REFORM-BILL WAR LOOMS ONCE AGAIN

Foes Promise Determined Fight; Rayburn For Attempt

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—Belief that the administration would attempt to revive the bitterly-contested government reorganization bill at this session of congress increased Sunday upon disclosure that a survey was being made of sentiment among house members.

The reorganization bill, carrying authority for the president to re-shuffle government agencies, was passed by the senate and then shelved by the house after a furious controversy.

Since then, however, the administration has been encouraged by the Florida primary outcome and the progress of wage-hour legislation in the house to believe that the reorganization measure now commands a better chance of house passage.

Foes of the bill have promised a determined fight against any effort to revive it. One of them, Senator Burke of Nebraska, has predicted congress would be here "until the snow flies" if the administration insisted upon the measure.

It was learned reliably today that two democratic representatives were conducting a poll among house members, particularly those who voted to shelve the bill or who were absent when that vote was taken.

The object of the survey, it was said, was to determine whether written statements of intention to vote for the reorganization legislation could be obtained from 30 or 40 of this group.

Advocates of the bill predicted that administration would not attempt to revive it unless a favorable vote appeared assured.

Rayburn Backs Try House Leader Rayburn of Texas, one of those who will attend the conference, told reporters Sunday:

"I would be glad to have a reorganization bill passed at this session, but we are not sure yet whether we will try to revive the controversy.

"If we get the bill up, it will pass." Rayburn also expressed belief that a wage-hour law would be enacted at this session. Ten days ago, before house members rushed to sign a petition to overcome the rule's committee's opposition to the wage-hour measure, the Texan had expressed doubt of enactment.

Eastland County Security League To Meet Saturday

The Eastland County Security League will meet in Cisco at the city hall Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in what was announced as one of the most important meetings of the year.

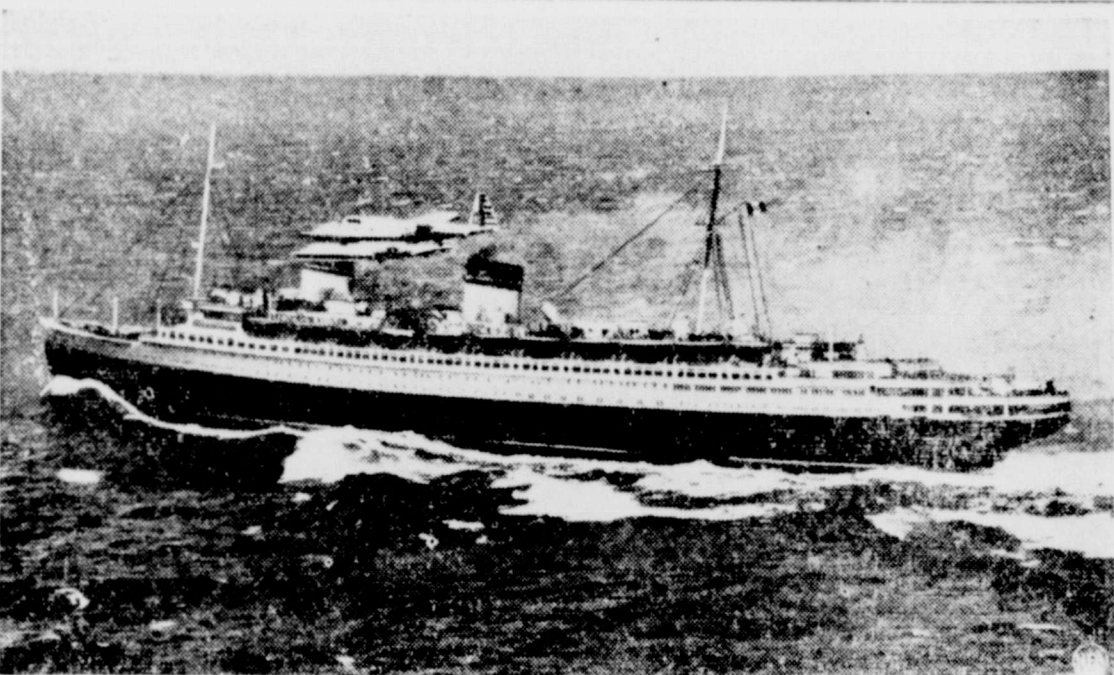

Candidates for the legislature from the 106th and 107th districts were invited to address the meeting and to discuss issues of current interest, particularly their positions on old age assistance.

All members of the league were urged to attend if possible.

The committee on candidates will meet in conjunction with the league session and is expected to report on matters of importance.

Army Planes Find An "Enemy Ship"

Looking for all the world like a couple of winged fish, two of the army's great "flying fortresses" course over the Italian liner Rex which they "spotted" 610 miles out at sea, in connection with the week-long realistic war games being carried out on the eastern seaboard by 182 planes from the army's flying corps. For war-game purposes various innocent craft like the Rex were assumed to be troop transports or aircraft carriers sent by a "Black" coalition of European powers to attack our shores.

"Blue" or American squadrons then took off from various points to beat off the "invaders." The location of the Rex at sea was regarded as brilliant proof of the mobility and defensive power of the army's aviation.

Earthquakes Rock Turkey for Third Time in Month

ANKARA, Turkey, May 16 (AP)—Earthquakes shook central Turkey Sunday for the third time within a month, sending the populace fleeing into fields in terror.

An official government report announced there were three severe shocks but gave no estimate of casualties.

The Kirsehir area, which virtually was razed last month, again suffered heavily.

In addition to Ankara, Turkey's capital, the places affected included Eskisehir, Akseira, Sivasa and the Diarbakir region where more than 100 houses collapsed in the Lidia district alone.

Nearly 1,000 persons were killed in a series of earthquakes which began April 19 and continued the night of April 20.

Eighteen villages were destroyed and 22 others damaged. Another series of tremors followed on April 26. Sixteen persons were killed in the Kirsehir district.

James E. Ferguson To Vote For Cousin

AUSTIN, May 16 (AP)—Declaring blood to be thicker than water, former-governor James E. Ferguson said today that he would vote for his cousin, James A. Ferguson, farmer and Bellon real estate man, who announced his candidacy for governor over the week-end.

Daladier Gov't Opens Armament Loan Drives

PARIS, May 16 (AP)—In a manner reminiscent of World War loan drives, the National Defense Government of Premier Edouard Daladier sought Sunday to excite public interest on the eve of opening subscription of a 5,000,000,000-franc ($140,000,000) armament loan.

Army planes roared over Paris and provincial centers, "bombarding" Sunday strollers with red, white and blue leaflets. Military bands paraded, bearing banners with the slogan: "Subscribe." Radio stations, movies and the press joined the drive.

The bonds will go on sale tomorrow in denominations as small as 10 francs, offered at the price of 98 in an effort to draw forth hoardings.

HIGH COURT FOR STRIKERS Provided Actions Are Justifiable

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—The supreme court ruled today that working men, who strike as a result of unfair labor practices of their employer, are entitled to protection under the National Labor Relations act.

The decision was given in upholding an order by the board directing the Mackay Radio and Telegraph company to reinstate five employees who went on strike in San Francisco.

Supreme Court Decides In Lone Star's Favor

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—The supreme court returned to the Texas courts today, for further proceedings, the litigation involving a 1933 order by the Texas railroad commission directing the Lone Star Gas company to reduce from 40 to 32 cents per thousand cubic feet its charge for gas sold to the distributing companies of 275 Texas municipalities.

The court reversed the ruling by the Texas court of civil appeals, holding city gas rate of 32 cents to be "just, reasonable and valid in every particular."

Sheriff Fatally Beaten in Brawl

WALSENBURG, Colo., May 15 (AP)—Deputy Sheriff Fidel Aguirre, 46, of Walsenburg, was beaten fatally, apparently by several men, after a disturbance at a Gardner, Colo., dance hall early Sunday.

Aguirre, father of nine children, died Sunday afternoon without regaining consciousness. His skull was fractured, his jaw broken and his throat stabbed.

Sheriff Claud Swift mobilized his officers and volunteers to comb the hills around Gardner in the search of Aguirre's assailants.

The sheriff said he found no witnesses to the attack, but that apparently the deputy sheriff was called outside the dance hall and bombed. Aguirre had been assigned to keep order at the dance.

Socialist-Student Attack Reported Latest Outbreak

MEXICO CITY, May 16 (AP)—Socialist students today seized buildings of the University of Mexico in a sudden attack that left a number of wounded.

The students then barricaded themselves against the police and firemen. The outbreak was the newest manifestation of unrest following the expropriation of foreign oil companies.

Associated agrarian leader, General Saturnino Cedillo, charged today that President Cardenas was trying to "drive him to rebellion" in order to distract the public from the administration's troubles.

Later the captured buildings were taken from the socialists. A check showed that seven persons had been wounded in the disturbance.

CITY PATROLLED BY TROOPS

SAN LUIS POTOSI, Mexico, May 16 (AP)—Government troops took possession of four church rooftops and mounted anti-aircraft guns there Sunday as tension mounted in fear of an outbreak by Gen. Saturnino Cedillo's armed agrarians.

Detachments were stationed atop the strategically located churches, while an anti-aircraft unit was set up at a principal street corner and guards patrolled public buildings of the state capital under virtual martial law.

Though there was no word of disorders throughout the state northwest of Mexico, D. F., the stringent military precautions heightened the alarm of San Luis Potosi citizens.

Three thousand troops were held in barracks to see that General Cedillo kept the peace.

Five thousand more were scattered out through the long, strategically important state.

Garrisons were heavily reinforced around the Las Palomas estate of Cedillo, the "strong man of San Luis Potosi" and President Lazaro Cardenas' opponent since

SAN FRANCISCO, May 16 (AP)—V. S. McClatchy, 80, member of a pioneer California newspaper family, and former half-owner of the Sacramento Bee and Fresno Bee, died here Sunday.

MULTI-BILLION BILL DUE IN SENATE SOON

Administration Reported As Looking to Next Elections

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—The administration's lending-spending bill moves into the senate arena this week amid widespread speculation that it is only part, perhaps the less important part, of the White House program for stepping up employment before election day.

Activities of administration key men on the New Deal-private power front imply to observers that the government is groping for a formula of peace with utility leaders, encouraged by conciliatory overtures both in the Tennessee Valley area and the utility holding company sector.

Widening significance also is attached to President Roosevelt's personal survey of national defense power requirements. Even the impending decision of a joint congressional committee on procedure to be used in its TVA inquiry is taking on a new shading. Government policy toward private power enterprises is a major issue involved in the internal fight which disrupted the TVA directorate.

More Building Needed

Repeated statements by administration spokesmen that the multi-billion dollar lending-spending program alone would not restart the national economy machinery, intensify interest in maneuvers on both sides to end the New Deal-utility contest. From the outset of the business recession last summer, government experts have pointed to the housing shortage and needed private utility plant expansion as the high roads to prosperity and re-employment.

A start on housing stimulation has been made. The utility recovery sector is being surveyed. And there is a growing impression that the White House hopes to effect what amounts to a truce, defining the limits of government power competition, and inviting a rush of private investment or utility building, induced by government credit.

That anything resembling a formal peace pact is to be expected, most observers doubt. President Roosevelt has shown indications of an unshaken resolve to carry on with the TVA rate yardstick and regional planned economy experiment. Any back-tracking on that policy would invite increasing liberal disaffection in New Deal ranks in an election year. Starting of the National Progressive party movement has emphasized already that drift away from the president leadership.

Vatican And Insurgent Spain Are Agreeable

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, May 16 (AP)—The Vatican news service announced today that the Holy See and the Spanish insurgent government had arranged for an exchange of plenipotentiary diplomatic representatives, completing formal recognition by the Vatican of Generalissimo Francisco's regime.

British Troops Slay 23 Arabs in Fight

JERUSALEM, May 16 (AP)—British authorities announced Sunday the death of 23 Arabs in a sharp engagement with British troops in northern Palestine.

British casualties were placed at one killed and one injured in the battle which took place Saturday while troops were engaged in confiscating arms in a village in the Acre district.

The British called airplanes into action to machine-gun the Arabs.

Clothed in Glory of a Tragic Past

He saw the proud land he ruled humbled in war. His very throne crumbled beneath him in a surging tide of republicanism. Hated at home and abroad, he fled alone into dismal exile on foreign soil. And from his refuge, he watched a former house-painter acquire the power and glory which once has his. . . . Yet little of the tragedy of his life is etched in the countenance of Wilhelm II, one-time emperor of Germany and king of Prussia, as you see him here, apparently hale and hearty in his eightieth year. This photo, one of the few made of him in recent years, was taken at Dorn, Roland, during the wedding of his grandson, Prince Louis Ferdinand.

Wheat Prices Scheduled To Dive For Bottom

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—The Agricultural Adjustment administration carried to wheat farmers today a plea that they accept a "reasonable" rate for forthcoming government loans on wheat to avoid possible loss of foreign markets for the grain.

The AAA took it for granted that a loan program would have to be inaugurated by harvest time. Loans are authorized by the new crop control law when new crop prospects exceed normal domestic and export needs.

Present prospects point to the second largest winter wheat crop on record and a supply for the coming marketing year of at least 400,000,000 bushels more than normal needs.

The law gives the AAA authority to set the loan rate at between 60 and 86 cents a bushel, on the basis of present prices.

Anticipating protests from wheat growers if the rate were fixed below the maximum, the AAA sent officials into the winter wheat belt of the midwest and the soft wheat region of the Pacific northwest to plead in advance for acceptance of a rate below that figure.

ELECTED

ODESSA, May 16 (AP)—G. Ward Moody of Odessa was elected district commander of the State American Legion here Sunday.

UNDETERMINED NUMBER STILL UNDISCOVERED

Over Dozen Persons Rescued; High Winds Fan Flames

ATLANTA, May 16 (AP)—Fire which started in the basement of a kitchen, killed 25 persons at the Terminal hotel early today and left 13 injured and an undetermined number of others missing.

More than a dozen persons were rescued or leaped to safety.

Reports to firemen indicated that from 50 to 65 persons were registered in the 62-room, five-story, brick and frame building.

High winds fanned the flames. Engineers estimated that two days would be required to clear the wreckage.

Many dead were found in charred timbers and steel which dropped from the roof.

Police Chief M. A. Hornsby expressed the belief that 10 or 15 more bodies would be uncovered in the smoldering debris.

Cisco Youth, Fall Victim, Still Unconscious

The condition of James Edward Kilgore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kilgore, youth who fell from the Highway No. 80 overpass Sunday, May 8, was reported as still unchanged, at 3 o'clock this afternoon by hospital attendants.

The youth has never regained consciousness since he fell a distance of approximately 20 feet, while playing on the overpass. Edward and his brother were on their way home from an afternoon show. The accident occurred about 6 o'clock.

Trinidad Fire Razes Business District

TRINIDAD, May 16 (AP)—A fire which destroyed the main business block of this Henderson county town was brought under control early today.

The loss was estimated at $25,000. The post office was among the buildings burned.

Origin of the fire was still undetermined today.

Belle Plains, Grandeur Gone, Closes Doors

BAIRD, May 16 (Sp.)—Once the site of west Texas' greatest college, Belle Plain—seat of Callahan county before the advent of the Texas and Pacific railroad—now closes its doors on schools probably forever.

The public school closed with a barbecue last week and its student body was transferred to the Baird schools.

Old-time cowmen put on an appetizing meal for hundreds of school patrons, the kiddies and visitors.

Belle Plain once was a rip-roaring town, with saloons, gunsmiths, large stores and outfitting establishments. A large college with several hundred students peeped off the frontier. But when the T. & P. Blazed into this section, Belle Plain caught the commercial fever and "went to town," otherwise Baird, the new division point and rail center. Until this year the place has possessed a public school and a church, but no store. It is in the midst of a ranch and oil producing area.

Gaunt stone buildings with wood-work gone stand as mute evidence of the grandeur that once was the "best town" in this whole country.

Ranger Juniors Hold Picnic At Lake Cisco

RANGER, May 16 (Sp.)—Each year for 10 years the students of Ranger Junior college have had an all college day. In keeping with this tradition the students and a few faculty members of the college went to Lake Cisco on a picnic Friday.

Everyone met at the school building Friday morning and left at 8:30 for Lake Cisco where they enjoyed a day of skating, swimming, merry-go-round, riding and traveling on a miniature train. At noon the lunch was spread; at four o'clock the picnicers returned to Ranger.

The college sponsors were Mrs. Hunter, Mrs. Healer, Mr. Ringold, and Mr. Blaylock. Other faculty members attended.

This annual picnic and the banquet held last week completed the social activities to be sponsored by the college this year.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The abundance of their joy abounded unto the riches of their liberality.—2 Cor. viii, 2.

I glance up the vista of years that may be.
As heights that my weakness may climb,
And joy that its visions are darkened to me,
To be only revealed in His time.
As a book whose next pages is left folded and sealed.
Till the lesson of this has been learned,
I pass to a tomorrow that is not revealed.
Till the leaf of today has been turned.

Men Also Fight Around the Table

If conferences could help, the world's troubles would have been solved long ago. We have had domestic conferences aplenty, and the international scene has had everything from League of Nations meetings to an interchange of side-of-the-mouth whispers by dictators; but still the millennium comes not, and the world's ills go on piling up.

All of which is brought to mind by the recent suggestion of Philip Murray, C. I. O. leader, that President Roosevelt summon a conference of leaders in labor, industry, finance, agriculture and government to "lead the nation out of the wilderness."

In theory, Mr. Murray's suggestion is perfectly sound. We are all in the same boat, and if it fails to stay afloat all groups and all classes are going to suffer equally; surely there ought to be enough good will and common sense to make such a conference productive of a broad-gauge plan to end the depression.

Yet the record of recent years argues against it. The average conference may provide a useful cross-section of the sentiment of folks back home, but it produces little in the way of a feasible plan of action.

And it may be that the reason why this is so is simply that hardly any of us are able to shed the old idea that we can get ahead only at the expense of somebody else.

SUPPOSE, for instance, that all the groups Mr. Murray enumerates were summoned into one big conference; what would happen?

If they ran true to form, each group would immediately begin to interpret the national policy in terms of its own interest.

It would examine every plan submitted by another group to see—not whether it would be the best thing for the nation as a whole, but whether it would offer the best possible immediate advantage for one individual group.

In the end there would be a series of horse-trades—provided the delegates stayed away from one another's throats long enough—which would leave the nation no better off than it was before.

Which, of course, would leave the individual groups no better off. For the whole is greater than any of its parts, and in the long pull all of us are going to go up or down together.

That ought to be the most obvious single fact on the entire horizon. Yet it seems to be about the last one we can assimilate. Hence our conferences come to little good—and a sensible suggestion like this one of Mr. Murray's becomes something that only the hardest will care to endorse.

Too Many Toes to Watch

EVER since the moving picture graduated from its old nickelodeon status and became a big league entertainer, serious folk have been waiting impatiently for it to grow up.

Once in a while, to be sure, something like "Snow White" comes along to indicate that the movies have indeed grown up—in spots, anyhow. But for the most part the industry's long adolescence continues, and signs of maturity are regrettably few.

It was a big league movie producer—none other than Samuel Goldwyn—who put his finger on the reason for this.

MR. GOLDWYN announced the other day that he was going to make a film dramatizing the exiling of the Jews from Germany. This promptly raised a storm of protests from the other movie barons, who objected that the American movie business in Germany would be ruined. So Mr. Goldwyn replied:

"Why should Sam Goldwyn wait 200 years to make a picture of the most dramatic thing that has happened in this generation?"

If the movies are to make any claim to maturity at all, the only possible answer to such a question is: "He shouldn't." Yet the peculiar conditions under which movies are produced make it almost impossible for such an answer to be returned.

For Hollywood makes movies for all the world. It has to guard its foreign markets with the most zealous care. And if it makes a picture that offends a totalitarian government—as, for instance, in Germany—it runs the risk of facing quota restrictions or other reprisals which will cut off a sizeable part of its profits.

Consequently the industry has had to surrender its independence. It may not offend anyone; as a result, it must fight shy of all the great, living issues which are absorbing the world today. And as long as it does that, it cannot pretend to have reached maturity.

NOW Mr. Goldwyn apparently is going to try breaking this rule. He proposes, as he says, to "make a film like the newspaper prints the news," telling a dramatic story as he sees it without worrying about the toes that get stepped on in the process; and every movie-goer should hope that he remains firm in his resolution.

The movies will some day be one of the most tremendously important cultural and educational agencies on earth. They will offer an entertainment that is living breathing, truly adult.

But they won't be and do those things until they find some way of shaking off the restrictions imposed by their slavery to the foreign market.

Historic Landmark Gives Way to Road Project

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I was standing in front of the Graybar building, biting my lip and wondering what I would write about today, when an advertising executive of the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. came by.

It was Harry North, a former editor of Black Mask, a magazine devoted to horror stories. His current hobbies include raising monkeys at Westport, Conn., and collecting old lamps. It is Harry's theory that most monkeys die in North America because people kill them with kindness. They keep them in hot houses in the belief that they are duplicating the African climate. This, Harry feels, is unwise. His method is to freeze the monkeys to cold, so that when winter comes they can go out into zero weather, if they want to, with perfect safety.

It seems, however, that the rearing of simians has its complexities. Twice Harry has been compelled to perform Caesarian operations. But there is one feat he can point to that has not been duplicated by anybody. He is the only man in this country, so I am informed, who has successfully raised three generations of monkeys on a northern farm.

As for his lamps, there is an old barn and a house on his place at Westport which are filled with curious, ancient oil lamps and lamps. They represent, when you get down to it, the whole history of lighting. Some men collect stamps, some old neckties, other coins. I suppose there are many who like to collect old lamps, too. Expatriates returning from the shadow of the Coliseum report that Count Rossi, the Italian beverage and speedboat king, is building two 12-litre whizzers for a series of four gold cup races—one to be held at Venice, another in Germany, the third at Detroit, and the last, the president's race, at Washington, D. C.

The slim, convivial Italian was over here last summer with a couple of fast craft which he named for two mountains in captured Ethiopia. I talked with him briefly and he was enthusiastic about racing in America. It is his opinion that horseracing, football and baseball combined are not half so interesting as a roaring motorboat skimming a lake surface at, say 90 miles an hour.

Vastly interested in these gold cup races is Mrs. John M. L. Rutherford of Sands Point and Miami, who is unquestionably the best woman driver in America. Her husband, Jack Rutherford, has a surprise suicide boat, the Juno, picked up for a song and equipped with an old Cadillac motor. Last year at Washington he tossed her into the water, just to see if it would run, and proceeded to break existing world records.

I am told these "suicide" boats were built for the Chinese. They were constructed to carry a lot of weight on the bow, probably a torpedo, and the idea was to drive the launch, loaded with explosives, into the side of enemy warships. Rutherford picked her up for $1,500. When you consider that 12-litre racing boats cost between $20,000 and $30,000, you begin to appreciate that broad, satisfied smile on Rutherford's face.

La Branconne, Belgium's national song, was originally sung in 1830 during the revolution against the Dutch.

STORIES IN STAMPS

VOWED TO PAINT WASHINGTON

THE overwhelming urge to portray life in color cropped out in Gilbert Stuart when he was scarcely 13 and then a poor youth of Middletown, Rhode Island. At that age he painted his first portrait without instruction.

Then in 1770 a friend took him to Scotland for his first lesson. He returned to America in a year as a result of his sheer poverty after his friend died. By 1775, however, Stuart was back in London again for further study, and after more hardship eventually found his footing. By 1792, when he returned to America, he had achieved signal success, was living in luxury.

Stuart returned to America with one goal—to paint Washington. This he did for the first time in 1795. Later he executed other portraits of Washington in his late stages of life; the most famous of both artist and sitter. He painted also at this period other famous figures of both Europe and America.

Shown here is a Washington portrait after Stuart, appearing on the six-cent ultramarine blue stamp of the U. S. series of 1869. It appears slightly more than one and one-half times actual size.

1935 FIGURES, the latest available, show that sportmen of the United States and Alaska paid $9,256,758.94 for hunting licenses, and nearly $500,000 for the Federal Migratory Bird-Hunting stamps. In Pennsylvania alone the receipts were more than $1,000,000.

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

What is a sunbeam? I see the name standing out conspicuously on the patent plate of my little gas burner that I still light occasionally early of these fresh May mornings. If this heater does not belie the name a sunbeam is the combined heat and light of six Bunsen flames, of varying heights, one from a tiny almost invisible blue cone over the top of its tube, to a tall yellow hollow flame waving to every breeze that blows high up toward its metal roof against a black asbestos background. All of them whisk out like magic before the whisk of a broom or an apron. One tube doesn't seem to bother about emitting even an odor. One or two out of the half dozen are content to burn like a well behaved gas flame ought to. All of them disappear like magic before the whisk of a broom. Their average conduct, however, may harmonize well with their container whose metal walls are burned into a red rust that will hardly take a neat polishing any more. Perhaps the inventor got his patent on a small, inexpensive heater, with even-burning flames, that was a cheerful delight in a cozy room on a winter day. But it has seen service through many chilly seasons since then. Perhaps the original sunbeam cannot criticize much today as it makes a vain attempt to come through the hazy atmosphere and makes a very feeble effort to warm the chilly north wind. But I'd think the inventor would want to remove the name if he could see his product today with the folk trying to evade its smoke at the same time they are trying to absorb its heat. And I'd think the

Behind The Scenes in Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON, May 16 — If and when the administration's spending-lending program aimed at recovery gets going, it won't be handicapped by the old feud between WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins and PWA Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

These two New Dealers are buddies again, drawn together at a time when the prestige of the administration in which they have played such important roles has reached its lowest ebb.

Hopkins was in for a long siege at a Minnesota hospital at the time Ickes was out in front defending administration policies and tilting lances at Fascism, "ories" and monopoly last winter. But after the WPA administrator's recent return to Washington, the realization of a series of administration reverses, the seeming need for the small group of simon-pure-higher-up New Dealers to stand together while others deserted and the efforts of mutual friends soon brought the two men together in an alliance which seems likely to stick at least for duration of the depression.

Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri, during navy bill debate: "Does the senator understand that when American sailors and marines landed at Vera Cruz they were defending the United States?"

Senator Tom Connally of Texas: "No, I did not say anything about that."

Senator Clark: "Does the senator agree that—"

Senator Connally: "No, I do not agree. I do not know what it is, but I do not agree."

Rudolph Forster, White House executive clerk who was invited along by President Roosevelt on his deep sea fishing cruise, has been enjoying one of his few vacations in more than 40 years of service under eight presidents. "I know of no public servant of whom there is no universal admiration," Herbert Hoover once wrote. And Reed college at Portland, Ore., awarded Forster an honorary degree with the comment: "The value of a man's service to his country is not always measured by popular acclaim nor by repeated mention in the press."

A quiet, slender, bespectacled widower in his middle sixties, Forster has charge of the president's files, the room through which the chief executive's correspondence clears and the White House messenger service, disbursing department, telegraph and telephone systems. While the president is in his office on the executive wing, Forster never leaves his own adjoining office. He is there nearly all the time, usually, even when the president is out of town. All sorts of people consult him about an endless variety of problems related to White House procedure.

Each day Forster walks to his job from the Wardman Park hotel more than two miles away. His longest vacation was on the trip he took with Roosevelt to the Hawaiian islands in 1934. He entered White House service as a stenographer in 1897 after McKinley's election. Then the White House executive staff numbered a dozen persons, including messengers. Today it includes 107.

TRIAL FLIGHT

BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES
COPYRIGHT, 1938, BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JACKIE DUNN—heroine; she wanted to fly.
ROGER BRECKNER—hero; he wanted to test the stratosphere.
BERYL MELROSE—catchy widow; she wanted Roger.
EVELYN LA FARGE—Jackie's mother; she wanted a son-in-law.

Yesterday, The stratosphere flight begins and Jackie, waiting for reports, knows the hours are the longest, most difficult she has ever experienced. It is fortunate she thinks that.

CHAPTER XIII
Jackie endeavored to make time pass until Roger's silver ship could be contacted direct, at the radio tower. At the little Airport Inn, where she and Roger had met so many times, she ordered coffee and hot, buttered toast. She would manage somehow to force down a little breakfast. She bought a paper and tried to read for a time, but since there was no news regarding Roger's stratosphere flight she really did not know what she read. She watched passengers coming and going for a while, wondering if any of them were preoccupied with such a tremendous matter as filled her mind and senses. Then she felt she simply could not sit still any longer.

At the hangar she talked with some of the men who knew Roger. She told them what news she had received so far, tried to find out if anyone had heard anything more.

"Gosh!" Jerry, one of the mechanics, said solemnly. "If he's as far on his way as you say, Miss Dunn, he must be breaking all records."

"He hopes to do better than 400!" Jackie boasted with pride and confidence.

"Don't you worry," Jerry said, as she left, "Roger's just the guy to show the world a thing or two!"

picked up the microphone, that looked like any telephone into which one would ordinarily speak, repeated the radio tower's letters several times.

Then Roger's call letters came back and Roger's voice, distinct and clear, almost as though he himself had stepped suddenly into the little glass tower with them. "JBHLP calling DRK . . . Estimated position entering border line Pennsylvania. Same altitude, 35,000 feet. Everything okay."

Mac glanced around triumphantly at Jackie's eager, flushed face. "How's that?" he asked. "You got it all, didn't you?" "Perfect," Jackie said. She closed her hands together ecstatically. It was just as Roger had said it would be now. She felt as though she were up there with him in his silver ship. The rest of the world did not exist. She had forgotten that she was supposed to be so angry with Roger that she hated him. Anything like that, too insignificant. This moment was supreme, overshadowing the past, and even the future.

"He'll come in again pretty soon," Mac said. "Is there some message you'd like to have me slip in? May not be strictly within the rules," he flashed her a grin, "but under the circumstances I guess I could manage it."

"You mean you can say something to Roger for me?" Jackie gasped. Mac nodded. "Only a word or two, of course."

"Only a word or two—what could they be? Jackie's hand, instinctively, sought and covered the pin that Roger had placed over her heart. "Could you tell him I'm wearing his pin—for luck? Or if

Appointed Warden of Indiana Prison

Dowd

ALFRED DOWD, former assistant superintendent of the Indiana state reformatory at Pendleton, has been named warden of the Indiana state prison at Michigan City to succeed Louis E. Kunkel, who resigned following a series of prison breaks.

Mac stopped her, holding up his hand again. He swung round to dial once more, fingered it. "JBHLP calling DRK . . ." there it was again! Once more Roger gave his altitude and estimated position.

Mac replied, giving the answering signal and report; then—with a jerk of his head toward Jackie—he ended by tacking on quickly, before the call letters, "Jackie sends luck—and love . . . DRK . . ."

"Just luck did not seem enough," he said, turning to her, with his wide grin. "That ought to make any fellow break all records, coming from the girl who's engaged to him."

Jackie merely smiled in reply. She did not care if he had tacked on "with love." All she cared now was for Roger's flight to be a success. It might have been 10, 20 minutes—or a lifetime—before once again the eagerly-awaited call-letters came in.

"JBHLP . . . JBHLP calling DRK, calling DRK . . ." Time stood still, as Jackie leaned forward, her heart leaping up into her throat. "Oxygen giving out . . . leak in tube . . . oxygen giving out at 35,000 altitude . . ."

"Oh, Mac!" Jackie caught the operator's arm and clung to it. He shook his head, motioning for silence. Once more . . . "Oxygen giving out . . . Forced to nose down to heavier air, losing altitude fast . . ." Then Roger's voice was cut abruptly; there was nothing but a humming sound instead.

"We'll pick him up again in a second!" Mac said reassuringly. "As soon as he can take time out to send word . . . Hold everything, Jackie, Stand by."

There was nothing else to do. But Jackie felt as though all the blood were slowly draining from her body. Roger losing oxygen!

Roger forced to nose down! She knew, of course, that this might prove disastrous. If Roger did not get oxygen quickly he might lose consciousness. He would have to bring the ship down to eight or 10,000 feet . . .

"Listen!" Mac bent over the receiving set again. The silence was unbearable for that split second. Then—yes!—Roger's call letters, though rather faintly and indistinct . . . his voice, coming in stronger:

"Dropped to 8000 feet. Estimated position west leg of Bellefonte beam. Can you give ceiling? Motor logged . . ."

Motor logged! That meant Roger was back on the ground! Jackie groaned. She could not stand this any longer.

"Shhh!" Mac silenced her sharply. But though they both waited, silent, tense, there was nothing more. Not even Roger's call letters, signing off.

Farmers Turn from Cotton To Pine Trees

ATLANTA, May 16 (AP)—Planting the land of cotton are turning to the pine tree business to increase their incomes.

Frank Heyward of Georgia today private forestry in the state is experiencing a phenomenal growth.

And why not? he asked. "The men planter is learning he can't get pine trees, go off and forget for a few years, and then get naval stores or wood for these products like paper and rayon or for communication poles, which are in demand.

"Meanwhile, no watering, no fertilizing, no boll weevils to worry about and no plowing and very easy harvesting."

Heyward gave figures on a survey of 192 landowners representing 724,674 acres in 27 Georgia counties to emphasize his contention the private forest business is "booming." Of the total he said, 45 already were planters, 31 plan to plant trees next fall, and all expressed interest in some phase of forestry.

"The cellulose age is beginning," said Heyward. "Paper, container board, plastics, rayon and other forms of processed wood appear destined to afford even further outlets for forest products than now exist."

Girl Seekers Shift Search to Woods

BRADFORD, Pa., May 16 (AP)—Weary searchers, haggard from loss of sleep, Sunday shifted their week-long hunt for four-year-old Marjory West from the area where she disappeared to the woods surrounding what Mayor Hugh J. Ryan said appeared to be "a newly-dug grave."

"I can't say we expect to find anything," said Ryan, "but there is no question that it was a grave. This is the first tumble we have had."

He said the pit apparently had been opened about 24 hours before it was found. It was dug beside a fallen tree, approximately seven miles by highway from the place the girl disappeared.

Marjory, daughter of an oil field worker, has not been seen since she wandered away from a family picnic last Sunday.

Discover King Solomon's Port On Red Sea Coast

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 16 (AP)—King Solomon's seaport on a northern reach of the Red Sea, a flourishing city of trade and industry nearly 3,000 years ago, has been discovered and excavated by American archeologists.

Prof. Millar Burrows of Yale university, president of the American School of Oriental Research, announced today that an expedition sponsored by the American Philosophical Society and headed by Nelson Gleuck of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem, had excavated the port, the exact location of which was unknown until recently.

The site, Dr. Burrows said, is at the northern end of the Gulf of Aquabah, the eastern arm of the Red Sea.

"The Bible notes in connection with the splendor of Solomon's reign," the Yale professor said, "that with the help of Hiram, King of Tyre, he built a fleet of ships on the shore of the Red Sea in the Land of Edom."

One reason you hear CLEARLY...

Whether you're talking across the street to San Francisco, it doesn't "just happen" that you hear clearly and easily over the telephone. One reason you can do it: Western Electric telephones, precision manufactured for the entire Bell System, are the same all over the country. You might say they're "tuned" to each other, somewhat like radios to a broadcasting station.

If telephones and equipment weren't uniform, voices might not be clear. It would be vastly more difficult for us to give you the good service at low cost that you have come to expect.

his resignation last August as minister of agriculture.

A tense city and state waited anxiously to see whether Saturday's rumors that "Cedillas" were preparing an uprising would prove to be false, as they often have before.

There were many indications the federal government did not take the rumors lightly.

Detachments of soldiers were stationed inside banks and buildings. Streets were patrolled last night and houses of "Cedilla" leaders were being searched for arms. Soldiers peered from rooftops, seeking for fine guns.

Henry Picard LOOKS THE SITUATION OVER! "I've never favored one particular cigarette, Mr. Picard. I can see you do though. Do you find Camels different?"

Picard's game seems effortless. He's a long driver—in a tight spot, a heady strategist. "A cigarette, too, has to be sized up from a lot of angles," he says. FAMOUS GOLFERS—men who need iron nerves and steady hands for that winning stroke—and millions of other people under the strain of everyday life—all appreciate this fact: Camels suit your cigarette taste from every angle. Naturally, CAMELS SET YOU RIGHT!

TOBACCO PLANTERS SAY:

"We smoke Camels because we know tobacco"

At auctions, Marvin Hollowman, well-known planter, sees Camel buyers pay top prices for the finer grades of his crops. Mr. Hollowman says: "At auctions the Camel buyers pay more and take the real choice lots of tobacco. That's why we tobacco planters, who know tobacco quality inside and out, make Camel our cigarette. Then we're sure we're smoking finer, COSTLIER tobaccos, and they sure make a big difference!"

"I'm a tobacco planter," says Mr. T. Strickland, who sold his highest grade tobacco to Camels. "Last year those Camel buyers bought up the finest lots of my tobacco. And they sure bid up to get them. There's a big difference in those expensive Camel tobaccos—so I smoke Camels myself. And there's your reason why most planters I know smoke Camels."

John T. Bone, who cultivates some of North Carolina's choicest leaf tobacco, remarks on the sale of his last crop: "Yes sir! I saw my best lots go for Camel cigarettes, and you can bet those Camel buyers paid top prices for them. It's no wonder I smoke the cigarette made of finer, more expensive tobaccos—Camels! Most planters smoke Camels too, for smokers who grow tobacco know tobacco."
