Relative of Ciscoans Buried in Gainesville

Cisco members of the Mancill family were informed Thursday of the death of the wife of Dr. Arthur R. Mancill, Jr., of Gainesville who was buried in that city Tuesday following her death in Kansas City Monday. Her husband is a son of Dr. Arthur R. Mancill, Sr., a half-brother of Clyde Mancill of Cisco and a grandson of the late W. G. Mancill who was a brother of R. W. Mancill, well known Ciscoan.

Mrs. Mancill, aged 19, was the former Miss Peggy Van Cleave of Gainesville, who was married to Dr. Mancill about three years ago.

Midgets Defeat Moran Pups in Season Opener

The Cisco grammar school Midgets gave their newly donated suits a rough initiation yesterday as they downed their first opponents, the Moran Pups, by a close 7-6 score. The first half, going scoreless while the Midgets were assessed numerous penalties, took on a different complexion during the second half as both teams pushed each other all over the field to earn two scores between them. The Midgets' extra point after touchdown was the deciding factor of the contest and the future Loboes left the field happy at having kept their string of victories intact.

Cisco's touchdown came as a climax to a sustained drive by the Midgets after receiving the opening kickoff of the second half. The touchdown was made by a pass from Michael to Boyett which netted the necessary 15 yards for the counter. Michael plunged over the center of the line for the extra point. Moran's touchdown was made on a freak play during the latter part of the fourth quarter. One of the Moran backs had just started an off-tackle play when he was stopped dead at the line of scrimmage. Failing to find a hole, he turned and running back a ways skirted end for ten yards and a touchdown.

First downs were about evenly divided as was the yardage for both teams. Boyett, Tipton, Ivie, Michael, and Thomason stood out for the Midgets. The Midgets will play Eastland at Eastland next Thursday, C. C. Duff announced, and by that time we hope to have a Midget band as we have all the necessary instrumentalations, he added. The pep squad is also to be praised for its work, he said.

NEW PURCHASE POLICY MEANS HIKE IN PRICE

Humble to Buy Oil on 100 Per Cent Runs Basis

What amounts to an increase of somewhat more than one per cent in the price to be paid for crude was announced as effective at 7 o'clock this morning when the Humble Oil and Refining company notified operators that it would henceforth purchase on what is termed 100 per cent table basis.

Formerly, one per cent was deducted from the quantity of oil bought in order to allow for pipe line losses, evaporation and so forth. Thus the purchaser actually paid for only 99 per cent of the quantity of oil invoiced. The company will now make no deduction but will pay for every barrel run.

Alfred Brady, credited with being the gang organizer, is an Indiana farm boy, described by one of his first sweethearts as "too sweet to hurt anyone." Gunmen Boast They'll Make Dillinger Piker

By JAMES DOSS
INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 1. (AP)—From Indiana, home of John Dillinger, has sprung a gang that G-men label the most vicious now operating.

It is that of Al Brady and his two undersized pals who have boasted frequently, according to underworld gossip, that they would "out-Dillinger" Dillinger. They've gone a long way towards making good.

Police charge them specifically with three killings, several bank robberies and holdups. There is a federal reward of $500 out for each.

Like Dillinger, they broke jail after one whirl at outlawry. Like Dillinger and his henchmen, they started then on a series of bank robberies.

Youngest Is a Braggart
Like the Dillinger gang, they have the G-men on their trail. Director J. Edgar Hoover has set after them a picked squad of federal agents, as usual in such cases. His men have a code word for the gang—"the braga squad."

Most important of all, possibly, the gang has its known weakness. Like Dillinger, its members are overly fond of women.

The "braga squad" are just two former farm boys and a big city youth who went wrong.

All three—Alfred Brady, James Dalhovey and Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., are small. Police call them "half pint killers." All are the products of broken homes, and are 21 to 31 years old. Both Brady and Dalhovey are morose, while Shaffer is boastful and talkative, like Dillinger. To him is credited a crack about "making Dillinger a piker."

Here are details from the Federal bureau of Identification and the police:

Alfred Brady, credited with being the gang organizer, is an Indiana farm boy, described by one of his first sweethearts as "too sweet to hurt anyone." Pinched and hard-muscled from his years on the farm and at a mechanic's bench, he was born near Kentland, Ind., in 1910 and attended elementary school at North Salem. When he was a child, his father died and Brady moved with his mother to Indianapolis. She remarried, but died in 1926. An errand boy, then a clothing store worker, he was first arrested on a vagrancy charge, in 1934. Later, for possession of stolen property, he did a stretch in an Indiana prison farm, then worked as a farm hand near Hanover, Ind. There he probably met Dalhovey, who farmed nearby. Plan Ceremony to Dedicate Stadium

Ceremonies dedicating the new Lobo football stadium at Chesley field are now being planned by the school authorities to be coincident with the first home game which the Loboes will play on the field next week-end. The Big Spring Steers come to Lobolown for that game, and the home brigade has high hopes of initiating the new field with a victory.

CHINA ASKS JAP CENSURE

Plain Declaration By League Asked

GENEVA, Oct. 1. (AP)—China today flatly asked the League of Nations advisory committee on the Sino-Japanese war, on which the United States is a consultative member, to declare her a victim of Japanese aggression.

The request embodied a draft resolution submitted to the committee by Doctor Wellington Koo, Chinese delegate to the League, and demanded of the committee to condemn the violation of international law and contractual obligations of which the resolution accused Japan; condemn the illegal blockade of Chinese coasts, and declare the facts to constitute a case of external aggression.

U. S. ADMIRAL RAPS JAPANESE

SHANGHAI, Oct. 1. (AP)—Sharp condemnation of Japanese bombings of Hankow on September 25 came today from Rear Admiral Harry Yarnell, commander of the United States Asiatic fleet.

A Japanese spokesman had said that the Japanese navy was informed by the United States Ambassador Nelson Johnson that all Americans had been evacuated from the Hankow territory by noon September 26.

This the admiral denied, saying that the ambassador had issued no such information but, instead told Japanese that foreigners would be evacuated after September 26.

Meanwhile the Chinese defenders in Shanghai reported that they were holding their own.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 1. (AP)—A mother and two children died today in separate shootings, which Sheriff Jacob Andres described as a double murder and a suicide.

The bodies of Mrs. James McHenry, wife of a Detroit attorney, and her seven-year-old son were found in an abandoned automobile near a cemetery today.

Ruth McHenry, 22-year-old daughter was found wounded fatally in the family home in Detroit last night a rifle beside her.

CONVICTED OF MURDER AFTER MAYOR SLAIN

Jury Brings in Verdict At Sweetwater Today.

SWEETWATER, Oct. 1. (AP)—Bill Dawson, former Roscoe nightwatchman, was found guilty and given 14 years in prison today for the slaying of Mayor Arthur Parker of Roscoe, last June. The defense said it would appeal.

The case went to the jury last night. The shooting followed Dawson's discharge as nightwatchman.

The wife of the slain mayor, who succeeded him in office by appointment of the city council, is the sister of Mrs. Asa Skiles of Cisco.

JURY GIVEN CASE AT 6:30 THURSDAY

SWEETWATER, Oct. 1. (Spc)—Jury deliberating the case of Bill Dawson, charged with murder of Mayor A. J. Parker of Roscoe, retired at 9:45 o'clock last night without reaching a verdict.

Arguments were completed and the case went to the jury at 5:30 o'clock, after Judge A. S. Mauzey charged the jury at 2 p. m. to take into consideration the questions involving self-defense and sanity of the defendant.

Under the court's charge, the jury may return a verdict of not guilty, guilty of murder without malice, or murder with malice aforethought. The state asked for the death penalty, the defense demanding a not guilty verdict.

Throughout the trial, the state attempted to show that Dawson murdered Parker cold-bloodedly on a Roscoe street last June 4, af-

Wednesday Visitors Day at Sewing Room

Every Wednesday is visitors' day at the WPA sewing room, project 4556, of which Mrs. Callie Ward is supervisor and Mrs. Eva M. Oney is assistant and time-keeper. This visitors' day was instituted Wednesday when visitors were received from 3 to 4 in the afternoon. The first day there were but a few visitors, due to the fact that no announcement had been made, and too, the hour was the same as the Mancill funeral, said Mrs. Ward.

"However, there were several visitors at the sewing room, and those attending were greatly interested," Mrs. Ward said. "It is our plan to have every Wednesday afternoon set apart as visitors' day, from 3 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and during this hour we would like to have representatives from the various city clubs, both men and women, that all may know the work we are doing."

"Since last June the work has been curtailed quite a bit. Details of our work were previously published when we were producing the maximum, operating 30 machines, but now we are only operating 20 machines, and giving employment to only 40 women. Formerly we sent our products to the district commodity office at Abilene, but now the office has been moved to Eastland and the garments distributed from there by the case workers to the relief clients. During the school season we are specializing in school garments, infants, and women's dresses, etc., but we are turning out quite a number of garments, and we would like for all Cisco people to visit the rooms every Wednesday afternoon and see what we are doing. We will take pleasure in showing the public through the work rooms on visitors' days," she said.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Peace be to the brethren, and love with faith from God the Father.—Eph. vi. 22.

Be the day long or short the end is peace To those who in the love of God increase.

The colored sunsets and the starry heavens, the beautiful mountains and the shining sea, the fragrant woods and the painted flowers, they are not half so beautiful as a soul that is serving Jesus out of love, in the wear and tear of common unpoetic life.

How little of that road, my soul, How little hast thou gone!—Faber.

Mr. Farley's Reported Change

THERE is a sidelight on the reported decision of Postmaster General James A. Farley to desert the mail pouches for the presidency of the Pierce-Arrow Motor company...

FARLEY personally would gain by the shift. The step from public office with its comparatively small salary to the affluence of a corporation president would benefit him in purse and, if his ability at sales-manship is as effectively exercised in that position as in his political career, in a permanency of connection not easily affected by the vagaries of political fortune.

OTHER OPINIONS

An Unprofitable Argument

STATE APPROPRIATIONS for the current biennium are $22,000,000 greater than for the preceding one. Influential members of the legislature call for downward revision of appropriations instead of new taxes.

Gov. Allred, refusing to submit appropriations revision to the special session, says the legislature should have heeded his advice to economize when it was passing the appropriation bills in the regular session.

In his reply to the governor's tax message, Sen. Holbrook sensibly divided the blame for increased appropriations between the governor and the legislature. The governor is at fault, the Galveston senator said, for failing to submit itemized budget recommendations as the law directs...

There is a difference of opinion between the governor and the senate economy committee over how much more revenue may be expected from present taxes as a result of improved business and better methods of collection. The state auditor sided with the governor.

Governor Allred estimates that $11,126,000 annually must be raised by new taxes to finance the social security program and balance the budget, plus additional revenue to retire the $15,000,000 deficit in the general revenue fund.

It may be found impossible to finance teachers' retirement pensions and aid for the adult blind and needy children without some new taxes. Sen. Holbrook suggested further study before aid authorized in the three constitutional amendments is put into operation.

Leaving the social security program out of the reckoning, however, no justification can be found for the far-reaching program Gov. Allred recommends if the legislature is permitted to take advantage of the opportunity to save the taxpayers some $10,000,000 a year by blotting out extravagances authorized in the regular session.

"THE RIDDLE OF NAPOLEON." By Raoul Brice (Putnam: $3.75). "NAPOLEON." By R. McNair Wilson (Longmans: $3.50).

Perhaps nobody knows exactly how many books deal with Napoleon, but the number certainly runs into the tens of thousands.

Probably Raoul Brice's "The Riddle of Napoleon" would pass the commission. This book is an examination of Napoleon such as might have been instituted by an intelligent grand jury had such existed at the proper time.

He offers rather good proof, too. Specifically, he considers Napoleon's Corsican background, and his hatred of England. He believes the former explains the man, to a large extent.

The things which add up to Napoleon's "secret soul" had better be left to the author to explain. But his diagnosis of Napoleon's illnesses, particularly of his last illness, is expert and fascinating.

R. McNair Wilson's "Napoleon" would likewise have a chance of passing the commission. This is a clever, sometimes original study of Napoleon's life with emphasis on the Emperor's fiscal system, and its influence on succeeding times.

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

A Way Out of the Difficulty

By IRVIN S. COBB

WHETHER we expect to go there or not, stories about Heaven almost have an appeal for us. Here is one which has done service for a good many years:

An exceedingly rich man who had been noted all his life for taking a good and a loving care of his money, passed away. In due time he knocked at the Golden Gates and craved admission to the Celestial City. St. Peter received his application. The angel Gabriel was called in also, to pass on the petition.

"Your name," said the saint, "is not entirely unfamiliar to us. We have heard of you while you were on earth. I ask you now to search your mind and see whether you can recall any deed ever done by you in the flesh which in your opinion entitles you to enter Paradise and dwell among the blessed."

The millionaire gave himself over to intensive thought. "Well, there was one thing," he said, "of which I was always very proud. One cold winter's night on the street I met a little crippled newsboy. He was crying. I stopped and spoke to him. He said he cried because he couldn't sell his papers; so I bought a paper from him. The price of it was only a penny, but I gave him three pennies for it."

"Excuse me for one moment," said St. Peter, "I must ask my confere to consult the records and see whether your statement is correct." The angel Gabriel looked through the Doomsday book and finding there a certain entry, nodded his head. St. Peter and Gabriel consulted together in low tones. It appeared that they could not go behind the returns. At length Gabriel slammed the covers of the great volume together and exclaimed:

"Oh, just give him back his three cents and tell him to go to hell!" (American News Features, Inc.)

A Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Low-cost housing is making a slow, contentious start, but the Wagner housing act itself is at present Washington's "best seller."

Of all acts of the past or previous congresses it is most in demand from the congressional docket rooms where copies of all laws are kept. Every community which hopes some time to share in the apportionment of housing money sends in for numbers of copies. The orders range from a half dozen to several hundred at a time.

Another popular number is the farm tenancy bill. As was expected, it is most in demand in the south and midwest. But officials of the document room were surprised by continued large orders for the act from Michigan.

Reading for Miners The far west has a particular interest in the bill extending the time for prospectors to complete required development work on mining claims.

The small prospector often is in a tight spot. He must either do the required annual development work or give up his claim. And every prospector is haunted with the fear that the moment he gives up his claim some "big eastern company" will come in, dig a couple of feet farther and uncover a bonanza.

The document most steadily in demand in recent years is the social security act. It passed congress in 1935 and has a larger call than any other measure except the major ones enacted during the last session.

Another document in steady demand is the report of the LaFollette committee on its investigation into the Chicago Memorial Day incident in which 11 steel strikers were killed in a brush with police.

The document clerks did a neat piece of detective work in connection with one request for the LaFollette committee report. A postal card came to capitol hill addressed simply: "Senate Report, Part 2, 75 Congress, Number 46, Washington." It bounced around from office to office until it reached the document room.

Evidently some organization has been urging that the report, which condemned police methods of handling strikers, be more widely read, for a Los Angeles public library asked for copies of the document in a manner almost identical with that of Petrovic of Detroit.

few published by congress with illustrations. It reproduces several photographs of tangled piles of strikers to support its conclusion that "the consequences of the Memorial Day encounter were clearly avoidable by the police."

dianapolis once more, working in factories. The next year the Brady gang raids began.

James Dalhaver, crack rifle shot, also is a farm boy—rifle-boned and scrawny. Four years older than Brady, he was the son of parents later divorced. He attended school at Madison, Ind., married a Cincinnati girl, and has two boys, 9 and 7 years old.

Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., "loud mouth" of the trio, operated a sandwich shop before joining up. Born here in 1916, he was reared by grandparents after his parents separated.

The first job attributed to the gang was a $320 store robbery at Robinson, Ill., in January, 1932. Brady was identified as one of the two holdup men. Other holdups followed.

A few days later, Brady and Dalhaver were captured at Chicago, and Shaffer here. Transferred to jail in Greenfield, Ind., they slugged the sheriff with an iron bar, fled to Baltimore and established a base, police believe, for forays back into Ohio and Indiana.

This was a turning point in the career of the gang. No longer did they bother with stores—only banks.

Holdups laid at their door, definitely and tentatively, include bank robberies at Carthage, Farmland, North Madison, Anderson and Goodland in Indiana, and at Lancaster, Weston and Greenville in Ohio.

Besides these crimes, there were the killings of Rivers, of Grocery Clerk Edward Linsey in a $150 robbery at Piqua, O., and of State Policeman Paul Minneman in a gun battle near Longansport, Ind.

BY HULBERT FOOTNER

SYNOPSIS: Neill, a young federal agent, finds his beloved Janet in a locked cabin aboard Prescott Fanning's yacht at Absalom's Harbor. Fanning is shot dead and Janet in a faint, a gun beside her. Neill hides her nearby in a disused liner, then joins Mark Bonniger, keen local investigator, to keep tab on developments. He thinks Janet shot Fanning until he learns a man was hiding on the yacht. Then he suspects queer little Eyster, who hated Fanning. Also in the picture are Kettering, a Baltimore lawyer down to fish, and Ira Buckless, a tough who trails Neill. Eyster's tip enables Neill to find wealthy old Miss Rayner in Baltimore.

Chapter 27 A Cool Million

"Don't you read the newspapers, Miss Rayner?"

"Certainly not. I've something better to read."

"Mr. Fanning is dead."

She took it more calmly than Neill expected. Death is a commonplace affair to the very old.

"Dead?" She echoed sharply. "Where? How?"

"He was found dead on his yacht in Absalom's Harbor."

"I didn't know he had a yacht."

"Murdered."

"Bless my soul! . . . Why do you come to me about it?"

Neill endeavored to soften his story. "We can't find out anything about him. Who his folks are, and so on. We thought perhaps you could help."

"I liked the man," said Miss Rayner, "but I was hardly what you would call a friend. We had some business dealings."

This was what Neill was after. "Who brought him to you?"

"My estate agent, Edward Barney. I have a house for sale on Linden avenue. Mr. Fanning was thinking of buying it for a speculation, but he thought I was asking too much for it. So he persuaded Mr. Barney to bring him here. I wouldn't come down in my price but, as I said, I liked the man. He stayed on here chatting after Mr. Barney left and he came to see me a number of times after that."

"Have you confidence in Mr. Barney?" asked Neill.

"Absolutely. A good, faithful creature. He's too dumb to be crooked. He's only my renting agent. He knows nothing about my affairs."

"Well, about Fanning . . . ?"

"He was a man of large means," she went on, "and we had a common interest in our investments. He told me that he had established an investment trust in New York which paid 6 per cent and over on its stock. I was getting less than three on my government bonds. I am interested in many philanthropies and I need all the income I can get my hands on. So in the end I exchanged my bonds for stock in Mr. Fanning's trust. I took a little at first, and as the price continued to rise, I got more."

"Without any investigation?"

"Certainly not! I investigated it thoroughly. I received very fine references and testimonials on Mr. Fanning's behalf from New York people. I'll show them to you."

"Didn't you consult with any Baltimore business men, or with your lawyer?" he asked.

"No. I prefer to act on my own initiative."

"Do you know a man here called Horace Kettering?"

"The name is familiar."

"He's a lawyer in town."

"I've never seen the man nor had anything to do with him."

"Did Mr. Fanning ever speak of him?"

"No."

"Did Mr. Fanning introduce you to any of his friends or associates?"

"No!"

"Did you ever hear the names Ira Buckless or David Eyster?"

"No."

"Of course, they might have gone under other names. They are peculiar looking men." He described Eyster and Buckless.

"I don't know any men of that sort," she said scornfully. "Is all this leading up to the suggestion that there is something crooked about Fanning?"

Neill didn't answer.

"That's ridiculous on the face of it!" said Miss Rayner. "He only promised me 6 per cent. A swindler would have guaranteed 10 or 15."

The Fake Certificates

In spite of her confidence talk, Neill had roused an ugly doubt in the old lady's mind. Hoisting herself out of her chair, she tottered to a safe that stood open against the wall. Taking from it a portfolio, she brought it to him.

Opening it, Neill thumbed over a sheaf of beautifully engraved certificates. Not worth the paper they had spoiled.

"Aren't they all right? Aren't they all right?" she demanded.

He had not the heart to deliver the blow. "I reckon so," he said. "I know nothing about such matters. How much did Fanning charge you for the stock?"

"It sells at par over the counter," she eagerly explained. "That's 10. He let me have it for 9 1/2."

The certificates in the portfolio represented 125,000 shares. So Fanning had raked her for over a million dollars. Neill inwardly gaped at the thought of such a sum. What had become of it? He handed back the portfolio.

"The first dividend was paid on the nail," said Miss Rayner. "Naturally!" thought Neill.

She brought him a sheaf of letters. "These will tell you all about Mr. Fanning. Who his associates are, and so on."

Neill took down names and addresses in order to satisfy her, and got out as soon as he could. It made him feel a little sick to think of the brutal awakening that was in store for the frail little old lady.

In the street he thought things over. Beyond establishing the identity of Fanning's victim, he had not got very far. The manner of Fanning's introduction to the old lady suggested that the estate agent was in no wise implicated and Miss Rayner had confirmed it.

Neill at Mr. Osgood's office. He found him a conservative specimen of the genus Family Lawyer. Impossible to suspect such a one. Mr. Osgood claimed not to have met Fanning. He was deeply shocked to learn that Fanning had been a frequent caller on his client.

"I must look into this," he muttered.

Neill didn't envy him that job. Mr. Osgood said that his acquaintance with Kettering was very slight. He made it clear that he did not care for the man. "A successful criminal lawyer, I understand," he said condescendingly.

Before returning to Absalom's, Neill had himself carried over to Washington. In the treasury department he cashed a check for all he had coming to him in order to be ready for anything. He looked in on his chief.

"Having a good time?" asked the latter.

"Swell!" said Neill. If you knew the half of it! he thought grimly.

"I'll have an assignment for you on Monday."

As he started out of town, Neill bought the latest papers and found, as he had foreseen, that they were now playing up the theory that Fanning had been decoyed into the girl's cabin and killed by a man for his money. Neill flung down the sheets with a groan of helpless anger.

The Mob Mutters

It was approaching seven o'clock when he got back to Absalom's. Lately the papers had been sent down from town as fast as issued and the latest story was already having its effect. From the crowd that pressed around the store, Neill heard a new note, a slow growling sound that once heard can never be forgotten.

As he crossed the porch on his way in, he overheard a snatch of talk. A man said:

"When we catch them two we ought to string them up."

"Not the woman," answered another. "That's never been done."

"Well, we can string him up and let her watch. That'd learn her!"

Neill swept a glance around. Every face bore the same dark look and he knew then what it was to be alone. Hyenas! he thought, hardening.

He found Bonniger with Sergeant Wilson and the constables in the loft over the store, and made his report.

"Good work," said Bonniger. "It fits in with other information about Fanning that has come over the wire today. During the past four or five weeks he opened accounts with half a dozen banks in Washington, Baltimore and New York. Large sums of money passed through these accounts. Just before he died, he closed them all out, and got his checks back, thus blocking our investigation of his operations."

"Pretty slick," said Neill.

"It's clear that he converted his million into something easily portable," said Bonniger. "He must have had it with him, and there's your motive for the murder! A cool million! This case looms bigger and bigger!"

Neill noticed with considerable uneasiness that all the constables with the exception of the man guarding the yacht had been called in. He had evidently interrupted a conference. "What are you getting ready for?" he asked.

"We have not been idle while you were away," said Bonniger. "This afternoon a fisherman called Jake Loker brought me a packet containing 100 new $5 bills that he had found floating in the river."

Neill's heart began to sink like a piece of water-logged wood.

"He picked it up at a point off Northam's pavilion," Bonniger went on. "The tide was then at half flood. The money had been in the water more than 12 hours, but not much more, because the paper was not yet pulpy. Of course the fact that the bills were bound in a tight bundle helped to protect them. Through the Merchants National Bank of Baltimore, I established that these same bills had been drawn by Prescott Fanning last Monday."

"So what?" asked Neill.

Lone Star Gas Offers Prizes In Photo Contest

A novel contest for amateur photographers which reverses the usual order of such competitions is announced by Lone Star Gas system in an advertisement appearing in this issue. Instead of asking the contestant to buy something or write an essay about a product, the gas company announces that it wants to buy from its customers one hundred good photographs of gas heating equipment.

"There is nothing to buy, no letters to write, in this contest," the company explains in announcing the contest which opens October 11 and will close December 18. "Your gas company and national manufacturers of heating appliances wish to obtain photos or snapshots illustrating various types of gas heating equipment used in the homes of this section. We need one hundred good photos or snapshots of home interiors that can be used to illustrate gas heating appliances. We want to buy these 100 photos from our gas customers and will pay $10 each for the ten best submitted each week during the ten week contest. At the end of the ten week period grand prizes of $100, $75, $50 and $25 will be awarded for the four best entries submitted during the contest."

In explaining the reason for the contest, company officials said: "One of the most difficult things to obtain is an interior view showing gas heating equipment in natural home surroundings. We have a definite need for such pictures, for experience has shown us that it is difficult for customers who wish to buy gas heating equipment to visualize how the appliance they are considering will look in their home. It will heat comfortably, but will it harmonize with other furniture, they wonder? The photos we hope to obtain through this contest will be of great assistance in helping them decide just which type of heating appliance will look best in their own home."

The contest is open to anyone living in a home supplied gas by any of the Lone Star Gas System companies with the exception of professional photographers or others who may take pictures for commercial purposes, and Lone Star Gas System employees and their immediate families. Fords Take Four Places in Grand Argentine Race

DEARBORN, Mich., Oct. 1. (Sp)—Ford V-8s captured the first four places in the 1937 Argentine Grand Automobile Race, the Ford Motor company here announced today, defeating 64 other cars in the strenuous 4279-mile road race which is South America's premier motoring event. Angel Lo Valvo, 30-year-old grain dealer, received an ovation from a great crowd at the finish line in La Plata when he sped across in first place in his 1937 Ford V-8. Three other Ford V-8s flashed over the line to win second, third and fourth places before a car of another make completed the hard-fought contest.

Lo Valvo averaged 53.130 miles and hour over mountains and plains, through sand and mud, in covering the route through 14 Argentinian provinces and two of its territories. Ford officials were notified by cable.

The fast pace of the race and the gruelling character of the course were shown by the fact only 19 cars out of the 69 of various makes which started the race were able to finish. Nine of the 19 finishers were Ford V-8s, and another was a Ford Model A. The model A was driven by Antonio Pereyra, who captured third place in the same four-cylinder Ford in the 1935 race.

The race was run in "laps" between 10 control points, one lap being run daily. Lo Valvo's driving time for the 4279 mile was 80 hours, 36 minutes and 21 seconds, and his performance won him $6,000 posted by the Argentine Automobile club and $3,000 offered by Ford dealers.

Seven of the ten prizes for the fastest time between control points went to Ford V-8s, and a Ford V-8 also carried away first honors for the fastest lap of the entire race. This prize was won by Ricardo Risatti, who clicked off 666 miles at an average of 72 1/2 miles an hour from the start of the race in Buenos Aires, through Pergamino, San Nicolas, Rosario and Cordoba to the first control point at Santa Fe.

Enormous crowds watched various stages of the race, and newspaper and radio accounts of it were followed eagerly by race enthusiasts in Argentina, Chile and Uruguay.

Carlos Garbarino was the second place winner, Eduardo Pedrazzini, Ford dealer in San Nicolas, was third, and Hector Suppici Sedes of Uruguay, was fourth.

A feature of this year's race was that most of the contestants, including the winner, drove closed cars.

Cisco Girls Are Sorority Pledges

AUSTIN, Oct. 1. (Sp)—"Pledge ribbons," those insignias of social prestige which constitute an important part of many college girls' careers, have been pinned on approximately 360 "co-eds" at the University of Texas by the fourteen Greek letter sororities at that institution. After an extended "rushing" period, with two and sometimes three social events scheduled daily by each sorority, preference slips were signed by both "rushes" and sororities. The following pledges, or new members from Cisco, have been announced by the office of the dean of women at the university: Alpha Delta Pi: Maxine Gallagher; Gamma Phi Beta: Frances Gorham.

Simple to Pick Players, Hard To Pick Team

FORT WORTH, Oct. 1. (Sp)—It's a fairly simple matter to pick 11 grade A football players from the Texas Christian university squad. But the problem of picking a team is giving Coaches Dutch Meyer and Mike Brumbe low quite a headache.

"What we need most of all is a spark plug," Coach Meyer reports. "Some individual who will set the boys on fire with the idea of playing winning football would solve just a lot of our problems."

Meyer is telling his men in no uncertain terms this week that there is no one who has a position cinched on the Frog eleven.

"We're going to find the best man available for every position. The boy who gets the job done is a first-string player, letterman, or non-letterman; sophomore, junior or senior!"

In line with this policy, three changes are already evident for the Arkansas contest. Paul Snow, junior squadman, and Durwood Horner, sophomore, appear to have the first call for the end positions.

Both gave a bang-up performance when called upon in the

Where Their Paths Would Never Cross

By IRVIN S. COBB

IT IS recorded that up in Duluth an amateur pugilist was induced to fight a visiting professional. In the first round the nose of the local entry was mashed flat.

"How did I do?" said he to his chief second as he made his groggy way back to his corner.

"Immense, kid, immense! You're there!"

In the second round the amateur sustained a very black eye and a series of annoying and discomfiting punches in his tum-tum. The going saved him, temporarily, from further punishment.

"Am I still O. K.?" he inquired anxiously of his backer.

"Are you?—I'll say you are. Nothin' like it ever seen in this town. The big stiff can't hurt you. Just keep right after him."

As the bell sounded for the conclusion of the third round, the amateur now hammered almost to a pulp, fell up against the ropes.

"What'll I do next?" he asked, between his puffed and swollen lips.

"Why, just stay right with him same as you've been doing. You've got him goin'!"

"Have I?" said the tyro. "Well, then, pull these here gloves off and let him keep on goin'. I'm goin' myself—in the other direction."

Skiles Grocery Aids School Safety Program

Practically every hour of every day, the Skiles Grocery at 14th St. and D Ave. gives warning to children to be careful when they are crossing streets. Every package or parcel at this store is delivered in bags or cartons, on which is printed in plain type, a warning to children and a warning to automobile drivers. There is a small illustration of a boy and girl going or coming from school, under which is the wording: "Children, please be careful. Look both ways before you cross the street."

In bold relief and larger is the figure of a Boy Scout standing forward giving signal warnings to both car drivers and pedestrians, to be careful.

Many hundreds of these warnings have gone out of the Skiles store, and as they are daily brought to the direct attention of children and grown-ups alike, they are warnings that are bound to be effective, and destined to do their bit in keeping down the list of accidents in Cisco.

Defense Worries Longhorn Coaches in Tiger Game

AUSTIN, Oct. 1. (Spc)—Across Old Man River, into the lair of Louisiana State's ferocious Tigers, Dana X. Bible will lead his rejuvenated Texas Longhorns this week-end. They will reach Baton Rouge Friday in time for a nocturnal workout an da day of rest before engaging L. S. U. Saturday night.

From their double and single wingback formations, with Charley Haas, Hugh Wolfe, Beufus Bryan, Bullet Gray and other backs snapping around the ends or through the middle, the Longhorns showed enough versatility and drive in last Saturday's opener with Texas Tech to encourage their followers. Perhaps, after all, the L. S. U. Tigers are susceptible to a combination of power and speed, mixed with a potent passing threat.

What worries Longhorn coaches, after seeing the 25-12 victory, viewing the motion pictures and drilling against L. S. U. plays this week, is not the offense but the defense. Texas tackles and ends were not aggressive enough against Tech; they gave the opposing passer too much liberty and consequently the Longhorns pass defense leaked like a sieve.

Not entirely pleased with any of the tackles, the coaches complimented only Will Tullos, doughty senior who a week ago was in serious danger of losing his job to blond Bernie Esunas.

Most disheartening feature was the accident to Joe Roach, starting left end. When he was blocked him late in the game, Roach's cleats hung in the turf and both bones in his right leg snapped. His place will be taken by Lew Ford, a 205-pound sophomore with junior college experience.

The best backfield combination in the Tech game consisted of Henry Mittermayer at quarter, Haas and Wolfe at the halves and Gray at fullback. Wolfe has been appointed captain for the L. S. U. game. In selecting Wolfe, Coach Bible remembered that in '36 it was the Big Bad One's twisting 37-yard run for touch-down that tied the Tigers, 6-6,

Mustangs Ready for Invasion of Gents Saturday

DALLAS, Oct. 1. (Spc)—Matty Bell and his crew of Methodist Mustangs are ready for the invasion of Centenary's Gents this Saturday in Dallas. During the week Coach Bell has been dusting off the bad spots discovered in last Saturday's tilt with North Texas State Teachers' college.

The Gents boast a strong aggregation and are slated to deal the Mustangs a little trouble. Eleven lettermen, six squaddmen, and 27 sophomores will detrain in Dallas this weekend from Shreveport. Included in the detail are five centers, seven guards, six tackles, nine ends, and 17 backs.

Coach Bell plans starting practically the same lineup as he used against Denton Teachers. In the backfield are Henry Guynes and prevented them from going into the Rose Bowl game with a perfect record.

and John Harlow, at halves; Chelsea Crouch in place of Dan Patterson at quarter, and Bob Belville at full.

Harlow carried the ball 16 times last Saturday for an average of 6.4 yards per play. Guynes did almost as well in 12 tries averaging 5.6 yards. "Red" Stodger completed the lone pass out of eight attempted and it is expected that he will be sent in to shoot fireworks at Centenary.

"Sophomoritis," as Coach Bell defines it, is falling down under fire. The Mustangs fumbled four times in their initial encounter, failing to recover a single time. In one instance it was a punt that bounced out of a player's hands on the Denton 40-yard line.

"We'll have to do much better than we did last week if we expect to get by Centenary," Coach Bell said. "Although we have the potential material for making a first class team, the boys haven't settled down yet. However practices this week ought to smooth over a lot of rough places in team play."

Incidentally the Methodists will be out to even up a 3 to 2 game score rolled up by Centenary since 1926.

Quesada Is Silent on Commutations

HUNTSVILLE, Oct. 1 (AP)—Pio Quesada, who was philosophically resigned yesterday to death in the electric chair refused to talk today about the commutation to life imprisonment granted him by Governor Allred. He was to die last night for the slaying of Fernando Ramirez in a drunken quarrel over a woman. For the first time in three years the death cells have no occupants.

Wallace Says U. S. to Keep Cotton Market

MEMPHIS, Oct. 1 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace said here today that the United States intends to keep its place in the world cotton market.

He said the government should supplement the market price with payments to cooperating farmers on an allotted production goal, probably financed by a reasonable processing tax.

Sawmill Town Goes To Highest Bidder

MANNING, Oct. 1 (AP)—M. B. Tyre, of Lufkin, has bought this entire town.

More than 250 buildings—theaters, lodge halls, business houses and residences—are being razed for lumber.

Manning, serving almost exclusively the employees of a lumber mill once had 1,500 inhabitants. Civic tragedies such as fire and abandonment of a railroad sent residents away.

The company decided to salvage the lumber in the old buildings and looked for a bidder. Tyre made the best offer and bought the town.

Farmer Finds One Wire Fence Enough

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb., Oct. 1 (AP)—This isn't exactly playing cricket with Old Bossie, but Herman Gompert, a farmer near here, says it accomplishes the desired aim.

Gompert was troubled with his cows crawling through an ordinary barbed wire fence, so he put up a single strand and charged it with electricity.

The cows came into contact with the wire several times, then refused even to go near the fence. "I turned off the juice and the cows haven't found it out," he says. "I guess it will work until I get another herd."

Teacher's Sight Confounds Clerks

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 1 (AP)—Belle Dyan, assistant superintendent of schools, confounded clerks in the auto license testing bureau when she asked to read an optical chart 25 feet away.

She did so rapidly and correctly, as the clerk learned when he walked forward and squinted at the letters.

"That's impossible," the clerk declared. "Human vision can't be that good. You're not supposed to be able to read the entire chart."

Miss Ryan walked out with an air of triumph, not revealing she could have recited the letter in total darkness with equal facility. Because of long exercises in school work, she knew the chart by heart.

ter making numerous threats against the mayor following his dismissal as nightwatchman.

The defense contended that Dawson shot in self-defense, after much aggravation from the mayor; and that the defendant's sanity had been impaired in a fight several months before.

Final Thrust

The state made its final thrust in rebuttal Thursday morning by calling to the stand Mrs. A. J. Parker, widow of Mayor Parker. She related events of the day of the shooting. It was her son's fourteenth birthday and they had had a dinner to celebrate the occasion, she said.

Jess Lambert, former Nolan sheriff, and Turner Mays preceded Mrs. Parker on the stand. Lambert said he had advised Dawson against making any more speeding arrests, after Parker had denied giving the order. Mays, a member of the city council, testified there was much confusion in the meeting in which a petition asking Dawson's retainment as nightwatchman, but that the mayor did not keep it from being presented.

Testimony offered by the defense included that of several character witnesses. Mrs. Blanche Grimes of Winters, daughter of Dawson, testified that her father was seriously hurt in a fight when he attempted to arrest five men at a beer parlor.

She quoted Parker as saying, on occasion, "I wouldn't care if they beat his (Dawson's) head off. It was what he needed." Mrs. Grimes said her father had been mentally unbalanced since the fight.

State rebuttal witnesses included J. M. McCauley, former Roscoe mayor, who said Dawson talked to him about Parker's right to fire him as nightwatchman; that he gave him an ordinance that showed the mayor was in his right. On cross examination he said Dawson's reputation was good up to the time of the shooting.

son's reputation was good up to the time of the shooting.

Editor Testifies

W. B. Crossley, editor of the Roscoe Times, testified that Dawson asked him not to print an item stating that he had been fired. Raymond Forrest, employe of the Times, said Dawson was in the place again before the shooting and said, "I told that man not to print that."

Dawson was quoted by G. T. Potter, Roscoe farmer, as saying he believed he'd "get an axe handle and clean up on that 'boy,'" after he had received notice from Parker. Mrs. W. T. Coupland, dress shop operator, said that Dawson once remarked in her place that "I have no more respect for Parker than for that black negro across the street." Leslie Howard, ginnee, reported Dawson as saying the day before the shooting, "I ought to get a club and beat that redheaded—in the ground."

Arguments were presented by Special Prosecutors J. P. Stinson and E. T. Brooks and District Attorney George Outlaw, for the state; and Carl Anderson and Temple Dickson for the defense.

LOBOES GIVEN BIG SEND-OFF THIS MORNING

Team in Fine Spirits for Fray Tonight at Stephenville

By JAMES JOHNSTON
A cheering crowd of high school students gave the big dam Loboes a rousing send-off at 10 o'clock this morning as they pulled out for Stephenville where they will attempt to pull the stinger of the Yellowjackets tonight when they meet on Stephenville's lighted field.

The team is due to arrive at their destination long before game time in order to rest up for the conflict under the watchful eye of the coaches.

The boys at the time of their leaving showed anything but an inferiority complex toward the reported high powered Stephenville bunch. In fact the team has high hopes of upsetting that football tyrant, the dope bucket, and pulling a fast one by beating their opponents. The team is in better shape now than it has ever been, said the coaches, and the boys have been showing unusual pep and fight in their practices. The sports adage that a fighter is licked until the last bell may hold true for the Loboes.

Troy Stewart will be in the lineup and there is little doubt but that Vernon Steyer will be the starting signal caller for the team. Both boys were injured in recent contact skirmishes but none of their injuries were serious.

Chesley Tipton is the only starter who will be out of tonight's game. Chesley's shoulder was locked out of place day before yesterday when he was tackled while attempting to throw a pass. He will be able to go again, it was announced. His place will be filled by Walter Preston who has been moved from an end position. Coach Petty said.

Coach Petty made no changes in the starting lineup from that which he gave yesterday. The probable starting lineup is as follows: Left end, B. Bacon; left tackle, T. Mosley; left guard, R. Mc; center, T. Stewart; right guard, B. Latch; right tackle, R. Hines; right end, T. Jones; quarterback, L. M. Yarbrough; right halfback, W. Preston; and fullback, Warren.

The band will leave around five o'clock. Bandmaster Maddox and

Relative of Ciscoans Buried in Gainesville

Cisco members of the Mancill family were informed Thursday of the death of the wife of Dr. Arthur R. Mancill, Jr., of Gainesville who was buried in that city Tuesday following her death in Kansas City Monday. Her husband is a son of Dr. Arthur R. Mancill, Sr., a half-brother of Clyde Mancill of Cisco and a grandson of the late W. G. Mancill who was a brother of R. W. Mancill, well known Ciscoan.

Mrs. Mancill, aged 19, was the former Miss Peggy Van Cleave of Gainesville, who was married to Dr. Mancill about three years ago.

Midgets Defeat Moran Pups in Season Opener

The Cisco grammar school Midgets gave their newly donated suits a rough initiation yesterday as they downed their first opponents, the Moran Pups, by a close 7-6 score. The first half, going scoreless while the Midgets were assessed numerous penalties, took on a different complexion during the second half as both teams pushed each other all over the field to earn two scores between them. The Midgets' extra point after touchdown was the deciding factor of the contest and the future Loboes left the field happy at having kept their string of victories intact.

Cisco's touchdown came as a climax to a sustained drive by the Midgets after receiving the opening kickoff of the second half. The touchdown was made by a pass from Michael to Boyett which netted the necessary 15 yards for the counter. Michael plunged over the center of the line for the extra point. Moran's touchdown was made on a freak play during the latter part of the fourth quarter. One of the Moran backs had just started an off-tackle play when he was stopped dead at the line of scrimmage. Failing to find a hole, he turned and running back a ways skirted end for ten yards and a touchdown.

First downs were about evenly divided as was the yardage for both teams. Boyett, Tipton, Ivie, Michael, and Thomason stood out for the Midgets. The Midgets will play Eastland at Eastland next Thursday, C. C. Duff announced, and by that time we hope to have a Midget band as we have all the necessary instruments, he added. The pep squad is also to be praised for its work, he said.

Seek Strong Delegation to Austin Tax Hearings

Efforts to secure a strong delegation, not only of independent oil operators, but of landowners and business men generally, at hearings Tuesday and Wednesday before the committee on revenue and taxation in the house of representatives, is being made by the West Central Texas Oil and Gas association, local directors said today following communication with Judge J. C. Hunter, Abilene, president of the association.

Those who plan to attend this hearing, important because of its relation to proposals to increase the gross production tax on oil, were asked to notify W. W. Wallace, telephone 435, so that the necessary hotel reservations may be made for them through Judge Hunter, who will leave for Austin Monday afternoon. Those who wish, Mr. Wallace said, however, may secure their own res-

NEW PURCHASE POLICY MEANS HIKE IN PRICE

Humble to Buy Oil on 100 Per Cent Runs Basis

What amounts to an increase of somewhat more than one per cent in the price to be paid for crude was announced as effective at 7 o'clock this morning when the Humble Oil and Refining company notified operators that it would henceforth purchase on what is termed 100 per cent tank table basis.

Formerly, one per cent was deducted from the quantity of oil bought in order to allow for pipe line losses, evaporation and so forth. Thus the purchaser actually paid for only 99 per cent of the quantity of oil invoiced. The company will now make no deduction but will pay for every barrel run.

Some years ago, it was explained, the deduction for pipe line and evaporation losses was two per cent. This was later changed to one per cent, a practice followed until now.

Allred Challenge to Holbrook Is Not Accepted

AUSTIN, Oct. 1. (AP)—Governor Allred challenged Senator Holbrook of Galveston to a public debate today on taxes, social security and other issues between them, but there won't be any such meeting.

The senator showed strong aversion to the contest and later the governor intimated he didn't make the challenge seriously in the first place. The governor and senator have been wrangling in the press for weeks over the need of revenue.

Both branches of the legislature were idle today as committees labored over proposed bills.

G-Men Rate Brady Gang Tops But Women May Snare Them

Gunmen Boast They'll Make Dillinger Piker

By JAMES DOSS

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 1. (AP)—From Indiana, home of John Dillinger, has sprung a gang that G-men label the most vicious now operating.

It is that of Al Brady and his two underized pals who have boasted frequently, according to underworld gossip, that they would "out-Dillinger" Dillinger. They've gone a long way towards making good.

Police charge them specifically with three killings, several bank robberies and holdups. There is a federal reward of $500 out for each.

Like Dillinger, they broke jail after one whirl at outlawry.

Like Dillinger and his henchmen, they started then on a series of bank robberies.

Youngest Is a Braggart

Like the Dillinger gang, they have the G-men on their trail. Director J. Edgar Hoover has set after them a picked squad of federal agents, as usual in such cases. His men have a code word for the gang—"the braga squad."

Most important of all, possibly, the gang has its known weakness. Like Dillinger, its members are overly fond of women.

The "braga squad" are just two former farm boys and a big city youth who went wrong.

All three—Alfred Brady, James Dalhove and Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., are small. Police call them "half pint killers." All are the products of broken homes, and are 21 to 31 years old. Both Brady and Dalhove are morose, while Shaffer is boastful and talkative, like Dillinger. To him is credited a crack about "making Dillinger a piker."

What They're Like

Here are details from the Federal bureau of Identification and the police:

Alfred Brady, credited with being the gang organizer, is an Indiana farm boy, described by one of his first sweethearts as "too sweet to hurt anyone." Pinched-faced and hard-muscled from his years on the farm and at a mechanic's bench, he was born near Kentland, Ind., in 1910 and attended elementary school at North Salem. When he was a child, his father died and Brady moved with his mother to Indianapolis. She remarried, but died in 1926. An errand boy, then a clothing store worker, he was first arrested on a vagrancy charge, in 1934. Later, for possession of stolen property, he did a stretch in an Indiana prison farm, then worked as a farm hand near Hanover, Ind. There he probably met Dalhove, who farmed nearby. By 1935, Brady was in In-

This is an artist's conception of one of the killings charged to the Brady gang. Fleeing from a bank robbery, the gunmen laid an ambush behind a church and killed a state policeman. Dust raised by the gang's car hindered the pursuers.

Plan Ceremony to Dedicate Stadium

Ceremonies dedicating the new Lobo football stadium at Chesley field are now being planned by the school authorities to be coincident with the first home game which the Loboes will play on the field next week-end. The Big Spring Steers come to Lobo town for that game, and the home brigade has high hopes of initiating the new field with a victory.

CHINA ASKS JAP CENSURE

GENEVA, Oct. 1. (AP)—China today flatly asked the League of Nations advisory committee on the Sino-Japanese war, on which the United States is a consultative member, to declare her a victim of Japanese aggression.

The request embodied a draft resolution submitted to the committee by Doctor Wellington Koo, Chinese delegate to the League, and demanded of the committee to condemn the violation of international law and contractual obligations of which the resolution accused Japan; condemn the illegal blockade of Chinese coasts, and declare the facts to constitute a case of external aggression.

U. S. ADMIRAL RAPS JAPANESE

SHANGHAI, Oct. 1. (AP)—Sharp condemnation of Japanese bombings of Hankow on September 25 came today from Rear Admiral Harry Yarnell, commander of the United States Asiatic fleet.

A Japanese spokesman had said that the Japanese navy was informed by the United States Ambassador Nelson Johnson that all Americans had been evacuated from the Hankow territory by noon September 26.

This the admiral denied, saying that the ambassador had issued no such information but instead told Japanese that foreigners would be evacuated after September 26.

Meanwhile the Chinese defenders in Shanghai reported that they were holding their own.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 1. (AP)—A mother and two children died today in separate shootings, which Sheriff Jacob Andres described as a double murder and a suicide.

The bodies of Mrs. James McHenry, wife of a Detroit attorney, and her seven-year-old son were found in an abandoned automobile near a cemetery today.

Ruth McHenry, 22-year-old daughter was found wounded fatally in the family home in Detroit last night a rifle beside her.

CONVICTED OF MURDER AFTER MAYOR SLAIN

Jury Brings in Verdict At Sweetwater Today.

SWEETWATER, Oct. 1. (AP)—Bill Dawson, former Roscoe nightwatchman, was found guilty and given 14 years in prison today for the slaying of Mayor Arthur Parker of Roscoe, last June. The defense said it would appeal.

The case went to the jury last night. The shooting followed Dawson's discharge as nightwatchman.

The wife of the slain mayor, who succeeded him in office by appointment of the city council, is the sister of Mrs. Asa Skiles of Cisco.

JURY GIVEN CASE AT 6:30 THURSDAY

SWEETWATER, Oct. 1. (Sp.)—Jury deliberating the case of Bill Dawson, charged with murder of Mayor A. J. Parker of Roscoe, retired at 9:45 o'clock last night without reaching a verdict.

Arguments were completed and the case went to the jury at 5:30 o'clock, after Judge A. S. Mauzey charged the jury at 2 p. m. to take into consideration the questions involving self-defense and sanity of the defendant.

Under the court's charge, the jury may return a verdict of not guilty, guilty of murder without malice, or murder with malice aforethought. The state asked for the death penalty, the defense demanding a not guilty verdict.

Throughout the trial, the state attempted to show that Dawson murdered Parker cold-bloodedly on a Roscoe street last June 4, af-

Wednesday Is Visitors Day at Sewing Room

Every Wednesday is visitors' day at the WPA sewing room, project 4556, of which Mrs. Callie Ward is supervisor and Mrs. Eva M. Oney is assistant and time-keeper. This visitors' day was instituted Wednesday, when visitors were received from 3 to 4 in the afternoon. The first day there were but a few visitors, due to the fact that no announcement had been made, and, too, the hour was the same as the Mancill funeral, said Mrs. Ward.

"However, there were several visitors at the sewing room, and those attending were greatly interested," Mrs. Ward said. "It is our plan to have every Wednesday afternoon set apart as visitors' day, from 3 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and during this hour we would like to have representatives from the various city clubs, both men and women, that all may know the work we are doing."

"Since last June the work has been curtailed quite a bit. Details of our work were previously published when we were producing the maximum, operating 30 machines, but now we are only operating 20 machines, and giving employment to only 40 women. Formerly we sent our products to the district commodity office at Abilene, but now the office has been moved to Eastland and the garments distributed from there by the case workers to the relief clients. During the school season we are specializing in school garments, infants, and women's dresses, etc., but we are turning out quite a number of garments, and we would like for all Cisco people to visit the rooms every Wednesday afternoon and see what we are doing. We will take pleasure in showing the public through the work rooms on visitors' days," she said.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Peace be to the brethren, and love with faith from God the Father.—Eph. vi. 22.

Be the day long or short the end is peace To those who in the love of God increase.

The colored sunsets and the starry heavens, the beautiful mountains and the shining sea, the fragrant woods and the painted flowers, they are not half so beautiful as a soul that is serving Jesus out of love, in the wear and tear of common unpoetic life.

How little of that road, my soul, How little hast thou gone!—Faber.

Mr. Farley's Reported Change

THERE is a sidelight on the reported decision of Postmaster General James A. Farley to desert the mail pouches for the presidency of the Pierce-Arrow Motor company, presented by Washington columnist Preston Grover, which gives a little practical seasoning to the reasons for the change. In the years that Mr. Farley has headed the patronage department of the government he has been a dispenser. He has been able to award favors with a liberality never quite as available in past administrations. The democratic affection for him mounted accordingly. But the years ahead produce a different prospect. The policy of the administration henceforth must turn upon economy and retrenchment. It is inevitable. Mr. Farley's talents as an organizer and as a dispenser of patronage are unique. How his popularity would fare as a dispenser, however, is a different question, and one that undoubtedly would give Genial Jim a great deal of trouble and unpleasantness. Success in this role would no doubt be achieved at the cost of a great deal of the popularity and political effectiveness he now enjoys, and for the sake of his peculiar value to the party it might be well to relieve him of this responsibility while maintaining him in the position of party chairman where he could exercise his good offices under the influence of his record of liberality.

FARLEY personally would gain by the shift. The step from public office with its comparatively small salary to the affluence of a corporation president would benefit him in purse and, if his ability at sales-

"THE RIDDLE OF NAPOLEON," By Raoul Brice (Putnam:$3.75); "NAPOLEON," By R. McNair Wilson (Longmans: $3.50).

Perhaps nobody knows exactly how many books deal with Napoleon, but the number certainly runs into the tens of thousands. There should be an international commission charged with inspecting the premises of each new volume, and with denying it publication if it has nothing new to contribute.

Probably Raoul Brice's "The Riddle of Napoleon" would pass the commission. This book is an examination of Napoleon such as might have been instituted by an intelligent grand jury had such existed at the proper time. Brice believes that a good deal has been overlooked, or at least distorted.

He offers rather good proof, too. Specifically, he considers Napoleon's Corsican background, and his hatred of England. He believes the former explains the man, to a large extent. The rabid, almost wolfish hatred of England goes farther along this road. Family pressures contributed, of course. And there is, finally, the matter of Napoleon's illness and their influence.

The things which add up to Napoleon's "secret soul" had better be left to the author to explain. But his diagnosis of Napoleon's illnesses, particularly of his last illness, is expert and fascinating. The legend that the emperor died at St. Helena of cancer of the stomach and that this disease was hereditary among the Bonapartes is still current. Brice agrees with Surgeon-Colonel Abbattucci, of the French colonial army that "Napoleon died from the effects of an abscess of the liver complicated by amoebic dysentery contracted at Longwood."

R. McNair Wilson's "Napoleon" would likewise have a chance of manship is as effectively exercised in that position as in his political career, in a permanency of connection not easily affected by the vagaries of political fortune. Mr. Farley has done right well in establishing himself as an asset of proportions coveted by private business.

OTHER OPINIONS

An Unprofitable Argument

STATE APPROPRIATIONS for the current biennium are $22,000,000 greater than for the preceding one. Influential members of the legislature call for downward revision of appropriations instead of new taxes.

Gov. Allred, refusing to submit appropriations revision to the special session, says the legislature should have heeded his advice to economize when it was passing the appropriation bills in the regular session. The argument gets nowhere.

In his reply to the governor's tax message, Sen. Holbrook sensibly divided the blame for increased appropriations between the governor and the legislature. The governor is at fault, the Galveston senator said, for failing to submit itemized budget recommendations as the law directs, leaving the legislature to grope in the dark. Legislators can add, however, and they knew that they were appropriating more money for operation of regular state departments than had been appropriated two years ago.

There is a difference of opinion between the governor and the senate economy committee over how much more revenue may be expected from present taxes as a result of improved business and better methods of collection. The state auditor sided with the governor. No one denies that the state will go deeper into the red if present appropriations are allowed to stand and provision made for financing additional social security obligations voted by the people.

Governor Allred estimates that $11,126,000 annually must be raised by new taxes to finance the social security program and balance the budget, plus additional revenue to retire the $15,000,000 deficit in the general revenue fund. He didn't say how fast the deficit should be retired.

It may be found impossible to finance teachers' retirement pensions and aid for the adult blind and needy children without some new taxes. Sen. Holbrook suggested further study before aid authorized in the three constitutional amendments is put into operation. In that connection he recommended that constitutional amendments hereafter be submitted only at general elections and that a greater number of votes be required to make an amendment effective. Considerable doubt is permissible as to the force of a so-called popular mandate which rests upon a vote of only a fraction of the qualified electors. Sen. Holbrook said that less than 22 per cent of the voters sanctioned teacher retirement, 5.3 per cent sanctioned aid to adult blind, and only 4.92 per cent sanctioned aid to destitute children by their votes. This is a travesty on popular government which calls for correction.

Leaving the social security program out of the reckoning, however, no justification can be found for the far-reaching program Gov. Allred recommends if the legislature is permitted to take advantage of the opportunity to save the taxpayers some $10,000,000 a year by blotting out extravagances authorized in the regular session. The governor says the legislature wouldn't take advantage of the opportunity if it were authorized. Against his skepticism we have the assurances of foremost legislative leaders. But if the governor resubmitted appropriations and the legislature failed to reduce them, the people would know where to place the blame in the next election—Galveston News.

passing the commission. This is a clever, sometimes original study of Napoleon's life with emphasis on the Emperor's fiscal system, and its influence on succeeding times. The attendant reevaluation of many familiar landmarks in Napoleonic history is likely to interest any general reader with the energy to attack the book in the first place.

A Way Out of the Difficulty

By IRVIN S. COBB

WHETHER we expect to go there or not, stories about Heaven almost have an appeal for us. Here is one which has done service for a good many years:

An exceedingly rich man who had been noted all his life for taking a good and a loving care of his money, passed away. In due time he knocked at the Golden Gates and craved admission to the Celestial City. St. Peter received his application. The angel Gabriel was called in also, to pass on the petition.

"Your name," said the saint, "is not entirely unfamiliar to us. We have heard of you while you were on earth. I ask you now to search your mind and see whether you can recall any deed ever done by you in the flesh which in your opinion entitles you to enter Paradise and dwell among the blessed."

The millionaire gave himself over to intensive thought. "Well, there was one thing," he said, "of which I was always very proud. One cold winter's night on the street I met a little crippled newsboy. He was crying. I stopped and spoke to him. He said he cried because he couldn't sell his papers; so I bought a paper from him. The price of it was only a penny, but I gave him three pennies for it."

"Excuse me for a moment," said St. Peter, "I must ask my confere to consult the records and see whether your statement is correct."

The angel Gabriel looked through the Domesday book and finding there a certain entry, nodded his head. St. Peter and Gabriel consulted together in low tones. It appeared that they could not go behind the returns. At length Gabriel slammed the covers of the great volume together and exclaimed:

"Oh, just give him back his three cents and tell him to go to hell!"

A Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Low-cost housing is making a slow, contentious start, but the Wagner housing act itself is at present Washington's "best seller."

Of all acts of the past or previous congresses it is most in demand from the congressional docket rooms where copies of all laws are kept. Every community which hopes some time to share in the apportionment of housing money sends in for numbers of copies. The orders range from a half dozen to several hundred at a time. The larger orders usually come from members of congress who are eager to distribute copies of one of the limited number of laws enacted last session.

Another popular number is the farm tenancy bill. As was expected, it is most in demand in the south and midwest. But officials of the document room were surprised by continued large orders for the act from Michigan. None of them had heard of Michigan suffering the torments of tenant farming.

Reading for Miners

The far west has a particular interest in the bill extending the time for prospectors to complete required development work on mining claims. Prospectors are required to do at least $100 worth of work a year on mining claims to hold title to them. Several years during the depression the government has waived the requirement for the annual "assessment work," recognizing that prospectors were having a hard enough time making a living, with little to spare of time or money to protect their claims.

The small prospector often is in a tight spot. He must either do the required annual development work or give up his claim. And every prospector is haunted with the fear that the moment he gives up his claim some "big eastern company" will come in, dig a couple of feet farther and uncover a bonanza.

The document most steadily in demand in recent years is the social security act. It passed congress in 1935 and has a larger call than any other measure except the major ones enacted during the last session. It often exceeds a thousand a month, always is several hundred.

With Pictures

Another document in steady demand is the report of the LaFollette committee on its investigation into the Chicago Memorial Day incident in which 11 steel strikers were killed in a brush with police.

The document clerks did a neat piece of detective work in connection with one request for the LaFollette committee report. A postal card came to capitol hill addressed simply: "Senate Report, Part 2, 75 Congress, Number 46, Washington." It bounced around from office to office until it reached the document room. After a bit of study the clerks concluded that a certain Petrovic of Detroit wanted a copy of document 46, part 2, of the 75th congress. This is the LaFollette report.

Evidently some organization has been urging that the report, which condemned police methods of handling strikers, be more widely read, for a Los Angeles public library asked for copies of the document in a manner almost identical with that of Petrovic of Detroit.

The document is one of the very few published by congress with illustrations. It reproduces several photographs of tangled piles of strikers to support its conclusion that "the consequences of the Memorial Day encounter were clearly avoidable by the police."

Human and Other Nature

If you are up now you can see the waning moon high in the east looking quite like a nice quarter of a watermelon except in color, the cloudy part coming just right to be the meat of the melon. The twins are not far away to the north. I cannot make sure that they are interested but if they are making for the melon the big Twin, Pollux, is nearer than his brother, Castor. About the same distance on the other side is the Little Dog; and if he wants to I'd think he could beat both of them to the melon. The Big Dog is blinking his eye good-naturedly, but he is so far away that I think he will let the younger ones scuffle for it. The Seven Sisters are rather far away to the west and are so little that I do not believe they intend to even try it out with the rough Twins and the Little Dog. Looking on with steady gaze is Venus above the dawn and I hope her lovely influence will be used to keep down strife and make them all willing to share rather than grab for all of the good things they can get.

dianapolis once more, working in factories. The next year the Brady gang raids began.

Clarence Lee Shaffer, Jr., "loud mouth" of the trio, operated a sandwich shop before joining up. Born here in 1916, he was reared by grandparents after his parents separated. He attended elementary school here and at Ben Davis, Ind., and apparently lived a normal life. But while doing odd jobs, he worked for a time with a character known to the G-men as Charles Geiseking, onetime member of the Brady gang who is now serving time in Ohio.

From Stores to Banks

The first job attributed to the gang was a $320 store robbery at Robinson, Ill., in January, 1932. Brady was identified as one of the two holdup men. Other holdups followed.

And then in April, 1936, the gang grabbed a haul of jewelry at Lima, O., and escaped after a running fight. Geiseking was wounded and his pals brought him here for medical aid. A police patrol cornered them at a surgeon's office and the gang again shot their way out, killing Police Sergeant Richard Rivers. The transport of $12,000 in jewels across a state line is the basis for the federal charges against the gang.

A few days later, Brady and Dalhover were captured at Chicago, and Shaffer here. Transferred to jail in Greenfield, Ind., they slugged the sheriff with an iron bar, fled to Baltimore and established a base, police believe, for forays back into Ohio and Indiana.

This was a turning point in the career of the gang. No longer did they bother with stores—only banks.

They Kill an Officer

Holdups laid at their door, definitely and tentatively, include bank robberies at Carthage, Fairland, North Madison, Anderson and Goodland in Indiana, and at Lancaster, Weston and Greenville in Ohio.

Besides these crimes, there were the killings of Rivers, of Grocery Clerk Edward Linsey in a $150 robbery at Piqua, O., and of State Policeman Paul Minneman in a gun battle near Longansport, Ind.

That battle was a high spot. The Bradys fleeing from the $2,600 bank robbery at Goodland, roared down a country road, kicking up dust so thick that in the car behind a few feet.

At a crossroads the Indian contrived. The road and behind the crossroad to quarry, one of the other from a second a third from the officer, Minneman, lay dust, a gangster snarled: "I ought to be right now."

Woman May Doom

After the bank robbery gang lay low awhile, flushed by police in Baltimore.

Brady and Dalhover tried meantime to set up a tavern there. Maxwell," he contrived boldly in adventures of fancy roller large Baltimore rink hideout, police found arsenal and gun-magazine. But the gunmen usual, under fire.

Officers Predict

Eventually will be a tip from some heart.

Shaffer Expects

For the Chicago officer blames a pretty Orleans woman who leaving her husband gangland thrills.

"If Brady had alone," Shaffer told that time, "we would now. She told us car and leave the junking us to stay in a house instead of leaving to Shaffer summed up philosophy in these words: "Do I know what me? Sure, the electric bells. What's the dirt a good time while it's hot."

the dark ships

BY HULBERT FOOTNER

SYNOPSIS: Neill, a young federal agent, finds his beloved Janet in a locked cabin aboard Prescott Fanning's yacht at Absalom's Harbor. Fanning is shot dead and Janet in a faint, a gun beside her. Neill hides her nearby in a disused liner, then joins Mark Bonniger, keen local investigator, to keep tabs on developments. He thinks Janet shot Fanning until he learns a man was hiding on the yacht. Then he suspects queer little Eyster, who hated Fanning. Also in the picture are Kettering, a Baltimore lawyer down to fish, and Ira Buckless, a tough who trails Neill. Eyster's tip enables Neill to find wealthy old Miss Rayner in Baltimore.

Chapter 27

A Cool Million

"Don't you read the newspapers, Miss Rayner?"

"Certainly not. I've something better to read."

"Mr. Fanning is dead."

She took it more calmly than Neill expected. Death is a commonplace affair to the very old. "Dead?" She echoed sharply. "Where? How?"

"He was found dead on his yacht in Absalom's Harbor."

"I didn't know he had a yacht."

"Murdered."

"Bless my soul! . . . Why do you come to me about it?"

Neill endeavored to soften his story. "We can't find out anything about him. Who his folks are, and so on. We thought perhaps you could help."

"I liked the man," said Miss Rayner, "but I was hardly what you would call a friend. We had some business dealings."

This was what Neill was after. "Who brought him to you?"

"My estate agent, Edward Barney. I have a house for sale on Linden avenue. Mr. Fanning was thinking of buying it for a speculation, but he thought I was asking too much for it. So he persuaded Mr. Barney to bring him here. I wouldn't come down in my price but, as I said, I liked the man. He stayed on here chatting after Mr. Barney left and he came to see me a number of times after that."

"Have you confidence in Mr. Barney?" asked Neill.

"Absolutely. A good, faithful creature. He's too dumb to be crooked. He's only my renting agent. He knows nothing about my affairs."

"Well, about Fanning . . . ?"

"He was a man of large means," she went on, "and we had a common interest in our investments. He told me that he had established an investment trust in New York which paid 6 per cent and over on its stock. I was getting less than three on my government bonds. I am interested in many philanthropies and I need all the income I can get my hands on. So in the end I exchanged my bonds for stock in Mr. Fanning's trust. I took a little at first, and as the price continued to rise, I got more."

"Without any investigation?"

"Certainly not! I investigated it thoroughly. I received very fine references and testimonials on Mr. Fanning's behalf from New York people. I'll show them to you."

"Didn't you consult with any Baltimore business men, or with your lawyer?" he asked.

"No. I prefer to act on my own initiative."

"Do you know a man here called Horace Kettering?"

"The name is familiar."

"He's a lawyer in town."

"I've never seen the man nor had anything to do with him."

"Did Mr. Fanning ever speak of him?"

"No."

"Did Mr. Fanning introduce you to any of his friends or associates?"

"No."

"Did you ever hear the names Ira Buckless or David Eyster?"

"No."

"Of course, they might have gone under other names. They are peculiar looking men." He described Eyster and Buckless.

"I don't know any men of that sort," she said scornfully. "Is all this leading up to the suggestion that there is something crooked about Fanning?"

Neill didn't answer.

"That's ridiculous on the face of it!" said Miss Rayner. "He only promised me 6 per cent. A swindler would have guaranteed 10 or 15."

In spite of her confidence talk, Neill had roused an ugly doubt in the old lady's mind. Hoisting herself out of her chair, she tottered to a safe that stood open against the wall. Taking from it a portfolio, she brought it to him.

Opening it, Neill thumbed over a sheaf of beautifully engraved certificates. Not worth the paper they had spoiled.

"Aren't they all right? Aren't they all right?" she demanded.

He had not the heart to deliver the blow. "I reckon so," he said. "I know nothing about such matters. How much did Fanning charge you for the stock?"

"It sells at par over the counter," she eagerly explained. "That's 10. He let me have it for 9 1/2."

The certificates in the portfolio represented 125,000 shares. So Fanning had raked her for over a million dollars. Neill inwardly gaped at the thought of such a sum. What had become of it? He handed back the portfolio.

"The first dividend was paid on the nail," said Miss Rayner. "Naturally! thought Neill."

She brought him a sheaf of letters. "These will tell you all about Mr. Fanning. Who his associates are, and so on."

Neill took down names and addresses in order to satisfy her, and got out as soon as he could. It made him feel a little sick to think of the brutal awakening that was in store for the frail little old lady.

In the street he thought things over. Beyond establishing the identity of Fanning's victim, he had not got very far. The manner of Fanning's introduction to the old lady suggested that the estate agent was in no wise implicated, and Miss Rayner had confirmed it. Neill at Mr. Osgood's office. He found him a conservative specimen of the genus Family Lawyer. Impossible to suspect such a one. Mr. Osgood claimed not to have met Fanning. He was deeply shocked to learn that Fanning had been a frequent caller on his client.

"I must look into this," he muttered.

Neill didn't envy him that job. Mr. Osgood said that his acquaintance with Kettering was very slight. He made it clear that he did not care for the man. "A successful criminal lawyer, I understand," he said condescendingly.

Before returning to Absalom's, Neill had himself carried over to Washington. In the treasury department he cashed a check for all he had coming to him in order to be ready for anything. He looked in on his chief.

"Having a good time?" asked the latter.

"Swell!" said Neill. If you knew the half of it! he thought grimly.

"I'll have an assignment for you on Monday."

As he started out of town, Neill bought the latest papers and found, as he had foreseen, that they were now playing up the theory that Fanning had been decoyed into the girl's cabin and killed by a man for his money. Neill flung down the sheets with a groan of helpless anger.

The Mob Muttters

It was approaching seven o'clock when he got back to Absalom's. Lately the papers had been sent down from town as fast as issued and the latest story was already having its effect. From the crowd that pressed around the store, Neill heard a new note, a slow growling sound that once heard can never be forgotten.

As he crossed the porch on his way in, he overheard a snatch of talk. A man said:

"When we catch them two we ought to string them up."

"Not the woman," answered another. "That's never been done."

"Well, we can string him up and let her watch. That'd learn her!"

Neill swept a glance around. Every face bore the same dark look and he knew then what it was to be done. Hyenas! he thought, hardening.

He found Bonniger with Sergeant Wilson and the constables in the loft over the store, and made his report.

"Good work," said Bonniger. "It fits in with other information about Fanning that has come over the wire today. During the past four or five weeks he opened accounts with half a dozen banks in Washington, Baltimore and New York. Large sums of money passed through these accounts. Just before he died, he closed them all out, and got his checks back, thus blocking our investigation of his operations."

"Pretty slick," said Neill.

"It's clear that he converted his million into something easily portable," said Bonniger. "He must have had it with him, and there's your motive for the murder! A cool million! This case looms bigger and bigger!"

Neill noticed with considerable uneasiness that all the constables with the exception of the man guarding the yacht had been called in. He had evidently interrupted a conference. "What are you getting ready for?" he asked.

"We have not been idle while you were away," said Bonniger. "This afternoon a fisherman called Jake Loker brought me a packet containing 100 new $5 bills that he had found floating in the river."

Neill's heart began to sink like a piece of water-logged wood.

"He picked it up at a point off Northam's pavilion," Bonniger went on. "The tide was then at half flood. The money had been in the water more than 12 hours, but not much more, because the paper was not yet pulpy. Of course the fact that the bills were bound in a tight bundle helped to protect them. Through the Merchants National Bank of Baltimore, I established that these same bills had been drawn by Prescott Fanning last Monday."

"So what?" asked Neill.

Lone Star Gas Offers Prizes In Photo Contest

A novel contest for amateur photographers which reverses the usual order of such competitions is announced by Lone Star Gas system in an advertisement appearing in this issue. Instead of asking the contestant to buy something or write an essay about a product, the gas company announces that it wants to buy from its customers one hundred good photographs of gas heating equipment.

"There is nothing to buy, no letters to write, in this contest," the company explains in announcing the contest which opens October 11 and will close December 18. "Your gas company and national manufacturers of heating appliances wish to obtain photos or snapshots illustrating various types of gas heating equipment used in the homes of this section. We need one hundred good photos or snapshots of home interiors that can be used to illustrate gas heating appliances. We want to buy these 100 photos from our gas customers and will pay $10 each for the ten best submitted each week during the ten week contest. At the end of the ten week period grand prizes of $100, $75, $50 and $25 will be awarded for the four best entries submitted during the contest."

In explaining the reason for the contest, company officials said: "One of the most difficult things to obtain is an interior view showing gas heating equipment in natural home surroundings. We have a definite need for such pictures, for experience has shown us that it is difficult for customers who wish to buy gas heating equipment to visualize how the appliance they are considering will look in their home. It will heat comfortably, but will it harmonize with other furniture, they wonder? The photos we hope to obtain through this contest will be of great assistance in helping them decide just which type of heating appliance will look best in their own home."

The contest is open to anyone living in a home supplied gas by any of the Lone Star Gas System companies with the exception of professional photographers or others who may take pictures for commercial purposes, and Lone Star Gas System employees and their immediate families. Companies participating in the contest include Lone Star Gas Co., The Dallas Gas Co., County Gas Co., Texas Cities Gas Co. and Community Natural Gas Co. Entries may be submitted at the nearest gas company office or mailed directly to Lone Star Gas System Advertising Department, 305 South Harwood, Dallas. Folders giving complete information on the contest and showing sample pictures similar to those desired may be obtained from the gas company.

Fords Take Four Places in Grand Argentine Race

DEARBORN, Mich., Oct. 1. (Sp)—Ford V-8s captured the first four places in the 1937 Argentine Grand Automobile Race, the Ford Motor company here announced today, defeating 64 other cars in the strenuous 4279-mile road race which is South America's premier motoring event.

Angel Lo Valvo, 30-year-old grain dealer, received an ovation from a great crowd at the finish line in La Plata when he sped across in first place in his 1937 Ford V-8. Three other Ford V-8s flashed over the line to win second, third and fourth places before a car of another make completed the hard-fought contest.

Lo Valvo averaged 53.130 miles and hour over mountains and plains, through sand and mud, in covering the route through 14 Argentinian provinces and two of its territories. Ford officials were notified by cable.

The fast pace of the race and the gruelling character of the course were shown by the fact only 19 cars out of the 69 of various makes which started the race were able to finish. Nine of the 19 finishers were Ford V-8s, and another was a Ford Model A. The model A was driven by Antonio Pereyra, who captured third place in the same four-cylinder Ford in the 1935 race.

The race was run in "laps" between 10 control points, one lap being run daily. Lo Valvo's driving time for the 4279 mile was 80 hours, 36 minutes and 21 seconds, and his performance won him $6,000 posted by the Argentine Automobile club and $3,000 offered by Ford dealers.

Seven of the ten prizes for the fastest time between control points went to Ford V-8s, and a Ford V-8 also carried away first honors for the fastest lap of the entire race. This prize was won by Ricardo Risatti, who clicked off 666 miles at an average of 72 1/2 miles an hour from the start of the race in Buenos Aires, through Pergamino, San Nicolas, Rosario and Cordoba to the first control point at Santa Fe.

Enormous crowds watched various stages of the race, and newspaper and radio accounts of it were followed eagerly by race enthusiasts in Argentina, Chile and Uruguay.

Carlos Garbarino was the second place winner, Eduardo Pedrazzini, Ford dealer in San Nicolas, was third, and Hector Suppici Sedes of Uruguay, was fourth.

A feature of this year's race was that most of the contestants, including the winner, drove closed cars.

Cisco Girls Are Sorority Pledges

AUSTIN, Oct. 1. (Sp)—"Pledge ribbons," those insignias of social prestige which constitute an important part of many college girls' careers, have been pinned on approximately 360 "co-eds" at the University of Texas by the fourteen Greek letter sororities at that institution. After an extended "rushing" period, with two and sometimes three social events scheduled daily by each sorority, preference slips were signed by both "rushes" and sororities. The following pledges, or new members from Cisco have been announced by the office of the dean of women at the university: Alpha Delta Pi: Maxine Gallagher; Gamma Phi Beta: Frances Gorham.

Simple to Pick Players, Hard To Pick Team

FORT WORTH, Oct. 1. (Sp)—It's a fairly simple matter to pick 11 grade A football players from the Texas Christian university squad. But the problem of picking a team is giving Coaches Dutch Meyer and Mike Brumblow quite a headache.

"What we need most of all is a spark plug," Coach Meyer reports. "Some individual who will set the boys on fire with the idea of playing winning football would solve just a lot of our problems."

Meyer is telling his men in no uncertain terms this week that there is no one who has a position cinched on the Frog eleven.

"We're going to find the best man available for every position. The boy who gets the job done is a first-string player, letterman, or non-letterman; sophomore, junior or senior."

In line with this policy, three changes are already evident for the Arkansas contest. Paul Snow, junior quarterback, and Durwood Horner, sophomore, appear to have the first call for the end positions.

Both gave a bang-up performance when called upon in the Ohio State fray and will undoubtedly be given the opportunity to try their hand at stopping the Razorback air circus.

At right half Pat Clifford, junior letterman, has replaced John Hall. Clifford showed a lot of speed and drive to letter as a sophomore and is being counted upon to step up the offense next Saturday.

"Just as dangerous as last year—only more so!" is a report on Arkansas brought by T. C. U. scouts.

To which Coach Meyer serves: "Just try to find a swaver to that one!"

The call "all aboard," is railroads, originated in travel.

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

Where Their Paths Would Never Cross

By IRVIN S. COBB

IT IS recorded that up in Duluth an amateur pugilist was induced to fight a visiting professional. In the first round the nose of the local entry was mashed flat.

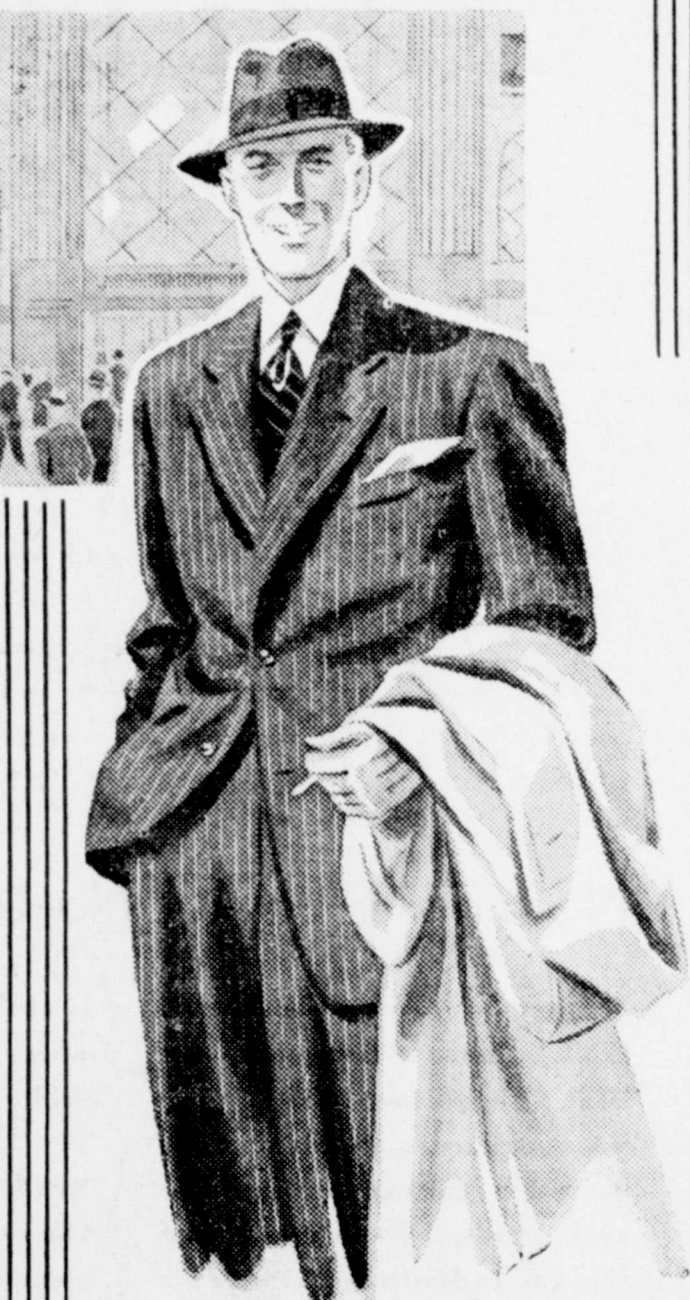

"How did I do?" said he to his chief second as he made his groggy way back to his corner.
"Immense, kid, immense! You're there!"
In the second round the amateur sustained a very black eye and a series of annoying and discomforting punches in his tum-tum. The gong saved him, temporarily, from further punishment.
"Am I still O. K.?" he inquired anxiously of his backer.
"Are you?—I'll say you are. Nothin' like it ever seen in this town. The big stiff can't hurt you. Just keep right after him."
As the bell sounded for the conclusion of the third round, the amateur now hammered almost to a pulp, fell up against the ropes.
"Whut'll I do next?" he asked, between his puffed and swollen lips.
"Why, just stay right with him same as you've been doing. You've got him goin'."
"Have I?" said the tyro. "Well, then, pull these here gloves off and let him keep on goin'. I'm goin' myself—in the other direction."

Skiles Grocery Aids School Safety Program

Practically every hour of every day, the Skiles Grocery at 14th St. and D Ave. gives warnings to children to be careful when they are crossing streets. Every package or parcel at this store is delivered in bags or cartons, on which is printed in plain type, a warning to children and a warning to automobile drivers. There is a small illustration of a boy and girl going or coming from school, under which is the wording: "Children, please be careful. Look both ways before you cross the street."

In bold relief and larger is the figure of a Boy Scout standing forward giving signal warnings to both car drivers and pedestrians, to be careful.
Many hundreds of these warnings have gone out of the Skiles store, and as they are daily brought to the direct attention of children and grown-ups alike, they are warnings that are bound to be effective, and destined to do their bit in keeping down the list of accidents in Cisco.

Defense Worries Longhorn Coaches in Tiger Game

AUSTIN, Oct. 1. (Spc)—Across Old Man River, into the lair of Louisiana State's ferocious Tigers, Dana X. Bible will lead his rejuvenated Texas Longhorns this week-end. They will reach Baton Rouge Friday in time for a nocturnal workout on a day of rest before engaging L. S. U. Saturday night.

From their double and single wingback formations, with Charley Haas, Hugh Wolfe, Beefus Bryan, Bullet Gray and other backs snapping around the ends or through the middle, the Longhorns showed enough versatility and drive in last Saturday's opener with Texas Tech to encourage their followers. Perhaps, after all, the L. S. U. Tigers are susceptible to a combination of power and speed, mixed with a potent passing threat.

What worries Longhorn coaches, after seeing the 25-12 victory, viewing the motion pictures and drilling against L. S. U. plays this week, is not the offense but the defense. Texas tackles and ends were not aggressive enough against Tech; they gave the opposing passer too much liberty and consequently the Longhorns pass defense leaked like a sieve.

Not entirely pleased with any of the tackles, the coaches complimented only Will Tullos, doughty senior who a week ago was in serious danger of losing his job to blond Bernie Esunas.

Most disheartening feature was the accident to Joe Roach, starting left end. When "Tech back blocked him late in the game, Roach's cleats hung in the turf and both bones in his right leg snapped. His place will be taken by Lew Ford, a 205-pound sophomore with junior college experience.

The best backfield combination in the Tech game consisted of Henry Mittermayer at quarter, Haas and Wolfe at the halves and Gray at fullback. Wolfe has been appointed captain for the L. S. U. game. In selecting Wolfe, Coach Bible remembered that in '36 it was the Big Bad One's twisting 37-yard run for touch-

Mustangs Ready for Invasion of Gents Saturday

DALLAS, Oct. 1. (Spc)—Matty Bell and his crew of Methodist Mustangs are ready for the invasion of Centenary's Gents this Saturday in Dallas. During the week Coach Bell has been dusting off the bad spots discovered in last Saturday's tilt with North Texas State Teachers' college.

The Gents boast a strong aggregation and are slated to deal the Mustangs a little trouble. Eleven lettermen, six squadmen, and 27 sophomores will detrain in Dallas this weekend from Shreveport. Included in the detail are five centers, seven guards, six tackles, nine ends, and 17 backs.

Coach Bell plans starting practically the same lineup as he used against Denton Teachers. In the backfield are Henry Guynes

and John Harlow, at halves; Chelsea Crouch in place of Dan Patterson at quarter, and Bob Belville at full.

Harlow carried the ball 16 times last Saturday for an average of 6.4 yards per play. Guynes did almost as well in 12 tries averaging 5.6 yards. "Red" Stidger completed the lone pass out of eight attempted and it is expected that he will be sent in to shoot fireworks at Centenary.

"Sophomoritis," as Coach Bell defines it, is falling down under fire. The Mustangs fumbled four times in their initial encounter, failing to recover a single time. In one instance it was a punt that bounced out of a player's hands on the Denton 40-yard line.

"We'll have to do much better than we did last week if we expect to get by Centenary," Coach Bell said. "Although we have the potential material for making a first class team, the boys haven't settled down yet. However practices this week ought to smooth over a lot of rough places in team play."

Incidentally the Methodists will be out to even up a 3 to 2 game score rolled up by Centenary since 1926.

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as nature intended—fail to remove impurities that poison the system when retained. Quesada Is Silent on Commutations

HUNTSVILLE, Oct. 1. (AP)—Pio Quesada, who was philosophically resigned yesterday to death in the electric chair refused to talk today about the commutation to life imprisonment granted him by Governor Alfred. He was to die last night for the slaying of Fernando Ramirez in a drunken quarrel over a woman. For the first time in three years the death cells have no occupants.

Wallace Says U. S. to Keep Cotton Market

MEMPHIS, Oct. 1. (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace said here today that the United States intends to keep its place in the world cotton market.

He said the government should supplement the market price with payments to cooperating farmers on an allotted production goal, probably financed by a reasonable processing tax.

Sawmill Town Goes To Highest Bidder

MANNING, Oct. 1. (AP)—M. B. Tyre, of Lufkin, has bought this entire town.

More than 250 buildings—theaters, lodge halls, business houses and residences—are being razed for lumber.

Manning, serving almost exclusively the employes of a lumber mill once had 1,500 inhabitants. Civic tragedies such as fire and abandonment of a railroad sent residents away.

The company decided to salvage the lumber in the old buildings and looked for a bidder. Tyre made the best offer and bought the town.

Farmer Finds One Wire Fence Enough

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb., Oct. 1. (AP)—This isn't exactly playing cricket with Old Bossie, but Herman Gompert, a farmer near here, says it accomplishes the desired aim.

Gompert was troubled with his cows crawling through an ordinary barbed wire fence, so he put up a single strand and charged it with electricity.

The cows came into contact with the wire several times, then refused even to go near the fence. "I turned off the juice and the cows haven't found it out," he says. "I guess it will work until I get another herd."

Teacher's Sight Confounds Clerks

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 1. (AP)—Belle Dyan, assistant superintendent of schools, confounded clerks in the auto license testing bureau when she asked to read an optical chart 25 feet away.

She did so rapidly and correctly, as the clerk learned when he walked forward and squinted at the letters.

"That's impossible," the clerk declared. "Human vision can't be that good. You're not supposed to be able to read the entire chart."

Miss Ryan walked out with an air of triumph, not revealing she could have recited the letter in total darkness with equal facility. Because of long exercises in school work, she knew the chart by heart.

ter making numerous threats against the mayor following his dismissal as nightwatchman.

The defense contended that Dawson shot in self-defense, after much aggravation from the mayor; and that the defendant's sanity had been impaired in a fight several months before.

The state made its final thrust in rebuttal Thursday morning by calling to the stand Mrs. A. J. Parker, widow of Mayor Parker. She related events of the day of the shooting. It was her son's fourteenth birthday and they had had a dinner to celebrate the occasion, she said.

Arguments were presented by Special Prosecutors J. P. Stinson and E. T. Brooks and District Attorney George Outlaw, for the state; and Carl Anderson and Temple Dickson for the defense.

son's reputation was good up to the time of the shooting.

Editor Testifies
W. B. Crossley, editor of the Roscoe Times, testified that Dawson asked him not to print an item stating that he had been fired.

Raymond Forrest, employe of the Times, said Dawson was in the place again before the shooting and said, "I told that man not to print that."

Dawson was quoted by G. T. Potter, Roscoe farmer, as saying he believed he'd "get an axe handle and clean up on that 'boy,'" after he had received notice from Parker. Mrs. W. T. Coupeland, dress shop operator, said that Dawson once remarked in her place that "I have no more respect for Parker than for that black negro across the street."

Leslie Howard, ginner, reported Dawson as saying the day before the shooting, "I ought to get a club and beat that redheaded—in the ground."

Arguments were presented by Special Prosecutors J. P. Stinson and E. T. Brooks and District Attorney George Outlaw, for the state; and Carl Anderson and Temple Dickson for the defense.
