Deep Oil Object Of Activities in These Scenes

Pictures Show Phillips Test Near Scranton

Taking immediate interest among deep oil explorative operations in this sector is the Phillips Petroleum company's arduous test, now rigging up, on the B. P. Cozart farm about two miles northwest of Scranton and in Callahan county. The Phillips is reported to have leased two large blocks of acreage in the area as the result of extensive coring activities begun two years ago. Gallagher and Lawson, Cisco firm, have the contract for drilling the well. The derrick erected by Phillips has excited almost as much interest among oil men as the test itself, embodying the most advanced details for safety and efficiency.

In drilling the well, Gallagher and Lawson plan to set 8-inch casing at 4,000 feet so that in the event no production is encountered in the Ellenberger, the hole can be carried through the Hickory. The map to the left shows the location of the test in relation to Scranton and Eastland county. The heavy line through the center separates Callahan and Eastland counties. The Cozart well is in the heavy black circle. Upper right is a general view of the derrick and below are members of the crew rigging up. They are, left to right, Carl Baird, Angel Clark, Harry Donica, Man Roberts, J. D. Browning and R. Leach.

Young People to Meet at Abilene

The Presbyterian Young People's League of this district will meet in a session at Abilene next Friday evening, it was announced Saturday. Members of the Cisco league were urged to make their plans to attend.

Oil Ass'n Board Will Meet Here

A meeting of the directors of the West Central Texas Oil and Gas association will be held at the Cisco Country club beginning at 3:30 Tuesday afternoon, September 22, Charles J. Kleiner, Cisco operator, announced Saturday following receipt of a letter from President J. C. Hunter of the association, Abilene.

A dinner will be served. Lee Heltzel, also a member of the board, is chairman of arrangements for the entertainment of the visitors. Other directors of the association in Cisco are J. H. Reynolds, R. L. Ponsler, J. A. Bearman and L. A. Warren. It is vitally important, Mr. Hunter's letter read, that every director be present in order that plans may be made to combat a proposed increase in the gross production tax on oil in the special session of the state legislature this month. He urged that each director not only attend but that they invite and bring with them other oil operators whether members of the association or not.

SHELLS CRASH INTO YANKEE MARINE AREA

Chinese Retort With Heaviest Night Air Raid of War

SHANGHAI, Sept. 18 (AP)—Japanese artillery unleashed a bombardment of the Markham road section today bringing fresh perils to the American-defended sector of the international settlement. Shells crashed into the area near where United States marines were stationed. The attack was launched against Lihong, Loten, Kiangwan, Chapel, and Postung. The Chinese replied with one of the heaviest night air raids the city has ever experienced.

From Peiping the Japanese announced a triple-headed thrust deep into the Chinese central Hopeh province lines and pushed the defenders back toward the fortified line which neutral observers believe would see the decisive battle of the Sino-Japanese conflict. F. B. Lynch, American advisor to the Chinese finance ministry, and his wife narrowly escaped injury when a shell plunged into their home in the French quarters.

In brilliant moonlight, bombing planes attacked Japanese ground forces and naval craft in the Whangpoo river. Japanese anti-aircraft guns stabbed the skies and showered the city with shell fragments.

Searchlight beams criss-crossed over the city, attempting to follow the darting Chinese planes. One airman dived repeatedly through bursting anti-aircraft shells to drop bombs on Japanese warships, but failed to score a hit.

Time and again the planes returned to the attack, only to be driven off by Japanese guns. Japanese troops were said to have advanced within a mile of Louhng, the powerful wireless transmitting base to the north where Chinese forces were in strong positions. Heavy Chinese casualties were reported in the counter attacks when Japanese permitted the advancing troops to push within close range before opening a withering machine gun fire that halted the Chinese.

While here he will be the guest of Supt. D. C. Harper of the Cisco hatchery.

Mrs. Jack Elkins is visiting in Dallas.

The engraving department of the Cisco Daily Press is doing quite well, thank you. Hoping that I don't appear boastful, may I call your attention to the fact that the cuts have shown a steady improvement in quality. I hope you will note those in this issue of the Press to substantiate that statement. We are very grateful for the enthusiastic manner in which our readers have accepted this new addition to the service that the Press has made. It has been done at a considerable expense in money and a Dickens of a lot of expense in time and sleepless nights. But we are confident that it will do as much to advertise Cisco as any other one thing that has been done. It is just another step toward building for this community a newspaper that will serve it as a newspaper should.

Local pictures will now appear constantly in the Press. We firmly believe that Cisco people read a Cisco paper primarily for local news, and local pictures are news of the highest order. Therefore we have prepared ourselves to give our readers this feature, rather than to place emphasis on pictures from a distance which the state papers can present with much SYNOPSIS: Wealthy, flashy Prescott Panning kidnaps Janet, a Baltimore girl, aboard his yacht. She sends word to Neil, a young federal agent who loves her. Rushing to Absalom's Harbor, he boards the yacht and finds, in a locked cabin, Panning shot dead and Janet in a faint, a gun beside her. Neil rows her to the disused liners up the river and hides her in the best suite. Back at the village he resumes his fisherman role to watch developments. The townfolk are wildly excited over the murder. Button Billings, justice of the peace, takes charge, moves the body and holds an inquest.

Chapter 16 Neil's Adversary

Car after car arrived at Absalom's bringing newspaper men from Washington and Baltimore, and later from more distant cities: Norfolk, Richmond, Philadelphia and even New York. The reporters spread around asking questions.

Other cars brought curiosity-seekers from all the adjacent counties and even from the city. Motor-boats from across the bay were coming into the harbor as if for a regatta. Neil wondered angrily what these people did for a living. The villagers gave up their usual occupations and took up good points of vantage to watch the arrivals and to pass the latest news. All this hullabaloo made Neil feel pretty grim. The whole world, it seemed, was aroused against him and Janet.

Shortly after 4 o'clock an ear-splitting chorus of sirens was heard approaching from up the river road and a car bearing the Maryland coat-of-arms swept around the corner with an escort of 10 state constables on motorcycles. They pulled up in front of the store. In the car rode a stern-looking man that Neil knew must be Bonniger, and beside him the sergeant of police in command of the detachment.

On the store porch Mr. Button Billings was waiting with his whiskers idly swaying in the breeze. A little behind him stood Virgil Longcope grinning and chewing a cigar.

"How do you do, gentlemen?" said Mr. Billings with dignity. "I am the representative of the law here."

"How are you, Mr. Billings?" said Bonniger, and Neil saw that he had a sense of humor.

The police officer was introduced as Sergeant Wilson.

"The deceased is over in the shed," said the justice of the peace mysteriously. "Will you step over and take a look at him?"

"In the shed?" put in Sergeant Wilson sharply. "We were told he was shot aboard his yacht."

"Well, he was. But we sat on him in the shed."

Virgil stood by enjoying every word of this. The cigar of the moment rolled merrily over and over.

"And do you mean to say you have moved him?" said Wilson. "You have changed everything about?"

"It's our custom to sit on a corpse," said Mr. Billings firmly.

"You could have waited until we got here, couldn't you? What good did the inquest do? Did it establish anything?"

"The verdict was: Unknown man shot to death at the hands of person or persons unknown."

"My God!" said the sergeant. The crowd laughed, Virgil the loudest of any. Mr. Button Billings glared around him and the laughter increased.

"I wash my hands of this case," he announced crushingly, and marched away with unshaken dignity, followed by laughter.

Investigators Get to Work
From that moment the comedy element was eliminated, and the investigation got to work in grim earnest. Constables were told off to establish police lines, and to direct traffic, while others went in to prepare quarters for the detachment in the loft over the store. A man was sent out to eject the souvenir-hunters from the yacht, and to mount guard on her deck; one went out with him to get the crew.

"These witnesses must be separated from the crowd," said Bonniger. "Let them be kept in your quarters over the store now."

Neil studied Bonniger as he stood on the porch issuing his orders. This was his adversary. He saw a tall, spare man with the fine aquiline features of the old Maryland stock. There was good blood in this man. At present his face wore a grim, stern mask. A man who could keep his own counsel. He had a quiet voice and the kind of courteous manner that seems a little old-fashioned nowadays. The level gaze of his brown eyes warned Neil that he had a real man to deal with here. Bonniger dressed in a careless and slightly old-fashioned style that suited his type: broad-brimmed black hat, soft shirt and flowing tie.

Sergeant Wilson was of a much more conventional type—a fine soldierly specimen, and no doubt a good police officer, but not brilliant. Neil disregarded him. Bonniger was his man.

Bonniger, Longcope and Wilson entered the store, and a constable was placed at the door to keep everybody else out. Others kept the crowd moving back and forth in the road. It galled Neil to have to parade with the others, just as if he had no more than a curiosity-seeker's interest in the case. He determined that somehow or other he would get in with Bonniger; he would make a friend of him so that he could be at the center of things. It would be dangerous, but it would be worth the risk.

Chafing at His Exclusion
Some time passed before Bonniger appeared again, but Neil had plenty of evidences of his activities. Searchers of the woods on foot and of nearby waters by boat were organized, each under the command of a constable, and sent off. The latter party struck an ugly fear into Neil, but there was nothing he could do about it. He hung around on the wharf watching their preparations and listening. The villager whose skiff had been stolen was describing his craft to them. Luckily that skiff was at the bottom of the river.

Neil, chafing at his exclusion, had to watch messengers being despatched in various directions, and different individuals being taken into the back office for questioning. He would have given a lot to be at Bonniger's side.

On the outskirts of the crowd he ran into Horace Kettering in his old clothes with a row of fish hooks caught in his hat-brim. Kettering, it appeared, had just heard of the crime on returning from fishing.

"What's this? What's this?" he demanded of Neil.

Neil told him the main facts. Kettering looked comically disgusted. It's hard enough for me to get a few days' holiday, and now my fishing will be spoiled by this uproar! My boy and I caught 30 fish today. That's more important to me than a murder!"

"Oh, sure," said Neil. "What do these Hicks propose to do about solving the crime?" asked Kettering.

"Virgil Longcope has got the governor to appoint Mark Bonniger as a special investigator."

"But he's a country gentleman, not a detective."

"Well, they seem to think he's the best they've got."

"I've met the man casually in town. I must go and say how-de-do to him."

"What about this Bonniger?" asked Neil.

"Oh, he's a fine fellow," said Kettering. "Come on. I'll give you an introduction."

"This was better luck than Neil had expected."

The incident occurred at a dedication banquet in Denver's new filtering plant. There are no connections in the plant where a thirsty man can get a drink.

Pointers Given on Planting of Evergreens

This is the fourth in a series of articles appearing in the Cisco Daily Press and written

By J. B. F. WRIGHT

In planting evergreens, it must be remembered that they come with dirt already around them and tied up with burlap. It is particular work to prepare them for transplanting. You must have your shovel sharp so that you can cut away the soil and leave the ball around the roots. When you have it cut out, put a piece of burlap large enough to cover the ball and tie it or use a nail to secure it about the ball to prevent it breaking the ball. Then, so holding, pick it up by the ball and dig your hole, larger and deeper than the ball so you can fill in with some loose soil. In the bottom of the hole, using good top soil to give your plant a good start, fill it about two-thirds full of soil then fill with water, letting it soak down, then finish filling up leaving a basin around the plant to hold a bucket of water or more depending on the size of the tree.

When you place the tree in the hole, get it set like you want it, then cut the top of the burlap and lay it back in the hole so the tip of the ball will be bare and so it will take the water better. Leave the rest of the burlap on the ball. It will soon rot and the roots will grow out the holes of the burlap. Remember, deep watering is necessary to take care of all deep rooted trees and shrubs.

One good soaking each week is much better than a spraying each day. Watch out for insects; there are lots of bugs and worms and lice that live on all kinds of plants and eternal vigilance is the price to pay to have these beautiful things, but when they stand out in all their beauty and grandeur, after we have worked hard and fully developed them to their state of majestic glory, we look on them in pride and say, "You are worth it all."

All cedars and other evergreens require more or less trimming to give them a perfect shape. Very few will grow up and develop perfectly without trimming, but whoever trims them should know their habits and trim them to conform to their natural habit. If he can't visualize this evergreen trimmed up before he touches it, you had better not let him touch it or he will likely get it all out of proportions. Don't allow your cedars and arborvitae to be trimmed in the fall or winter, but only in the spring and early summer should they be trimmed and never later than October 1.

Veterans of Foreign Wars Founded in '99

The veterans of Foreign Wars is just what its name implies—an organization of men who, like the Crusaders of old, have followed the Stars and Stripes into foreign climes, and men who have proven their patriotism by the offering of their mortal bodies and immortal souls in sacrifice that liberty should not perish from the earth, and that American ideals and institutions might be preserved for posterity.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars is a permanent organization. It will continue as long as it is necessary for American citizens to defend the faith of their fathers.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States resulted from the amalgamation of several societies formed immediately following the Spanish-American War in 1899. Little groups of veterans returned from campaigning in Cuba and Philippine Islands, founded local societies upon that spirit of comradeship, similar experiences and a common language drew them together, and in 1899 they formed The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States.

The V. F. W. is unique in its eligibility requirements. To join its ranks, a man must be able to produce an honorable discharge from the Army, Navy or Marine Corps, showing "service honest and faithful" in time of war in the theater of operation.

The V. F. W. having within its ranks today men who have served their country through more than thirty years of American campaigning, is destined to live as long as it is necessary for our country to defend its rights.

We have a large membership and getting new members at every meeting, and are having good attendance. We have members from Eastland, Rising Star, Ranger, Gorman, Moran, Putnam, DeLeon and Scranton, and we urge you to get in touch with us and let us have your application, we have something that every ex-service man needs.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

As thy day so shall thy strength be. . . The God of Israel is He that giveth strength and power unto His people. . . Peace from God our Father and Christ Jesus.—Deut. xxxiii, 25; Ps. lxxviii, 35; Tim. i, 2.

GOING TO THE FAIR

For weeks and months she'd set aside, With just and honest pride, Her choicest cans of meat and beans And even humble turnip greens, Everything that she could can; Most everything except the old man. Father takes his choicest Jersey cow, Sonny takes the Poland China pigs and sow, Sister Susan's chickens top the pile. While her fancy sewing shows the style. Such an array, the wagon won't hold it all, So we're taking the truck this fall. —MARTHA HEROLD WATKINS.

On the Defensive

THE address of President Roosevelt Friday night marked a turning point in his presidential career. It was obvious that the president, by the content and the tenor of his appeal for a "broad interpretation" of the constitution, has accepted the need for a defense of his program. With all the characteristic force and persuasiveness of his admirable personality he accepted the challenge. His idealism, as before, was magnificent, his arguments as plausible as the generalities of the philosopher. What made them plausible is the fact that they were generalities, the same generalities toward which the founders strove and for the accomplishment of which the constitution, which the president used as the springboard for his appealing appeal, was framed. No one in his senses disagrees with the object of making democracy effective in the perpetuation of the social and political freedom which this nation enjoys. None disagrees with the splendid ideal of promoting the welfare of the average man. There is no sensible argument against the principle that dictatorships, of whatever kind or color, are abhorrent to American character and institutions. And in that fact exists one of the main reasons why the president is now compelled to defend his program. The ideals and the objective of any dictatorship are of little moment so far as justification of such rule are concerned. The end which the Hitler regime has in Germany and that which Mussolini seeks in Italy are probably quite in keeping with the aspirations of the great majority of the citizens of those countries. But it is the fact that they are essentially one-man rules which counts. We must remember, and those into whose hands the public gives authority should remember, that the measurement of satisfaction with democratic government exists in the freedom which it affords the individual. The mistake that Mr. Roosevelt appears to have made is that his concept of a "broader" interpretation of the constitution means a greater concentration of powers in the hands of the government at the expense of personal liberty rather than a greater individual independence and enjoyment of the real virtues of American citizenship. Under his program government would govern much if benevolently. And the fact is that any object achieved at the expense of delegated authority is achieved at the expense of a surrender of the liberties of the individual citizens.

Sheep Increasing

REPORTS in newspapers revealing that cattlemen of this section are building up considerable flocks of sheep suggests the change that has occurred since the days when cattlemen and sheepmen engaged in bitter and sanguinary war over possession of the ranges of the west. Modern day ranching recognizes the profitable relationship which exists between cattle and sheep and investments which cattlemen are making in sheep will increase materially the prospects for profit from the ranches already devoted to cattle.

THE Cisco country is peculiarly adapted to sheep and goat culture. Instances where these animals have been run with cattle have convinced many that income from the same land can be materially increased by such a program. But it is a fact that goats and sheep can be made to pay handsomely, granted that seasons and market conditions are normal, as they must be in any agricultural vocation. The greatest difficulty obstructing the developing of such an industry here now seems to be lack of capital among those most in need of it. Improved agricultural conditions eventually may help to overcome this condition, however.

A Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Just because the United States had an "adverse" balance of trade in 1934 and expects another one for 1937 is no reason for business men to start jumping off bridges. Many economists refuse to call it an "adverse" or "unfavorable" balance of trade. Instead they call it an "import surplus." The department of commerce insists it should be simply an "unbalance of payments," since only part of it represents a trade in goods. Shipping services, interest and dividends and tourist expenditures enter into it. But the fact remains that in 1934, for the first time in decades, the United States had an import surplus. It amounted to $153,000,000. Even so it exported $34,000,000 more of actual goods than it imported. The deficit came in such items as American tourist expenditures abroad, services of foreign ships in carrying American produce, and other "invisibles." Total exports, goods services and all were $3,483,000,000.

mean that the republic is falling. England has had an adverse balance of trade in merchandise for generations. It has made up the difference by supplying shipping service and capital to other countries, while at the same time enticing tourists to spend lavishly in dear old England. Foreign nations in debt to the United States can pay only in goods or services. And they can not amass a margin to pay the debts if they are required to buy from the United States as much as they sell it.

A Sign of Good Times Of course there are boat loads of argument on both sides of the question as to whether a permanent "favorable" balance of trade is beneficial to a nation. The department of commerce supplies information helping to throw a favorable light on the present trade deficit. This country is better off, so is able to buy more abroad. One of the indications of good times here is the increase in American tourist travel abroad.

Then, too, currency devaluations abroad have reduced the cost to America of foreign goods. Because these prices are low, American manufacturers are buying foreign raw materials heavily. Ultimately foreign prices are sure to rise, so American manufacturers, with supplies of cheaper raw material bought in advance, can undersell foreign goods later. It is noteworthy, in support of this, that the principal increase in imports to this country is in raw materials, such as rubber, part of which will be later exported as finished goods. The department of commerce insists also that the trade pact are helping break down trade barriers, but that is something likely to be a subject of political wars for years to come.

"Great Mother Forest," by Attilio Gatti; (Scribners; $3.75).

If you are within reach of the New York papers, you probably have read of the sensation that Congo has made up at the Bronx Zoo. Congo is an okapi (or spell it "okwapi" if you prefer; either is correct). Congo was bought in Belgium, and the reason for his being there was that okapis come from the Belgian Congo.

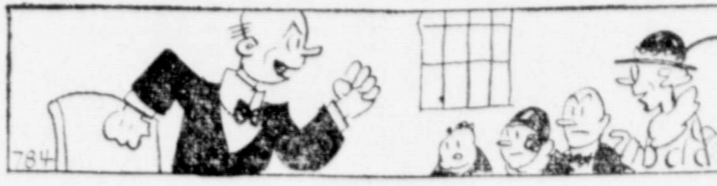

So does Commander Attilio Gatti, who just has published a book in America which he calls "Great Mother Forest." This is not any great distinction for the United States, but it is mentioned. The same book is appearing currently in six other languages.

And it is rather a curious book, even for a travel book. It is a combination of anthropological, even for a travel book. It is a combination of anthropological, ethnographical, zoological and palaeontological information with the style and listen-little-children attitude of a Sunday school story paper. There seems to be no reason to doubt Commander Gatti's sincerity or knowledge. But he needn't be so confidently scoutmasterish about it all. Gatti is especially fond of the Belgian Congo and the natives thereof. He is quite matter of fact about a lot of things one might expect indignation on, and just as sentimental as an old maid with a kitten when discussing the okapi and bongo, objects of his expeditions at various times. His description of the okapi hunt is, however, the best part of the book,

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

No Detail To Be Overlooked

By IRVIN S. COBB ACCORDING to a friend of mine, who knows as many good stories as anybody on earth, it was the last night of the revival meeting. The evangelist was going strong. His subject was eternal damnation.

With all the eloquence at his command, he urged the congregation to flee from the wrath to come. "Ah, my friend," he exclaimed, "on that last dread day there will be weeping, and wailing, and gnashing of teeth!" In a rear pew stood up an elderly woman. "Elder," she said tremulously, "I ain't got no teeth." "Madam," he shouted back, "Teeth will be provided!" (American News Features, Inc.)

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

The Reward of an Expert

By IRVIN S. COBB IN THAT section of West Virginia which is mainly standing on end lived a mountain preacher known as Pa Jordan, who had never stirred from his native hills. In the fall, word came to Pa Jordan, that a party of Northern men were stopping at a nearby cabin, so that evening he put on his shoes and went over to call on the "furriners" who were spying out coal lands.

As they sat about the log fire Pa Jordan noticed that one of the strangers was wearing glasses and that he used them for reading as well as for other purposes.

"Mister," he said, "do you wear them specs all the time?" "Yes." "Ain't you got no other pair?" "No." "Well," said Pa Jordan, "it don't seem in nature to have specs that air both fur-lookin' and nigh-seem' at the same time." He pondered over this miracle a moment and then continued musingly: "But then, times is changin'—they's even changin' here. I kin remember when you could git a man to work fur you fur four bits a day. Now they won't take less'n a dollar and a half."

One of the party was a famous mining-expert, who had been retained to examine and report on certain coal veins at the rate of a hundred dollars a day and his expenses. The man who owned the marvelous glasses pointed to the expert.

"This man gets more than a dollar and a half a day," he said. "How much do you git, Mister?" asked Pa Jordan, turning to him. "Well," said the expert, "sometimes I get as much as three dollars a day."

"Fur doin' what?" "For going 'round and looking at these coal prospects and measuring them." "You git three dollars a day jest fur lookin' at these here coal banks?" "Yes." "Well," said Pa Jordan, "all I got to say is that to earn that much money you must work fur into the night." (American News Features, Inc.)

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

Nations, like individuals, have had to make choices. There are turning points in their history, years, perhaps days, whose events are determining the future. Of course the power of decision belongs only to an individual, and the action of any group consists in the concerted action of a number of individuals who have got together for the time being. And yet many times there is such contagion about emotions and so much imitation about motions that people do act as a group. Each one has sunk his individuality into a common fund of aim and act that is made up of the compromised attitudes of many individuals; each thinks and especially does a little differently from what he would alone. IN AND ABOUT MORAN

(By Bob Taylor)

CROSS PLAINS TROUNCES MORAN

The first twenty inches of this space could well be used to tell of how the battling Moran Bulldogs fought valiantly to the last ditch against overpowering odds, (which they did) in their game with an unmerciful Cross Plains eleven Friday. But let it suffice to say merely that at the final gun, the buffs had galloped across touchdowns and kicked goals to pile up the uninteresting score of 67, in unpleasant contrast to the zero that was wished off on the shaky Bulldogs.

The fact that the teams were not conference rivals is the only bright spot in Coach O. E. Patterson's sky. It is hoped that this first game will not only put the old fight into many of the Bulldog green gridsters, but also give their coaches something tangible with which to whip the small squad into a first class football machine.

FIRE DEPARTMENT ACTIVE

Thursday and Friday of last week saw the Moran volunteer fire department called into frantic action three times in almost 24 hours. Five minutes before its daily announcement of the advent of high noon, the town's elevated fire alarm broke into screaming defiance of the noonday peace that descends on the populace of any small town, sending the city's chemical wagon and fire truck to the home of Frank Haggard, where burning trash had ignited a small outhouse. It was unnecessary to employ any of the city equipment, as the fire was quickly extinguished after having consumed one corner of the roof of the outhouse.

Compton lives on his ranch, nine miles east of Moran.

Myrick, whose farm is located five miles east of the city, was not so lucky as Compton. A wealth of feedstuff contained in his barn, was destroyed or rendered unfit for use as the volunteers from Moran fought the sweltering flames with water pumped from Deep creek, nearby.

The Compton fire was attributed to spontaneous combustion, caused from heat generated by stored grain. Myrick stated that as he ground feed Friday morning sparks, caused by foreign articles in his feed mill, were probably blown into feed bins of the barn, breaking out into flame in the afternoon. Myrick is the father of A. Z. and Porter Myrick of Cisco.

An interesting sidelight to the fire alarms Thursday is encountered in the school of Moran. Six new teachers, not having been instructed as to the usual procedure within the schools in the event of a fire alarm, protested violently as their pupils, to a man, twice arose and calmly marched from their buildings and formed military lines on the campus, safe from all possible fire harm. As a commendable safety measure, the students have long been trained to immediately empty all school buildings, as orderly as possible, at the sound of Moran's raucous fire alarm. Evidently a lesson well learned.

EPWORTHERS ENTERTAIN

Unexpected entries that swelled the list of contesting numbers to fourteen made the talent night of the Epworth League of the Methodist church a success here Tuesday night. A large attendance filled the leagues coffers almost to overflowing, in the young people's conscientious attempt to increase their church's contribution to its conference claims, a regular debt in the program of the church. Members of the league, headed by Miss Barbara Howell, are proud of this phase of their work here, and take this means of expressing profound appreciation of those who were present at Tuesday's entertainment.

Winner of first place in the stage contest was Miss Clara Mae Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Rogers, who presented a piano solo. Oddly enough, Miss Rogers was sponsored by the Epworth League. Eugene and Jimmie Williams, young sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Williams, were awarded second place for their vocal rendition in two part harmony. Prosper Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Walker, who sang, was adjudged winner of third place. He was sponsored by the first grade of the Moran grade schools. Fourth place was won by the high school home economics class of Moran high school, a vocal quartet, composed of Janice Rogers, Nina Bartee, Alice Rountree, and Georiana McCargo.

THE EIGHTY-EIGHTH DISTRICT COURT

(Judge Peterson, Presiding) Cases Filed

The following cases are pending in the district clerk's office for adjudication in the 88th court:

State vs. Tom A. Minton and wife, injunction. This action is a companion case of the state vs. Claude Maples et al, in which the state was seeking a writ of injunction against Minton and wife restraining them from dispensing intoxicating liquors in precinct 7. Commercial State bank et al, Ranger vs. Mrs. Norma F. Conway, administratrix, an action for debt and foreclosure.

Judgments and Orders

Mrs. Cora Faircloth vs. Raymond Faircloth, divorce. Judgment for plaintiff against defendant for divorce and for $50 attorney fees.

The injunction case of the state of Texas vs. Claude Maples et al, in which the state secured a temporary injunction against the defendants Claude Maples, Fred Zellars and Tom A. Minton and Mrs. Minton, and which injunction was heard on its merits in the 88th court Sept. 11, the state seeking a revocation of the license issued to defendants by asking that the injunction be perpetuated. On motion of the state the court dismissed the action against defendants Minton and wife, but this respite was only temporary, for the court had hardly issued the decree before Minton and wife became the defendants in a separate injunction proceedings, which is now pending.

The court then proceeded to hear the temporary injunction on its merits, whereupon the court found that the defendants Claude Maples and Fred Zellars guilty of selling intoxicants in violation of law. It was therefore the order of the court that the temporary injunction be made permanent, and the defendants be perpetually restrained from selling intoxicants in Rising Star or precinct 7, and decreed that the state should be granted its writ of injunction as prayed for. To this action of the court the defendants, in open court, excepted and gave notice of appeal to the eleventh court of civil appeals. The court placed their supercedas bond at $2,000.

Trayce Hudlow vs. Paul Hudlow, divorce. Judgment for plaintiff for divorce and custody of minor child. It was further ordered by the court that defendant pay $50 attorney fees to plaintiff, and the further sum of $25 per month for the maintenance of the said minor child, until further orders of the court.

THE DEPARTMENT OF THE COUNTY COURT

(Judge Adamson, Presiding)

The regular session of the county court, September term, began Monday, Sept. 13. Judge Adamson has ordered the week of Sept. 27 be designated jury week, and ordered a jury summoned for week of Monday, Sept. 27, when jury cases pending in the county court will be called for trial.

The week of Oct. 18 has also been designated as jury week and the case of W. C. Kimbrough vs. Loss Weeds, sheriff, has been assigned for trial during that week. This action grew out of a raid by the sheriff during which whiskey was seized, alleged to be the property of Kimbrough. At the same transaction Kimbrough's automobile was held. By posting a replevy bond of $1,000 Kimbrough gained possession of his car. At the trial of the case the court will hear evidence bearing on all phases of it.

The case of T. A. Landon vs. city of Eastland is set for a hearing Sept. 22. Ed Stroupe vs. Jesse Brown et al is set for Sept. 27. R. N. Matlock vs. Casualty Co., compensation, will be heard Sept. 30. Rill Squires vs. Wichita Falls & Southern railway, an action for damages, set for Oct. 1.

Mrs. Ed Dulin was awarded a judgment by default against Mrs. M. J. Harbin et al, in an action for debt.

James Horton vs. W. A. Hart, note. Judgment for plaintiff for $638.15.

Matters in Probate

W. B. Seaborn, guardian of the estate of Thelma, Silas and Elzie Clay, minors, annual report, filed and approved. It was the order of the court that the application of the guardian for a reduction of his bond from $9,000 to $3,000 should be approved, as the court ascertained that the personal property of the said wards is less than $1,500, the application was approved and the bond reduced to $3,000. It was the order of the court that the new bond, when filed and approved, be exchanged for the old bond, thus being less expensive to the estate.

Mrs. Floy Morrison, who had been previously appointed temporary guardian of the estate of Patricia Ann and Norma Lois Morrison, minors, was made permanent guardian. It was further ordered by the court that G. T. Stone, W. C. Bedford and T. H. Key shall appraise the property of said estate, which was filed and approved. Petition of the said guardian for authority to pay certain claims against the estate, was approved and the guardian authorized to make such payments.

Cisco Team Undismayed by Lubbock Victory

10-0 DEFEAT IS LESS THAN DOPE OFFERED

Breck Walloping By Paschal Feature of Week-End

By JAMES JOHNSON

The Cisco Lobos, undaunted by their defeat Friday night by the district 1 favorites, the powerful Lubbock machine, arrived here yesterday all the more determined to capture their first conference game which is the beginning of a series with no "breathers."

The defeat at the hands of the westerners was not an unexpected one, in fact, the dope gave Lubbock a far greater edge than the final score indicated. The team which Cisco put on the field Friday tipped the scales at a little less than 150 pounds to the man as a result of injuries and debility on the part of some of the mainstays of the squad. Most of the now ineligible boys will be ready to play in the early part of October, greatly strengthening the team.

Something unusual for this year's inauguration of football is the fact that there were very few upsets out of the many contests decided Friday. The 1936 season was just one upset after another which kept the dopsters in a whirl. Of the games in the immediate vicinity of the oil belt, Paschal's victory over thereckenridge Bucks, whose powerhouse attack was but nothing in the face of the wave of grey and purple that the Panthers unleashed to win by the none too great a margin of 14-7, was the most outstanding. Breck's one touchdown was scored on a lucky interception of a pass and their running attack was stopped dead by the beefy line that Paschal presented. All in all, the Bucks were soundly thrashed in everything but the score.

In the only conference game played in this district, the Eastland Mavericks were taken down by the Brownwood Lions in a low and none too exciting game and none too exciting game. The Mavericks were soundly thrashed in everything but the score.

While Eastland was being mopped up, the Ranger Bulldogs were dedicating their new field by avenging a last year's defeat at the hands of their neighboring class B team, the Strawn Greyhounds, to the tune of 13-0. The Bulldogs showed vast improvement over last season's team and while not a conference threat they will bear watching.

In two more games of this district in which class A teams took on B teams, the Sweetwater Mustangs loosed a touchdown gathering spree which ended up with a 9-0 victory over the Snyder Tigers. The other conference team, and newest addition, to play a class B rival was the Stephenville Yellowjackets who carried off a 47-0 victory over the Weatherford Kangaroos.

Cisco WOW Drill Team Awards

Cisco WOW Drill Team Rates High In State Order

Cisco Camp 500, District Six, of the W.O.W. have attained honors during the past year which have placed them in the list of the best camps in the state. The state manager, R. E. Miller, of this organization recently said that Cisco had one of the best if not the best group of degree officers in the state.

Last spring the Cisco drill team and some of the regular members won distinction for the Cisco chapter with an achievement award consisting of five silver cups, symbolic of hours of hard work in order to meet the requirements necessary to competence. The awards were for accomplishment and not victory. The contest was held by the Sixth district of Texas which embraces the greater part of West Texas.

Another fact noteworthy of mention is that the Cisco camp has probably the largest number of officers present at the club meetings than does any other West Texas town.

R. D. Jones is drill team captain. Principal officers of the lodge are Walter Clements, consul commander; F. E. Shepard, secretary, and Jess Proctor, banker.

Ancient Bison Is Found Intact

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Sept. 18. (AP)—Unlike fossil remains, which ordinarily consist only of bones, a baby bison of the pleistocene age has been discovered near here by workers under the University of Alaska.

Much of the flesh structure of the ancient animal is intact. It was preserved in the frozen muck of a creek bed.

Weatherford Kangaroos. San Angelo with its big squad of huskies found it tough going to come off the field from a game with Thomas Jefferson of San Antonio with a patched-up 19-13 margin.

All games from here on out will be conference affairs for most of the now too big Oil Belt district and there will be no let-ups for the most part for any of the belt teams.

Fans Guessing Grid Scores With Dooley Again

It's a sure sign the football season is on again. Dartmouth's famous All American quarterback, Eddie Dooley, is back on the air over the Columbia coast-to-coast network every Thursday and Saturday with his last-minute football news.

The makers of Chesterfield cigarettes, sponsors of Eddie Dooley, are certainly making a bow to the wide interest in sports news. Their baseball series this year, with Paul Douglas, satisfied fans North, East, South and West, and the Dooley football programs will be on a larger scale than ever before, necessitating two complete talks on each broadcast date; one at 6.30 p. m. New York time for East and Middle West, and one at 8.30 p. m. New York time to cover the games for the fans in the Rocky Mountain states and the Far West.

In addition to firing away each Thursday with his uncanny predictions of the week-end results and reviewing the highlights of the games each Saturday, Dooley plans to have leading football coaches and authorities as guests on his programs from time to time. And speaking of authorities, Dooley himself is considered by football followers as one of America's outstanding experts on the game. Jock Sutherland, the well-known Pittsburgh mentor once remarked that Eddie Dooley had done more for the game of football than any former college star he knew of. At the present time, in addition to being constantly in demand for magazine articles on football, Eddie Dooley is holding down an important berth in the sports department of the New York Sun in association with well-known sports writers like Grantland Rice and George Trevor. His training and background as one of the outstanding field generals the east ever produced, has given him remarkable insight into the whys and wherefores of football.

"I get as far away from the bright lights as possible and have the time of my life serving as a handy man about our camp. My daily routine for the past two months has included such chores as putting up shelves, picking berries for supper, making furniture, filling lamps for the evening game of chess, and, of course, getting in as much finishing as possible. This is my first real vacation in three years, you know."

The Crooks cabin is situated on the St. Croix river in one of the wildest sections of New Brunswick. There are loads of bass, salmon and trout in the river and the country teems with bear, deer and moose. And Mr. Crooks, evidently, was "having the time of his life" on this tract in the wilderness.

"Of course I could say that it's a fine spot for the children and I'd certainly be telling the truth, but the fact is I'm crazy about the place. Naturally, little Dick, 12, and Patricia, 15, get a big kick out of it but I'm sure they don't have any more fun up here than do Mrs. Crooks and myself.

"What do I think about the approaching music season? Let's forget the professional side, for the moment, and look at it from the layman's angle. I'd say bigger and better than ever, and add that radio was the answer. Not that I think radio has actually made America like good music. I think the average American has liked music all along. But he didn't get enough of it to know what his likes really were. Radio has merely filled this void.

"As for the general musical picture, I'd like to see the government create a Federal Department of Fine Arts. With federal subsidies it would be possible for us to have permanent opera in all our major cities. The idea has been practiced in Europe for more than a century. The smaller cities in Germany and Italy have opera houses backed by government support. There's no reason under the sun why we can't do the same thing."

Incidentally, Mr. Crooks was recently given the honorary title of Doctor by the Rockefeller Foundation in the Fiji Islands, in recognition of his services last year when he sang a benefit concert for the leper colony en route to Australia. He declared he used the title to advantage in treating camp guests suffering from ivy poisoning and ministering to his red setter, which inadvertently contacted a porcupine.

Gets Scholarship

Evatt Horne, who finished Cisco high school in 1937 with second highest scholastic average, is attending Texas Technological institute, Lubbock, to which he received a scholarship. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Shaeffer Horne.

plays and his judgment on football news makes his broadcasts far beyond ordinary interest.

The Eddie Dooley football programs bid fair to be top-notch sports programs in every respect, even to the personality of the announcer, Paul Douglas, who is himself one of radio's best-known sports commentators and carried the baseball banner for Chesterfield on the Columbia network all through the 1937 season. The big kick-off of the week for football followers comes when the whistle blows for Eddie Dooley every Thursday, and the pay-off will come the following Saturdays when the fans tune in to see if Dooley's dope was right.

Seek to Better Owner and Tenant Relationship

A new drive is being launched to improve relationships between landowners and those tenants who are being financed by the Farm Security administration (formerly Resettlement), it was stated by Geo. I. Lane, county supervisor.

Recommendations of a committee of supervisors are now being printed for guidance of all county offices in Texas and Oklahoma. The 45,000 farm tenant families in these two states who are being financed by Farm Security can blaze a trail for the remainder of the 147,000 Texas and Oklahoma tenant families, the supervisor said.

The committee report recommends that leases be prepared at a conference between landlord, tenant, and county supervisor. The lease should always be in writing, it was suggested, because "distrust frequently exists, and because of the human element of forgetfulness as to what agreements have been made." A long-time lease was recommended, in place of the one-year lease now commonly used. Cancellation clauses were suggested, for use by either party, for reasonable cause, at least ninety days before expiration of any lease year. "Where it is absolutely impossible to obtain long-time leases, we feel that one-year leases should be automatically renewed, unless one of the parties gives notice sixty to ninety days before expiration," the committee said.

Each Farm Security borrower is working under a long-time plan, and it was recommended that the lease encourage him to make improvements which will aid in carrying out that plan. Improvements which he makes should be considered the property of the tenant, and he should either be allowed to remove them at expiration of the lease, the report said, or an understanding should be included in the lease as to how the tenant should be compensated.

Present division of crops, on the "third and fourth" basis, was declared inequitable. "On good land it is usually to the disadvantage of the landlord, and on poor land, to the disadvantage of the tenant," the report declared, urging that "a fairer distribution should be made, based upon the respective contributions of the landlord and tenant." However, the committee condemned the "bonus" or "privilege rent," now being used in many counties of Texas and Oklahoma. It recommended that payment for special privileges be made in labor. It was also recommended that county Farm Debt Adjustment committees act as conciliation boards, to settle landlord-tenant differences.

Crooks, On Air for Ford Sunday, Likes Roughing It

Roughing it at his camp in the Canadian woods in preparation for the most exacting concert and opera schedule that he has ever faced, Richard Crooks grinned when asked how an operatic tenor spends his spare time. The Metropolitan Opera brilliant, who will make his first radio appearance of the season on the Ford Sunday Evening Hour, September 26, over the Columbia network at 9 p. m. (EDST), declared that he's all for the wide open spaces.

"I get as far away from the bright lights as possible and have the time of my life serving as a handy man about our camp. My daily routine for the past two months has included such chores as putting up shelves, picking berries for supper, making furniture, filling lamps for the evening game of chess, and, of course, getting in as much finishing as possible. "Hollywood Hit Parade" Coming to Cisco Oct. 5

Arrangements have been completed with Consolidated Radio Artists, Inc. to bring to Cisco Jackie Coogan, his orchestra, and a host of other young movie stars in their "Hollywood Hit Parade" revue. The "Parade" will appear at Lake Cisco Tuesday, October 5, manager P. G. Berry announced Saturday.

Coogan, the prince of pictureland, has surrounded himself and orchestra with an all-star cast of Hollywood movie personalities, and will present a whole evening of dance music and entertainment. It is the most pretentious production of movieland personalities ever to leave Hollywood and gives promise to be the season's outstanding entertainment hit.

Jackie Coogan directs his own swing band, a versatile unit of entertaining musicians last heard at the Trocadero restaurants on upper Sunset Drive, Hollywood. The orchestra will furnish music for the evening's dancing and their rhythms will also be the musical background for a brilliant floor show.

Klan Issue Still Being Agitated

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18. (AP)—Fresh outbursts of criticism and support of Justice Hugo L. Black, alleged to be a life member of the Ku Klux Klan, came Saturday from these public figures:

- 1. Republican Chairman John Hamilton termed it inconceivable that President Roosevelt "would knowingly have appointed a Klansman to the Supreme Court."
2. President Jouett Shouse of the American Liberty League, which fought Roosevelt's re-election, contended the chief executive must have known of Black's alleged affiliation. It was the league's first statement since the 1936 campaign.
3. Senator Connally of Texas declared the furor was a question of politics, apparently an effort to embarrass the president.
4. Senator Glass of Virginia, who opposed Black's confirmation, said he still considers the justice unfit "regardless of the Ku Klux Klan charges."
5. Senator Lee of Oklahoma termed the Klan charges "only a smoke screen" laid down by persons who disliked Black's championship of the utilities holding company bill and wage and hour legislation.

YOU CAN THROW CARDS IN HIS FACE ONCE TOO OFTEN

WHEN you have those awful cramps, when your nerves are all on edge—don't take X out on the man you love. Your husband can't possibly know how you feel for the simple reason that he is a man. A three-quarter wife may be no wife at all if she nags her husband seven days out of every month. For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three decades of life. 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age." Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and go "Smiling Through."

Sheep Coming to Moran Area, 5,000 Purchased

MORAN, Sept. 18.—Shackelford county has long been a whitefaced country—and will continue to be for many years yet. Nevertheless sheep have shown nice profits here in recent years, and more sheep are being brought in.

Quite a number of ranchers have run sheep the past two or three years, including C. B. Snyder, R. A. Elliott, Byron Elliott and others. Mr. Snyder was so pleased with his experience in sheep that he is bringing in 5,000 head right away, and if grass conditions warrant, he expects to buy another 5,000 later. He is putting up 16 miles of sheep fence on his ranch west of town, which in itself is proving quite an expensive and permanent improvement.

Sheep were brought in during the late '80s according to old timers. Experience then proved fatal to the sheep industry for the time, as the price dropped out and seemed never to recover until too late.

The Moran section is ideal goat and sheep country. Sheep are not as particular in their eating as aristocratic cattle. They will eat weeds, leaves, and whatever is handy, and grow a nice batch of wool.

We predict that the sheep industry in Shackelford county will continue to grow until it will be a definite part of our stable income.

Smith Disagrees With Roosevelt

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 18. (AP)—Alfred E. Smith was at odds with President Roosevelt on another subject Saturday—a definition of American democracy.

In a speech at Princeton university's Constitution day celebration Friday the former New York governor said:

"At Roanoke President Roosevelt called democracy 'the rule of the majority.' That is not so. The American form of government is intended to protect the rights of the minority. The majority needs no protection."

Harvard Professor Consultant For Telescope Work

AUSTIN, Sept. 19.—Following the death of E. P. Burrell, who designed the instrument mounting for the 82-inch telescope to go in the McDonald observatory of the University of Texas, Warner and Swasey company, contractors for construction of the telescope, has appointed Dr. H. Shapley, professor and director of the Harvard college observatory, as consultant in the completion of the instrument. The lens for the giant telescope is still being polished at the Warner and Swasey plant in Cleveland, Ohio, according to Werner W. Dornberger, assistant to the supervising architect at the university.

The observatory, situated on top of Mount Locke in the Davis mountains, is already in operation, several observers having begun activities some months ago. The observatory, built by the university with a $1,000,000 bequest from the late W. J. McDonald of Paris, Texas, is staffed by the University of Chicago, under the direction of Dr. Otto Struve, who is also director of the latter institution's Yerkes observatory.

During the summer, as one of the first steps toward making the reception and consulting room in the observatory a memorial to Mr. McDonald, an inscription containing an excerpt from his will was painted on its circular wall by Paul Pressler, architect from the Brownwood State park. Mr. Pressler is a graduate of the university department of architecture. The illuminated manuscript inscription, painted on the slate gray wall in tones of light blue, darker blue and terra cotta, reads:

"Except from the will of the late William J. McDonald of Paris, Texas, making provision for this astronomical observatory. All the rest, residue and remainder of my estate, I give, devise and bequeath to the regents of the University of Texas, in trust, to be used and devoted by said regents for the purpose of aiding in erecting and equipping an astronomical observatory to be kept and used in connection with and as a part of the university for the study and promotion of the study of astronomical science. The bequest is to be known as the W. J. McDonald Observatory fund. The regents shall have full power and authority to handle, use and appropriate this bequest, the only limitation on their authority and power being that the bequest is intended solely for the use and benefit of an astronomical observatory. In handling the notes due my estate the regents are requested to use the utmost liberality and leniency."

It is proposed that an oil portrait of Mr. McDonald shall grace one wall of this room, and that a display case shall contain some of his books.

The staff for the observatory will include a director, Dr. Struve, who will serve half-time, devoting the remainder of his time to the Yerkes observatory; a permanent resident assistant director, two permanent observers, several part-time observers, an engineer and an assistant engineer, a librarian, and a caretaker. It is planned that one observer from the Yerkes observatory will always be stationed at the McDonald observatory, each appointee to remain for a period from two to four months.
