CZECHS ACCEDE TO ALL POLISH DEMANDS

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

Sitting on the player's bench of the Cisco Lobos and watching the first Cisco Lobo team that he had seen in action in 12 years was one of the grid guests of Cisco remembered for his marvelous punting, his smashing defensive play, and the bone crushing power which he unleashed when he was called back from tackle position to carry the ball. He is "Honk" Irwin who went on from Cisco to Davis and Elkins where he played four years. During his college career his punting and placekicking is credited with having defeated the strong U. S. Navy team 3 to 0 one year. Irwin later played professional football. He is now at DeLeon, his old home.

Boyce House, newspaperman, formerly of Eastland county, and author of several articles appearing in the Saturday Evening Post and other nationally circulated magazines, was in the Daily Press office Saturday morning. Boyce probably knows more anecdotes about Eastland county football players than any person alive. When I told him that Honk was here Friday, Boyce recalled an incident in which Honk figured just prior to the celebrated Cisco-Cleburne bi-district game of 1925.

Honk, Boyce said, was employed at a service station near the D avenue crossing of the Texas and Pacific railroad. One morning, about a week before the game with Cleburne, a runaway team raced down D avenue toward the crossing, dragging a wagon with a woman and a girl to what appeared certain destruction under the wheels of a locomotive that was swiftly approaching. Honk, said Boyce, rushed out, seized the harness of one of the horses and by main strength slowed the team down until he was able to turn and stop it.

The Cleburne team had as its mainstay a speedster named Draper who had gained national recognition as a track star and whose speed was one of the chief worries of the Cisco coaches as they prepared for the contest. Boyce with a bright idea of tuning up the rivalry between the two teams, sent the story of the runaway horses to his state paper and intimated that Irwin's ability to outrun runaway horses would stand him in good stead in the football game.

The next day Cleburne replied, "Draper doesn't wear a bridle," retorted an article from there.

However, with Honk one of the stars of the game, the Lobos smothered the Cleburne lads 30 to 0.

Another familiar face at Friday's contest was "Prof" Collum, former Lobo band director and now director of the Stephenville band. Collum was with the Cisco band for a number of years and during that period the Cisco players were tops in west Texas, capturing the all-around championships three times in succession and once going to the national contest at Oklahoma City or Tulsa where the band placed seventh in the nation.

The Stephenville band is a snappy outfit although its uniforms do not compare with those of the Lobo organization, featuring gold trimmings on solid blue.

Cisco folks were glad to welcome "Prof" and to hear his fine band.

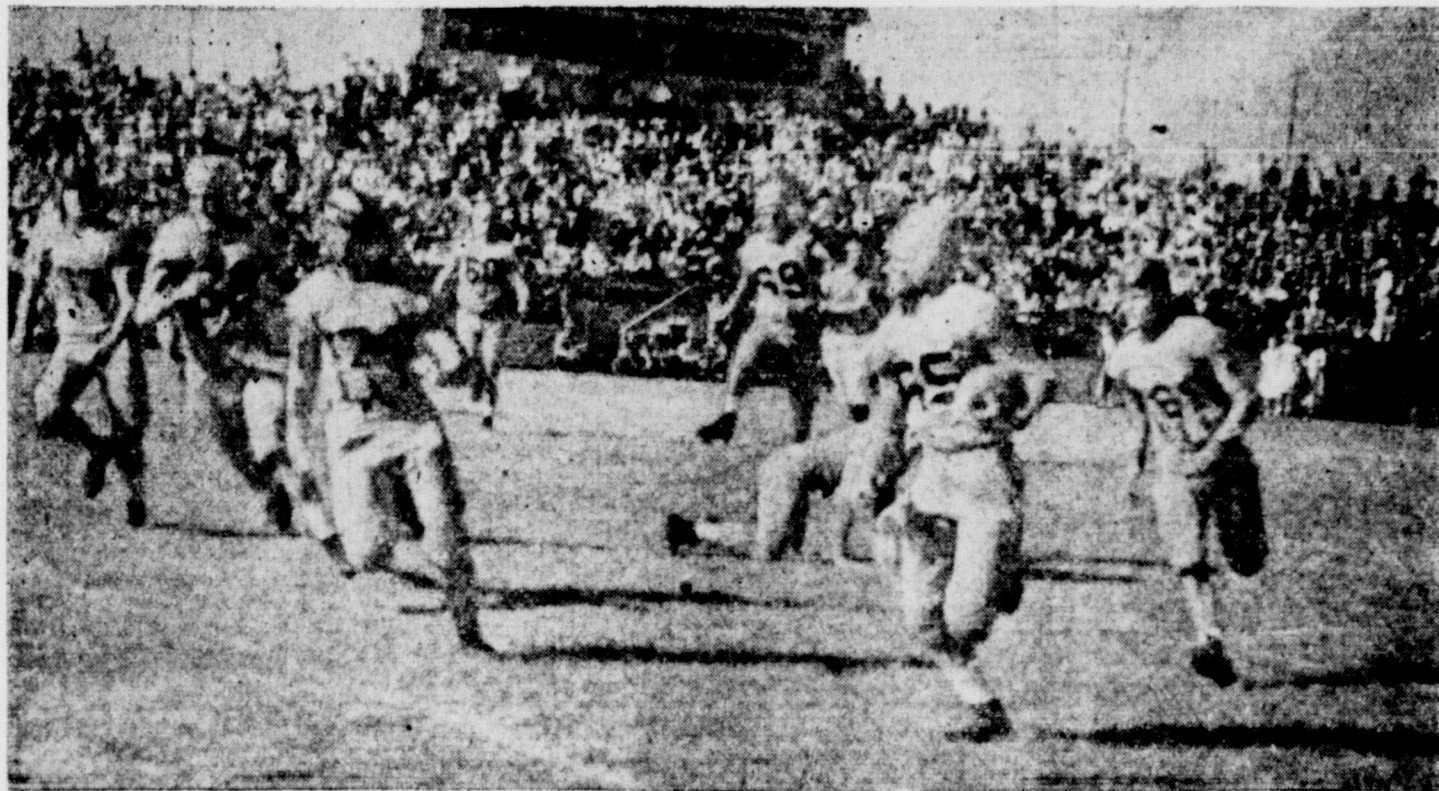

It is not orthodox journalism, perhaps, to run a sports picture on the first page, but we are doing that today regardless of whatever diadem may exist. The picture is intended as a tribute to Coy Warren, Cisco's fine quarter-

Cisco Quarter Leads Way to First Touchdown

Coy Warren, Cisco quarter, is shown here in a broken field as he carried the ball 23 yards to the five-yard line in the first quarter of Friday's Cisco and Stephenville game. Reames picked up four yards and Warren carried the ball over for the first touchdown of the game a few moments later. Other Lobos in the game are Parks Bailey (No. 62), tackle; Marcell Harrison (No. 66), end; and Robert Cone (No. 69), guard.

British Navy Head Quits in Distrust

LONDON, Oct. 1 (AP)—Alfred Duff Cooper, head of Britain's navy, resigned today in "distrust" of Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy. Cooper quit the government because, as he wrote, "I profoundly distrust the foreign policy the present government is pursuing and seems likely to continue to pursue." Sources close to the government said there were no indications other resignations would follow.

Post office receipts for the quarter ending September 30 were somewhat below those for the corresponding period of last year. Postmaster L. H. McCrea said Saturday. Similarly those for September, 1938, were below those for September a year ago.

$1.75 of Tax Is Set Aside for Bond Servicing

The city commission Friday night in a called session took definite action on its economy program by voting a general 20 per cent cut in the pay of all city officials and employees from the mayor down.

The action was taken after several days of conferring and discussion and after all employees of the city had been informed at a meeting just prior to the commission's session that such a step would be the only alternative to discharging a number of employees. The reduction, accepted by the employees, brings the municipal expense to the figure of $60,000 a year decided upon by the commission as a counter-proposition to the demand of bondholder representatives that expenses be cut to $50,000.

Railway Labor Lawyer Sees Wage Cut Conspiracy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1 (AP)—Tom Davis, labor lawyer, disclosed today that the attempt to cut railway employee wages 15 per cent was "part and parcel of a nationwide conspiracy to cut wages of every worker in the land to delay and prevent recovery and discredit the administration."

Davis, attorney for the brotherhood of railway trainmen, made the statement at the second day's hearing of President Roosevelt's strike board, adding the view that banker control was the cause of the railroad problem when carriers are trying to solve with wage cuts.

TERRITORIES TO BE CEDED AS DEMANDED

German Troops Occupy Sudeten Areas in Peaceful Conquest

WARSAW, Oct. 1 (AP)—Czechoslovakia accepted Poland's territorial demands in full today, thereby averting threatened invasion. Under the terms the part of the city of Teschen on the Czechoslovak side of the border will be transferred to Poland before 7 a. m. central standard time, Sunday. Within 10 days Czechoslovakia will transfer to Poland the remainder of the Teschen district and the entire district of Freistadt.

Matters of other territories and plebiscites will be settled in direct negotiations between Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovakia also agrees to release immediately all persons of Polish nationality from the Czech army and to free all Poles imprisoned for political reasons.

Greeted With Elation A government communique announcing the settlement stated that "the Polish government meets with great joy the news of the conclusion of a painful quarrel between the two nations and a settlement corresponding to the peaceful intentions of Poland."

Czechoslovakia, after asking and receiving a one-hour extension of the time limit set by Poland, sent her acceptance to Warsaw's "final" note.

Poles expressed particular satisfaction because, they said, Poland not only had gained her demands but had done so without the aid of an international conference. Previously they had stressed that Poland was acting independently of the Munich conference, which agreed on the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia at Germany's behest.

The official government organ, Gazeta Polska, made public three points that it said determined Poland's action in forwarding the categorical demand to Prague:

1. "Poland can not tolerate any longer the shedding of Polish blood in the area."
2. "Poland does not recognize the separation of Europe into countries of second and third classes, and especially will never permit Poland to be treated as a second class country."
3. "Since Poland was not invited to the Munich conference (at which French, Italian and British statesmen agreed to accede to Adolf Hitler's demands that four districts of Czechoslovakia's Sudeten German territory be granted Germany), Poland can not be bound by decisions of that conference."

Reconnoitering units had preceded the main body of the occupation forces across the border during the early morning.

The force, estimated at about 30,000 men, was commanded by Col. Gen. Ritter von Leeb.

It planned to occupy about one-quarter of the first zone of the ceded territory Saturday, going as far as the Warmer and Moldau rivers.

As the German troops advanced they were separated from Czechoslovak forces by a neutral zone 3,000 meters (3,270 yards) wide running roughly parallel to the new frontier.

Military law Saturday ruled the first Czechoslovak zone occupied by the German army.

Foreigners not attached to head quarters or not accompanied by officers were subject to immediate arrest.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Peace be to the brethren, and love with faith from God the Father.—Eph. vi. 22

Be the day long or short the end is peace To those who in the love of God increase.

The colored sunsets and the starry heavens, the beautiful mountains and the shining sea, the fragrant woods and the painted flowers, they are not half so beautiful as a soul that is serving Jesus out of love, in the wear and tear of common unpoetic life.

How little of that road, my soul, How little hast thou gone! —FABER.

Acts of Provocation Followed the Armistice

WHEN you have said all that there is to say about Herr Hitler's appeals to violence and his acts of provocation, one fact remains, and there is no dodging it: the victor nations in the World War have certainly been asking for something like this.

If one thing is completely obvious in this tragic European situation, it is that the Czech crisis and all that goes with it were created, down to the last detail, by what the allies did after the armistice of 1918.

Armistice Day found Germany utterly beaten. The world's most feared army had been roundly whipped, the militaristic gang which had led Germany into the war was disgraced and in flight, the German people had acquired a deep and sincere desire for peace.

On that foundation there could have been built a lasting peace; all that was needed was a little justice, a little reason, an evident desire to do the right thing.

BUT what happened?

Impossible peace terms were imposed. The Germans were compelled to remember the treaty with burning resentment; and all of their efforts to negotiate better terms were scornfully rebuffed. When the fantastic reparations scheme broke down, a French army marched into the Ruhr; when economic pressure forced Germany to seek a customs union with Austria, the French sternly barred the way. Nor did the allies honor their own pledge to disarm.

Year after year, the victors did everything conceivable to prove that Germany could not improve her lot by peaceful negotiation—and let it be remembered that the republican government of Germany did honestly try to live in peace and friendship with its neighbors.

One can understand all of this only by assuming that the victors were not satisfied with military victory; they aimed to keep Germany permanently weak. And since Germany is one of the most virile and industrious nations on earth, such an effort was foredoomed to failure.

In any case, the allies created Hitler. They provided the atmosphere of desperation in which his frantic appeals to his people would be listened to; they made it clear that only through force could Germany hope to get relief. They set the stage for him, down to the last prop.

And then, having done all this, they retreated again and again before his threats—adding the last bit of proof to his argument that by acting tough Germany could get what she could not get by being conciliatory.

Today the allies face a dire problem in middle Europe—and all one can say is that they have been asking for it ever since 1918.

To the end of time, this ought to be an object lesson in how not to behave after a victory.

Some news that a motorcycle show in London will have exhibits of walking equipment. We're still of the opinion that legs are here to stay.

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

I would hardly call a system of thought a religion that did not include some idea of a higher power than man. Are there as many different gods then as there are separate religions? Is this an admission that there are other gods? In Isaiah 45:22 He says, "I am God, and there is none else." The New Testament expresses the fact of monotheism or one God. The prohibition of having other Gods before Him includes the prohibition of idolatry. And we know that an idol is only a material object of worship, or perhaps often a representation of some people's idea of a god. Therefore the second and third commandments are not expressions of Jehovah's fear of rivals in the universe. Rather they are expressions of His concern about twisted ideas in the minds of men that lead to twisted lives. Whole tribes of people have been vitiated in life by vicious notions about a god. So even the punishment attached to these commandments does not threaten other rival gods, but the men who have the false ideas. Perhaps every god of every tribe is a caricature of the true God, who is not far from one of us, as Paul said to the Athenian philosophers, if haply we may feel after Him. The jealousy of Jehovah and the severe remedy for idolatry prescribed in Exodus 20 are ingredients of a heroic treatment that would save the race from so malignant a malady as false worship. The most degrading sex excesses, the prostitution of virgins, the cruel practice of burning children grew out of some of these false religions. The disease certainly needed a remedy that would eradicate to the disease.

If Peace Talks Failed Germans Were Poised

With Fast Traveling Armoured Cars

While Hitler, Mussolini, Chamberlain and Daladier talked of war or peace at Munich, Germany's military machine was ready for threatened invasion of Czechoslovakia that would almost certainly have thrown Europe into another great war. Highly important in the German war scheme are the armoured cars, "land dreadnaughts," pictured above.

With All-Important Infantrymen

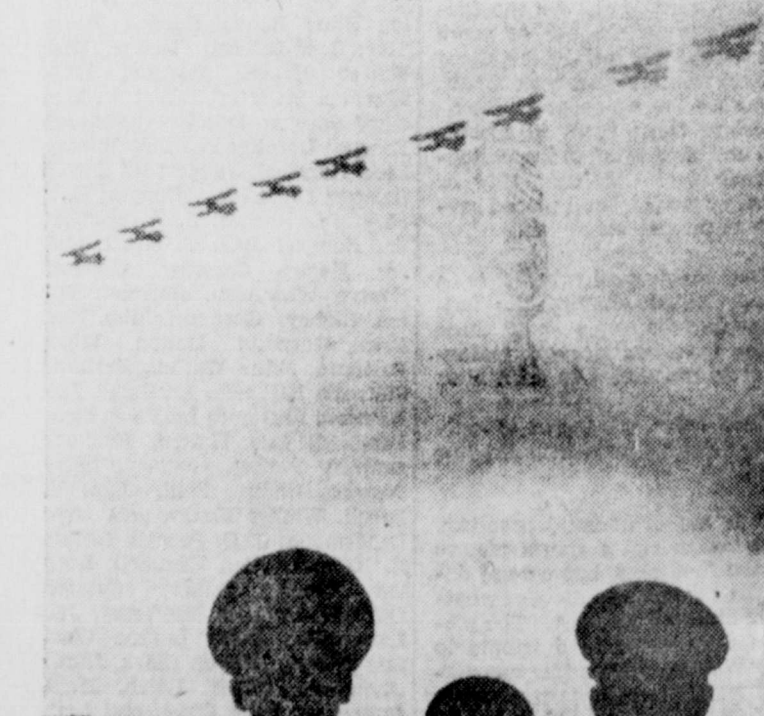

Wars are won with infantry, say military men. And Germany's infantrymen are famous warriors. Here they move toward the trouble area.

With Machine Guns

With Death Dealing War Planes

The machine gun again will play its deadly role if war should come. This German-manned gun is as murderous as it appears.

Most feared of all are the air raiders. Germany's one chance for victory seemed to lie in attacks from the sky by death dealers such as those pictured above. Only by laying waste great cities, say military experts, could Hitler bring surrender of France and Great Britain.

Loboes Batter Stephenville In Conference Opener

OPEN BATTLE FOR DISTRICT CHAMPIONSHIP

Display Versatile Attack to Keep Record Perfect

Firing the opening shot in their campaign for championship of the eastern part of the oil belt district, the Cisco Loboes Friday served notice that they will be top contenders by defeating the Stephenville Yellowjackets at Chesley Field 37-6.

Cisco displayed a well-rounded attack, mixing speedy end runs and powerful off-tackle drives with long passes to completely befuddle their lighter opponents. Both the Cisco line and backfield displayed machine-like blocness, although the old tendency to let down after several fine plays was still evident. The quality of the Loboes' play was much improved over last week; however, the team still has numerous rough spots to be ironed out and is far off top-notch form. Most improvement was shown in pass defense with the hard-charging tactics of the Lobo line playing a leading role in breaking up the Stephenville aerial game.

Cisco took the wraps off his passing game for the first time Friday—and it seems the Loboes will yet come up with the strong overhead attack promised earlier in the season, the passing was good and when receivers become more proficient there is likelihood of its becoming a lethal scoring weapon.

Blocking Good

Blocking in the Lobo backfield was excellent with Co-Captain Bill Latch bowling over would-be tacklers right and left, and Ramon Reames also chipping in with more of the same. Co-Captain Coy Warren's ball-carrying was very fine, with Odell Harrison helping out in that department.

The standard of Lobo line-play was also good—Marcel Harrison, Bailey, Cone, Pollard, Stewart, Doham and Preston generally doing much as they pleased with the lighter Yellowjacket forward wall. King, substitute tackle, Doggett, sub end, and Skiles, second-string center also turned in fine performances.

Welch, who scored the visitors' tally and Whitacre, Yellowjacket quarterback and passer, were the sparkplugs of the opposition.

Highlights of Game

Opening the game Cisco kicked-off to Stephenville who in return punted to Reames, Lobo safety. Shortly following a drive of the Loboes which was stopped on the Yellowjacket 27 by a fumble, a pass to Odell Harrison from Warren netted 28 yards to the Stephenville 30. Warren then skirted left end to the five, Reames went to the one, and Warren plunged over from there for a touchdown. Odell Harrison's placement was good and the score stood 7-0 in

First Touchdown in Lobo-Jacket Game Friday

Warren, Cisco quarter, carried the ball over the goal for the first touchdown in Friday's Cisco Stephenville conference game in this play. Most of the Cisco quarter is hidden by Odell Harrison, blocker, but the ball can be plainly seen. Other Loboes in the picture are Robert Cone, (No. 69); Reames, (No. 64); and Latch, at right background.

Warren going over from the six. Odell Harrison's attempted placement was wide and the score stood Cisco 25, Stephenville 6. Shortly following this the quarter ended with the count unchanged.

Opening the final frame the first string was again inserted into the game after having been removed shortly before the end of the third quarter.

60-Yard Run

On the first play after Cisco recovered a fumble on their own 40 Odell Harrison raced 60 yards to a touchdown on an off-tackle drive, aided by some resounding blocks. Odell's attempted placement was again blocked and the count stood 31-6 in favor of Cisco.

Final counter of the game came on a slashing, deceptive punt return by Warren from his own 45 yard line for 55 yards and a touchdown. Reames' attempted placement was low making the score 37-6 in favor of the Loboes. Shortly afterward the game ended with the Loboes in possession of the ball and the final count unchanged.

Receiving Cisco's kick opening the third quarter Stephenville executed a deceptive lateral pass play that carried 40 yards from the Yellowjacket 20 to the Lobo 40 where he was run out of bounds by the last Cisco defender. After failing to gain on three downs the Yellowjackets attempted to punt on fourth but the Lobo line swarmed in and smothered him long before he had a chance to get off his kick. Shortly afterward a Lobo pass was intercepted and taking the ball on his own 45 Welch of Stephenville broke over his own left tackle and raced 55 yards for a touchdown, giving a fancy exhibition of elusive ball-carrying. The kick failed and the score stood Cisco 19, Stephenville 6. Taking the kick-off following the touchdown the Loboes promptly matched to another with Reames, Warren, and Odell Harrison carrying.

Contempt Charged in Third Jury Disagreement

Alleging that an official of the defendant company was seen taking an automobile ride with a member of the jury prior to disposition of the case, attorneys for B. H. Boggs Friday filed motion in 88th district court at Eastland asking that Tom Warden, of the Lobe Star Gas company and Dick Harbin, a member of the jury in the third trial of the case of B. H. Boggs vs. Lone Star Gas company, be cited for contempt of court.

The case was dismissed on third trial last week when the jury failed to agree. It is a suit for damages growing out of an injury to Billy Houston Boggs, son of B. H. Boggs, when a dynamite cap exploded on an oil and gas lease near Cisco.

The motion alleges that Warden contacted Harbin on the discharge of the jury on the afternoon of September 22 and before the case was given to the jury, and took him for an automobile ride. It prays that the court order the two before it for interrogation as to the conference they had on the automobile ride, if any. It sets forth that the jury in the cause failed to agree and that Harbin was one of two jurors who desired to return a verdict for the defendant company.

The motion also points out that on Friday, prior to the time the verdict was returned, attorneys for the plaintiff made the alleged circumstances known to the court and stated that a motion of the nature would be filed in the event

Harbin was one of those to hold out for a verdict for the defendant. The motion was signed by Attorneys D. K. Scott and F. D. Wright.

HIT-RUN LOVE

BY MARGUERITE GAHAGAN

CHAPTER XV

A suppressed air of excitement hung over the traffic court. Groups of people clustered together eying the judge's closed door from which somehow a hint of unexpected developments had crept forth.

Inside Pat still sat on the big leather sofa near the window. Someone had thrown a wrap over her shoulders which sagged with a weariness not all physical. The gentle spring breeze blew against her damp forehead, bringing her back from the gray, misty world of near-forgetfulness into which she had slipped.

She wondered dully what they were doing. It might be that she was seeing this room for the last time today. Perhaps she would be fired. It wasn't all impossible, she thought, recalling again the blank astonishment on the faces of Tom and Church when she had stammeringly explained the bombshell of her knowledge.

If she had only herself to consider, but there was the family, the shame of telling them, the plans the boys had of working during the summer on jobs Larry had promised her mother's sorrow when neighbors would mention the affair and look questioningly as they offered sympathy. For of course everyone would know. She was prepared for that.

And Tom — she gave a little moan, drawing the wrap closer around her shoulders when a shiver passed over her despite the warm air pouring into the room from the sunny out-of-doors. She hadn't even been able to look at him. She was afraid to, anyway, she admitted. What was there he could think, but that she had been such a coward, a traitor to have waited all these hours while he stubbornly fought for a conviction which she could so easily have made possible.

A twinge of sympathy for Larry went through her heart. Larry, too, was sitting down. He was over across the room with big Officer Burke standing beside him, and he was watching the attorneys and detectives.

Desk Sergeant Timothy O'Shea came in the room bringing her a fresh glass of water. "Sure now don't be lookin' as though you'd lost yer last friend," he whispered. "It's a brave girl we are, for the lad was your sweetheart, wasn't he?"

were't interested in society, or important people. You used to try and make me think you would be satisfied with a little apartment, and parties with your 'old gang.' You used to be amused when I'd even talk about the Hill crowd, or Dottie Barnes, or getting acquainted with big shots. I saw how things were snapping up, though, when Sweeney came over here to court. You knew he was going to run for prosecutor; you saw a chance to get in with someone who rates in this town. You thought that by pulling this today you'd get yourself a nice berth. Well, go ahead. I'm through—

Larry's eyes swung over to Pat. His face was white, the muscles in his jaw tense, the pupils in his blue eyes drawn to pin-points. He stared at her frightened face.

"She can't tell anything that will hurt me," he insisted bitterly. "That remains to be seen," Tom said quietly. "She told your attorney and me enough to make Church ask for a review in which to get this mess straightened out. It's obvious that Miss McGraw wouldn't have gone this far if she didn't consider her evidence pretty important. I don't believe you understand what putting her own stand is going to do to you," he added significantly.

Church nodded. "You're in a spot, Kent. I don't think you told me as much as you should have. It's best to be frank with your own attorney. Now you've placed me in an embarrassing position."

"That's how it is," Tom continued. "The sensible thing to do is stop bluffing. You aren't the first defendant we've had in here who thought he could bluff his way free. If you're at all smart you'll change your plea."

Larry looked at Pat. "Well, you've every reason to be satisfied," he said. "I might have known though. And to remember how you used to pretend you

You used to be amused when I'd even talk about the Hill crowd, or Dottie Barnes, or getting acquainted with big shots. I saw how things were snapping up, though, when Sweeney came over here to court. You knew he was going to run for prosecutor; you saw a chance to get in with someone who rates in this town. You thought that by pulling this today you'd get yourself a nice berth. Well, go ahead. I'm through—

After that Larry seemed to collapse. "Well, what should I do?" she heard him say.

Alone in the privacy of her room she aimlessly fingered the papers on the desk, stared at the notes on her pad, tried to get her thoughts in order.

They would finish up. Larry would pay his price to society. Life would go on, but it would be empty, shorn of the glamor and romance that it had once worn. She touched the fading pennies that Tom had given her and that she had so carefully tended.

The petals fell, covering the desk with their color.

The door opened and she looked up. It was Tom. She turned her head, afraid for him to see her face. The silence was too long.

"The—the flowers are gone, too," she said tonelessly. They were words, spoken simply to fill the silence.

"There'll be others," he said. "And they'll be as sweet. Flowers fade, but there are some things in life that don't. Love doesn't fade; not real love, Pat. Not the kind I feel for you."

"How can you now, Tom? After I was so blind and weak."

"It wasn't blind or weak to do what you did. Don't think I'm not aware of what it took to make you call Kent's bluff. It was easy to tell what you know, particularly when it involved the man you cared for. But you had the strength of your convictions."

"The things Larry said weren't true, Tom. I mean about telling simply to further my own ambitions."

"I know, darling. You gave him his chance. He just didn't know how to play your honest game. Maybe this will set him straight for the rest of his life. I'll do what I can to get him off easy. If he makes restitution to the family, well—I think perhaps a light sentence and probation will be punishment enough. You see he's already lost you."

"He couldn't see things the way we do," she said.

"We do see life the same way, don't we?" Tom said gently. "That's why I need you. All our problems won't be solved so easily, but if we're together—"

The pressure of his hands on hers was strong and kind. The days ahead no longer seemed empty and meaningless. Even the petals on the old oak desk caught the sunlight from the window and recaptured the beauty of spring in their faded glory.

THE BANK'S JUDGMENT MUST BE CORRECT MORE THAN NINE TIMES OUT OF TEN

(A thought advanced by our valued friend and customer, Mr. Waiter J. Leach.)

When this bank makes a loan, approximately ten per cent of the amount of the loan is from the bank's capital account and ninety per cent from the funds of our depositors.

If the loan proves bad — a mistake in the bank's judgment — the loss is paid one hundred per cent out of the bank's ten per cent interest in the loan. The ninety per cent investment our depositors had in the transaction is in no way impaired.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation guarantees our depositors individual funds up to $5,000.00 each, but in no way has the bank a guarantee on losses incurred by bad loans.

Our first duty and obligation is to always protect the interests of our depositors. Their confidence in the safety of their funds entrusted to us and their belief in our sound banking principles, are paramount with us. Therefore you can readily see why a bank has to be careful in making loans.
