JACKIE PENN—heroine; she wanted to fly.
ROGER BRECKNER—hero; he had to test the stratosphere.
EVELYN MELROSE—wealthy girl; she wanted Roger.
LYN LA FARGE—Jackie's father; she wanted a son-in-law.

Yesterday: The first quartet comes and Roger leaves Jackie on the dance floor. And he does not dance with her again.

CHAPTER X

Jackie did not believe she ever had been so angry before in all her life. She told herself that she simply despised Roger Breckner. So he thought it was ridiculous, did he, to pretend to be engaged to her? He had laughed at her, accused her of being jealous. Jackie forgot that she had called the very idea of their engagement ridiculous, too, more than once. She did not know anything about jealousy, since she had never been in love. She did not know how much akin hatred and love can be.

She did know she wished she could square matters some way with Roger for having got her into this mess. She would like to make him suffer for it, as much as she had. She would like to turn the laugh on him.

Well, one thing was certain, the moment this flight of his was over, Jackie would put an end to this whole crazy business. She would not keep this farce up any longer. Even if she had to tell Evelyn the whole truth about everything.

"Dear me," Evelyn said, toward the end of the long evening. "I do think Roger has behaved very strangely toward you, Jacqueline. Why, do you know he has danced practically every dance with Mrs. Melrose! He is dancing with her now—see them, darling!"

"Of course I see them!" Jackie snapped. How could she help herself? She did not have to have her attention called to the fact that Roger was dancing with Beryl Melrose. She had been very much aware of it all evening. She knew he was doing it on purpose, because he thought it would make her jealous.

"It does not look very well when this is your engagement party," her mother murmured. "It's really yours," Jackie said. "Mine!" Evelyn exclaimed. "Oh, I see what you mean, darling—because of myself and Paul. You know, I believe Paul thinks it odd, too, the way Roger is behaving."

"I don't give a darn what Mr. Scott thinks about anything!" Jackie said. Then she turned away, biting her lips hard. She was not biting them because it was an effort to keep back the prick of tears from behind her eyelids, or down the big dump filling her throat. But she was tired, the silver slippers pinched her feet, her head throbbled from trying to hold it high, her lips felt stiff from keeping them in a curving smile. Besides, she must be careful what she said or her mother would no longer believe in this ridiculous engagement. To have Evelyn find out now that it was all pretense would be more than Jackie's nerves could stand.

Roger and Beryl Melrose came up to Jackie after that dance. "I'm afraid I'm going to have to say good night," Mrs. Melrose said smilingly, extending her hand. "It's been such a lovely party. It was so sweet of you to ask me."

She actually sounded as though she meant it, but of course Jackie could see through her. "It was nice of you to come," she returned politely. It was just lovely of you to spoil my whole evening, she might have added. But she had no intention of letting this other girl know that.

"Of course I'll see you again," Beryl said. "You'll be coming to the field to see Roger take off. You must be genuinely proud to be engaged to him!" As she said this last, she turned her big dark eyes toward Roger, with a look that, although Jackie did not know anything about love, could be easily read.

Why, Beryl Melrose was in love with Roger! Really in love with him. This knowledge was like an icy shower descending upon Jackie's head. She did not know why it should be like that. It could not make any difference in her young life.

"Of course I'm proud of him,"

Jackie said. She had not meant to say it. But she just did. She, too, gave Roger a look; a shy, smiling one that seemed to say how proud she was, more than any words. For suddenly Jackie had been seized with an idea of her own! She really would put on an act. She really would make people believe in this ridiculous engagement. Even Roger himself! Then she would indeed have the laugh on him.

"See here," Roger stood over her "did you mean that—what you said to Beryl? Or were you still only pretending . . . Don't pretend with me now, Jackie, please!"

"I won't," Jackie answered. She lowered her long curling lashes. Maybe because she did not want him to see what her eyes really said. "No—I wasn't pretending, Roger. About Beryl Melrose, I mean. I could not bear to see you with her—all evening." That was the truth. It had made her so angry that she had seen red.

"You mean that!" Roger took a step closer, he caught both of her hands in his. "Don't pretend with me now, Jackie—I warn you. This is just between us. Not for the benefit of your mother, or anyone else."

"Yes, it is just between us," Jackie said. This was how she would even the score with him. For setting her into this crazy line of his, for everything. This was how—in the end—she would show him how she hated him. "Nobody else has anything to do with this," Jackie said.

Certainly nobody else had anything to do with what happened. "I understand," Beryl Melrose said. Her dark eyes looked into Jackie's a significant moment—as though she did understand, perhaps more than had been said. She said good night once more. Roger said he would see her to her cab.

When he came back he found Jackie sitting in a secluded corner.

sheltered by a mass of flowers and shrubs, screened from the dance platform and the gay lights. She looked as though she were waiting for him. Which was exactly how she had hoped to look.

"See here," Roger stood over her "did you mean that—what you said to Beryl? Or were you still only pretending . . . Don't pretend with me now, Jackie, please!"

"I won't," Jackie answered. She lowered her long curling lashes. Maybe because she did not want him to see what her eyes really said. "No—I wasn't pretending, Roger. About Beryl Melrose, I mean. I could not bear to see you with her—all evening." That was the truth. It had made her so angry that she had seen red.

Splendid Progress Made in Introduction of Registered Jerseys by 4-H Club Boys

Jersey Club First Organized in '36 With 9 Heifers

By HUGH F. BARNHART
Ass't. County Agent

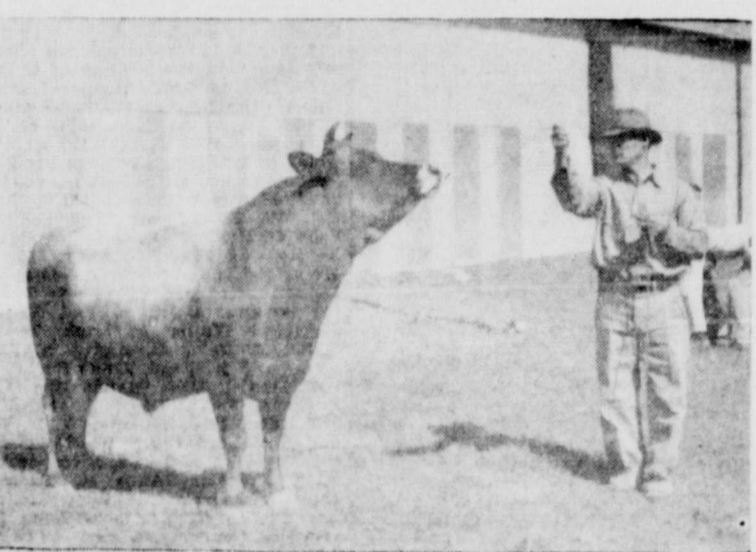

The Eastland county 4-H club boys have made wonderful progress during the past two years in introducing and encouraging the production of registered jerseys in the county. The Eastland County 4-H Jersey club was organized in July, 1936, with nine boys who had purchased nine bred registered Jersey heifers.

Soon after the organization of this club one of the members suggested that the club carry their own insurance on their animals. This measure was adopted by the club. Briefly the plan was that "Each member deposited $5. in the bank, along with an agreement that the money was to remain in the bank for a period of one year. Should a boy's heifer die within a year's time from the time the agreement was made, then the boy would receive the full payment of $40 deposited by the other eight members. Should two heifers die within this stated time each boy would receive a payment of $20. It was stipulated in the agreement that the animal must die from a disease and not from the lack of feed, before a payment from the insurance fund could be made. The insurance was carried for one full year, and no death losses occurred in the club.

Brought Calves
These heifers began calving in December, 1936, bringing five bulls and four heifers. Some of these bulls were kept by the boy's father to be bred on his grade Jersey cows, while others were sold to farmers in Eastland county to be used as a herd bull. All of the heifers remained on the 4-H club boys' farm.

For the first six months lactation period a daily milk record sheet was kept on each heifer. Once each month a butterfat test was run on each heifer. Some of these heifers produced as high as 900 pounds of milk and 51 pounds of butterfat per month. An accurate feed record was kept by the boy, and at the end of each month the boy could determine whether not his heifer showed a profit or a loss.

Won $464.

Winning $464. in premiums as well as having eleven grand champion animals, the 4-H Club Dairy boys have made a credible showing in the various dairy shows entered. In 1938 L. C. Love showed the grand champion heifer of the 4-H club division at the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock show. Animals have been entered and shown at the following shows: Ranger, Cisco, Dallas, Fort Worth, Abilene, and Eastland.

At the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock show at Fort Worth, in 1938 four Eastland county 4-H club heifers were sold for an average price of $145. each. Having a higher average price of any 4-H club heifers in the auction sales ring. At the Texas centennial in Dallas, 1936, one 4-H club heifer was sold for $150.

In addition to making a good showing of their animals in the show ring, the Eastland County 4-H Dairy Calf Club boys have entered in other activities in the dairy field. L. C. Love and James Dean, members of the Alameda

Boys' 4-H club won the State Dairy Demonstration contest in 1937, and were awarded a free trip to the National Dairy show in Columbus, Ohio. In 1937 Jack Walker, James Dean, and Buster Wheat were awarded gold, silver, and bronze medals at the Fort Worth Fat Stock show for exhibiting the best fitted 4-H club Jersey heifers, and displaying the best showmanship, in competition with all of the other 4-H club boys entered at the show. In 1937 Elbert Bennett and James Dean as two of the one hundred outstanding club boys in Texas, and were awarded a gold star pin. Again in 1938 a dairy calf club boy, L. C. Love, was awarded this honor by being one of the three Eastland County gold star boys, and he too will receive a medal in July at the state encampment. In dairy cattle judging these boys have made an exceptional record. In a recent dairy judging contest held at Abilene in connection with a Dairy Field day, the Eastland county 4-H club boys again topped the 4-H club dairy judging contest, by placing first as a team, and having high point man in the contest.

Jack Walker and Marvin Dupuy are helping to improve the grade Jersey cows in their communities by the purchase of two registered Jersey bulls to be used in their communities.

At the present there are 34 registered Jerseys owned by Eastland county 4-H club boys and local club leaders. These 34 animals are valued at $3,600. In July, 14 animals will be placed in the show barns to be fitted for the fall shows. These shows to be entered by the boys this year will be Cisco, Eastland, Dublin, Rising Star, Abilene, and Dallas.

Several 4-H club boys within the county are becoming interested in Jersey heifers for their 4-H club demonstrations. Within the next two weeks two more registered Jersey heifers will be added to the 34 now owned, when two Desdemona 4-H club boys receive their heifers.

The senior class had a joyful day Monday. They had Kid day. All the boys dressed like little first grade boys and the girls like little first grade girls. They had dolls and marbles. Mr. Bentley gave them all a penny and they went down town and bought suckers.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hesel gave the senior class a party in the gym Saturday night. Almost all of the seniors were present. They had a very nice time. Mrs. Hesel gave each one a present. She served ice cream and cake. We nearly froze to death eating the ice cream but it certainly was enjoyed by every one.

The Pioneer seniors had their senior day Tuesday at Lake Cisco. The class was all present with the guest of the post graduates who are taking the post graduate course. They started from Pioneer about 9 o'clock and arrived at Lake Cisco at 10 o'clock. They went through the zoo where most of the class got a thrill out of the two black bears. We had a very nice picnic lunch which was especially enjoyed by everyone. Then we went to the skating rink where most of our fun was had. Most of the class skated. Several got hard falls. Jack Hodnett received the most and hardest falls. Then Mr. Butler came out and took our picture for the paper. We immediately went to the Palace where we attended a good show. When we started to come home one of the cars which we were in had a flat tire. Everyone arrived home safe and sound with the reports of the most enjoyed day of the whole senior year.

Uncle Sam Is John Smith

It is the business of Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, to pass money out rather than take it in. He does receive some money once in a while, however, and it is doubtful that he ever got a more significant check than the one he received recently from Fred Hohner.

Fred Hohner is an unemployed mechanic living in Newark, N. J. In 1935 he got some help from the WPA. Since then he has not needed any help; but he never could forget that he had had help when he needed it, and so the other day he set out to square the account.

He had $112 at the time — and no job. But he went down to a postoffice and bought a money order for $100, and then mailed it to Hopkins.

"My money was getting so low that if I hadn't paid it when I did I might have had no money to pay," he explained. "The government did its best to me, and I wanted to do my best to the government."

The obvious comment on all of this, of course, is that it is a pity that more people don't have the same kind of conscience that Fred Hohner has. Millions upon millions of people have been helped by the government in the last five or six years; only a few have remembered to pay the government after they got on their own feet again.

That doesn't mean that most people are ungrateful. It simply means that very few of us ever realize just what this government of ours really is.

It isn't a thing which exists of itself, an independent entity which floats cloudily in the sky over Washington and showers down blessings every so often. In reality it is nothing more or less than the instrument through which all of us act. It is ourselves, in short — John Smith and his fellow citizens.

SO when "the government" does something for a man—provides a job for him, pays his rent, bails out his business, or whatever —what is actually happening is that that man's fellow citizens are coming to his rescue. He isn't being aided by a benevolent old gentleman with chin whiskers, known as Uncle Sam, or Santa Claus; he is being aided by his own countrymen, and all of them, in one degree or another, are paying the bill.

Perhaps people like Fred Hohner recognize that fact. If so, it is a little easier to see why they insist on repaying what they have received. They aren't repaying a mythical Uncle Sam; they are repaying their own fellows, precisely as they would if they had borrowed from the next-door neighbor.

We would have a much clearer perspective on all of the activities of our government, and of our own obligations toward it, if we shared in that recognition of its true essence.

OTHER OPINIONS

These Twenty-Five Years

By JOHN A. PARK Publisher of The Raleigh Times Since September 7, 1911

MEASURED in months, weeks and days, twenty-five years is a long time. A fourth of a century!

Measured by the yardstick of accomplishment, the completion of assumed or assigned tasks or the realization of ideals, it may be dreadfully short.

I cannot quite comprehend the fact that half of my life so far has been devoted practically in its entirety to the operation and building of a newspaper and to the community activities of which it has been a part.

The gratifying experience of aiding in the training of more than 3,000 boys, as well as a few girls, in ways of courtesy, loyalty and attention to daily duties impresses me forcibly. I have found immense satisfaction, too, in seeing many employes prepare for better jobs than I could give them.

I have had genuine pleasure in watching substantial sums of cash gathered in small amounts and often with difficulties, paid out in well earned wages. Only a few newspaper readers understand that the major cost of operations goes out through pay envelopes. Some of them know that the vital act of producing a newspaper is personal service through human contacts during almost every waking moment. Expensive machinery and numerous materials are involved, but there is no substitute for brains needed in the intelligent use of that equipment.

I remember so well the remark of an eminent editor back in 1911, when I dared to assume the uncertain responsibilities of The Raleigh Times, that "the first fifty years are the hardest."

I hope he was in error with his counting. My next span of twenty-five years ought to be devoid of depressions, headaches and heartaches. I have had enough of these for anyone's lifetime.

But I am counting heavily on more of those joyous experiences involved around lasting friendships that cannot be taken from me by the wheel of fortune. Even though I may never rate very highly in worldly goods, I know I am rich in that priceless ingredient, the affectionate touch of my own people that is now a sizable fortune here in the land of my birth.

I am glad that God gave men an optimistic spirit along with the willingness to consider other burdens than my own. I am glad, too, that my sore toes have healed and that many of the stumbling blocks cast into my path have now mostly disappeared.

The mental skunk list that I maintained for a while has been discarded. I carry in its place a vivid score card on which the indelible record of eternal friendships is burned deeply.

My great ambition for the next quarter century is that The Raleigh Times may achieve the utmost in usefulness to its community and that I have a place in the fast-moving ranks as the march of progress continues.

A 9-year-old Chicago boy has been spending most of his time making political campaign speeches, but don't worry about him. He's not supposed to act like an adult till he actually is one, is he?

It's a dollar to doughnuts Benito is tickled he's not Hirohito.

Plaintiff alleges that on or about the 29th day of October, 1928, she was and still is the owner in fee simple of the full 7-8 working interest in and to the oil and gas lease and leasehold estate covering certain lands lying and being situated in Eastland County, Texas, and being 96 1-2 acres out to the E. Plaintiff alleges further that on said day it was and has been continuously since then the owner of and entitled to possession of all oil and gas produced and now being produced from said 7-8 working interest in said oil and gas lease and leasehold estate, together with the proceeds thereof, and all personal property used in connection with said leasehold estate. Further, in the alternative, plaintiff alleges that by reason of the contract lien on the respective interests of defendants and each of them, if any they have, and the proceeds of the oil and gas produced therefrom, plaintiff prays for title and possession of said 7-8 working interest in and to said oil and gas leasehold estate, to the personal property located on said premises, for removal therefrom upon plaintiff's title. In the alternative, if defendants have any interest that same be established, that plaintiff have judgment establishing its debt for necessary and reasonable expenses in operation and management; that the proceeds of the oil and gas accruing to said defendants and each of them be applied on their prorata part of said debt; and in the alternative that plaintiff's indebtedness be established as well as its contract lien and that such lien be foreclosed against any interest the defendants might have in said lease and the proceeds of the oil and gas produced therefrom; further in the alternative that its debt be established along with its equitable lien and that such lien be foreclosed on the interest of said defendants, if any, and in and to said lease and the proceeds of oil and gas produced therefrom, for interest on its indebtedness at 6 per cent from the date of the respective expenditures, and for any other and further relief to which it may be entitled.
