By GEORGE

Tomorrow is the Fourth of July, the date upon which the people of the United States annually celebrate the signing of the declaration of independence and the effective determination of the 13 original colonies to form a new nation. The issues involved in that significant event have all too little relation to our celebration of it now, but it seems to me that the holiday in which we pause from the ordinary pursuits of life to do something out of the ordinary is a good time to think back to the formulation of the principles upon which the American government was founded and to evaluate in the light of the experiences of those first United States citizens the importance of the liberties which they fought for and secured.

We are often reminded through the press and from the platform that we should protect with every ounce of our national strength those various freedoms which were insured to the new nation in its organization—the freedom of speech, religious liberty and freedom of the press.

Of course these urgings are right and needful for these liberties lie at the very bottom of our system of government.

But there are two other fundamental things which I believe are stressed little enough. Two other important principles of action and attitude which impose themselves upon the individual if those general liberties are to be maintained.

One is the responsibility of the individual citizen to fill a practical and productive place in this workaday world for the fair government of which this nation was established.

The other is the responsibility of the individual citizen toward the observance of law in the spirit as well as in the letter. It is undoubtedly true that the great majority of us regard law observance in the objective rather than the subjective light. We think of it not as something related to the other fellow.

The most succinct and brilliant statement of true law intent that has ever uttered came from the lips of Jesus. The Jewish law decreed death for adultery. In order to entrap Jesus leaders of the Jewish state brought an adulterous woman and demanded whether or not she should be stoned in accordance with the law.

"Let him that is without sin among you," replied the Master, "cast the first stone."

The principle that is involved in that statement is simply that law does not exist for punishment of criminals but for the disciplining of society. If the individual is not amenable to discipline no punishment, no matter how straight, ETAOINNI ter how stringent, that law decrees can enforce that discipline. The masterful reply of Jesus to his enemies puts a finger on the very core of the problem. Law observance is not a question so much of doing as it is a question of loyalty in mind and feeling. It is not ritual. It is citizenship.

Under that true code very much of our self commendation over conformity to law would be deflated. The use statute to steal or gain advantage is just as criminal as to violate the statute to do so, since the real purpose of statute against stealing is to preserve the property rights of all individuals. Jar of Peaches—Gettysburg Relic

When the smoke of Gettysburg's famed Battle of Peach Orchard cleared away 75 years ago the fruit trees of the Rev. Joseph Sherry were among the casualties. But a few peaches were unharmed and those were canned by Mrs. Sherry. That jar of peaches, still sealed, is shown here in the hands of Mrs. Charles H. Pfeffer, granddaughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Sherry, who still lives near Gettysburg.

Cisco Pioneer Is Buried Here On Saturday

Robert Rutherford, about 75, was buried here Saturday afternoon following services held at the home at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Rutherford had lived in Cisco nearly all of his life.

He died Friday morning at 10:30 in Ranger following an illness of three months, it was said.

Immediate survivors include five sons—Lane of Rising Star, Arthur of Stamford, Carroll of Callahan, Herman of Cisco, and Ross of Eastland—and two daughters—Mrs. Roy Arnold of Parks camp and Mrs. Ada Reed of Oklahoma.

Chief Writes Letters To Careful Drivers

AUSTIN, July 2 (AP)—Chief R. D. Thorp of the Austin police department believes a good automobile driver should be commended for driving carefully if bad ones are to be arrested.

So he has asked traffic officers to report instances of careful driving in known dangerous spots. The chief writes the driver a personal letter—not a form one—telling him that his careful driving had been noted.

There Will Be No Paper Monday

Conforming to an annual custom the Cisco Daily Press will issue no paper on Monday, July 4. This is done in order to allow the entire staff to enjoy the holiday and to join with the rest of the community in the celebration of the anniversary of American independence. The next issue of the Cisco Daily Press will appear on Tuesday afternoon.

EXPECT OVER 200 BOYS FOR ANNUAL CAMP

3 Days of Recreation For Future Farmers Purpose of Session

After a lay-off of one year, the annual Future Farmers of America encampment will be resumed this year at Lake Cisco. T. G. Caudle, local vocational agriculture instructor and director of the Cisco FFA chapter, announced Saturday.

The encampment will be held three days, beginning August 4 and lasting through Saturday, August 6, Mr. Caudle said.

Between 200 and 250 boys are expected for the summer camp here, he said. Boys from all over this section of the state will be present.

The camp is held for the purpose of providing three days of fun, recreation, competition and fellowship for the Future Farmers. There will be little or no instruction. The time will be spent mainly in swimming, softball, horse shoe pitching, boxing, and other forms of boys sports.

The Lake Cisco encampment is one of the leading events of the year for boys of this area and they look forward eagerly to the meeting.

Announcements have already been sent to all the Future Farmer chapters of this part of the state, informing them of the encampment and listing the main events of the camp.

This year the mess hall of the Presbyterian encampment will be used instead of the dam, said Mr. Caudle. The hall will provide adequate eating quarters for all the boys.

Last of Mine Cave-in Victims Brought Out

BIRMINGHAM, July 2 (AP)—Rescuers today brought out J. D. Painter, the last of nine men entombed in a Praco Coal mine in rock fall. He died as he reached the surface. Five others died in the cave-in; three injured were in hospitals. Painter, pinned 18 hours by rock, begged rescuers to "blast me out."

Adult Classes Begin July 7th At East Ward

Cisco adult schools will begin at East Ward school July 7, it was announced Saturday, and an invitation to every east Cisco woman was extended.

Classes will meet each Thursday and Friday afternoon from 1 to 5 p. m. At each meeting there will be an old-fashioned singing lasting about 30 minutes. Also, there will be a magazine exchange providing the women with reading material to be taken into the homes.

Miss Gladys Tomlinson will have charge of the work. She is planning the work.

Meanwhile the classes at 200 Johnson street are meeting from 1 till 5 p. m. each Tuesday and Wednesday. English, food, and nutrition and plastic art are being taught there.

"This is a grand opportunity for the women to review things learned in the past, as well as to add some new ideas. The instruction is free and is aimed primarily to be one of service to housewives. We urge all to attend these classes and contribute some suggestion toward making these classes a success," Miss Tomlinson said.

Recalling July 4, '63 at Gettysburg

Seventy-Five Years Ago Blood Spilled on Pastures to Keep the North and South United

By NEA Service

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 1.—Seventy-five years ago this July 4 the Blue and the Gray had fought a battle in a pasture south of Gettysburg that decided the fate of a nation. As General Lee's forces dragged wearily along in defeat back toward Virginia, both the North and the South knew that the United States was to remain one great union.

The Union forces had barely managed to repulse the southerners, but the victory was theirs. The cost had been high. Blood stained the pasture. Thousands upon thousands of young men lay dead. But the Union was so live.

For three days they had been locked in battle. On July 1 Lee's army of 70,000 men had driven Gen. George Gordon Meade's 82,000 foot and horse southward out of Gettysburg and as far as Cemetery Ridge and Culp's hill. It was a major Confederate victory and the following day the southerners won more ground and consolidated their gains to set the stage for the final push that they hoped would win the war.

Then came the BIG BATTLE. The Confederates were in three corps. General Longstreet's force, farthest in advance on the west flank, had spent itself; so Lee ordered General Johnson on the east flank to open the attack.

Johnson led his men down the gorge of Rocky Creek and met heavy losses as Union batteries from above them poured down a relentless fire. He was beaten, forced to retire.

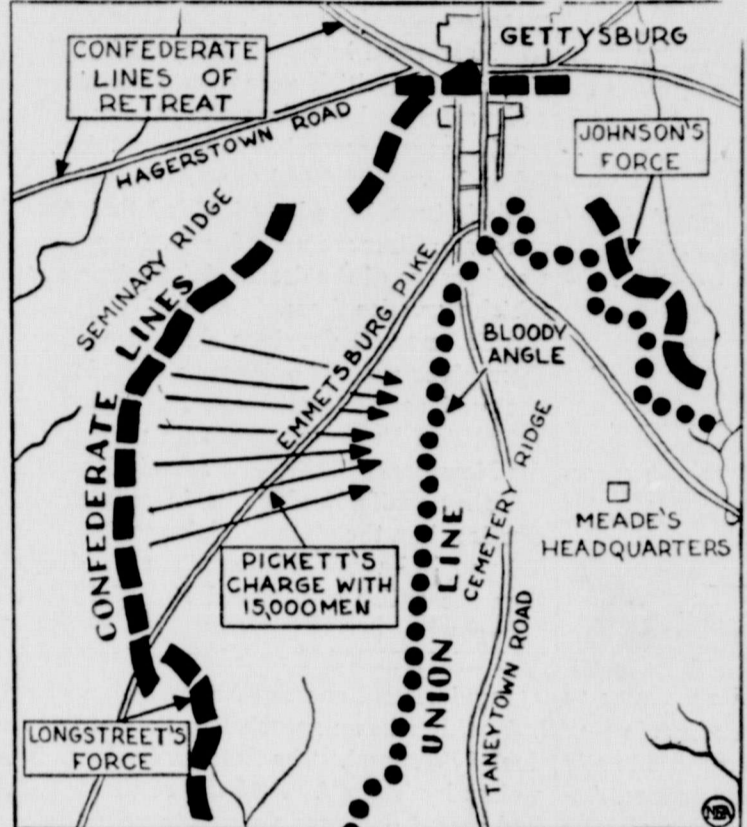

With Johnson defeated, Lee had only one chance. Pickett and his 15,000 veteran Virginians were in position on the west flank of the Union line and impatient for action. After a losing artillery duel Lee ordered Pickett to advance.

Almost a mile of open field lay ahead of the southerners before they could reach the Union lines. And when they came . . . most of the way . . . and not a single shot was fired.

MOWED DOWN IN WINDROWS. Then it happened—the Union guns, concentrated on the crest of Cemetery Hill, roared and roared again. Then came musket fire, and by the time Pickett's men reached the first line their fallen comrades virtually carpeted the field. The fighting southerners broke that first line and seemed about to win when the tide of battle turned and they were repulsed.

When the Confederate retreat was ended, 10,000 members of that crack force lay dead on Gettysburg battlefield. The spirit of the Confederates had been broken. And it was the beginning of the end for General Lee's valiant army.

And now, some 4000 Civil War veterans—both the Blue and the Gray—are holding a last reunion here at Gettysburg. They are remembering another Independence Day many years ago, when blood run in the pasture south of Gettysburg and a nation was born anew.

After General Longstreet and Johnson had been repulsed, General Lee ordered the famous Pickett's Charge, which resulted in one of the bloodiest engagements of the entire conflict.

Independence Day holds memories and a real meaning for those aging men.

Cisco Lions Club Will Sponsor Men's and Girls Soft Ball Tournaments Here During This Month

Leading Teams of This Section of State to Enter

The greatest attraction of the Cisco soft ball season will occur beginning July 11 when the first of two tournaments, sponsored by the Lions club, will be held here. Lions club soft ball officials have announced.

The first will be a men's tournament, composed of the leading teams of this section as a warm-up meet for the official district tournament to be held in Eastland. A $100 prize will be awarded the winner, it was reported.

The second will be girls tournament to be held the week following completion of the men's tournament. A large number of girls teams of this section are also due to participate.

In the men's division, at least 12 of the best teams in this section of the state are expected to participate. Leading the list is Coca Cola's great soft ball club of Abilene, rated as probably the best team in these parts. The West Texas Utilities company and Dr. Pepper clubs, two other leading clubs of that city, have also been asked to compete.

Abilene is not the only town to have outstanding teams. Hanlon Oilers, Breckenridge's snappy team, and the Texas Pipe Liners, another Breckenridge team which is no slouch, plan to enter. The latter team has been seen in action here twice this season.

Besides these, Ranger is expected to enter at least one team and Eastland two. Several other teams have been invited.

The men's tournament is expected to last about one week and if present plans materialize the girls meet will follow.

Mr. and Mrs. William Reagan plan to spend the Fourth with Mr. Reagan's brother, B. B. Reagan, of Brady.

HONGKONG, July 2 (AP)—United States Destroyer Edsall and Gunboat Tulsa were today rushing to Swatow to join the gunboat Asheville to protect American lives and property in the event Japanese continued their large-scale attacks. Chinese reported 400 civilians, including 200 school children were killed or wounded in yesterday's Japanese raid on Swatow.

American consular authorities here were awaiting confirmation of Chinese reports that six American-owned silk factories were damaged in yesterday's raids.

NEW YORK, July 2 (AP)—Buyers today bid up many stocks from $1.00 to around $4.00 to the highest prices of the midyear bull market. Transactions totaled nearly one and a half million shares, the largest for a two-hour Saturday market since last October 23.

Recognition that they have attained the highest rank in scouting will be given two Cisco boy scouts Friday night when Jack Lauderdale and J. C. Paschall, both of Troop 101, will receive their Eagle badges at a court of honor to be held at the First Methodist church beginning at 8 o'clock, Ernest Lennon, secretary of the court of honor, announced today.

Judge Eugene Lankford, chairman of the court, will preside. This will be the last meeting of the court before Camp Billy Gibbons which opens on July 12. A large number of Cisco scouts are expected to attend the annual summer camp held at Richland Springs.

Scranton Loses Close Game to Jaycees Friday

The Jaycees managed to stay in the win column Friday night when they met Scranton and W. Bailey, their fast-ball pitcher, and beat them, but not until after they scored two runs in the last inning to win 7 to 6.

Scranton, seeking their third straight win, played hard, got to Starling who started for the Jaycees, and then gave Carter, who was weary from pitching so much lately, much trouble. Scranton out-hit the winners 11 to 8 and led the entire game until the last of the ninth.

MUST PAY TAXES DALLAS, July 2 (AP)—Internal revenue collector W. A. Thomas ruled today that all Texas political candidates must pay social security taxes for campaign workers.

The annual July Fourth celebration got under way Saturday night with a bathing revue, sponsored by the Cisco junior chamber of commerce. Winners of the contest had not been selected at press time Saturday night.

Meanwhile Saturday came the announcement by Manager P. G. Berry that a boat equipped with a high speed motor would be in operation during Sunday and Monday to take visitors riding. Regular motorboat riding and row-boating are also in line for boating entertainment.

The candidate speaking is scheduled to begin about 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, it was announced. A large number of leading candidates are due to speak.

"Miss West Texas" will be selected at the annual Oil Belt revue Monday night. Cisco will be represented by the winner at last night's revue. The Cisco high school band was to have played at the contest last night and is also scheduled to play for the Oil Belt contest.

The fireworks display Monday night will probably draw more crowds than any single attraction of the Fourth celebration. The largest display ever set off is promised for the spectators and this will bring to a close the festivity.

The carnival has added two more attractions. It has been running for the past few days and will be here through the Fourth or Fifth.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee.—Isa. xxvi. 3.

I will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty.—2 Cor. vi. 18.

Maker and High Priest, I ask Thee not my joys to multiply Only to make me worthier of the least. —E. B. BROWNING.

Why should we burden ourselves with superfluous cares, and fatigue and worry ourselves in the multiplicity of our ways? Let us rest in Him. God invites us to cast our anxieties on Him.—Madame Guion.

Is Hollywood on the Wrong Track?

WHEN all other tricks fail, a sure way to puff up lagging interest in a movie star through the pages of the newspaper is to stir up rumors of a marital rift or a romance. Astute movie colony publicity agents always have plenty of this currency of gossip on tap to be used in purloining columns from the newspapers and the magazines and intrigue the public into flurries of interest in the individuals it is their business to promote. Every motion picture star of consequence has a publicity agent whose business it is to keep the star's box office appeal at par or better. Box office appeal is about the only stock in trade that many of these actors and actresses have, for surprisingly few, even of the headliners, have any real dramatic ability of their own, depending upon the genius of the director and the multifarious tricks of the camera to endow them with success in their roles. Hence they must impress the director and the producer with a show of public demand for their appearance on the flickering sheet.

SOME of the most astute directors, however, do not succumb to this fallacy which underlies much of the reason for the criticisms that have lately been directed against the quality of the motion picture entertainment now being produced. Instead of putting faith in the name of the star who plays the lead, these directors have the commonsense idea that the story and its dramatic presentation is the real basis of success in motion picture entertainment. Individual popularity in the theater is a transient thing. Stars may come and go. But the appeal of a good story well presented never dies, and those of the Hollywood industry who realize this and plant the technic of their productions upon it are those who in the long run produce the best pictures and achieve the most success. If the silver screen industry would get further away from the idea of selling star dust and devote itself to the production of pictures that appeal from sheer entertainment quality, the public would be relieved of a lot of this disgusting press agent pap and the popularity of the theater as a place of relief from the grind and care of everyday life would be greatly increased.

Six of Wan an' Arf a Dozen of t'Other

AS a relief from the weighty news of the day you might give a moment or two of thought to the matter of the famous — and puzzling — British accent.

Hollywood has been doing its best to instill a true British accent into the vocabularies of its stars; so have the radio people; and the result, in most cases, has been something fearful and wonderful to hear. And the British, in their turn, have long insisted that American-made films are unfit for empire consumption because of the dreadful American accent which pervades them.

But now it develops that the British themselves are not quite sure what is and is not good, sound English speech.

Milton Bronner, European manager for the Newspaper Enterprise association points out that while England is in area slightly smaller than the state of Alabama, its 40,000,000 people have more accents and dialects than the entire continental United States.

WORKSHIREMAN and Lancashireman can understand one another, with an effort; but neither has a speech like that of the native of Somerset. The London Cockney is in a class by himself. And the celebrated Oxford accent deserves a separate volume.

The upper class in London calls a bath a bawth and grass, grahss; but the upper class in Liverpool or Edinburgh will pronounce those words precisely as Americans do.

AN observant London clergyman recently remarked that the upper class West End of London is really just as bad as the lower class East End. He cited, as an example, the line frequently sung in church: "Praise Him for His grace and favor."

In the Cockney East End, he said, this line becomes:

"Prize Him for His grice and fiver." And in the cultured West End the line sounds like this:

"Preeze Him for His grease and fever."

All of which, doubtless, adds up to nothing at all. But a harassed American who has to listen to imitation British accents every time he goes to a movie or turns on the radio may properly draw a modicum of comfort from it. He can go on comfortably saying "Noo Yorkk" instead of "Nyew Yorkk," secure in the knowledge that at least half of England itself would probably agree with him.

Under the Courthouse Roof

THE EIGHTY-EIGHTH DISTRICT COURT

(Judge Patterson, Presiding) Only one new case was filed in the district clerk's office for litigation in both courts the past week. Esther May Land is seeking annulment of the marriage ties from her husband, B. B. Land.

Judgments and Orders

Milburn McCarty vs. I. Wolf et al, plea of privilege in an action for debt by defendant, and converting affidavits by plaintiff filed. The final hearing of the case was continued until the next term of the court by reason of these motions, as it was the opinion of the court that there was insufficient time of the present term to give the motions proper consideration and for the transaction of other litigation pending.

R. T. Nealey vs. Georgia Lee Nealey, divorce. Judgment for plaintiff.

A jury commission was named by Judge Patterson, consisting of W. J. Herringer, of Eastland; C. E. May, of Ranger, and W. E. Trimble, of Carbon, who were duly empaneled Thursday and instructed to draw two juries of 40 names each for the second and third weeks of the July term beginning Monday, July 11, and Monday, July 18. The commission immediately began its labor and returned the required names to the office of the district clerk to be released when required.

Criminal matters. The following criminal order was issued in the 88th court:

THE NINETY-FIRST DISTRICT COURT

(Judge Davenport, Presiding) No new causes of action filed during the past week.

Judgments and Orders

Judge Davenport handed down the following orders in the 91st court the past week: Wilma Naoma Boney vs. Manuel C. Boney, divorce, custody and maintenance of minor child. Judgment for plaintiff annulling marital relations, custody of minor and alimony to support said minor. It was the order of the court that defendant pay to the plaintiff $7.50 per month for two years, and $10 per month thereafter until said minor becomes 16 years of age for his support and maintenance. It was the further order of the court that the community property of plaintiff and defendant be partitioned according to the terms of the court order.

Connie Bryant vs. Arthur Bryant, divorce. Judgment for plaintiff for divorce and custody of the three minor children of the parties.

Robert Harrison vs. Cecelia

Harrison, divorce. Judgment for plaintiff for divorce and partition of community property.

Cecil T. Williams vs. Safety Casualty Co., compensation. Judgment for plaintiff for $500 and cost of litigation.

Mandates Filed

Two mandates were filed by the criminal appeals court last week reversing verdicts of the 91st court. The case of the State of Texas vs. E. C. Randolph, convicted of car theft. From this verdict Appellant Randolph appealed to the criminal appeals court. On account of the appellant's failure to state the nature of the crime for which he was convicted in his appeal bond, the high court reinstated the case and reversed and remanded the cause of action to the 91st court for retrial.

Transferred to Brownsville

Curtis Montgomery, husband of the former Miss Winifred Pentacost, the efficient deputy district clerk of District Clerk Crossley, notified Mrs. Montgomery Friday of his recent transfer from Big Spring to Brownsville. He is with the federal re-employment service. For the present Mrs. Montgomery stated she would remain in her present capacity, but anticipated other transfers of her husband might necessitate her eventual resignation.

"Yessir. That's How I Got My Start"

Criminal Matters

The following criminal matters were pending and disposed of in the 91st court:

State of Texas vs. Lloyd Woods, drunk driving, forgery and robbery with firearms, (three cases.) Abel Cavages, burglary. Ward Armstrong, felony theft. W. A. Dolberry, drunk driving, pending.

State of Texas vs. Francis Smith, plea of guilty, and sentenced for two years in the penitentiary, suspended.

State vs. Greer Hurst, sentence of two years, suspended.

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

If ever Americans, to some extent the world, were called upon to make choices it is now. And yet when did men ever act so much in droves? They catch the prevailing mood or mania or notion and all run together after it. But when a man does stop and think before he speaks or acts he must almost necessarily pause a while before he can make his decision. Trends are uncertain; issues are puzzling; ideas are in the making. One hardly knows what is best. And yet that is the very thing, perhaps, that is wanting, the choice of the best. We are looking for the most convenient, the most profitable, or the easiest, and leaving the best out of consideration. If men turned in earnest to choosing the best we would be part way out of our ruddle.

We need the decisive voice of a Joshua to bring us to our senses: "Choose you this day whom you will serve." Choose this day how you will vote; whether the tickets your fathers voted before the Civil war, or with the party of the section in which you happen to dwell; but as for me I will vote right. Choose this day how you will behave; whether according to the standards of your grandfathers before the days of the automobile and the radio, or according to the ways of the crowd among whom you are living; but as for me and

About Our Friends

By STEP A. LONG

Looks like every woman in town was shopping for groceries Saturday... Mrs. J. W. Mancill buying groceries... Mrs. A. D. Anderson and son, Dick, also looking for good things to eat... Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Witten logging some big bundles... Mrs. Fred Grist and daughters looking for something to wear... H. C. Henderson getting the mail... George Boyd looking cool and comfortable

Jack Anderson says he can appreciate the feelings of a man who has been egged... as he and Mrs. Anderson were driving home from Eastland Friday night they were met by parties in a car who threw an egg at them... It hit the windshield and completely covered it bringing absolute darkness... If he had met a car he would not have seen it... That must have been what they call, "Pure Cussedness" on the part of the perpetrators

C. G. Whitaker buying a supply of shirts... Mr. and Mrs. Herman Reimer visiting Mr. Reimer's father who is reported quite ill at his home in Burnett county... Mrs. W. W. Eddleman and Mrs. Lloyd LaRoque doing some shopping... C. E. McClelland says he doesn't have anything to do but just work... runs two farms and helps the neighbors with their work... Well, that's fine... a lot of folks have to do so much loafing that it sometimes gets them mixed up and they don't enjoy their work

Skipper Thomas wants to know where Pittard is... says Pitt hasn't been on the street in two or three days... either sick or in jail... said he was going to inquire of Gus about the latter idea... Pete Nance down town... There goes Streater with another bag of money... wonder where he gets all that dough?

Dr. F. E. Clark dashing off somewhere... And Dr. Ball at the barber shop... and there is Dr. Seale... and Dr. W. P. Lee bowing so politely to us... Wonder what we have done... and yes, sure as you live, Dr. E. L. Grantham telling a funny story to a group... What is the meaning of all this? Physicians as thick as blackbirds at thrashing time

And Dr. Charles Hale at Moore Drug and Dr. Charles Hale getting ready to replace some teeth, and we believe the dentists are out in mass... Dr. Wood walking by with a friend and Dr. Oldham at Garner's... Have we omitted any one? There is Dr. Stevenson going in at Red Front and we remember Dr. McKinzie fanning out at bat Friday night and Dr. Rives is just opening the door at the Laguna hotel, and if we have not overlooked any of those who are supposed to administer to the afflictions of people we finish up by mentioning Dr. Griffin and his little black case walking by our office door and Dr. N. A. Brown driving toward the lake in a car full of distinguished-looking gentlemen

Now with all that publicity we should get free medical treatment and teeth and body attention for several years to come... We regret that Dr. Waddell is absent on a vacation trip so that we can't take notice of her

We are not going to start on any other mention of professions for we just noticed Forest Wright playing with a little child; R. E. Grantham going to his office and Judge Burnett walking along with Skipper Thomas, and Judge Lankford walking out of the bank building

Complimenting Miss Helen Hunterman who this morning was to become the bride of W. C. Hodges of Wink, Miss Zona Miller entertained with a lovely miscellaneous shower in her home Friday evening.

Miss Hunterman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hunterman of Cisco. Mr. Hodges, now employed by the Humble company in Wink, is a former Ciscoan, having taught and coached in the high school here.

The house was beautifully decorated with vases of cut flowers, phlox, snapdragons and daisies, and silver candles in silver candelabra added further to the decorative note. A pink, silver and white theme predominated throughout the decorations.

The table was laid with lace, with a clever centerpiece made up of a miniature bridal party, reflected on a mirror. This was flanked on either side by silver holders. Favors were tiny bride's slippers filled with rice.

The honoree was presented with a lovely array of attractive and useful gifts, arranged in a basket, covered with pink crepe paper and tied with a large white bow.

Mrs. Raby Miller greeted the guests at the door. Misses Marie and Kate Hunterman, sisters of the honoree, assisted in the dining room and Mrs. Pete Clement presided at the bride's book.

The house party included Mrs. W. F. Hunterman, Mrs. Clement, Mrs. John Holland, of Albany, aunt of the honoree, Miss Beth Dodson of Albany, Misses Hunterman and Miller. About 25 guests called.

The Quint's Own Mother Goose
Old Woman of Leeds

There was an old woman of Leeds, who spent all her time in good deeds; She worked for the poor till her fingers were sore, This pious old woman of Leeds!

"Ho-hem!" says Cecile, the Dionne Quintuplet who does the solo act for this latest Mother Goose thriller. And no wonder! Here she is, just turned four, and what do they do to her! Dress her up in long full skirts and get her to acting the roles of old ladies of 80. But it's all for the benefit of charity, so that makes a difference. And if everyone would just remember Cecile and this limerick, and follow the example, think how much better the world would be.

ETIQUETTE
When Divorce Occurs, Ladies' Names Pile Up

By JOAN DURHAM (AP Feature Service Writer)
What name should a divorced woman use?

That depends on whether or not there are children.

If there are, most women will retain their ex-husband's last name. If not, most states have laws permitting them to resume their maiden names.

Usually the divorced woman uses hers and her husband's last name. If, for example, Martha Social marries Charles Firsthusband and then divorces him she becomes Mrs. Social Firsthusband. Note that the names are not hyphenated. She signs legal papers "Martha Social Firsthusband."

The Sound of Names
Occasionally names sound odd when placed next to each other. In such cases, the order may be reversed. For example "Worthy White marries Donald Katt. Mrs. Katt White would sound better than Mrs. White Katt. The divorced wife should not use her husband's full name after the divorce. He may remarry and situations might arise which would prove embarrassing. Nor should the first wife call herself Mrs. Martha Firsthusband, for example, since never—except on legal documents—should a woman's Christian name be prefixed by "Mrs."

If You Need Help:
After the divorce, embarrassing things are almost bound to happen. All of them cannot be foreseen, but these pointers may help those whose friends are divorced: Don't bring up the subject of the divorced husband or wife in the other's presence. If the ex-wife or ex-husband is to be mentioned let the former wife or husband do it. It is, of course, in extremely bad taste for either member of a divorced couple to make derogatory comments about the other.

If possible, avoid bringing divorced people together. When you entertain—if both of them are your close friends—do not invite both in the same group.

Never refer to the stepparents of a child as "mother" or "father" without knowing that is the way both the parents and the child have agreed to refer to the relationship.

Charles Daggett and Marcus Carter of Fort Worth made a business trip to Cisco Saturday.

Delpha Mae Blair
Becomes Bride of
Fort Worth Man

(From Wichita Falls Post)
Against a background of lovely pink gladioli and bluebells enhanced by greenery, the impressive wedding ceremony uniting Miss Delpha Mae Blair, 1203 Polk, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. H. D. Blair of Cisco, and Howard S. Lard, 1206 Burnett, son of Edward Lard of Fort Worth, was solemnized Thursday morning.

The vows were read by the bride's father at the home of Mrs. H. L. Simonson, 1203 Polk, at 10 a. m. Pre-nuptial music was a piano solo, "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," by Norris Bingham of Devo, Okla. The bridal party entered to the strains of the traditional Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. During the ceremony, the pianist played Liszt's "Liebestraum" softly.

The bride and groom stood before an improvised altar. Pink gladioli and bluebells were arranged profusely about the mantel which was banked with fern and flanked with palms and white candelabra. Large baskets stood on either side of the fireplace and were linked together with satin ribbons.

The bride was charming in a redingote of blue lace over blue taffeta, with a picture hat of matching materials. She wore a lovely strand of pearls and carried a bouquet of carnations and feverfew.

Miss Marcia Mobley of Cisco was the maid of honor and the only attendant. She wore pink lace over pink taffeta and a matching picture hat. Her corsage was of carnations and feverfew.

Ralph D. Eyer was best man to the groom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Simonson home. The dining table was lovely with a tiered cake and many flowers. Serving in the dining room were Mrs. Ralph Eyer and Miss Mildred Blair, sister of the bride.

Immediately after the reception the couple left for a wedding trip to Houston and Galveston. For travel Mrs. Lard wore a navy blue triple sheer with white accessories. The couple will be at home at 1661 McGregor after the trip.

Mrs. Lard is a prominent young business woman of this city. She is a graduate of Cisco high school and of Draughon's Business college of this city. She has made her home in Wichita Falls the past few years. Mr. Lard is a graduate of Paschal high school in Fort Worth. He is a member of the Alpha Omega fraternity.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding included the Rev. and Mrs. H. D. Blair of Cisco; Miss Marcell Mobley of Cisco; Miss Mildred Blair of San Angelo; Norris Bingham of Devo, Okla.; Edward Lard of Fort Worth; Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Bingham of Devo, Okla.; Mr. W. H. LaRoque, J. Richardson, Fred Grist, Lee Elkins, T. M. Lisencee, and the hostess, Mrs. Burnett.

HOLDUP HONEYMOON

BY EDWIN RUTT Copyright 1938, NEA Service Inc.

EAST OF CHARACTERS
JOSEPH S. ANDERSON here, he thought he was on top of the world until he was snatched into KERRY ARCHER—heroine, she thought she was headed for the altar until she was snatched into ED, the WEASEL—gangster, he thought he was headed somewhere, too, but affairs somehow got mixed up.

Yesterday, Joe convinced Ed that he is kidnaping Kelly and then under cover of darkness he begins to do things in the Ford.

CHAPTER IX

Yes, under cover of darkness, Mr. Sandham moved into action. First his left hand surreptitiously into his inside coat pocket while his right continued to guide the car. From the pocket he drew a small oblong object which he placed in his lap. Then the hand went back into the pocket and came out with a smaller thinner object. After that, for the space of five minutes, both hands rested innocuously on the wheel.

In the back of the car the head of Ed the Weasel nodded slightly. He was by no means asleep. But the steady purr of the motor had lulled his sensibilities. Joe half-turned in his seat and stole a look at him out of the corner of his eye.

"Getting sleepy?" he asked.

"Naw," said the Weasel, blinking through the darkness.

Joe drove for another mile in orthodox fashion. Then, very carefully, his right hand slipped from the wheel, groped in his lap for the slender thing which he had taken from his pocket, found it. The oblong object lay flat on his knee. And for a short time the thumb and first finger of his right hand were tortuously busy, while with his left hand he controlled the destinies of the Ford.

Finally he ceased his labors. "Want some candy?" he said, suddenly to Ed the Weasel. "This car's lousy with it."

"Don't care if I do," said the Weasel, yawning. "I ain't at much today."

Joe reached down to a cardboard packing-case under the seat and fumbled it. He extracted a small flat box.

"Try these," he said, passing it back to the Weasel. "Chocolate covered peppermints."

The weasel took the box and looked at the cellophane wrapper with his fingernail. It came off and presently he was rustling the wax-paper inside, fighting his way toward the peppermints. For a second the noise of paper rattling filled the back of the car. Under cover of it came a thinner rending sound from the front seat, a sound that was barely audible. Then Joe slipped the oblong object back in his pocket.

"Dese is okay," said the Weasel, with his mouth full of peppermints.

"Take all you want," Joe invited.

"I got enough," said the Weasel. "I don't go fer sweets much."

"Gad, I'll have one myself," said Joe.

The Weasel handed him back the box. His fingers dove into it. After that, he replaced the lid and left the box on the seat beside him.

Kelly Archer awoke with the first gray streaks of dawn. She stretched luxuriously, with her eyes closed. Then she opened them, perceived that Joe still held the wheel and screwed her head around to take in the rugged outlines of Ed the Weasel still infesting the car's interior.

"Well, well," she said. "So the happy little family is still together. Where are we, anyhow?"

"Moose Jaw or Medicine Hat?"

"We're still in the land of the free," Joe told her. "Somewhere in Western New York State."

"How ducky," said Kelly.

The Weasel spoke.

"Sleep at da foist refreshment stand dat comes along," he directed Joe. "We gotta have some kaffe an' hot cakes."

"Take your belt in a notch," said Joe. "And keep your chin up. We'll get 'em."

They did, a mile further on. Joe pulled up before a likely-looking refreshment stand whose environs were devoid of other vehicles. A black-haired girl was polishing the counter inside. At Joe's signal she issued forth.

"Kawfee," said the Weasel hoarsely, from the depths of the Ford. "An' hot cakes. Fer free. We'll have 'em out here in da car."

In a short time the black-haired girl returned, bearing sustenance. The hot cakes were huge, brown and indigestible. Kelly and Joe ate of them but sparingly. Ed the Weasel, however, was no weak sister. He cut his allotment into great segments, drowned them in syrup and masticated with audible satisfaction.

"Dat hits da spot," he stated, between bites.

"Do enjoy yourself," said Kelly. Presently the girl returned with coffee in thick China mugs. When they had finished drinking Joe handed her a bill.

"Keep the change," he said grandly.

She flashed him a smile.

"Thanks."

"And just as a token of our esteem," said Joe, evidently made mellow by the coffee, "accept these chocolate peppermints. Delicious, fine-flavored, a boon to the digestion. Here you are. On the house." He picked up the box of chocolate peppermints and thrust them at her.

The girl hesitated. Joe's eyes held hers.

"Come on," he said. "Take 'em. Plenty more where they came from."

She reached for the box then. Joe slid in the clutch. He winked flagrantly at the girl of the refreshment stand. The Ford roared away.

Mid-afternoon found them nearing Niagara Falls and the Canadian border. In a deserted stretch of road a few miles from the town, Joe stopped the car suddenly.

"You and I," he said to the Weasel, "have got to have a conference."

The Weasel exhibited impatience at the unexpected delay. He was anxious to get across the border. He growled: "Wot we gotta talk about? 'Ting is to git into Canada."

"Sure," said Joe. "But we'll never do it with all this junk in the car." His hand swept over the merchandise which loomed around the Weasel. "The customs officials will want to know why we're going to Canada with enough candy to make a herd of elephants sick. There'll be questions and delay."

"Gee, dat's right," said the Weasel thoughtfully.

Kelly looked at Joe in exasperation.

"You would bring that up," she said. "You certainly do all you can to smooth the way for our amiable jailer here, don't you?"

"I figure it a romantic touch," Joe told her, "for you and me to be married in a foreign land."

"If a pretty girl can snort, Kelly snorted. "Married? You know darn well whom I'm going to marry. And he doesn't look anything like you."

"I'll bet I'm handsomer," said Joe. He turned to the Weasel. "We've got to throw the cargo overboard, that's all."

"Toin off some place, den," said the Weasel. "An' we'll throw it."

A side road offered a convenient spot. At the point of the Weasel's gun, Kelly and Joe evacuated the car. The Weasel took up a position favored by overseers.

"Okay," he said to Joe. "Chuck da stuff out."

Joe opened the back doors of the car and started in. Confections of all descriptions were dragged out and dumped carelessly at the roadside. And as he worked Mr. Sanham sang, raucously. He broke off suddenly and addressed the Weasel. "Give me a hand with this, will you? It's heavy as lead."

Obligingly the Weasel shuffled over, placed a hairy paw on a huge box and jerked. Joe jerked in unison. The recalcitrant box of chocolate dipped nougats began to vacate the Ford.

Then, all at once, the Weasel dropped it as if it had been a puff adder.

"Hey," he roared. "Come back here, you!" At the same instant his gun hand whipped up.

Joe raised his head. Miss Archer had converted the direction of the Weasel's attention was fleeing down the road to the main highway like a speed-red-headed deer.

How Theater of Sino-Jap War Looks on Map

The vast scope of the Japanese plan to dominate eastern Asia is shown by the above map. Note that even the tremendous gulch bitten off from northern and eastern China thus far is overshadowed by the great field in which responsible Japanese officials have indicated their armies may operate in the near future. It would include the entire coastal plain and all the essential harbors on the Pacific. Note how Japanese drives on Hankow and Stan are aimed at cutting off foreign sources of munitions and supplies, main entrance routes of which are indicated by arrows. The fate of Asia and to some extent that of the whole world is bound up in the success or failure of the Japanese plan, the status of which after a year of bloody warfare is graphically shown above.

Year of Conflict Builds "Incident" Into War

By WILLIS THORNTON

NIAA service staff correspondent. A full year of bloody fighting across the best farm lands and through the mightiest cities of China has produced results whose long-time meaning no man can read. But there are other results, since the "border incident" of last July 7, which can be read all too clearly. Here are some of them:

At least 200,000 men lie dead. The ashes of 75,000 Japanese have been shipped home in neat little urns. More than 125,000 Chinese have rotted where they fell. Far more than a half million on both sides have suffered wounds.

Unnumbered thousands of men, women, and children are dead or maimed bombed in their homes and streets.

The proudest cities of China—Peiping, Tientsin, Shanghai, and Nanking—have fallen before the invader. Nanking, in addition to the expected horrors of war, suffered the unbridled bestialities of a soldiery whose discipline completely broke down.

Of China's million and a half square miles, about 300,000 are under Nipponese bayonets, with Japanese diplomats desperately trying to establish puppet governments there.

Sixteen million people have fled from their homes in the Shanghai-Nanking area to congregate in the interior, menaced by hunger and disease. In addition to the destruction directly caused by the fighting, at least a half billion dollars' worth of damage has been done by the retreating Chinese in their effort to make all land captured by the Japanese a worthless rubble of ruins and smoldering ashes. Deliberate floods released by the Chinese to check the invaders have wrought further ruin. A terrifying proportion of the best farm land and the most productive factories and mills in China lie in ruins.

Yet not a single large Chinese army has been captured or put out of action, and responsible Japanese officials have called on their people to prepare for a 10-year war.

Japanese Treasury Strained. In Japan, the military has gained complete control of the government, and, sobered by the realization that it has floundered into a major war, has clamped down on the people a rigid wartime discipline and industrial and military mobilization.

An overseas war costing the Japanese $5,000,000 a day is sapping the resources of the island empire, while the tremendous strain of supplying an expeditionary force of at least a million men so taxes Japanese industry that some of its hard-won foreign trade is slipping away.

China, on the other hand, seems united as never before. Cannon fodder available for her armies is limited only by the facilities to train and arm men. Hitherto bitter political enemies have been united in resistance; the political future of China has been changed no matter how the war comes out.

Year's Trail of Death and Ruin. All this is not yet officially a war. The "border incident" on the night of July 7 near the Marco Polo

CHINESE WAR AT A GLANCE

July 7, 1937—"Border incident" near Peiping starts war in north.

Aug. 13, 1937—Shanghai attack opens southern phase of war.

Aug. 28, 1937—Nankow Pass taken; Japanese begin to overrun northern provinces.

Oct. 26, 1937—Tazang stormed; Chinese retreat from Shanghai begins.

Nov. 9, 1937—Fall of Taiyuan.

Dec. 12, 1937—U. S. gunboat Panay bombed and sunk. Nanking taken by Japanese.

March 10, 1938—Northern army reaches Yellow river.

April 6, 1938—Chinese victory at Taierchwang.

May 20, 1938—Suchow taken.

June 1, 1938—Canton bombed.

June 6, 1938—Kaifeng taken.

June 29, 1938—Japanese begin blasting their way through fort defenses below Hankow.

bridge at Peiping might have been no more than that.

A few Japanese troops at maneuvers were fired upon. The shooting spread. And within a month Japan controlled the entire Peiping-Tientsin area. It appears that Japan might have been satisfied with this, but by that time so many Chinese troops were moving in from all parts of China that the only way for Japan to keep what she had was to take more. Gradually the war became general.

Westward and southward pressed the eager Japanese troops. On Aug. 28 the Nankow Pass was forced, gateway to the west. Southward toward Taiyuan rolled the invaders.

But in the meantime it became clear that to hold the north, aid from the south would have to be cut off. Opportunity soon came. A Japanese adherent was killed at the Hungjao airport at Shanghai, creating another "incident." On Aug. 11 a waiting naval force was landed at Shanghai.

Within two days a desperate battle developed with Chinese troops rushed in to repel the invaders. Air bombing killed thousands of civilians, endangered or destroyed foreign property. It took two months to drive the Chinese troops out of Shanghai and into a westward retreat.

On Dec. 13 Nanking also was taken, and the conquering troops ran riot in a frenzy of looting and terrorism. By this time the northern provinces had been conquered, and the Japanese vanguard was approaching the Yellow river on its way southward. Through the bitter winter weather the armies remained locked in continual conflict. On Dec. 21 the U. S. gunboat Panay was bombed and sunk in the Yangtze by Japanese planes.

Future of World May Be At Stake. The Japanese spring campaign was aimed at uniting the northern and southern armies, and from Tsingtao Japanese troops gradually absorbed the line of the Lung-hat railroad, principal Chinese east-west artery. Resistance was bitter, and in April China scored its most notable military success by routing and almost wiping out a Japanese force at Taierchwang.

Japan poured in strong reinforcements to storm Suchow and Chengchow, closing the gap between the Japanese armies.

Present Japanese operations are along the Yangtze river aimed at Hankow, provisional capital of the Chiang Kai-shek regime.

Japan probably has 750,000 soldiers in China proper, and must keep around 250,000 in Manchukuo and the northern provinces to fight off guerrillas, maintain order, and be ready for a possible attack from Russia.

The "border incident" which Japan evidently expected could be quickly concluded by swift strokes of a small force has been expanded into a major war with the future of China, Japan all of Asia, and perhaps of the entire world, at stake.

Brazil exceeds the size of continental U. S. excluding Alaska, by 250,000 square miles.

Urge You to Cast Your Vote for a Man Who
WILL MAKE TEXAS a Real Leader

He is Trained!
He is Talented!
He is Tested!

A Sound Record of Public Service

WHAT HE HAS DONE!
As Mayor of Amarillo, he saved citizens nearly a million dollars a year by cutting every utility rate in the city and lowering the tax levy.
As Texas Railroad Commissioner, he assisted the farmer through lower freight rates and the livestock industry with emergency drought rates; brought many millions of dollars to the school fund by sensible supervision of the Texas oil industry; helped lower the gas rates in scores of Texas towns.
As a man, whose boyhood was spent at hard work, he has achieved a brilliant record of private and public service, fought for his country with high honors during the World War, is chairman of the Oil States Compact Commission, has earned the respect and admiration of straight-thinking people all over the nation.

WHAT HE WILL DO!
Tackle the farm problem with both fists and help the farmer and rancher work out a solution that will take the penalty off owning or working a farm or ranch—his belief being that the farmer is entitled to a fair profit, the same as any other man.
Urge the legislature to change the old age assistance law so that no needy old person will be denied a pension merely because a son or daughter happens to have a job.
Actively encourage industrial expansion to relieve unemployment; wage war on governmental waste and fight new taxes; and advocate state control and regulation of all utilities.

Parking Tag Joke Works Two Ways

BUTTE, Mont., July 2 (AP)—As a joke, Butte policemen tagged the car of their chief, William Breen, with a ticket when they found it double-parked.

Chief Breen paid the customary $1 fine and then handed Officer Ed Mollan 250 tickets and told him to "go to work."

Before the day was over several other policemen who were careless about the traffic laws found themselves with yellow slips and an ultimatum from Chief Breen that there would be no "fixing."
