MORE TERRIFIC FIGHTING IN FAR EAST

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

The late Coach "Red" Petty of the Eastland Mavericks is remembered by high school football followers as the man who coached the Mavericks to the first victory they ever achieved over the Cisco Lobos. It was a bitter pill for Cisco to take because it was one shred of a dismembered tradition to which we clung in a rather desperate worship of past glories. In that defeat the Lobos reached the nadir of their descent upon evil days. Subsequent seasons were merely a repetition of this low depth.

There is something ironic in the fact that Cisco has employed the brother of the man who accomplished this defeat to mend the fortunes to which he gave the final dismal push. Coach J. T. Petty, fresh from a fine record in Class B football, will take over the reins of the Lobo organization Monday, admittedly facing a hard job. As good as he might be, and his work at Nocona and elsewhere shows him to be capable, he can not hope to do very much in the way of building a team here, so far as victories are concerned, the first year.

Fans who are hoping for a Moses to lead them out of the football wilderness, should remember now that the Israelite leader spent 40 years in the wilderness before he ever got the tribes to the Jordan. That is more likely than not to be the experience of the coach who tries to bring back prosperity in scores to the black and gold. A thorough understanding on the part of the public of the conditions and difficulties that Coach Petty and his assistants will meet, and a lot of public confidence and cooperation will go a mighty long way toward helping them turn the trick.

Greetings today to Mr. and Mrs. M. H. McCannies who will gather their children and children's children about them at Lake Cisco for a reunion. Between 60 and 75 will be there for a barbecue and for a renewal of those ties of affection and respect which bind good families together no matter to what points of the globe they individually may scatter.

Mr. and Mrs. McCannies were among the early residents who helped to make homes and the strong civilization that good homes made of good people create, out of this bald prairie that was. The testimony of their contribution is the family they have reared. Such happy occasions as these call for felicitations and for the approval of the community in which they live.

Heretofore Texans have been accustomed to beginning on the first of September, but this year they must wait 15 days.

Cisco Teams Gain Two Victories Friday Night

The Cisco Lions club softballers met and licked the Lions club of Ranger, 18 to 12, smashing out 14 base knocks to snow under the invading ball club here Friday night.

The victory was a compensation for the game last week when the Ranger team defeated Cisco Lions 19 to 14.

Stamey, pitching for the winners, held Ranger to 11 hits.

Cisco began its victory quest in the first inning when four markers were made. Ranger scored once in the second after failing to tally in the opening inning. Cisco did not score in the second, but added a couple in the third to lead 6 to 1.

The losers scored five times in the first of the fourth round to tie the count and Cisco came back to untie it with four runs, and after holding the invaders scoreless in their half of the fifth, came through with 6 more markers to make the score 16 to 6.

In the sixth session Ranger put over six runs to again draw near the winners. Cisco scored twice in the sixth and held the Ranger

Are Women Better Shoppers than Men?

GRANTING a woman's reputation for wise buying, let's trace the methods by which she has earned it. Where does she find out about the advantages and details of electric refrigeration? What tells her how to keep the whole household clean—rugs, floors, bathroow tiling—and have energy left over for golf and parties? How does she learn about new and delicious entrees and desserts that surprise and delight her family? And where does she discover those subtleties of dress and make-up that a man appreciates but never understands?

Why, she reads the advertisements. She is a consistent, thoughtful reader of advertisements, because she has found that she can believe them—and profit thereby. Overlooking the advertisements would be depriving herself of data continuously useful in her job of Purchasing Agent to the Family.

For that matter, watch a wise man buy a car or a suit or an insurance policy. Not a bad shopper himself! He reads the advertisements, too!

Football Games To Be Broadcast Again by Humble

It was announced today that the Humble Oil & Refining company, sponsors of broadcasts of Southwest conference football for the past two years, will again sponsor these broadcasts during the 1937 season.

The broadcast will be over an extensive network of Texas stations, so that followers of conference football in all parts of the state will be able to follow their gridiron favorites without difficulty.

Due to the 10-game schedule adopted by the conference this season, broadcasts will be more condensed than heretofore. On most Saturday afternoons, the Humble company will broadcast as many as three games, and on several Saturdays as many as four, according to tentative schedules now being worked out. This will give radio followers of football a comprehensive picture of the conference season.

The announcing staff is already well known to football fans. It will include Kern Tips, Cy Leonard, Hal Thompson, Gene Wyatt, Tom Jacobs, Bill Hightower and others. Technical equipment, much of it bought new this year to take advantage of latest developments, will be unsurpassed.

New Fur Coats Are Swagger—Prices Higher

By ADELAIDE KERR NEW YORK, Aug. 28. (AP)—The fashion news in winter fur coats, which will come to town in August sales, lies in a straight swagger line, top treatment and the banishment of big collars.

Prices are higher, too, than they were last August. They have increased from ten per cent in squirrel to about thirty-five on Persian lamb, which designers schedule for another important run.

Silhouettes Are Swagger Because the swagger coat lends itself to alteration in shops so much more easily than the fitted princess cut, most of the designers who dictate America's fur styles have placed it first in silhouettes. But this year's version is new. The full-swinging "fish-tail" profile has been changed for a line which hangs straight with a slight, easy-moving fullness sometimes seen in the back. From thirty-two to forty inches are favored lengths.

Furs have been handled almost like velvet, with a general feeling for drapeability and fine workmanship. There is no place for snoddiness this year. Sleeves are large. Virtually every one has a widened draped top set well up on the shoulder thus narrowing the chest line. There are many wide bell sleeves.

Collars have had to give way in order to avoid a top heavy appearance. As a result they have been pruned to the smallest possible designs and many new tricks have been used to make them wearable in several different fashions. Small standing collars fasten with metal clasps, which hide under the roll when the collar is worn open, or bow neckline can be transformed into a fur ascot when the coat is thrown back. Tuxedo lines are shown in many coats.

There are fewer fancy furs and less nonsense this year. Persian lamb, black caracul, mink safari, brown and black sealskin, Hudson seal, nutria, shaved beaver (which is said not to curl), squirrel and kidskin are all good.

There Are Novelties By way of novelties there are guanaco (South American llama, dyed in beige tones), snow-flecked weasel, and white-flecked mink gills (fur from the throat of the mink). All of the novelties are inexpensive. Black leads the color range, followed by brown and gray.

One of the smartest coats of the season for college girls and debutantes is the "chunky coat." It is designed as its name implies, on square, chunky lines with big sleeves and is about hipbone length. Guanaco, skunk and bearskin make the outstanding designs.

SAWING RECORD RICHWOOD, W. Va., Aug. 28. (AP)—The 73-year-old lumberjack twins Sid and Amos Hathaway, ripped their cross-cut saw through a onefoot beech log Friday in three minutes, 20 seconds, thereby claiming a speed record for sawmen over 70.

HOBBY Just for Fun, Actor Studies Heredity In Fly.

MICRO-PHOTOGRAPHER With this microscope, Sig Rumann of the movies takes pictures of things too small for the eye to see.

HOLLYWOOD—Sig Rumann, film character actor, rides a hobby horse that already has cost him $35,000—microscopic research and micro-photography, a field singularly lacking in what Hollywood calls "glamor."

Between pictures and in other spare time the heavy-set German orator behind his Brentwood comedian spends hours in the laboratory.

With glass needles, one on diameter, Rumann digs into the thousandth of a millimeter in salivary gland of one of his flies. In the center of any one of the cells of this gland is a nucleus, and in this nucleus are chromosomes.

Under the microscope these chromosomes look like an irregular pile of disks. Each of these "disks" is a gene, the basis of life itself.

Strawn Sand Test For Cook Pool To Be This Week

ALBANY, Aug. 28.—The first revival for deeper drilling in the Cook Pool area, 6 miles northwest of Albany, is heralded this week with the location of Roeser & Pendleton, Inc.-Continental Oil Co. No. A-28, W. I. Cook estate, located 450 feet southwest of the center of section 85, ETRy in southwest side of the Cook pool and on lease formerly held by Amerada Petroleum corporation, but later acquired by Roeser & Pendleton. The test is slated for the Strawn sand at 3200 feet and will be drilled with cable tools, being about one mile southwest of the only deep test ever drilled in the Cook Pool the Roeser & Pendleton, Inc.-Continental Oil Co. A-89 in section 60, ETRy where more than 2 million feet of gas with spray of oil was discovered in the Strawn sand at 3045 feet, but was passed up and at 5330 feet a bit was lost in the hole and was never recovered, causing abandonment of the test.

Roeser & Pendleton, Inc.-Continental are main leaseholders in the area, with Healey Producing Co. and Baker Oils, Inc., holding leases on the Newell ranch, less than a half mile south of the new location that is slated for starting this week.

The Cook Pool still stands as one of the richest spots in the 1200 foot sand, having produced in excess of $30,000,000 worth of oil and is now allowed 2250 barrels daily from 252 producing wells.

Theoretically, if a scientist could go into the single cell from which human life springs and rearrange these genes, he could change the characteristics of the human being.

Dealers to Aid Ford Company in Used-Car Sale

Fort dealers throughout the United States during September will cooperate with the Ford Motor company in a second annual nationwide used car and truck clearance sale, marking a new trend in automotive merchandising, it was announced today.

The sale will continue throughout the month, with over 100,000 used car and truck sales as the goal. The clearance was inaugurated last year and achieved signal success.

Ford Motor company is aiding the sale with an extensive newspaper advertising campaign.

Ford dealers throughout the country report they are in strategic position for such a sale. Wide-spread acceptance of the 1937 Ford V-8 has built up dealer stocks with an unusually wide assortment of used car and trucks of all makes and models. Price revisions have been made by many dealers, making a used car or truck purchase during this sale an advantageous one for the buyer.

Renewed and guaranteed used cars will figure prominently in the national sale, it was explained. Ford dealers displaying the R & G emblem renew used cars in accordance with rigid specifications laid down by the factory and issue a written, money-back guarantee to the buyer. In preparation for the approaching clearance, dealers have extended their participation in the R & G procedure.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Take heed and be quiet, neither be faint hearted. The work of righteousness shall be peace.—Isa. XXXIX, 7.

China Not Alone Confronts Japan

THE JAPANESE war of conquest in China is more than a struggle between two armies. In that case it would be simply a matter of time for the reason that the Japanese war machine is so much more powerful, so much better equipped and disciplined than the Chinese could not hope to prevail. But they can hope to prevail for the reason that Japan has another enemy to consider, an enemy which can take a terrible toll without firing a shot. If the Chinese can hold out against the Japanese arm long enough, economic prostration of Japan is likely to force cessation of hostilities. It is well known that the Japanese are not now economically able to support a long and costly war. That fact is really at the bottom of their effort to detach more territory from China. Japan wants to make herself not only the master of the east, but the most powerful commercial nation on the globe, emulating in that ambition the rise and power of the British empire. She needs territory rich in resources.

THE MAGNITUDE of the current warfare in China was probably not anticipated by the Nipponese. What they sought was to detach a group of northern provinces as they did Manchuria. Such a move would not be costly either in money or lives. What they discovered was a stronger and a more united China. Their hope now is to prosecute the warfare to a swift and successful conclusion.

BUT THEY made the mistake of affronting the British Lion and another possibility forces its way into the picture. It is the possibility that Great Britain, incensed by an

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—It was at the price of a do-nothing session, but during the eight months just ended congress reasserted its legislative position. In the next two months or so the members will be able to sense enough of the temper of the folks back home to determine how well congress can hold its regained position.

Unquestionably the president held the whip-hand over congress during his first term. He not only ruled, he ruled. There were notable exceptions when he, as self-styled "quarterback," called for plays that were not performed. He lost outrage against the sacrosanct personage of an ambassador, may bring such economic pressure to bear upon the Japanese that their domestic problem will be greatly aggravated. It will be remembered, too, that Japan is a distinct commercial threat to the British, whose markets they have been successfully invading with cotton goods and other commodities manufactured with cheap labor and sold much below the price which other countries in a position to compete for world markets can sell.

ANOTHER CLOUD also hangs over the Japanese horizon. It is the possibility that the Russian soviets may either openly or covertly help the Chinese. The only apparent obstacle to this aid is the fact that Chiang Kai-Shek has led China away from an alliance with communism and the internal troubles of Russia. However, the alarm with which Russia views the spread of Japanese power against her own eastern borders may be a factor tending to effect a strong Russian and Chinese alliance.

OTHER OPINIONS

Freedom Is Freedom Without Exception

FOR 30 YEARS and more the American people have been accustomed to think of freedom of speech in terms of a radical on a soap-box being allowed to speak his piece without interference from the police. Such infringements as we have allowed of our cherished principle of the freedom to speak and publish, have in nine cases out of ten been made where radicalism was concerned. And in such cases, the defenders of freedom of speech have often themselves been accused of radicalism.

Most frequently accused, perhaps, has been the American Civil Liberties Union. But now comes word that ACLU has protested to the city council of Kenosha, Wis., against the council's action in banning a street demonstration by the Nazi Volksbund. Labor unions, progressives and radicals, had protested against any such public meeting, and the council yielded to pressure and cancelled it. The Volksbund, an organization supporting the Hitler regime in Germany and wearing uniforms, had to hold its meeting in the German American club.

The picture of the Civil Liberties Union upholding the right of uniformed Nazis to hold public demonstrations is interesting. It makes clear the ACLU point of view: "We are not concerned with the doctrines of this or any other group," the Union said, "but we are convinced that its right to freedom of speech should not be curbed so long as its meetings are peaceful. . . . Denial of free speech for one group will inevitably lead to denial to others."

It is irritating to Americans to grant American liberties to groups which, if in power, would grant no liberties to anyone else. That goes for the Russian type of radicalism as well as for the German type of Fascism. Neither, once it gains power, offers the slightest freedom to groups which oppose its policies.

Yet the way to reprove these groups is not the way of suppression. The most savage repression in pre-war Russia and in post-war Germany has not eliminated the radical movement. Repression merely drives radicalism underground to fester and smolder toward a sure explosion. Likewise, the rigorous suppression of even opposition Communist groups in Russia, has by the Russians' own confession in recent mass shootings, failed to eliminate that kind of opposition. Suppression is not the way.

It is the free and open air that devious doctrines are fumigated and their explosive powers dissipated. And freedom that is not freedom for groups whose doctrines we may despise, is no freedom at all.

in an effort to have the St. Lawrence power and navigation treaty ratified. He was beaten on the world court proposal. The bonus was paid over his protest.

But in the main, when he called a play the congress responded, and the public in the bleachers yelled loud approval for the team and loudest of all for the quarterback.

Reason for Revolt Advent of the supreme court issue early in the senate ended that sort of harmony. It was not surprising that the opposition to the president controlling hand arose principally among the elder members. They could remember the days when congress was "bigger and better." They wanted it that way again.

You can get into many arguments in these parts by asserting that the opposition to the president's court plan grew out of the simple belief of its foes that it

WHAT IT MEANS:

This Hesitancy in Applying Neutrality

America has a brand new neutrality law, made for use when other nations get into wars. And the Far East is aflame with what a lot of people would call a war. Then why doesn't the United States apply its neutrality law? Morgan Beatty, in his WHAT IT MEANS for this week, answers that question.

BY MORGAN M. BEATTY AP Feature Service Writer WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.— Now that China and Japan are fighting again—and, incidentally, endangering thousands of Americans in the far east—where does that "neutrality law" of ours fit into the picture?

The long and short of it is simple. The neutrality law doesn't fit very well, and probably won't fit any war. Then why have a law? Because congress thinks a lucky break and a cautious policy labelled "neutrality" might conceivably combine some day to keep our international nose clean. At least, the lawmakers decided a neutrality law was worth trying.

It's a good deal like whooping cough vaccine for the baby. You can administer the stuff and hope. But the fact is, baby may go ahead and whoop anyway.

President Must Decide With that situation confronting it, congress decided to give the president the job of deciding when a war existed, since nations don't draw back with grandiose gestures these days and "declare" war. They simply start fighting.

When the president is satisfied a war is going on, and that it may endanger our peace or security, he simply bars absolutely the export of arms, ammunitions and implements of war to the warring nations.

Further, he draws the unpleasant task of deciding what other materials—such as oil, copper, etc.—should be barred on the ground that they might help a nation carry on war.

Then, he may prohibit American ships from carrying these secondary war materials to a fighting country.

Cash and Carry That's the "cash and carry" idea. It simply says Americans can have no interest in contraband goods going to a warring nation.

a campaign issue between now and November of 1935. To Mr. John Q. it sounds too flimsy to be of importance. But whether his congressman or senator was for or against the president on the court bill has become something fairly solid to talk about, and to think about.

If John Q. and a majority of his neighbors think the president should have had the support of their congressmen, even on the court bill, the regained ascendancy of the congress will be short-lived. But if the reverse is true, and John Q. and his neighbors feel that the president has become too all-fired high handed in his tactics, the homegoing congressmen will get wind of it soon enough.

If that hour has arrived—and many observers think it has—the president will have a hard time consolidating his support into anything like a working majority in the next session. But even those observers who think the president has the short end of the stick are confident of one thing, that the president will make an issue of his leadership. And, man, oh man, how that fellow can make an issue!

"Drink no wine or strong drink—that you may distinguish between the holy and the common" (Lev. 10). The power of discrimination is a chief characteristic of human intelligence. Many situations call for the delicate exercise of this faculty. Alcohol is very effective in blunting this important power. Hence the policy of employers to require sober, even non-drinking, workers for those positions that require quick and accurate discrimination. Alcohol-impaired minds might make the difference between safety and a disastrous accident that destroys property and lives. Our highways are a good test of a man's accuracy of discrimination. FLAME TRAIL

BY MARIE DE NERVAUD

Chapter 51
Rescue in Smoke
"Smoke!" Marion groped her way to the door, and as she pulled it open, a thick wave of blackness seemed to roll in on them.

Gasping, they both ran out into the clearing, but here it was even worse. Through the darkness they could see flashes of flames through the trees to the east, ominous crashes and cracklings filled the air and the heat was suffocating.

"Flicker!" Kay cried in an agonized tone. "I've got to get him!" She started to run toward the north end of the clearing, but Marion grabbed her arm.

"Don't be crazy! He'll have broken loose long ago! The west side is our only chance!"

She dropped Kay's arm, and made for the precipitous west slope, then drew back with a cry of terror, as she caught sight of a tree that suddenly burst into flame like a gigantic torch. A second later, there was an answering cry from down the western slope.

"Ted!" Shrieking the name together, the two girls ran to the brink of the sharp precipice that fell away from a rocky ledge, and peered into the blackness.

"Marion!" They could make out Ted's voice clearly now, and the note of bewilderment in it. "Let yourself down over the edge! I'll catch you as you slide!"

Marion pushed Kay forward. "You first!" she commanded.

In the weird light of the blazing tree, they could see Ted, 30 feet or more below, braced against the stump of a scrub spruce. Before Kay could protest, Marion had forced her to her knees, and shoved her over the edge.

Sliding with utter lack of control, Kay tried to break her descent by catching on to any protruding shrubs or rocks, and a second later, though it seemed an eternity, she felt Ted's hand grasp her arm.

For a perilous moment they both swayed, and it seemed inevitable that they would crash on down together, but Ted pulled Kay onto the tiny projecting ledge, where he had secured a precarious foothold.

"Marion!" Kay gasped, pointing upward, and cutting short Ted's amazed exclamation as he discovered whom he held by the arm.

Ted thrust Kay behind him, steadied himself and called, "Now, Marion! Quick!"

Kay clutched a projecting root with one hand and hung on to Ted with the other, to break the shock of the impact of Marion's body, as he brought her to a sudden stop. A second later, and the three of them clung to the cliff, which was now lighted by a second tree that had caught.

Sorrow for Marion
"Follow me!" Ted's voice rang out with the harshness of a military command.

Swinging around a projecting rock, he led the perilous way down, the two girls silently and breathlessly following in his exact footsteps. One last drop, and they had reached the timbered slope.

Ted grabbed one of their hands in each of his and raced down with them to the foot of the canyon. Without a word, he helped them across the narrow stream in its depths, and they pushed up the other side.

Not until they were well up on the other ridge did he pause. Then with a broken "Thank God!" he pulled Kay into his arms.

"Ted! Ted! Where is Dad?" Marion demanded imperiously, and Kay pulled away with a gasp, ashamed of the overmastering emotion that had made her forget everything but her own relief and happiness.

"Marion! Forgive me," Ted swung around still keeping one hand on Kay as though fearful that she might vanish, but putting a steady touch on Marion's arm. "Seeing Kay here put everything else out of my head! Your father, Marion—he paused helplessly searching for words to break the news.

"I knew it!" Marion gave a pitiful groan, and put her hand to her eyes. "You don't have to tell me—he's dead!"

In an instant, Kay's arms were around her, and she turned inquiringly to Ted. He nodded.

"Yes, Marion. Mercifully dead! That is the only way you can think of it."

In as few and as gentle words as possible, Ted told Marion of his finding of her father. Then, to give her time to get a grip on herself, after the first shock of sorrow, he went on to describe his meeting with Josh Hastings, and the subsequent events.

It was Kay's turn to shudder at the thought of the narrow escape Ted had had. But she did not waste any time on the past, as her mind flew to the immediate future.

"Where did you leave him?" she demanded. "We must get right back! He might die or escape or something!"

"He had a mean blow on the head, but I don't think he'll die," Ted answered. "And there's no chance of his escaping; He's well out of the fire line, with this shift of wind, but I doubt if he knows it. By the time we get back, I reckon he'll be ready to tell anything he knows, rather than risk being left behind."

"Come!" Marion turned and led the way up the slope. "Ted's future is the thing to think of now! Not my poor Dad. His troubles are over, and you're right—it is far better. Her voice broke with a sob, but she pushed bravely on with Ted and Kay on either side of her. "How did Josh Hastings ever happen to be there?" she asked finally, with a determined change of subject.

"Search me!" Ted began, but Kay interrupted.

"He must have been looking for Zeke Farley and his posse," she exclaimed. "Shorty said he'd gone out to join them."

"I reckon Zeke Farley's given up looking for me right now, and has joined the fire fighting gang," Ted observed. "Josh Hastings likely came to the same conclusion, and was on his way to find him."

He stopped as the slope became steeper, and saved his breath for the climb, leading the way as they fell into single file up the rocky ledge. The sky behind them was weirdly lighted with a lurid glare which permeated the darkness, spreading out in a pinkish glow over their heads.

"I Want the Truth!"
After some desperately difficult scrambling, Ted paused to take his bearings.

"It must have been about here that I left that cayuse of mine. Wait a second." He left them, and reappeared a few minutes later.

er, leading his horse. "Now you can have easier going."

Motioning the two girls to get on, he led the way south along the crest of the ridge. After a half hour or so, he stopped and gave a long "Whoopie!"

There was a faint answer in the distance.

"He's there all right," Ted declared with relief in spite of his former confident assertion that Josh Hastings couldn't escape them.

Another 10 minutes, and they came out on the ridge where Ted had left his would-be assassin. A string of oaths and imprecations greeted them as they picked their way through the underbrush, but Ted cut him peremptorily short.

"I've brought my witnesses," he announced curtly, and the next minute they all came out on Josh Hastings, who peered up at the two girls with incredulous amazement.

"Where in hell—"

"Never mind that," Ted interrupted sharply. He pulled a notebook and pencil out of his pocket.

"Now, then. Repeat what you said back there!"

Josh Hastings' mouth twisted. "I don't know what you mean."

"Oh, yes, you do!" Ted's eyes narrowed. "And unless you come across, I'll leave you here for the cremation you missed before."

From his place on the ground, bound hand and foot, Hastings struggled up to a sitting position. "So, you still want me to lie, to save your neck, and put my own in the noose!" he sneered, with one eye on Kay to measure the effect of his words. "I'd rather take a chance on the fire!"

"I don't want any lies," Ted countered. "I want the truth about how you killed Scrap Johnson, and framed me for it. And I'm going to get it!" He made a move toward his gun.

Josh Hastings gave a harsh laugh. "Go ahead and get it, then! And I'll have witnesses to prove you got it by extortion!"

County Officers Carry Largest Burdens, Says

ABILENE, Aug. 28.—Attorney-General William McCraw, shaking hands with the crowd and complimenting the ladies, last night brought to a climax the big day in West Texas County Judges and Commissioners fall convention here.

He was speaker for the annual banquet, staged in the Hilton ballroom and attended by 250 judges, commissioners and guests.

Introduced by President Alvin R. Allison of the association as "the next governor of Texas," McCraw prefaced his talk with banter, then plunged into an oration that consisted principally of praise of the work of county officials.

"On your shoulders," he told judges and commissioners, "lie the greatest burdens of our government." He pointed out that the mass of the people judge the government as a whole by their judges and commissioners, whom they daily see at work.

Economy Needed
Hinting at policies in state politics, the attorney-general said that every branch of the government needed to turn toward economy, to prevent the people from losing faith in the various units.

He also declared that he was looking forward to the day when the state would have a good civil service system, and placed himself in direct opposition to the spoils system of filling state jobs.

The convention crowd was entertained at a dance in the ballroom, after a reception by the Business and Professional Women's club which followed the banquet.

Today's Program.
Today's sessions of the convention opened at 9 a. m. After preliminaries, L. G. Phares, chief of the highway patrol, C. V. Terrell, chairman of the railroad commission, and Rep. Clyde Garrett of the 17th district will be heard in that order. Address of Everett Looney, Austin attorney postponed from Friday, will be worked into the program.

Final address will be by Dr. Hamilton Ford of the University of Texas medical school, followed by the final report of the resolutions committee, selection of officers for the ensuing year, and selection of the next meeting place.

Registration was near the 275 mark late Friday, as final corners signed in for the convention.

Active Day
Friday was the big day for the convention, with sessions opening at 9 a. m. and continuing throughout the day. Principal morning speaker was state Rep. Howard C. Davison of Rotan, who discussed relationships between county and state.

Topping the afternoon slate were addresses by Gerald C. Mann of Dallas, and Mrs. Norman Rankin, director of child welfare service, Austin.

Mann pointed out weaknesses in present forms of government, and declared the present state constitution obsolete. Criticizing the small vote in Monday's constitutional amendment election, he urged that the general public take more interest in politics and political affairs.

Spoils system was vigorously condemned, as was the present distribution of taxes. Mann suggested a central agency for the collection of all state taxes.

The former secretary of state and unannounced candidate for attorney-general was given a rising vote of thanks for his address by the convention.

Entertainment for which he is noted was given in an humorous talk by W. T. (Tan Lac) Strange, Big Spring architect. Judge Dave Miller of Fort Worth led a roundtable discussion of commissioners' proposals.

Well Flows 160 Barrels in Hour After Treatment

TAMFORD, Aug. 28.—East off to the Avoca field discovery well, the Maracaibo Exploration No. 1 Carl Olander, was placed on railroad commission potential late Friday to flow 160 barrels into storage during the first trial.

Originally showing for only two barrels per hour on a trial test, the well increased production after treatment with 40 gallons of acid early today, running 35 feet lower on structure than the pool opener, the Mountain No. 1 Olander, the topped Palo Pinto lime pay the Canyon series at 3,276 feet drilled to 3,280 feet. The well, begun at 4:30 this afternoon, was to be only a 12-hour trial, since only 1,000 barrels of storage was available.

The well is located in the northeast corner of the southeast quarter of section 196-BBB&C survey. The pool is about three miles east of Avoca, about 10 miles south of here.

Northeast offset to the discovery well, the Iron Mountain and Hummer No. 1 Haterius, continued to produce oil after 700 bags of mud were loaded into the hole. The well, showing for a larger potential than the 2,700-barrel pool opener, began heading immediately yesterday when pay was drilled two feet from top of 3,240 feet. It is in the southwest corner of the northeast quarter of section 196-BBB&C survey.

Louis to Defend His Title Tonight, Favored to Win

By EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK, Aug. 28. (AP)—Joe Louis, the 23-year-old fistic sensation from Detroit, makes the defense of his recently won heavyweight title against Tommy Farr, British Empire champion, at the Yankee Stadium Monday.

The weather man didn't promise to be any too kind about it. Even so, the outlook is for a crowd of between 30,000 and 40,000 and a gate of around $250,000.

The young Brown Bomber, who tasted the heavyweight crown on James J. Braddock's head at Chicago last June, continued an overwhelming favorite.

Odds, which had been stationery at 4 to 1 for a week, shot to 1 today and Broadway gamblers said they might reach 7 to 1 by the time Louis and Farr climb to the ring.

Louis and Farr, both trained in the minute, took things easy at their training camps at Pompton Lakes and Long Branch, N. J., Friday preparatory to motoring into town for the weighing-in ceremonies at noon before the state Athletic commission.

Louis expects to weigh in at 198 tomorrow. Farr's fighting weight is 204 and he is down to that now. Farr feels he is faster and smarter than Louis and rugged enough to take the champ's terrific punches.

RELIEF ROLLS RELIEVED
SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 28. (AP)—T. K. McBeth, director of the Texas Relief administration here, announced Thursday that 1,181 families had been taken from the relief rolls in Bexar county in order to increase the supply of labor available for farmers of this section who need cotton pickers.

Prepare Now to Plant Shrubbery In November

(Editor's Note: Following is the first of a series of articles on planting and care of shrubbery written by J. F. B. Wright.)

By J. F. B. WRIGHT

I have been planning for quite a while to write a series of articles on planning, planting and caring for shrubbery and trees and plants, having had years of experience in this line of work. I hope I can impart some useful information to the good people who have been so nice to me.

Now is a good time to plan your scheme of planting for the fall. Don't wait till planting time then just stick them in the ground any way. It is just as necessary to have your soil prepared as it is to plant.

If your soil is poor, have some good leaf mold soil hauled or black loam soil. Something that will grow your shrubs and plants. Have your beds and grounds thoroughly prepared by digging and pulverizing all clods. This work can be done anytime till planting time which is about November 15.

Remember it is very necessary to have your ground prepared. If you expect to succeed in your work you must put enthusiasm into it and remember it takes work and more or less expense to have a nice place and beautiful trees and shrubs add to the beauty of your place as much as anything you can have so begin now to plan and prepare your grounds for your fall plantings. Don't expect to grow nice shrubs in poor soil that won't grow anything. It can't be done. Anyone who wishes any personal information may contact me at 306 West Eighth or phone 74. I'll be glad to give you any information I can. I shall follow this article with others and I hope to cover the ground as thoroughly as possible. Anything I may leave out just call and meet personally. I will be glad to help you if I can.

Landlords Resent Chinatown's 'Podii'

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28. (AP)—American owners of a building in Chinatown charge that the local Chinese custom of "podii" has caused two long-standing store vacancies.

Asking a $5,000 cut in tax valuation because of this situation, Robert Troy, building manager, described podii as "a pernicious form of blackmail used by the Chinese in San Francisco and nowhere else in the world."

Troy calls it a boycott on property. When a building tenant has failed in business, his creditors sometimes attach his debts to the property instead of the individual, he explained. Written notices are posted and other Chinese business men will not occupy the place for fear of reprisals.

"The landlord is sooner or later approached with the suggestion he make a 'settlement' and his property would immediately rent again," Troy said.

Good Roads for Cisco Country

Daily Press Engraving

Here are scenes made of the "farm to market" road which Comm'r Arch Birt recently completed from Highway No. 1, at a junction just beyond the Harrell crossing, overpass, three miles west of Cisco, to Highway 23, serving the Bluff Branch and other communities northwest of Cisco. The road is typical of several that are being built in Predict Four. Surfaced with caliche, they may be travelled in all weather. The solid masonry construction of the drainage structures is evident, while the manner in which the dump is protected with rip-ripping or rock is also pictured. The road was built with Works Progress administration labor under the direction of Tommy Gordon.

Shackelford Farms, Ranches Aided by Rain

ALBANY, Aug. 28. — Rain in practically every surrounding section was reported this week for the season's wettest spell, putting out more stock water and bettering agricultural conditions. Ranchmen, who were hauling water received rain, varying from one inch to a little over five inches.

Covering a period of twenty-four hours, August 21 and 22, a total rainfall of 1.32 inches was recorded, making the total for the month of August, 1.33. Rain recorded for the month of August during 1936 was .11. The year's total rainfall in Albany since January 1, 1937, is 11.55 inches.

Reports from Lambshead ranch was that they had received 5.42 inches of rain during Saturday and Sunday, which is believed to be the heaviest rainfall for any of the surrounding ranches. Tom Blanton received approximately two inches of rain, and a new tank, which had been completed, caught nearly nine feet of water. A little over one inch was reported on Tom Price's ranch with same falling over the R. J. Moberley place, eight miles on the Breckenridge road.

Much relief was felt as the rains lowered the temperature somewhat, for a short time. The low degree reached was 70 degrees, recorded August 23rd, last Monday. The highest mark for the season was 110 degrees, on the fifth, sixth, and seventh of this month.

of this output was poetry, part just fact about prison. "Museum" itself was smuggled out of jail, although it seems that a certain amount at least of Phelan's writing was returned to him by the authorities.

The novel is nothing at all new, and it has a fault in American eyes. This last is that once in a while there is a stream of consciousness passage in this case more of a trickle than a stream. And this is in the most difficult combination of British low class slang and prison argot, almost untranslatable for any but an expert. Some might also find it a fault that Phelan's attention is so entirely concentrated on the prison; one loses control of the system of checks and balances one must apply to prison problems to keep one's sense of proportion.

Otherwise "Museum" is a literal and absorbing narrative of the experience endured by a young lifer, and the emotions created by the experiences. The prison types are perhaps a little hard and fast, and Phelan's values a little foreign to normal experience. The core of the book is just, however, and the writing is at least adequate. Readers will not again look blankly at prison wall as the motors pass.

Mayfair, London's fashionable section, derives its name from a fair formerly held in the locality during May.

"MUSEUM," by James L. Phelan; (Morrow; $2.50).

Perhaps because it's one of the least elaborate in construction James L. Phelan's "Museum" ranks rather high in the category of prison novels. Or perhaps this is because it's really not a novel at all, but a part of Phelan's own experience.

The author is a cousin of Sean O'Faolain, author of "A Nest of Simple Folk." His correct name is Seumas Ua Foaillin, and early in life he was working for Irish freedom. He fought in the Easter rebellion and eventually he shot a mail clerk in Lancashire. In the course of his "duty" as Irish agitator, he twice was sentenced to death, and actually spent 14 years in two prisons—Dartmoor and Parkhurst.

While in prison he wrote enormously. The total (of which "Museum" is presumably a part) is nearly five million words. Part

Cows Face Big Job On Ohio's Pastures

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 28. (AP)—On the average Ohio pasture, a cow would have to take 180 bites of grass a minute for 12 hours in order to keep its milk production up to scratch, says D. R. Dodd, agronomist at Ohio State university.

If a cow is to produce 25 to 35 pounds of milk, it must consume 200 pounds of grass to get the necessary amount of digestible proteins and nutrients, he figures. The average pasture has only about 1,200 pounds of grass an acre available at one time, so the cow would have to harvest one-sixth of an acre daily. And that calls for 18 bites a minute for 12 hours. Dodd suggests improving the pasture.
