.

Mr. Maddox said he has sent 25 invitations to the leading directors of this section.

In order to avoid any possibility of spreading or catching infantile paralysis the band will be discontinued for the next two weeks, the Cisco band director has announced.

Charles Lankford Is Back in Austin

In a telephone conversation from Austin upon his arrival there about 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Charles Lankford, son of Judge and Mrs. Eugene Lankford, who was missing from Monday until Thursday from Austin where he was instructor of bacteriology, told his parents he was "all right and feeling fine."

After resting up and attending to a few details he will probably come to Cisco for a short stay, he said.

Young Lankford was located in New Orleans Thursday night.

MEMORY OF TRIP IS BLANK

AUSTIN, Aug. 7. (AP)—Charles E. Lankford returned to Austin today, his memory a blank from the time he came out of an Austin theatre Monday until Thursday, when he read newspaper accounts in New Orleans of his disappearance.

Lankford, student-instructor of bacteriology in the University of Texas, said that he remembered suffering from headache when he left the theatre, but that he could recall nothing thereafter until he discovered he was the object of an intense search launched in Austin over the state.

Sinclairs in Form, Down Nance 26-8

The Sinclairs must have been off the other night when they were walloped 22 to 11 by the lowly Nance team.

Either that or something else was wrong because the snappy Huestis ten showed their true championship style and played the same brand of soft ball they did against Red Front the night they won the first half championship, when they roughed the Nance team by the overwhelming margin of 26 to 8 Friday night.

Smashing out 24 hits, including a homer, two doubles and a single by Bennie who let the batsmen for the night, the Sinclair team easily held Nance in hand and romped on to the win.

In the attack Poe, Steyer, Howsely, Barnhill and Abbott shared in the batting spree by pounding three hits each, one of Barnhill's a four-base smash. Poe accounted for a triple.

Two big innings in which 20 tallies were chalked up was the main factor in the Huestis win. After scoring four in the first and one in the second the first half champs broke loose with 12 runs and then let up, scoring only once in the fourth frame. The fifth saw them burst forth again, this time with eight markers and that was all.

Meanwhile the Motor boys scored once in the third, once in the (CONTINUED ON PAGE 6)

"IT'S SWELL" J. W. ROCKWELL SAYS OF EVENT

Harrells Praised For Extensive Planning For Occasion

"It's swell. Everything's mighty fine," exclaimed James W. Rockwell, head of Rockwell Bros. & Co., son of its founder and a native of Cisco when asked his opinion concerning the picnic event held here Saturday.

Mr. Rockwell, with a dozen other officials of the company had just finished enjoying a refreshing swim in the large Lake pool when interviewed.

"Everyone's had a big time," he said with a beaming smile.

The day opened with a luncheon on the Laguna roof garden with about 65 officials present.

It was strictly an informal "get-together" of officials and the time was spent in short speeches by various ones present, singing and introduction of all there.

The group busied themselves during the afternoon enjoying the fine Cisco golf course and speed boating. Many talked and made acquaintances, joked, or swam. A watermelon feast was given in the afternoon.

A barbecue was served for the group later in the afternoon, bringing the happy day to a climax for the almost 100 guests and members of their families present.

Some arrived Friday to take advantage of Cisco's fishing facilities. According to Mr. Rockwell some even got up at 4 a. m. Saturday morning and went fishing.

Mr. Rockwell disclosed that many of the old officials of the (CONTINUED ON PAGE 6)

Wardrobes Bring a Touch of Summer to Better Summer Wardrobe

By ADELAIDE KERR
 NEW YORK, Aug. 7. (AP)—Sales of 1937 offer some of the best values the fashion world has had in years.

Little cash plus intelligent shopping will produce exceedingly smart clothes to freshen a late summer wardrobe—and be useful for years.

The secret lies in buying standard things and adding a little with "nonsense" to stamp them with the season's chic. At sum-

H. E. B. the nonsense can be discarded.

White Clothes Good
 Formerly white clothes and accessories have been very chic this year and are one of the best buys of the season. A short-sleeved white frock of crisp acetate suiting, in a darker frock or combination, makes a smart come-over for town. White linens combining frock and jacket with an extra white sports frock other valuable late summer items.

One of the best July fashion items is a two-piece suit frock which is just as good in the country as in town. New chiffon linens, sackings and rayon weaves used in this season's versions, come in nearly all the light colors including dusty pink, light blue and natural color. Wedged blue and cinnamon brown are two of the smartest and most popular hues, since they look well with white or dark accents.

Printed House Coats
 Another good investment is a printed pique house coat, which is smart enough to wear on the porch, or one of dotted swiss, which is smart enough to wear for dinner at home on hot nights.

A few of the one-piece frocks, which are selling all over the country from two dollars up, will add useful wardrobe additions for a woman who is summering in a small town. Cottons and rayons, some with stripes and small light colored figures on white ground, are good frocks for the country or an informal afternoon of golf.

When it comes to evening dresses, the canniest shoppers are concentrating on cotton or chiffon. The first is youthful, non-assertive and inexpensive; the second may do duty into the fall.

This is the season to buy shoes, and lingerie. Oxfords or sandals which mount over the instep, and handled bags in the staple colors of black, navy blue or white are all safe investments. So is a princess silhouette which is the figure to the fitted corset profile heralded for fall.

Narrow white or colored belts, light polka dot scarfs, colored slippers, animal clips, and lapel boutonnières, frosty trubans and bright wooden eplets make timely seasoning for new clothes.

the Beggs, Okla., garden of F. Savage, he has this year: A 5-fingered carrot resembling a human hand; a 1 1/2-pound potato; a 3-4-pound onion, and onion quadruplets.

Laughing Around the World
 With IRVIN S. COBB

The Proper Point of View

By IRVIN S. COBB

AS A people, we have sufficient sense of humor to enable us to laugh at our own racial and national shortcomings. The average American enjoys nothing quite so much as he does a joke aimed at that occasional American who goes abroad and gets drunk on Jingoism and spends his spare time in comparing European institutions with American institutions, always in favor of the latter.

But there is another side to the question. It is deemed fitting that this collection should include a story showing that once in a while a Britisher, from a different angle, exhibits these same characteristics which frequently mark the traveling Yankee.

There was an Englishman who made a tour of this continent. The tourist was a fit type and representative of a group of Englishmen who think that nothing is worth while unless it is to be found on British soil, or at least under the protecting shadow of the Union Jack.

When he got back to New York after his swing across the land, an American asked him what he thought of our country.

"Oh, on the whole, rather tiresome," said the visitor.

"Didn't you see anything out of the ordinary?" asked the American.

"Cahn't say that I was especially impressed."

"Well," said the American, "you astonish me. We rather thought there were a few interesting sights over here. Did you, by any chance see Niagara Falls?"

"Oh yes. Spent half a day there."

"Well, isn't Niagara Falls worth looking at?"

"From the Canadian side—yes!"

Today's Public Prefers Old Words to New

ABILENE, Aug. 7.—Today's public prefers old wines to new wines, old habits to new habits and old lace to new lace but also old words to new words, according to Dr. Charles Earle Funk, New York dictionary-writer and author.

In a letter to Gene Elo, advertising manager of the West Texas Utilities company and contest editor of that company's "name-a-housewife" contest, Dr. Funk, who is to be the final judge, declared:

"I do not anticipate receiving any new term that will receive general adoption. Such has been our experience. There may be the most logical reason in the world for dropping a term that no longer meets current conditions, and the replacement term may meet every requirement, but the public, usually, will cling to the old. If it is catchy—that elusive quality—it may appeal to the popular fancy."

The service company began the campaign for a substitute name for "housewife" early in July. The contest closes August 14. It was claimed that "women are no longer slaves to kitchen drudgery" and should have a name which denotes "companionship in the home and democracy in human relations."

Entries thus far, Elo said, "have been far from original." Most of them, he added, are based on "home manager," "queen of the home," "home hostess" and similar titles. One entry was "Joy Girl."

Elo admitted that "the average person is a poor hand at inventing new words," an opinion shared by Dr. Funk who said:

"Although I shall endeavor to base my selection upon relative merits, considered by utility, structure, applicability (or popular appeal), I am not anticipating that I shall be able actually to indorse any term that may be submitted. In fact, there is every possibility that none of the terms submitted may be worth a tinker's dam."

Despite Dr. Funk's pessimism, Elo said "probably a dozen entries so far have real merit and they are improving as contestants obtain a better knowledge of the goal in the contest."

Florida has 134 usable airports.

McALISTER, Okla., Aug. 7. (AP)—"Where were you on the night of November 3, last?" might be a fair question to ask one of the inmates to McAlester penitentiary.

In a letter requesting the board of affairs to enlarge the prison school, the Rev. A. R. Garrett, prison chaplain, included the following memorandum on a new prisoner just matriculated from LeFlore county:

"He didn't know who is president of the United States. He didn't know the name of the county from which he was sentenced, and in which he had lived all his life. He didn't know the name of the judge who sentenced him. He didn't know who was governor of Oklahoma."

Drummer Gives Street Its Name

TUCSON, Ariz., Aug. 7. (AP)—A conscience-stricken hardware drummer of the gay nineties, who had been making Victorian whoopee, gave a Tucson street the name of Broadway, the city planning commission learned.

Launching a drive to restore old street names, the commission discovered the street, which once bordered the military post of territorial days, became Broadway when the drummer hung up a street sign just to get rid of it. He explained he had acquired the "Broadway" sign in an eastern city in a moment of hilarity.

We, the undersigned practicing physicians in the City of Cisco hereby certify that we have not attended a case of infantile paralysis in the immediate vicinity of Cisco nor within ten miles of the City of Cisco. We have no reason to believe that anyone of the victims of infantile paralysis in Eastland County ever entered the Cisco swimming pool and from the information that we have about the purity of the water, the frequency with which the water is changed and the cleanliness of the premises, we do not believe that there is any danger of infantile paralysis being contracted by patronizing the Lake Cisco Swimming Pool.

FLAME TRAIL

BY MARIE DE NERVAUD

SYNOPSIS: Fire destroys Kay Crandon's ranch house and barn. Neighbor Josh Hastings tries to buy her ranch and court Kay, but she hates him and is determined to rebuild. Ted Gaynor, a puncher she impulsively hired, fights Scrap Johnson, a cowhand who molested Kay. They shoot it out, wounding each other. Hastings finds them unconscious and kills Scrap with Ted's gun. Ted crawls to a cabin where a girl named Marion nurses him. The gun puts Sheriff Farley on Ted's trail. Kay sees Ted and Marion together in the cabin and rides off in jealous agony. She falls. Tom Runyon, the fire patrol, finds her and she babbles unconsciously of Ted's hideout.

Chapter 33 The Tip Off

Tom Runyon stood up and turned his mount about, heading him down the trail. Then stopping, he gathered Kay in his arms, and lay her across the saddle.

Mounting behind her, he gathered her into his arms so that her head rested on his shoulder, and slowly and carefully started the descent.

By the time they reached the stream, it was clear that Kay was not going to be able to ride Flicker back to the ranch. Untying him, Tom gave him a sharp cut of his quirt and listened while he splashed across the stream and headed up the trail of the western slope of the eastern divide. Then, holding Kay tightly to him, he guided his horse into the dark swirling water.

All through the long ride out of the mountains, Kay babbled on in her delirium, and Tom Runyon listened.

An ugly look flashed into his eyes whenever Kay mentioned Ted's name. It was evident that she thought more of Ted than Tom had supposed, but instead of shaking him from his purpose to win Kay for himself, it made him all the more determined.

As he made his plans for getting rid of his rival, Tom gave a vicious chuckle. He had him where he wanted him, all right! But it wouldn't do to take any chances on his making a get-away. He must get to a telephone as soon as possible.

Then Tom struck on a brilliant idea. Why not take Kay directly to the Flying Six? Her aunt was there, and she would be much better cared for, than in her little cabin. He had never met Josh Hastings, but he knew that he had been a friend of Kay's father, so he felt sure he'd be only too glad to look after her.

Suiting the action to the thought, Tom struck out across the mesa to the Flying Six.

Kay's delicious talk had subsided some time before, and she rested a dead weight in his arms, as he urged his mount on. Her breathing was even and reassuring. Even though she was undoubtedly suffering from concussion from her fall, the indications were that it was not serious. He knew it might be some time before she completely regained consciousness.

The late moon was rising in the east as they came in sight of the Flying Six ranch house, a dark rambling mass in the silver light. Following up a shrill whistle with a loud "Whoopee," Tom clattered up to the front steps.

Phoning the Sheriff

A light flickered past the living room windows, and the next minute, Josh Hastings pulled open the front door.

"Kay Crandon's had an accident, and I brought her here," Tom Runyon began, rather importantly. She—

He got no farther. A shriek from Aunt Kate's open window was followed by shuffling footsteps down the hall, and Aunt Kate's disheveled head appeared over Josh Hastings' shoulder.

F. E. SHEPARD, Clerk.

"Where is she?" She imperiously pushed him aside and made for the steps, where she met Tom Runyon coming up with Kay in his arms.

"What's happened?" she demanded fiercely. "What have you done to her?"

"She had an ugly fall," Tom Runyon carried Kay up on the porch, and laid her down in the hammock. "She'll be all right," he added. "It's just a slight concussion, but I thought she'd be better off here, than she would be over at her place."

"You were dead right," Josh Hastings boomed. "We'll look after her, don't you worry. But where—"

"I'll tell you all that later," Tom broke in, leaving Aunt Kate fussing over Kay, while he beckoned Josh Hastings to one side. "I've got to get in touch with Zeke Farley P.D.Q."

Josh Hastings motioned him toward the door. "You'll find the phone right there on my desk." He followed Tom Runyon inside.

"What's up?"

"I've located that Gaynor guy who's wanted for murder. Tom Runyon swelled with importance as he reached for the telephone. Intent on getting his number, he failed to see the gleam in triumph that quickly flashed in Josh Hastings' eyes.

"Where is he?" he demanded eagerly.

Tom motioned him to wait, as he bent to the telephone.

"This Zeke Farley? I'm Tom Runyon, the fire patrol. I want to tip you off about that Gaynor bird."

An explosive oath over the wire could be heard, even where Josh Hastings was standing.

"Yeah, I know where he is all right," Tom went on. "He's up in a cabin by a clearing on the south side of the central divide. Up there with a girl friend," he added, with a malicious laugh.

Again Josh Hastings could hear the sheriff's exclamation.

"Yeah, I said 'girl friend,'" Tom repeated. Kay Crandon saw them up there—that's how I know. He's there now. How long he'll be there, I can't tell you."

There was a long pause while Zeke Farley's voice rumbled over the wire.

"Reckon that's your best bet," Tom agreed finally. "I'm telephoning from the Flying Six."

There was another pause.

"O.K. I reckon they'll give me a shake down," Tom cocked an inquiring eye at Josh Hastings, who nodded his assent.

"What did he say?" he demanded eagerly, as Tom hung up the receiver.

"He's notifying Sam Cutter over in the Clear Water basin, and starting off to meet him there."

Tom turned to the porch. "How about getting Kay to bed somewhere, and I'll give you the dope?"

Aunt Kate met them at the doorway.

"Put Kay right in that spare bed in my room," she ordered, crisply taking charge of the situation. "I reckon you're right about its being a concussion, young man. She fixed Tom with a severely appraising eye. "Only I don't see why you couldn't have prevented its happening at all!"

"I wasn't there," Tom defended. He stooped down to pick Kay up, but Josh Hastings shoved him unceremoniously aside.

"Here! I'll do that!"

Tom watched Josh Hastings with surprised and smouldering eyes, as he gathered Kay into his arms and carried her through the door.

"You needn't look like that, young man," Aunt Kate observed tartly, as she prepared to follow after them. "These two are as good as engaged and you may as well know it now as later!"

His jaw dropped with chagrin and amazement as he watched Aunt Kate disappear inside the house.

"Throw 'em up, Sister!"

Marion Howell stirred restlessly on her bunk that was in the tiny room off the main shack where Ted was sleeping.

She had thrown herself fully dressed on the bunk, as she had done every night since Ted had appeared. Now that he was out of danger, she wouldn't be so constantly on call, she reflected, as she raised herself on one elbow and glanced out the crack in the boarded-up window over her bunk.

The first gray light of dawn was cold and cheerless, and with a shiver, she dropped back, and was preparing for more sleep, when a snapping of twigs caught her ear. She told herself it was only an animal prowling through the brush, but an instinct of alarm nevertheless impelled her to get up and creep through Ted's room to the front door.

Noticing with a glow of satisfaction how deeply and quietly he was sleeping, she went to the front door with an amused smile at herself for her nervousness.

As she put her hand on the latch to pull it open, a shove from the outside flung it in, nearly knocking her down as it swung back, revealing a group of men. One of them instantly covered her with his gun.

"Throw 'em up, sister," he commanded, "and the less fuss you make, the better for you!" He made way for the others to pass.

"Go on in, and hog-tie that bird," he ordered, keeping one eye on Marion to see how she was going to respond to this surprise invasion.

"There's no use throwing my hands up, as I haven't a gun," Marion was amazed at the calmness of her own voice, which belied the sick terror that possessed her. Every instinct was alert to keep her wits about her, as the only possible way to save Ted, and her father as well. "What right have you to break in this way?"

"The right of the law to arrest a murderer," Zeke Farley answered with brutal abruptness. (Copyright, 1937, Marie de Nervaud)

Let Conscience By Your Guide At The Beach

By JOAN DURHAM AP Feature Service Writer

Hints to some surf bathers are never sufficient.

In spite of pointed glances from the beach and whistling by life-guarders they persist in swimming in their own sweet way and cavorting in their own abusive manner.

Beach bathing is a cooperative enterprise. Because of crowds, and with individual as well as collective comfort in mind, each beach has its own rules. They should be observed.

Some beaches, for instance, don't allow swimmers to bring lunch boxes. They provide stands and pavillions—with paid attendants to collect all the debris.

If you go to a beach where it's permissible to take your own lunch, however, here are two notes.

Always remember to keep your lunch box closed—for your own benefit. You don't want your food garnished with sand.

But the papers and refuse in containers provided for that purpose or roll them up and put them back into your lunch box until you can get rid of them.

All beach equipment belongs to somebody. Just because an especially attractive chair doesn't have an occupant when you spot it, don't take it for granted it will remain empty all afternoon.

Confine your baseball, badminton and other games to your own territory.

Most beaches have regulations about where you can put cabanas, chairs and umbrellas. If you set them up in the life-guard's line of vision, for instance, you'll only have to move them.

Wet bathing suits and hair are definitely allergic to sand. If you must bury people it's a good plan to make sure your friends don't object to that particular method of embalming.

Don't swim beyond the last buoy or rope—or whatever limits the beach authorities set up.

And last, but definitely not least, exercise a little consideration when you leave your locker room. You don't relish trailing across a pile of wet towels to the bench to undress or dress, do you? Neither does the other fellow.

Miss Glenna Rea To Wed Richard Giles Today

The marriage of Miss Glenna Rea of Clyde and Mr. Richard C. Giles was scheduled to take place Sunday morning at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Rea, pastor of the Methodist church in Clyde.

Only a few intimate friends will be present. Miss Ermale Rea of Throckmorton, sister of the bride will be maid of honor and Mr. Byrne Stone of Abilene will serve Mr. Giles as best man.

Other guests present for the wedding were Mrs. Byrne Stone of Abilene, Miss Nell Rush and Mr. Durwood Daws of Throckmorton and Mr. Joe Carrothers of Cisco. Immediately following the ceremony the couple will come to Cisco where they will be honored with a wedding breakfast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Mancill.

Guests who have been invited to the breakfast include the honorees and Mr. and Mrs. Stone, Misses Rea and Rush and Mr. Daws of Throckmorton, Mr. Carrothers, Dr. E. L. Graham, Mrs. C. T. Johnston and Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Mancill.

The couple will leave on a two weeks wedding trip and on their return will be at home in Abilene.

Mr. Giles, who has made his home in Cisco for the past ten years where he has been employed with the West Texas Utilities company, is very popular in the business and social world here. He has recently been promoted to the Abilene office of his company.

Mrs. John Shertzer and daughters, Lillian and Marilyn have returned from Kerrville where they have been for several weeks.

company from scattered sections had come for the event. He said all of the officials of the company present had been connected with it for many years, including two—C. R. Burrow, mayor of Canyon and F. B. Cloud of Albany—who have been with Rockwell Bros & Co for 39 years.

When asked about the possibility of the event being held here next year he said, "I cannot say whether it will be or not, but I hope it is."

Praises Mr. and Mrs. Harrell

The executive had high praises for Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Harrell in their extensive planning for the event and their great amount of work spent during the past several days in getting things in shape for the picnic.

Mr. Harrell has been connected with the company since 1904.

Buck Richardson was quoted as saying when he was asked what he thought about Lake Cisco and the swimming pool that the pool was "a real cutter." He also said that he thought that the swimming pool was the best and the biggest he had ever seen and that the Cisco people "really know how to put it on" when it comes to showing a group of people a good time.

"I think I can be correct when I speak for the rest of the boys out here in saying that we have enjoyed ourselves to the limit and as for myself, I am in favor of having another annual picnic at the lake here next year," said Mr. Richardson.

Watermelons Fine

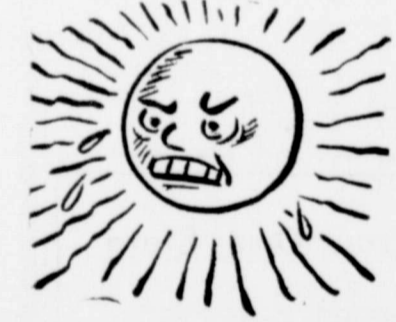

"The watermelons that we had this evening were about the best I ever had," he continued.

Houston officials of the company were James W. Rockwell, John Sprouse, Milton Newman, G. D. Meisner and Miss Mary S. Higgins.

Peanut Ass'n To Be Perfected At Coming Meet

(Special to The Daily Press)

Referring to the abridged minutes of the meeting held Thursday at Eastland, participated in by peanut growers of Erath, Callahan, Brown, Comanche and Eastland counties, according to a report made by W. B. Starr this movement is not only concerted action on the part of all the growers of Texas and Oklahoma (known in government circles as the "southwestern area") but embraces the eastern and southeastern sections of the United States, where 88 per cent of the nation's peanuts are produced, and affects the financial interests of 200,000 peanut growers, also indirectly the prosperity of a large class of business interests in the smaller town and larger cities of this area.

Texas is represented in this great national cooperative movement by a state organization, which rests upon three different peanut producing sections of the state: the five counties mentioned above, several peanut producing counties to the south of San Antonio, where an organization meeting was held on Wednesday, and those counties lying around Fort Worth, where a meeting was conducted Friday. The state committee, elected at these meetings held over the state this week, will meet at Brownwood next Wednesday morning for the purpose of perfecting the state organization. At this meeting there will also be one committeeman from Oklahoma who will represent the interest of the peanut producers of his state.

850,000 Crops

Government forecasts indicate a peanut crop for 1937 of 850,000 tons. This is a few thousand tons above the 1936 crop, which brought the farmers a reasonable price. However, for several years past there has been about a 100,000 tons of peanuts not needed for the normal channels of trade, (the consuming public), which has been crushed into oil. Unfortunately this year the price of oil is some 20c below the price this time last year. This is due largely to the prospects of a heavy increase of production in the cottonseed oil field. For the last ten days, new crop peanuts have been coming on the market in South Texas. The market opened around $1.20, but by the middle of this week had slumped to 90c per bu., with further decrease in prices indicated.

It is expected with this national cooperative institution to borrow sufficient money from the national government to buy and warehouse sufficient peanuts to stabilize the market at a reasonable figure. Later if it is found that the normal channels of trade will not consume the crop, the cooperative will sell to the oil mills that part of the crop, which under ordinary conditions would have depressed the entire crop to a ruinous figure where farmers and all classes of business would suffer severely.

The difference in the price at which the cooperative bought these peanuts later diverted to oil and the prices paid to the cooperative by the oil mills will be forthcoming from a fund which was established by an act of congress shortly after the supreme court invalidated the processing taxes. This act of congress provided that 30c of the import duties should be set aside to be used by the Secretary of Agriculture at his discretion for the stabilizing of prices to farm commodities. He has used this fund in protecting the interests of producers of minor crops. It is indicated that probably 10 per cent of this fund will be used to promote the welfare of peanut growers interested in the production of the crop of 1937.

As pointed out by Mr. Starr, the entire citizenship of the south should be behind this movement. If the action anticipated results in a general price raise of 30c per bushel, this will not materially affect the consuming public, as one cent per pound will not appreciably affect the amount of peanuts in a five cent purchase of roasted peanuts or peanut candy, nor will it adversely affect the financial interests of the commercial peanut sheller, for naturally his margin of profit will be larger on a price basis of say 90c per bu. to the farmer than it would on a basis of 60c per bu. All informed citizens know that prosperous farmers means prosperous conditions for the general public.

Growers Discuss--

held, the other two at other parts of the state for Texas peanut growers.

The five counties of this district normally produce 30 per cent of Texas' commercial peanut crop, making the meeting a very important one for all growers of this section of the state.

After Dickson had spoken, a district organization was formed by those present for the purpose of cooperating with growers of other sections of the southern states.

A committee made up of one representative from each county met and elected W. B. Starr, Route 4, Cisco, and T. D. Robinett, Route 2, DeLeon as state representatives for the district peanut growers.

John Henry Lott caught a 42-inch alligator in Troy, Ala., recently to become the section's first successful gator hunter of '37.
