Democracy Cannot Fight With Fascist Weapons

AMERICANS have spent the last fortnight wondering how, where, and when the democratic ideal is going to make an effective defense against fascism.

With all its imperfections, the democratic way seems to us to promise a future in which somehow mankind will be able to develop its limitless potentialities, while fascism seems to offer precisely the reverse. And it was this conviction, even more than the widespread feeling of sympathy for Czechoslovakia, which made so many Americans heartsick over the things that had been happening overseas.

But the defense of democracy is a good deal like charity: that is, it begins at home.

And what happened the other night in Hudson county, New Jersey, is a fine illustration of the fact.

IN Hudson county the German-American Volksbund decided to hold a rally. It was to be addressed by Fritz Kuhn, the "fuhrer" of this home-grown nazi outfit. But when the meeting started a mob descended on the scene, threw stones and vegetables, broke a number of heads, and caused a speedy and disorderly adjournment.

Now nobody is going to grieve very much over any misfortune which befalls Herr Kuhn and the Volksbund. The trouble is that this misfortune didn't befall them; it befall American democracy.

Socialist Norman Thomas has as little love for fascism as any man in America; but Mr. Thomas remarked that this mobbing of the Volksbund "is doing more to promote fascism in America than Fritz Kuhn ever can do." And all of us who are eager to preserve our democracy must realize that Mr. Thomas was dead right.

When you try to defeat nazi brutality by applying brutality of your own, you are simply playing the other fellow's game. You are meeting him on his own ground, and by doing so you are confessing that in your heart you don't really believe in your own vaunted principles.

THE essence of this fascist-Nazi theory is the proposition that brute force may be used to shut off unwelcome ideas; and the essence of democracy is that any man may voice any idea that seems good to him, without hindrance, because the good sense of the people will in the long run be protection against disaster. When we wade into a nazi meeting and stone its speakers, we are simply going whole-hog for the fundamental nazi idea.

There are a great many things we can do to save democracy, but there is one thing we can't do. We can't fight for it. Democracy is the first casualty in any fight, be it a great war or a street corner war. And if the defenders of democracy abandon the principle that their ideal may be preserved without the resort to fists, clubs, and guns, they lose the battle before they begin.

What Lovely Weather We're Having!

About Our Friends

By STEP A. LONG

A rousing big pep rally last night put fans and football players in proper form for the Lobo victory today. . . . Before you read this you will probably know more about it than this column can tell you. . . . Everywhere up the street this morning, one hears questions as to how one thinks the game will come out. . . . This shows the interest being manifested in this struggle with Brownwood Lions. . . . A loss for us would be a stunning blow, but we might survive. . . . but it would take a few days to adjust ourselves to such a catastrophe. . . .

One must send in their card before they can have an audience with A. V. Clark now, it is said. . . . It seems he won second prize at a district contest held at Abilene recently on efficiency. . . . Now if that means everything that goes to make a first class station in every respect. . . . service, cleanliness, and everything one thinks of to make a station the very best, then we enter a protest right now. . . . Everyone who has patronized Texaco stations or watched the Clarks do things, knows that Cisco should have had first place. . . .

We have traveled in thirty-two states and two foreign countries and we have not seen that station in the Texaco organization that surpassed A. V. and Blair. . . . We regret that we can't tell you full particulars about this event but Will Reagan sends you to Clark for particulars and Clark is too modest to talk much about it. . . . But anyway it is an honor for Clark. . . . though not the first one, his station having won the Honor Plaque for his district many times. . . . At any rate it should have been first prize. . . .

Speaking of service stations reminds us that Ed Huestis who has recently taken over farming on a big scale, has lost several cows from disease. . . . Of course one knows what will follow. . . . Some of us poor but honest chaps are going to have to make up the loss. . . . Probably insist on us paying our old bills in full. . . . or something. . . . At any rate, Ed, get a doctor, take them to the hospital or something. . . . We fear we can't stand too much added expense. . . . But Ed is getting ready for a big grain crop so perhaps we'll get it back there. . . .

Now when you get to talking about service station operators, you think about others in the same business. . . . and of course this reminds us that we have not given you a report on Roy Huffmyer lately. . . . You remember he cut his hand badly and paid the physician to say that dish water would be especially bad for the wound for more than 103 hours and set a new unofficial endurance record for light airplanes. . . . They passed their twenty-fourth hour in the air at 7 o'clock. The two refueled at midnight over Vandalia, Ohio. . . .

And again we think of others in this line. . . . Notice Mrs. J. B. Pratt rides to town with J. B. and then walks back home. . . . Wants to keep her in training so when she needs anything from town she

FSA Can Prevent Many Unnecessary Foreclosures

Possibly 100 unnecessary foreclosures on farm property will occur in Eastland county this fall unless the persons concerned ask for the services of the farm debt adjustment section of the Farm Security administration, Geo. I. Lane, county supervisor for FSA, said today. Seventy farmers in the county were benefitted through this service last year, he said.

"A request for the assistance of the debt adjustment group does not mean that the debtor is bankrupt," he commented. "Many times his property is worth more than the amount of his debts. Unex pectedly short crops, low prices, insect damage, or other circumstances have left a number of farmers in the county unable to meet obligations secured by liens on their property. In some of these cases, an adjustment which would permit the man to continue farming on a sound plan of operation would be to the advantage of both debtor and creditor.

Requests for assistance may be made by either party, but whatever solution is worked out must be acceptable to both, he stated. Contact may be made with either the supervisor or any member of the county committee, which consists of Felix Boland, Scranton, Dick Weekes, Ranger, and W. R. Usery, Carbon.

What ever discussions take place are entirely confidential and do not expose the individual to public conversation about his private affairs, Mr. Lane pointed out. If the local group cannot work out an adjustment, the services of the district farm debt adjustment supervisor called in. In some instances, cases have been passed on to the state office for final solution, Mr. Lane said. The advice of Farm Security administration attorneys is available on all points of legal technicality, he added.

Since several weeks time is needed sometimes to complete an adjustment, the FSA supervisor urged that proceedings be started at once.

McCarter Spuds New Test at Rising Star

RISING STAR, Oct. 14 (Sp.)—R. C. McCarter, veteran operator in the area, has spudded in a new test on the I. W. Robertson farm, one half mile southwest of his Smith deep test, made last summer, and about 575 feet. A ten barrel well was recently brought in on the Anderson tract, about a mile east of the new location, by Whiteside Bros.

Mr. McCarter has quite a block of acreage in the vicinity and plans to drill a number of shallow wells.

C. C. Criss, who took over the completion of the Cox well on the Lee place, two and one half miles southeast of town, was reported as drilling at 2,615 feet.

State Counts Traffic Dead at 127 in September

AUSTIN, Oct. 14. — Texas has counted its traffic dead. State police—who would much rather count the living—today announced that the September street and highway death mark reached 127 to bring the year's total to 1,148 fatalities.

Safety analysts pointed to most of the records of these deaths as examples of recklessness on the part of drivers and pedestrians. Even the fact that the 1938 death march fell 294 short of last year's figure through the month of September, the traffic experts gloomily predicted a rising toll for the remainder of the year "unless drivers and pedestrians revolt against urges to speed, disobey safety regulations or commit other offenses against public safety."

Strengthening of the enforcement of traffic regulations on highways and in cities and towns was pointed to as the weapon that brought about a major portion of the death reduction this year.

Tabulations of the persons injured in September vehicle assaults were not completed because the statisticians know that a number of them will die of their wounds. However, as usual, the figure is expected to be well over the 1,000 mark. Sympathetic state police did not forget the estimated 11,480 persons grief stricken over the death of a loved one. Even the financial losses were considered as the statisticians pictured over the death books. With an economic loss of $50,000 resulting in the death of one traffic victim—the amount includes a 35 to one ratio of injuries—the state officers estimated the 1938 traffic crash cost to be $75,400,000, enough money to maintain 55 state police departments, the size of the Texas set-up.

There wasn't a girl in the wide world who could take him over the hurdles unless he wanted to go. And he'd pointed a camera at plenty. He'd snapped princesses, and actresses, and beauty contest winners, and dazzling blonds who had married four men and shot a fifth. He had caught them in their moments of petty vanity.

But what did he say?" asked Tait eagerly. "Is he—do you think he's convinced that she didn't have anything to do with it?"

Anne shook her head emphatically. "I came away with the impression that Mr. Feeley was itching to put Myrna in the jug at about $25,000 bail. The fact that he didn't do it I somehow hitch up to a fellow named Robert Tait."

"Forget it! The important thing is that Myrna has put in an appearance." He turned to Myrna.

"You can do it, if you want. All you need to do is give Rogers a check for two weeks' salary in lieu of notice. I'll take it to him myself, and you'd better give me a letter saying he's discharged and that he's to turn over all his records to me."

Anne stirred on the davenport. "It sounds like a swell notion to me, Bob. I think we can do pretty well without Mr. Rogers. But would you mind telling us what's behind all this?"

"We want to get hold of his records, for one thing. And for another, I think it's better for all concerned if Harris Rogers doesn't have a thing to do with the band."

He looked at Myrna again. "What do you say?"

"She's too tired to say anything," Anne Lester put in quickly. "I'll do the talking. You're the new manager of the band and of Myrna's corporation—and the sooner you let Harris Rogers know about it, the better for Myrna."

She got up and began rummaging in her bag. "I've got a counter-check somewhere, and I'll be delighted to fill it out for Myrna's signature."

"Good! I'll give Rogers the bad news right away. I've a feeling that the sooner we do it, the better."

Myrna looked apprehensively at Bob Tait. "Do you think you should go to see him? He—he seems—well, dangerous, and I—"

She broke off, at a loss for words. And Bob Tait wondered if Anne could possibly hear the pounding of his heart.

and he thought he knew them for what they were. Why should he be intrigued by this slender girl who had been a stenographer and somehow caught the eye of Ludden Dombey, king of swing?

Why? There was, Bob Tait told himself, no reason at all. And therefore he wasn't intrigued. Yet somehow his logic, as he drove his rented coupe toward his apartment, seemed rather weak.

He found the apartment empty. Anne and Myrna had gone to Feeley's office and not yet returned. Nervously Bob Tait telephoned the Press Club. No message had been left there for him, and when he received this information he felt infinitely better.

If anything went wrong at Dannie Feeley's, Anne was to have called him. "Good old Dannie," muttered Tait aloud.

But he went through almost half a pack of cigarettes before Anne and Myrna returned. The latter looked worn and tired.

"What happened?" asked Tait, showing out a chair for Myrna.

"Plenty!" exclaimed Anne dropping wearily onto the davenport and reaching out for one of Tait's cigarettes. "Can that Feeley person put you over the hurdles? If there's anything he didn't ask Myrna, I can't think what it would be."

"But what did he say?" asked Tait eagerly. "Is he—do you think he's convinced that she didn't have anything to do with it?"
