

NAZI HATRED IS LOOSED AGAINST JEWS

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

It has always been something of a mystery to me why Cisco fans support the Rangers against the Lobos. Friday in the box at Bulldog stadium, the Lobos in a belated campaign click for touch-down and stubborn Ranger fans, something of this spirit was up among the disappointed and plainly astonished fans.

They still take Breckenridge. I'm sure one of them. He is, in fact, a good friend of mine, frankly I think bitter resentment and the outburst rather judgment. He wasn't as at the Buckaroos could be the Lobos as he was hoped the Buckaroos would do no matter what the color reaction, the way the Lobos went down in that period sufficiently impressive, the of the Ranger fans were sober.

Of course, every man to his but the Ranger were playing Buckaroos next Friday afternoon at Breckenridge, I'll bet a great majority of Cisco fans attend would be on the side giving the Bulldog the encouragement they are a fine, clean game used by untoward incidents. After once made a low score. Usually the Lobos score from 75 to 100 yards in the first half and the second half. The Ranger boys gave the Lobos a good game. The play of Whitefield and others splendid. Houghton, diminutive Bulldog backfield man, the admiration of Cisco fans. The Bulldogs have a young team, which will be practically intact next year. The other eleven of this year are full of trouble. They, the Lobos, are just coming out of football depression and the lack of things now due to the oil belt district is something of the prominence had in the school-union wars.

My Ranger friend who takes Breckenridge. He is right. On the basis of what we must yield the Lobos to the Buckaroos. I am any judge of the of the Cisco fans they are to yield any actual success if at all, until after a battle next Friday afternoon. The Lobos can beat the Bulldogs. They have the do it with. Whether they can beat the Buckaroos remains to be seen.

Supreme Court's Grand Old Man 82 on Sunday

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—Up before the sun these frosty fall mornings, a slender old gentleman with kindly quizzical eyes like Abraham Lincoln's is soon poring over papers on a lamp-lighted desk.

He is Louis D. Brandeis, oldest of the supreme-court justices. Out of bed at 5 a. m., he is at work a few minutes later in an apartment office described as Spartan in its simplicity.

The venerated American liberal will be 82 on Sunday, November 13. Undoubtedly he will arise early as usual, read a flood of congratulations and have in a few intimate friends for tea. Mrs. Brandeis will see that the celebration is not strenuous.

Takes Work In Easy Stride

Justice Brandeis ages no faster in the next eight years than he has in the last eight, he may challenge the record held by his late liberal team-mate, Oliver Wendell Holmes Justice Holmes was 90 when he retired.

Although President Roosevelt would have justices get out at 70, the oldest justice has not indicated any intention of retiring. He loves the work. He takes legal complexities and the clashing philosophies of the world in easy mental stride.

No other justice asks lawyers more pertinent questions. His queries are searching, always courteous and made ostensibly to help counsel meet the issues more clearly. Chief Justice Hughes, who sits at his right, often engages him in whispered consultation.

Once A Well-Known 'Dissenter' For years Brandeis and Holmes were known as the court's most frequent dissenters, a "liberal" minority of two against a conservative "majority" of seven. His old comrade is gone, but Brandeis has lived to see the court lineup, exactly reversed in many decisions. He is now one of a "liberal" majority of seven.

Brandeis almost failed to receive senate approval of his appointment in 1916. The Boston attorney's confirmation was fought on the grounds that he was too much "a reformer or crusader." Kentucky-born son of Jewish immigrants from Bohemia, he was the first member of his race to be elevated to the supreme court. He was educated abroad and at Harvard. He accumulated a substantial fortune in law practice. It has been assumed that he is still wealthy, but his philanthropies are known to be great. Friends say he has no intention of leaving a large estate.

He has upheld the constitutionality of most New Deal measures. Believed to be sympathetic with the Roosevelt administration, the justice nevertheless was greatly disturbed when General Hugh Johnson said that he was a "quiet adviser" to the New Deal.

Despite a natural reserve, Justice Brandeis for years kept the common touch by chatting with cab drivers and eating in small, cheap restaurants. His contacts with the public are less frequent now as Mrs. Brandeis carefully guards against too great a drain on his strength.

SEN. CONNALLY SEES NO MORE TAX MEASURES

Points to Reviving Business as Increasing Federal Revenues

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (AP)—Senator Connally, democrat from Texas, a member of the senate finance committee, predicted today that the next congress would pass no tax bill. Improving business conditions, he said, should increase federal revenues and make tax revisions unnecessary. Connally predicted the re-enactment of the "nuisance" taxes (theater tickets and similar taxes) many of which expire next year. He said the economy trend in congress would likely be felt in most government expenditures.

Mother of John Garner Buried at Greenville

Funeral services for Mrs. James K. Garner, mother of John H. Garner, were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Greenville where she died Friday morning at the home of a daughter, Mrs. R. M. Lewis, with whom she had made her home for a number of years.

Mrs. Garner and her husband came to Cisco from Tennessee and lived here for 15 or 20 years while their son, John H. Garner, established the mercantile enterprises which bear his name, including the John H. Garner's department store in Cisco. The husband died several years ago. One son is also dead.

Besides John H. Garner and Mrs. Lewis another daughter, Mrs. Andrew Douglas of California survives.

Methodist Hospital Name Is Changed

WACO, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Central Texas Methodist conference meeting here Saturday had voted to change the name of Methodist Hospital in Fort Worth to the Harris Memorial Methodist Hospital.

The action was taken after Dr. Charles H. Harris, superintendent of the hospital, had made gifts of property and money to the institution. The new name is in memory of the late William Harris, father of the physician.

Trustees elected for the hospital were Bishop Ivan Lee Holt, to serve until 1939; Rev. L. L. Felder, Marvin D. Evans, Dr. Will S. Horn, Charles A. Lupton, Dr. Judge M. Lyle, W. D. Smith, J. R. Edwards, George W. Scaling and Ed Landreth, to serve until 1941.

The election of lay delegates to the uniting conference in Kansas City, next April was completed when Boyce Martin of Corsicana was named seventh member.

Alternate clerical delegates are President John W. Bergin of Southwestern University, Georgetown; Rev. T. Edgar Neal, Fort Worth; Rev. R. Otis Sory, Mexia, and Rev. L. W. Seymour, Gatesville. Alternate lay delegates are Mrs. B. B. Wedemeyer, Waco; B. E. McGlamery, Eastland; Judge Frank P. Culver, Jr., Fort Worth, and Leake Ayres, Gatesville.

Championship of Eastern Division Is at Stake

Only 24 hours had elapsed since the end of the Ranger and Cisco football game at Ranger Armistice day, but at mid-afternoon Saturday over half of the reserved seats for the Breckenridge and Cisco game at Breckenridge next Friday—a game which will decide the championship of the eastern half of the Oil Belt district—had been sold.

The first batch of tickets placed on sale at the Red Front Drug store numbered 520. It appeared that this number would be sold before Monday. A second batch of the same number was expected from Breckenridge. The first 520 tickets were choice and the demand for them was heavy.

One of the biggest football crowds ever to assemble in the section for a high school football game was expected to witness the contest between the powerful Buckaroo eleven and the rapidly improving Lobo team. The winner of the game will meet either Sweetwater or San Angelo for the western half of the district title.

Cisco will enter the game decidedly the underdog, although the 27 to 0 defeat which the Lobos handed the Ranger Bulldogs last Friday had improved their stock considerably. The Lobos are undefeated in any game this season. Only a 13-all tie with the Graham Steers mar their record. But Breckenridge has a better record in the quality of competition which they have met, losing only by close scores and bad breaks to the Vernon Lions and the Wichita Falls Coyotes, both ranked among the most powerful high school machines in the state. Both losses occurred early in the season.

The game will match a smartly drilled Buckaroo eleven with a hard-running backfield led by Ramsey, running and passing ace, with a stout defensive Cisco team with a strong running attack of its own and a fair passing game. Whether or not the Cisco team has advanced to a point where it can handle the rampaging Green Wave remains a question. Cisco customarily plays its best game against the Stephens county boys. Most observers believe it will have to play a superhuman game Friday to win.

F. B. Mathews Is Buried Here Saturday at 2

F. B. Mathews, former Ciscoan with the U. S. department of agriculture's biological survey, who was killed near Luling in an automobile accident Thursday, was buried here Saturday following services at the First Baptist church at 2 o'clock. Mr. Mathews died in an accident three miles from Luling at 2 o'clock Thursday. For some time he was with the survey in this country, trapping predatory animals.

The Rev. Judson Prince, pastor of the church officiated, and burial in Oakwood cemetery was in charge of Green's Funeral home. Active pallbearers were Frank Coates, H. L. Kunkel, Arlin Agnew, Smitty Huestis, Joe Clements, Walter Boyd.

Mr. Mathews was born in Red River county, Texas, in 1865. He moved with his parents to Brown county in 1875, settling at Indian City. His father was the first postmaster at that place.

In 1891 he married Miss Betty Graham at San Sabá. She died in 1904 and in 1907 he married Mrs. Mary Lee of Wayland.

Five of six daughters born to Mr. Mathews by his first marriage, survive. They are Mrs. W. W. McNatt of Naples, Texas; Mrs. E. E. McNatt of Graves; Mrs. M. R. Johnson of Port Neches; Mrs. R. M. Wilhite of Wichita Falls; and Mrs. Victor Miles of Port Neches.

Three children were born to his second union, all surviving. They are Miss Blanche Mathews, Miss Jennie Lee Mathews and F. B. Mathews, Jr.

ONE BILLION MARKS LEVEL FOR SLAYING

Persecuted Race Banned From Most Businesses, Ostracised

BERLIN, Nov. 12 (AP)—Jews today were assessed 1 billion marks, $400,000, penalty for the Paris murder of Ernest Von Rath, German diplomat, it has been announced officially.

Herman Goering, director of Germany's four-year plan, issued the decree, effective Jan. 1, prohibiting Jews from conducting retail businesses, mail order commission houses and independent handicraft enterprises. The decree further banned Jews from handling any industrial commercial concern.

Another decree ordered Jews excluded from theater movie houses, concerts or other public presentations.

Propaganda Minister Goebbels today indicated that more Jews in store for Jews if the abroad do not cease "misrepresentations and distorting happenings here."

The huge fine was assessed "upon German Jews in their entirety." No provision was made of the method of payment.

Arrests and isolations of Jews were reported from many cities. Sixteen hundred arrests were reported in Berlin alone. Nazi officials at Salzburg announced that the "Salzburg district was not completely freed from Jews."

Frankfurt-on-the-Main report all male Jews between 18 and years have been rounded up and confined. In some smaller towns arrests of male Jews appeared have been 100 per cent.

Additional decrees later today said the Jews must pay all damage to Jewish property "occasioned by the indignation of the people over the incitement by international Jewry against social Germany." It was ruled that insurance claims by German Jews be confiscated in favor of the German state.

Nazi leaders promised "further decisive measures" in the shortest time possible.

Funds derived from the show will be used to finance activities of the Lions club.

O' Daniel Says Comment Favorable

FORT WORTH, Nov. 12 (AP)—W. Lee O'Daniel, governor-elect, said today that most of the comment he had received concerning his "Texas RFC" plan, had been favorable.

"Encouraging, because folks aren't bashful about letting you know when they don't like an idea," he said.

"If the plan is unconstitutional," he asserted, "an amendment to solve the problem, but I hope an amendment will not be necessary. It would be a waste of time."

Americas Together May Save a Way of Life

It is becoming more and more obvious that the Pan-American conference which is to open in Peru next month presents New World democracy with a great opportunity. Events in the Old World are giving this meeting an importance which no previous Pan-American Conference has had. In the past, these conferences have been productive chiefly of high-sounding talk; this year, the logic of events is forcing the statesmen to act.

While it is true that democracy as we understand it is not a very robust growth below the equator, it is also true that something fundamental to the New World way of life is being threatened from Europe. The Latin nations fought to free themselves of overseas tyranny, just as the people of the United States did; and although many of them have had dictators of their own for many years, there is a world of difference between their kind of dictatorship and the kind now dominant in Europe.

The European dictatorships are not simply one-man tyrannies. They call for a regimentation of social and economic life such as no New World tyrant ever dreamed of. They represent the growth in human society of a philosophy which would affect all international relations, all trade relations, all cultural relations. They stand for a closing of opportunity and a fixing of social classes.

The New World, both north and south of the equator, was settled and developed by men who opposed that sort of thing from the bottom of their souls. However imperfect democracy may have been in the United States, however much it may have been flouted in the Latin republics, the way of freedom has nevertheless been fundamental to the New World spirit.

So this conference offers a great chance for the people of the New World to perfect their defenses.

That is not primarily a military problem. It calls for little in the way of conferences between military and naval authorities. If the statesmen can find ways to keep the channels of New World trade clear, if they can formulate some program by which the New World nations can, through the interchange of goods, services and ideas, maintain and improve their economic levels and move forward toward a freer and richer life—then there will be much less reason to be afraid of developments in Europe.

The dictator states may coerce a single nation; they cannot coerce half the world. In the Americas opportunity still exists. If the Americas stand together, they can make of their half of the world a thriving, unregimented trade area which totalitarian economics cannot affect. And if that is done, the New World way of life is saved.

This conference is thus an opportunity—and a challenge. If the statesmen meet it, the steady growth of the totalitarian idea will receive a definite and significant check.

President Roosevelt doesn't seem to care for the committee investigating un-American activities and from his comments one might think the Dies were loaded.

The amateur writer who is accused of trying to burn a one-legged poet with whisky for fuel will probably plead poetic license.

In some quarters the efforts of Hollywood to beautify Corrigan for his part in the story of his life may be regarded as gliding the dilly.

Governor Lehman tells the voters that he has raised prices for the milkman, but Thomas E. Dewey, it must be remembered, has raised the rewards for yeggmen.

Father Hated Music, So Handel Found Fame

THE greatness that George Frederick Handel achieved in the world of music came from an inspiration received from his father. For the barber-surgeon emphatically disapproved of music and wished that George Frederick would take up the law.

But the little boy was obstinately determined. His soul cried out for music and training and expression, and a friend provided the way. He smuggled a clavichord into the lad's attic. On this instrument, inaudible behind a closed door, the youth practiced secretly.

Before he was eight George Frederick had advanced remarkably. He was ready for higher instruction. It came in a curious manner. His father one day went to visit a son by a former marriage who was a valet-de-chambre to the duke of Saxe-Weissenfeld. In vain the little boy begged to go, and at last when his father departed without him he followed the carriage on foot, so far that he was finally taken the rest of the distance.

Once at the duke's, he met the court musician, arranged to practice on the great organ. Then the duke heard him and, immediately recognizing talent, persuaded George Frederick's father to educate his son in the art. So began a brilliant career, one of the greatest the world has ever known. Handelian opera is today immortal. Few know of his myriad virtues.

Human and Other Nature

I shall always think with vain regret of the death from whooping cough of a little child in a home where I was staying, because it seems likely, although undetermined to me at the time, that

Magnolia Dealers Offer Safety Service

As their part in the nation's constant safety crusade, thousands of Magnolia dealers throughout Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and New Mexico are offering winterproof service, and a complete, over-all inspection check-up, in order to increase the efficiency and safety of all automobiles.

The Magnolia Petroleum company, said Fred M. Leger, Jr., vice president in charge of marketing, is participating in this winterproof service program, by holding a series of educational and merchandising meetings for Magnolia dealers.

Dealers and Magnolia officials thoroughly discuss new and better ways of providing winterproof service, together with safety check-ups.

Additional participation will be a 60-day newspaper campaign, together with radio spot announcements and posters, which should prove a powerful impetus in making motorists conscious of the necessity of this service.

Sheriff Sells Prisoners Candy

DECATUR, Ill., Nov. 12 (AP)—Sheriff Emory Thornell sees some of his county jail prisoners get candy—if they can pay for it.

He got the idea from an inmate who said that the only thing jail needed was candy for prisoners "coming off a drunk."

"A man shut off from his life craves something sweet," the prisoner said, "and if you satisfy craving you will create a better prisoner."

The sheriff tried it and the theory worked well. So the Deputy Sheriff Lloyd Smith, turnkey, gets candy for the prisoners wishing to buy it.

Cisco Loboes Click in Fourth to Smother Ranger

Breck Next Day for East for Title

GORDON K. SHERMAN

Having all of the power and influence that have carried them to the Texas schoolboy football championship thus far undefeated, the Loboes Friday afternoon in their traditional Arday battle at Bulldog hurling a challenge to the Buckaroos with the hope of the eastern half of the Belt next Friday.

Testing the Bulldogs the Loboes obtained a tie with Breck for leadership in this section, and on their return against Ranger rate an even chance of knocking the Buckaroos, who defeated Bulldogs 32-0. By that means the performance of the Loboes Friday was flawless. They did play hard, rough, and smart; but there were mistakes—perhaps realized by the boys themselves—showing that the Cisco "11" seems to have found itself been threatening to do so, doubtless will be corrected before the crucial Breck-Bulldog game.

It is the most promising of the entire game from the standpoint of the coordination of the line and the backfield and each man with his own job. The entire team seemed to have caught the spirit of comradeship which came into a powerful and smart before which the Loboes can only give way.

Final play of the Cisco Loboes against the Bulldogs was the best it has been yet. It was good, although not as fine as tackling and defensive play, and pass showed vast improvement in previous weakness in that respect.

Coach For All

Leading for the Loboes in the game were Marcel Harrison, who had two of the Loboes' touchdowns; R. D. Donham, who showed strength on defense; and player who seems on the verge of realizing his great potential. Troy Stewart, who also is ready to deliver the goods; Bailey, one of the most conscientious boys on the team; Walter Preston, who shook off the effects of a recent illness to deliver a fine performance; Ray Burnside, fine end; and lastly Robert Cone and Rex Pollard, who individually and collectively turned in one of the finest performances of the year at guard positions. These linemen often given little or no credit, were the backbone of both the Cisco offense and defense. Touchdown runs are possible only through their blocking.

In the backfield Odell Harrison was the most consistent ground-gainer, turning in one spectacular run after another. His touchdown run in the fourth quarter put the game on ice. Coy Warren was also much in evidence for Cisco, completing three out of seven passes and gaining much yardage in the ball carrying department. In addition he got off the longest punt of the day, kicking one for 54 yards late in the fourth quarter. Ramon Reames contributed many fine blocks and in addition was outstanding in punting and ball-carrying. Bill Latch, playing his first game since the Brownwood encounter when he was injured, blocked beautifully. One of the outstanding blocking backs in this section, Bill is a leading candidate for all-district honors.

Highlights of the Game

Opening the game the Loboes kicked off to the Bulldogs with the wind at their back, the ball downed on the Ranger 19. Following several run plays which failed to gain, the Bulldogs punted to the 50 yard line, whereupon Cisco marched to the Ranger five, Odell Harrison and Warren alternating in ball-carrying roles, where a desperate tackle on Odell Harrison saved a touchdown.

Receiving Whitefield's punt from behind his own goal line the Loboes again began marching, driving to the four yard marker where Odell Harrison was again stopped by a shoestring tackle after catching a pass, almost identical with the previous play. A few plays later Ranger attempted a pass which was intercepted by Odell Harrison on the Ranger 39, Marcel fighting his way the remaining distance to the goal line, going over just as he was tackled. Odell Harrison's placekick struck the crossbar and bounded over making the count 7-0 in the Loboes' favor.

Second Quarter

The second quarter saw the Ranger eleven taking the offensive to a greater extent than in the first (they made their initial first down early in this period). Play through most of the period was even and the half ended without further scoring. Count: Cisco 7, Ranger 0.

Third Quarter

Opening the second half Cisco kicked-off to the Ranger "11", the ball being downed on the Bulldog 12. Then began a period of play in which the ball changed hands often and quickly, defense predominated, and there were no serious scoring threats by either team. The quarter ended with the ball in the Bulldogs' possession on their own 34 yard line.

Fourth Quarter

The fourth quarter was but a few minutes old when the Bulldogs punted to the Lobo 28 yard line from where Odell Harrison broke over his own right tackle, cut back, and stormed 72 yards backs, Tipton, Little, and Anderson.

New Studio to Open Monday With Baby Contest

A. L. Osborn, new Cisco photographer, formerly of Abilene, Saturday announced a Baby Contest to begin coincident with the opening of the Osborn Studio in the Olson building Monday. The contest, in which prizes will be offered in six classes with a grand prize for the winner of all classes, will close on December 3.

The classes will be as follows: Six months to one year; one year to two years; two years to three; three years to four; four years to five; and five years to six.

A $25 hand-painted portrait will be awarded the baby adjudged winner of the grand prize.

Mr. Osborn, for seven years at Abilene, is bringing to Cisco one of the most completely equipped studios in this section. The studio prides itself particularly upon the tinted portraits and invites Cisco people, especially those who are extremely particularly about the class of portrait work they accept, to inspect displays which it has. All types of commercial work are done by the studio, and kodak finishing and printing work is solicited.

Mr. Osborn, who was employed by the Army and Navy Publishing company at Baton Rouge, La., for the past six months, brings a family of a wife and three children to Cisco.

The Olson studio building which the new studio will occupy has been fitted with new partitions affording the most privacy. The camera room has been moved to the rear where sitting may be had in the greatest privacy. Even the sales room has been partitioned off from the remainder of the studio.

Proud Ottawa to Greet British Monarchs

PROUD commanding city is Ottawa, capital of the Dominion of Canada, in the province of Ontario, on the right bank of the Ottawa river. The site was picturesque, beautiful when Samuel de Champlain first visited it in June, 1613, and today, looking forward to the visit of the British king and queen next summer, Ottawa retains its striking beauty as a modern city.

It stands for the most part on a cluster of hills, 60 to 155 feet above the river. For three miles it follows the high southern bank of the Ottawa from the Chaudiere falls to and beyond Rideau falls. The French named them thus because of their curtain-like appearance. The Rideau canal divides the town into two sections, one occupied largely by British and the other by French.

But the crowning feature of Ottawa is Parliament Hill, striking for its grouping of fine Gothic government buildings. The three blocks form sides of a great quadrangle, one side of which is open. The cornerstone of the main building was laid in 1869 by the Prince of Wales. Destroyed by fire, it has since been rebuilt. Aside from the quadrangle there are also other great government buildings near this site, including the Public Archives, Royal Mint, National Museum and National Art Gallery, and Dominion Observatory. Rideau Hall, the official residence of the governor-general, lies on the eastern boundary of the city at the entrance to Rockcliffe park. Parliament Hill, Ottawa, is shown here on a 1933 Canadian stamp, the Postal Union issue. (Copyright, 1933, NEA Service, Inc.)

Red Front Brings Beauty Expert Here

Red Front drug store has announced its unique beauty forum for November 14 to 19, inclusive, in which Miss Caroline Weir, noted beauty authority, will discuss with each patron special beauty problems concerning individual personalities.

Miss Weir comes direct from the Colonial Dame's Hollywood laboratories for this special showing and demonstration. She is to be the guest artist of the Red Front drug store which is inviting all its friends and customers to avail themselves of Miss Weir's knowledge and training in this line of beauty culture and in the Third Dimension make-ups. They ask that ladies desiring this free service and a personal talk on their special problems call the store for appointments.

Miss Bond Member of TWC Society

FORT WORTH, Nov. 10.—Miss Wynema Bond, freshman at Texas Wesleyan College from Cisco, was one of 40 girls initiated into the Susan M. Key literary society last week.

The formal candle-lighting ceremony depicting the virtues of womanhood is a traditional initiation in S. M. K. Officers and the new members wore gold keys on white chains around their necks until Sunday.

Miss Bond is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bond of Cisco. She is majoring in business administration.

A new treatment of trachoma, the blinding eye disease, with sulfanilamide has been reported by the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology.

Lone Star Rigs for McKee Well

MORAN, Nov. 12 (Sp.)—Lone Star Gas Co. started rigging up on the McKee lease, section 39, SPRR survey, this week and expects to spud in a few days. This well is a south offset to the G. Willard Rich No. 1, producing from the Lake sand at 3,667 feet. This well was completed in the summer for 287 barrels daily. This producer is said to be increasing its production.

G. W. Rich No. 2 Andrews, section 39, block 7, SPRR, 1,306 feet east of the Andrews No. 1, is underreaming at 2,950 feet. This well, just east of Indian Knowl, will try for pay in the Caddo and the Lake Sand. Ray Wilbanks is contractor for the well.

Pethybridge & Gordon No. 1 C. B. Snyder was still shut down Wednesday waiting for 5 inch casing. This well is in the Ellenberger lime, found at 4,268 feet and drilled 25 feet. The lime is saturated with high gravity oil, and is believed it will make a good well when acidized. Casing will be set and the lime treated with acid as soon as pipe is delivered on the ground, according to a statement made by Mr. Pethybridge Wednesday. This well is 5 miles west of Moran, Sec. 38, LAL, and is a northwest extension of the Van Parmer pool found last fall seven miles southeast of Moran.

Harlan Dunn Local Tarleton Chairman

Harlan Dunn of Cisco has been appointed by Morton P. Brooks, president of the John Tarleton College Ex-Students association, as home coming chairman for all the ex-Tarleton students in his vicinity. According to a letter received from Mr. Brooks, the homecoming will be Thanksgiving Day, November 24, when Tarleton meets her old rival, N. T. A. C. from Arlington on the Tarleton field. The rival school is making plans to send a special train to Stephenville, bringing with them their famous band. The military band and the newly organized girls' band at Tarleton will add much to the color of the game.

Would Walk 10 Miles to Save Writing

STOWMARKET, England, Nov. 12 (AP)—Rather than write letters, Suffolk farm workers walk 10 miles to deliver a message.

This was reported by D. S. Eastman, a member of the West Suffolk Education committee, which was considering plans to improve the spelling of children.

The population of the United States has increased 30-fold in four generations.

one the right to make havoc of the life of another that might happen to fall that much within his power. Murder is almost the height of atrociousness in crime, because in taking another's life one has taken him from everything else. The prevalence of suicides and murders now is something of a measure of the depth to which our civilization is sinking. The only hope is that the per cent of our population that is not more or less guilty is larger than it seems sometimes.

SERIAL STORY

LOVERS AWEIGH

COPYRIGHT, 1938 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BY BETTY WALLACE

CAST OF CHARACTERS JUDY ALCOTT—admiral's daughter. She faced a choice between two navy suitors.

DWIGHT CAMPBELL—ambitious lieutenant. He faced a choice between his wife and duty.

JACK HANLEY—flying sailor. He faced a test of a patient love.

MARVEL HASTINGS—navy wife. She faced the test of being a good sailor.

Yesterday, Marvel arrives and soon after the ship goes out leaving Judy to explain to Marvel why Dwight could not be with her!

CHAPTER V

She got into her car, and drove to the Coronado Hotel. She asked at the desk for Miss Hastings and was told that her suite was on the fifth floor.

"Suite!" said Judy to herself. "She would have a suite!"

When she knocked at the door, there was no answer. She wondered for a moment if Marvel had gone out. But she decided that was impossible. She was probably sulking. Maybe she thought it was Dwight, rushing around in person after he'd hung up on the phone.

"But if she had an ounce of sense, she'd know it's me..." Her heart sank. The task before her was infinitely distasteful, but she had to do it. She had promised.

She rapped on the door again. This time there was the sound of someone moving, and in another moment Marvel's voice came.

"Who is it?"

"It's Judy Alcott. May I come in?"

The door was flung open. Marvel in gold satin pajamas, her red hair of fiery glory of curls, stood there. Her face was cold, unfriendly. Behind her, Judy saw a hotel maid folding a black cloud of tulle. An evening dress. There was an open steamer trunk, with a drawer pulled out, and clothes on the hangers.

Judy stepped into the room, closing the door behind her. Marvel's face did not change. She simply stood there, waiting. It was not going to be easy. Judy felt the beat of her pulse in her wrists, and a strange little dizziness behind her eyes. Why should she be the one to argue with Marvel on Dwight's account? It was no affair of hers. And yet she had promised. And she would promise anything, she knew, hating herself when it was Dwight's slightly husky, altogether thrilling voice that asked her.

"Dwight telephoned me," Judy said, walking to a soft chair and sitting down. Marvel moved across the room, took the bench before the vanity table. Her reflection in the mirror made two red-haired, cold-faced girls whom Judy had to face. Judy went on, steadily. "He asked me to come here. He said you weren't accustomed to the Navy's disconcerting habit of ordering people off to sea. He simply had to go. Duty. There was no way out. The skipper's wife—Mrs. Lane—telephoned me, too. She said she couldn't come tonight, and told me probably no one else would come."

She leaned forward. "Oh, Miss Hastings, I know how you feel. You've just gotten in. You feel as though he could have managed to stay with you. But I know better. In the Navy, no one counts. It's only duty—why, I've known men whose wives were in the hospitals, having babies—"

She thought of Diane. And of Bill Bell, who had to walk out of the ready room, his flying jacket buttoned under his chin, and get into his plane, miles out at sea, and wait for the signal that meant "Take off." She thought of how she had been the only one with Diane in those long black ours. But Diane had understood. And this—this was only a party—an unimportant little social event.

But Marvel's eyes did not soften. She said, in a cool little voice. "He could have stayed if he had really wanted to!"

"No, no. He couldn't! You don't understand!"

Marvel said, "I understand well enough! Surely it's not a matter of national emergency."

It hadn't been a matter of national emergency that night the Enterprise steamed out to sea, either. Just a routine flight. But Bill Bell had gone, and Diane had not whimpered. Judy's fingers closed up, and she said, "But it's your duty. They were ordered to sea—no one has the choice of staying, don't you see?"

"No," said Marvel. "No, I don't see."

"But you must! Dwight begged me to explain! He was so sure you'd understand!"

Marvel stood up. Her green eyes flashed. "It was very good of my fiancé to ask another girl—a girl he's been as friendly with as he has been with you—to come here and soothe me. But I will not be soothed, do you understand? I'm not accustomed to being kept waiting for any one. Least of all for a man! He knew I was coming, he might have arranged things so that I would not be left alone like this. He didn't think it was important enough, that's all! I won't put up with it, I don't have to!"

She looked at the maid, who was now carrying an armful of silken lingerie from a dresser drawer. "I'm packing, as you can see. Tell that to Dwight when he comes back! Tell him I've left! I'll never stand for this kind of treatment! I'm going to Los Angeles. I have friends there, and afterward—I'll go home again!"

"But Miss Hastings—you can't do that! It's not fair to Dwight! He didn't leave you deliberately. He had to go. You mustn't act as if it were a personal choice, as if he wanted to hurt you—"

Marvel's eyes were on Judy's face with a queer steady scrutiny. Judy could feel the blood coming up in her cheeks. "Just what business is this of yours, anyway?"

Marvel asked with deliberate rudeness.

"Dwight asked me to come here. That's all," Judy bit her lip.

Marvel laughed, a soft, unbelieving sound. "You'd do it for any officer you knew who asked you, wouldn't you? Explain to his poor little unversed wife the fine old traditions of the Navy. Explain that she's got to sit back and be neglected and love it! Oh, no, you wouldn't, Miss Alcott! I'm not altogether a fool, I know, the minute I looked at you, just what had been going on." She stopped. She reached for a cigaret and lit it. She took a long inward breath and then she said slowly, "You're in love with him, aren't you?"

Judy leaped to her feet. Her face was stinging with color. "I'm sorry I haven't succeeded in explaining to you," she said. "I'll go."

"No! Don't go!" Marvel was standing, too, her green eyes narrowed. "You and I might just as well understand each other. I would not have objected to Dwight's absence if he had been decent enough to come here and explain himself. I'm not a complete idiot, you know! But to call me up, casually, as if I were a servant! To hang up on me! And then—to send you—"

Judy walked toward the door, her head high. She would not stand here another moment, listening to this spoiled, arrogant girl who trod over other people's feelings with all the hard assurance that her millions gave her.

Marvel said, "You can run away, if you like, but that doesn't change anything! I'm leaving not so much because he was ordered to sea, but because from the moment I stepped off that airliner I knew the truth! He's been going out with you. He's been making love to you. You're in love with him, and you hate me. Well, I give him to you, do you hear? I'm going, and I'm never coming back. Let him marry you! Let him stay in the Navy and be poor and go to sea and do all the other grubby, stupid things you Navy people do! Naval society!" She laughed shrilly. "You're dowdy, and you're dumb, and he's blind! I wanted to give him a chance. He could have gone to Washington—had a real career—"

She was shouting now, defiantly screaming because the call of the Navy that she could not understand had triumphed over her own power.

Judy said tightly, "I'm sorry you've insulted me, Miss Hastings, but I quite understand. As for being in love with me—it is you, Dwight is engaged to marry, not me!"

"Because he's smart!" Marvel said furiously. "Because he knows that money could open the way for him."

"You're mistaken," said Judy. "He happens to love you."

Marvel screamed. "Did he tell you to tell me that, too? Oh, that's very funny! He sends you here, after God knows how many hours of lovemaking, to tell me that he loves me! Well, you can go back and tell him I'm through! I'm not the fool he takes me for! I'm going to Los Angeles and I hope I never see him again!"

Journey to Mars Would Take 1,000 Years in Fastest Rocket Produced

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (AP)—In 60 years since the so-called "canals" were discovered on Mars, science has not been able to rule out absolutely the possibility of living beings on the red planet.

Two kinds of beings are still possible there. One is the "life as we know it" sort, meaning oxygen-breathers like men. Astronomers have definitely established that Mars has only about one-thousandth the oxygen in its air that is present on earth. No human could live there without an oxygen helmet.

Mars Shy On Oxygen

But, as pointed out by Dr. Henry Norris Russell of Princeton University, one of the world's great astronomers, persons on Mars, if no greater intelligence than man could have learned to extract oxygen for use for breathing purposes. A long time ago Mars is presumed to have had more abundant oxygen.

The other sort of person on Mars would be "anaerobic," that is, not needing oxygen. Among bacteria and a few other low forms of life on earth, there are "anaerobes." They live without oxygen. So if evolution is plausible, life might develop on Mars with little need for oxygen.

Mars' temperature, around the equator, in summer is about 50 degrees Fahrenheit. This has been accurately measured by astronomers. Clouds have been seen in telescopes. They seem to stand about 15 miles above the surface. They may be huge dust storms.

A few "canals" are two thousand miles or more long, almost straight lines. They stretch across the planet's face at odd angles. Short feeders, like telephone cross-arms, enter them at some places.

Looks Like Vegetation

Some areas on Mars turn distinctly gray-green in summer. Vegetation is the best guess as to the cause of this color change.

If this is vegetation, it probably would be of a lowly, desert variety.

Photographs do not show the "canals" at all. These have to be seen with the eye. Some of the best astronomers claim to see them; others have denied the lines are visible.

The earth's separation from communication with Mars is becoming less certain now. Theoretically a space ship could make the flight.

Would Take 1,000 Years

Rocket ship propulsion would do it—for a man who had one thousand years or more to live and fuels which do not now exist.

In Running for Physics Prize

For outstanding work in radium research, one of the two men above is considered a likely winner of the Nobel Prize in physics. Professor Lawrence is with the University of California, and Professor Fermi, University of Rome.

The engineering principles have been established by rocket motor scientists. These have shown that a rocket will shoot through "empty" space, in fact, travel much easier there than in atmosphere.

Rocket engineers have produced speeds of 700 miles an hour with small rocket motors, and might predict that speeds of 1,000 miles an hour are attainable.

At that rate, unless the rocket ship travelled many times faster in space, it would take about 1,000 years to fly to Mars when the planet is closest. The distances from earth range from 34,000,000 miles to 46,000,000.

For Martians, if they exist, to be the pioneers in a trip between planets, much more advanced knowledge than exists on earth would be necessary. Scientists know that stores of high energy exist in the binding forces of atoms that could drive a rocket ship millions of miles.

But there is yet no idea of how this energy can be obtained, and some doubt that it can ever be done. If Martians have found out how to get atomic energy, it is likely they also have the materials and the engineering skill to make a flight to earth.

But no Martians have arrived, so this speculation, like all the others, ends in the verdict—no evidence of higher forms of life on Mars.

Blue Danube Will Aid Hitler's Drive to East

BACKGROUND

As Germany moves to bring central and southeastern Europe under her control, the experts on international affairs talk of a "Danubian economic empire" for Germany and of the "Danubian path to the east" for Hitler. Here's the story behind those phrases.

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN
AP Feature Service Writer
LONDON, Nov. 12—If Adolf Hitler whistles while he works, the tune these days should be the Blue Danube waltz—in march time. He is moulding the river which the famous song celebrates into a vital accessory for his march to the east.

That does not mean that the river—which, incidentally, is as muddy as the Mississippi—will be used to transport troops.

Once, long ago, the speed that troops made down the stream was largely responsible for the defeat of Turks who were besieging Vienna. But the river is too slow nowadays.

eyes on both the Russian Ukraine and the little countries in south-east Europe through which the river flows. But he hopes to win the latter through economic penetration, experts say, and save his bullets for Russia—if anyone.

If he doesn't cut straight across Poland, the quickest, most accessible route to Russia lies in the valley countries to the north of the river.

Hitler's economic march down the valley will win him—if plans work out—the Danubian economic empire necessary to his scheme for a great, self-contained Germany. The Danube, supplying cheap transportation, will weld the area into a compact unit with the Reich.

Now other countries can compete with Germany in southeast Europe. The reason: Germany must either ship her goods around Europe by water, or by rail to the Danube for transshipment on barges.

But in 1945 a canal on which the Nazis are now working furiously is scheduled for completion. It will link the Rhine and the Danube.

Then the industrialized Ruhr (situated along the lower Rhine on the continent's largest coal reserve) will be within cheap commercial reach of the largely undeveloped agricultural Balkans and of Turkey markets.

Goods to Go Both Ways
Seagoing barges can pick up the Ruhr's medium-priced machinery and transport it at a minimum cost down this 2,500 mile waterway.

On the return trip they can fill up with Rumanian oil, cereals from Hungary, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, timber from Austria and Czechoslovakia — all products which the Reich sorely needs.

Already the river is carrying

Eating "Recovery" Would Mean Farm Recovery, Says Researcher

By PAUL D. SHOEMAKER
AP Farm Editor

CHICAGO, Nov. 12—If people would eat as much as their forebears did, Harry G. Davis, director of research for the Farm Equipment Institute, believes farm surpluses wouldn't be such a troublesome problem.

Davis points to men mowing to work, children riding to school, nearly five times its pre-war volume in freight. New industries are springing up alongside. There are grandiose plans for others.

With control of the Danube, Germany may be able to revive the old 12th century passage to the East by cutting across Turkey into the lucrative Indian market without ever going near the British-dominated Mediterranean and Suez canal.

The Danube has been the route of conquerors for centuries. Romans marched east down the valley and sailed flotillas on the river.

Twelve hundred years later the Crusaders followed it to the east. In the 16th and 17th centuries the Turks came down it the other direction to lay siege to Vienna.

During the World War Austria's rulers, desperate from the food shortage smuggled grain up the stream.

After so exciting a history, it may seem dull to think of the "Mississippi of Southeast Europe" being transformed into purely an economic weapon. But the modern way of conquest is an economic one.

housewives sweeping with electricity as examples of the modern easy life.

Less food is required to generate the energy for today's life, he says.

Davis cited figures showing the per capita consumption of wheat declined 11.3 per cent, from 6.2 bushels per person for the 1900-09 decade to 5.5 bushels for the 1926-35 decade, while per capita corn consumption dropped 35.4 per cent, from 30.2 bushels to 19.5.

He also reported that the average number of cattle on farms declined 29.6 per cent.

"At the beginning of the century," Davis said, "workmen used more energy. They didn't have the mechanical aids. Many walked to work and carried lunch buckets almost twice as large as they do nowadays. Working hours were longer, too.

It's The Easy Life
"Thousands of children walked to school and home again. Housewives didn't have the electrical equipment they now use in their daily work.

"Naturally people do not burn up as much energy as formerly.

and consequently as much food." Davis said that he believes the market for surpluses "indicate farmers pace with the gain in production of products. Instead, rate under-consumption of the principal staples."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

I will both lay me down in peace, and sleep; for Thou, Lord, makest me dwell in safety.—Ps. 127:5.

Suffer not gentle sleep to close thine eyes, Ere thou hast thrice reviewed the labors of the day. What hast thou learned? What done? what duty neglected? For the evil thou hast done, repent; for the good, rejoice.

Remember: The pleasant path of duty Stamps daily things with beauty.

Whom to Re-Arm Against? First Problem of U. S.

BEFORE this re-armament talk goes any farther, the American people ought to take time out to decide exactly whom and what they are going to re-arm against.

President Roosevelt speaks of an army of 400,000 men. Plans for a substantially enlarged fleet are being discussed. Congress will undoubtedly be asked to consider "draft-capital" plans which, in the event of war, would turn the land into the tightest of totalitarian states.

We can't hope to discuss these things intelligently until we know precisely what we want our armaments to do.

PART of the answer is obvious enough. We want our own continent made secure against any possibility of attack. There can be no doubt that the American people will unanimously support whatever degree of re-armament is necessary to attain that end.

It is probable also that the citizens would agree to support any armament necessary to keep the aggressor nations out of the new world. For a great variety of reasons, Americans could not look on unconcerned if some predatory European power set out to gain a foothold in Latin-America. Most Americans are quite aware of our responsibility in that connection.

We also have interests in the Pacific. Even the most peace-loving American can hardly fail to see that we must arm with one eye on Japan. There can be no question but that America will pay for the strength necessary to make Japanese interference with our vital interests unlikely.

But beyond those things—do we want or need anything further? That is the question which we must answer before we draft our program. For the degree of preparedness which would be ample to cover those ends would be quite inadequate if we contemplated any adventures in Europe.

TO protect our own country, keep trouble-makers out of Latin-America and guard our interests in the Pacific, we need more than we now have—but not such a great deal more. We need a navy second to none, a somewhat larger air force, a compact army able to garrison such island outposts as we might seize in case of war, an augmented coast defense system—and nothing more.

But if we are going to fight in Europe again, some day, we need ever so much more than that. We need the framework for an army such as we raised in the last war—plus ships to transport it in, plus the industrial layout to equip and supply it, plus the machinery for enrolling and training it.

Now it is nonsense to say that we shall "inevitably" be drawn into any future European war. We shan't if we make up our minds not to be, and stick to it; and there is no reason on earth why we can't make such a choice.

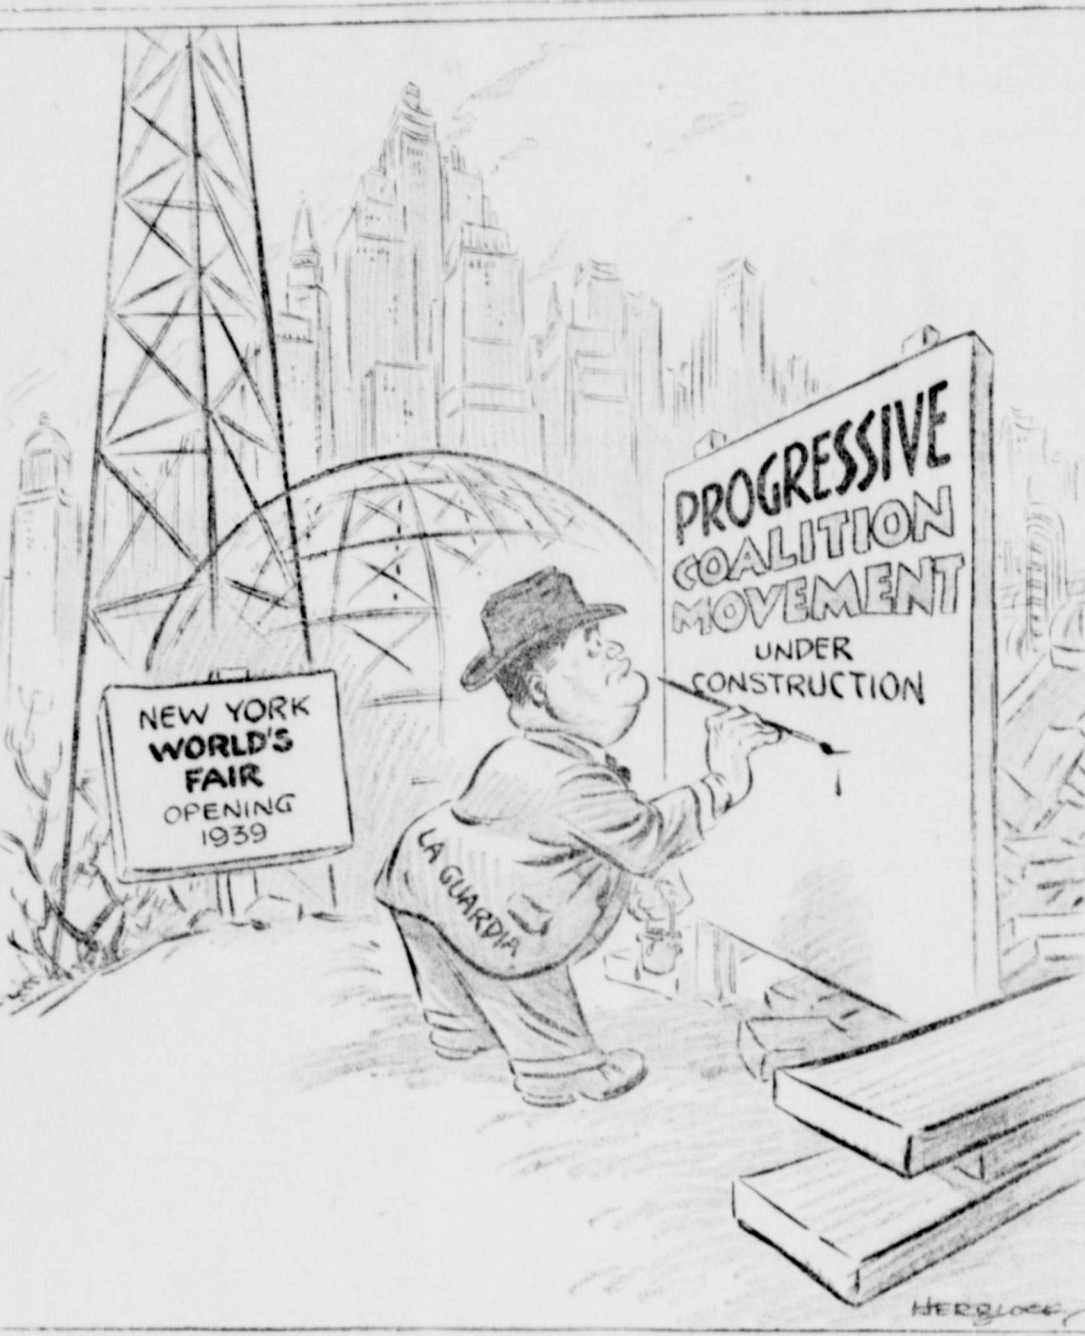

So let's make up our minds, once and for all. Then, and only then, can we go ahead intelligently and buy exactly what we need in the way of defense. We certainly won't be satisfied with anything less than we need—but there is no reason why we should pay for anything more, either.

SERIAL STORY LOVERS AWEIGH

COPYRIGHT, 1938
NEA SERVICE, INC.
BY BETTY WALLACE

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JUDY ALCOIT—admiral's daughter. She faced a choice between two navy suitors.
DWIGHT CAMPBELL—ambitious lieutenant. He faced a choice between his wife and duty.
JACK HANLEY—flying sailor. He faced a test of a patient love.
MARVEL HASTINGS—navy wife. She faced the test of being a good sailor.

Yesterday, after reuniting Judy of loving Dwight, Marvel prepares to leave hurriedly for Los Angeles. She refuses to reason with Judy about Dwight's sudden call to duty.

CHAPTER VI

Alcott walked out of the Coronado Hotel with the memory of Marvel Hastings' white face and narrowed green eyes throbbing inside her, she thought slowly, "I ought to hate her. But I don't. I feel sorry for her. She's in love with him, and she's so unsure."

But remembering what Marvel had flung at her, in that cool, arrogant voice, she flushed. "You're in love with him." It hadn't taken Marvel long to see that. Because she was jealous. Jealous, and unsure.

Judy drove home slowly. Dwight was out at sea now. She thought of white waves, boiling astern. Of gray ships riding the high seas in a proud battle line. She thought of lines rolling down a carrier's deck. A signal, and they were whirling aloft. Facing the sky, sharing in a vast, incomprehensible job that no woman could ever wholly understand. "Even their ships," she said to herself, "are better friends, more to be trusted, than their wives."

The ships came back in four days. Judy stood on the pier, watching the liberty boats put up to the water. How many times she had seen them like this, gliding smoothly into the harbor, dropping a anchor, announcing proudly that the job was done. What job? She didn't know. It didn't matter.

scouting and meeting the patrol boats and all that."

Yet the look on his face meant more than mere routine flights. There was more to it than that. She asked swiftly, "Casualties?"

"One," he admitted reluctantly. He told her that a light fighter off the Enterprise, spiraling into the clouds, had some way gotten into trouble. Not engine trouble for the mechanics checked the ships too carefully before each flight. "Maybe he got rattled. He never did fly into formation." He had nose dived, spinning into the sea, and one of the big flying boats had come down on the choppy water to render assistance. "Only," he said carefully, not looking at her. "It was too late." She licked her suddenly dry lips.

Man Was Stabbed By Playful Monkey

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 14.—John Steinhoff was stabbed by Will Colvin's pet monkey over pickings from the Steinhoff lunch pail.

Jocko, the monkey, appeared while Steinhoff was unpacking the lunch in the shade of Colvin's orchard.

Jocko started picking tid-bits from the pail and then stabbed Steinhoff's arm with a pruning knife when the man tried to drive him off.

The monkey scampered into a nearby tree and Steinhoff was taken to a hospital.

Bull Appraises The Appraisers

ELGIN, Ill., Nov. 14 (AP)—Attorneys Joseph J. Wiedemann and Almore H. Teschke of Elgin went to the Morris Dolbey farm to appraise a cow.

They walked right up to the animal and started examining it. But the cow was a bull and he charged the appraisers. They escaped after a lively sprint to the nearest fence.

MYRA NORTH, Special Nurse By Thompson & C

A Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Of the engravings decorating the library of the Chinese embassy at the time of the arrival of the new ambassador, Dr. Hu Shih, several were on one theme—ruin.

Half of the dozen engravings hung high on the wall above the book shelves showed stone buildings in various stages of decay and collapse.

The most prominent space in the library, the spot over the mantel, was occupied by another engraving. This one showed Napoleon in that historic pose aboard the British ship as he was being removed to Elba. The British officers deeply in awe of him, are crowded far into the background, midships.

The library decorations appeared symbolic, for Dr. Hu comes as ambassador to the United States at a time when more than half of his country has been put under foreign domination and the national leader, Chiang Kai-shek, is backing away, far inland.

Of the several embassy attaches present during the interview, one wore yards of gold braid on his uniform. The others were in cut-aways and striped trousers.

A Philosopher and Poet

Reporters who went to see Ambassador Hu for his first official press conference found him reasonably cheerful. He is China's leading modern philosopher, a poet as well. Hu is shortish, but trim, perhaps five feet six, wears spectacles. He studied philosophy and history at Cornell and Columbia, taking high honors. Altogether it was a fairly gloomy affair. The reporters knew in advance that the ambassador would say one thing: "We will fight on." He said it. Beyond that the business was perfunctory, forced. Occasionally Dr. Hu recalled that he was a philosopher and so not addicted to wishful thinking. However, at one point he said he would indulge himself to enough wishful thinking to look for a time when Japan, strained desperately by the invasion, might collapse financially or become a target for foreign attack.

No One Took Tea

Perhaps two dozen reporters went out to the ambassador's home, which is in a wooden section well isolated among the trees. Drinks and sandwiches were served, along with sherry. You can't go to a foreign press conference in this city any more without running into snacks. An alcohol lamp kept a silver pot of water hot for tea but none was poured. The kettle boiled quietly along during the press conference.

Dr. Hu has spent much of his active life under revolutionary conditions. He began writing and speaking for the revolution which upset the old dynasty in 1911 and since had a part in every turnover since, always as a writer, philosopher and teacher, not as a soldier.

What will happen to him as an ambassador cannot be foreseen. If his country is totally liquidated, it won't be the first one this year. Dr. Prochnik, ambassador from Austria, was a diplomat one day and jobless the next. Now he is a lecturer in the foreign service school at Georgetown University here. He doesn't go about much, socially, any more. He has been dropped from the state department's official list of diplomats.

EASTLAND, Nov. 14 —Texas Pacific Coal and Oil company has completed No. 2 Caddy, section 44, block 4, T&P survey, in Stephens county for 27 barrels daily on pump.

Completion was following a 20- quart shot in the sand, 1,392-1,913 feet. Total depth was 1,930 feet. The well is two miles southeast of Caddo.

In Comanche county, Whiteside Brothers have completed No. 1 Anderson, block 6, Lampasas county school land, six miles southwest of Sipe Springs, for 10 barrels daily from a sand 583-994 feet, total depth.

Near Putnam, Callahan county, Warren and Kleiner of Cisco were drilling at 450 feet on No. 1 E. H. Williams, section 17, D&DA survey. Location is 300 feet west of the same operator's No. 1 Dr. F. E. Clark, which this week was given an initial production test showing 20 barrels daily. Pro- duction was from approximately 735 feet. Near Gorman, Christmas, Hale

South Africans To Overhaul Defenses

CAPETOWN, Nov. 14 (P) — Urging a "strong forward move- ment" in South African defense, a meeting of the Empire group of South Africa passed a resolution stating that it is of vital impor- tance—

(1) To register a reserve for the active citizen and coast garrison force.

(2) To organize and register the civilian population in order to set up an efficient system of air raid precautions.

(3) To modernize the Cape Pe- ninsula defenses and those of the naval base.

The triumph of the New York Yankees over the Chicago Cubs in the World Series gave the New Yorkers the distinction of being the first club ever to annex three successive world championships.

Confidence Holds Up Well in Petroleum Field

HOUSTON, Nov. 14.—Confidence has held up well in the petroleum industry in the face of the recent declines of prices for crude and refined oils, and the oil companies and operators have proceeded with their relatively aggressive drilling programs.

This is indicated by the latest monthly survey of drilling presented by The Oil Weekly, which shows that development continued in October as in earlier months at about the same proportions as in 1936, a relatively active year in the oil fields.

In recent years, October drilling has always been a little greater than that of September, even on a daily average basis, the magazine pointed out, and this was true again this year, despite the disturbed market situation. (Crude oil prices were reduced before the middle of the month throughout the United States except California, and at the same time, the markets for gasoline and some other refined products weakened further.)

Well completions in the United States in October averaged 76.2 daily according to the survey, having increased from 73.4 daily in September. The October activity was smaller than that in October last year, when completions averaged 102 daily, but it was practically as large as that in October, 1936, when the average was 79.1 completions daily.

In the first 10 months of this year, 23,213 wells were completed in the United States, or 15.3 per cent less than the 27,423 finished in the corresponding period last year.

Although this decrease has occurred for the country as a whole, various states and districts have been more active this year than last year. Illinois has had the most noteworthy expansion in drilling, because of the development of its new flush fields, completions having been nearly six times as numerous in 1936 as in 1937. Adjacent Kentucky and Indiana also have shared to some extent in the increase of development precipitated by the Illinois discoveries.

Beware The Cough
From a common cold
That Hangs

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Creomulsion not only contains the soothing elements found in many cough remedies, such as Syrup of White Pine Compound with Tar, and fluid extract of Licorice Root, but it also has fluid extract of Ipecac for its powerful phlegm loosening effect, fluid extract of Cascara for its mild laxative effect, and most important of all, Beechwood Creosote nicely blended with all of these so that it will reach the source of the trouble from the inside.

Thousands of people, who really know their drugs, use Creomulsion in their own families, realizing that this excellent preparation aids nature to soothe the inflamed mucous membranes, to heal the irritated tissues, and to loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm. Druggists also know the effect of Beechwood Creosote and Creomulsion "tops" for a cause in it you get a palatable, and may be quantified by both adults and children with remarkable hang on for a steady relief thereafter. Creomulsion is one you get the genuine product relief you want. (Ad)

YOUR BUSY LIFE LETS DOWN THE BARS TO NERVE STRAIN

HE'S GIVING HIS NERVES A REST... AND SO IS HE

They break Nerve Tension — Millions do — They "Let up — Light up a Camel"

ARE these busy, trying days for you? Do you find yourself, at day's end, irritable, nerve-weary? Take a moment — study the dog above. He's resting his nerves. Even in the midst of strenuous action he will stop, relax. The dog does that instinctively, though his nerves are complex, high-keyed like our own.

We, trained for the intense stress of modern life, are likely to ignore the distress signals of our nerves — the instinctive urge to rest. So often, we let our will-power drive us on at a task, heedless of nerve tension.

You don't want your nervous system to be a drag. See what a difference it makes when you rest your nerves frequently — when you LET UP — LIGHT UP A CAMEL. Enjoy the mellow goodness, the matchless mildness of Camel's rich, ripe tobaccos. Smokers say Camel's costlier tobaccos are so soothing to the nerves.

A LINOTYPE OPERATOR sets type on a complicated machine. In this trying work, more and more men are learning to ease nerve strain by letting up — lighting up a Camel.

DID YOU KNOW?
—that if a roll of cigarette paper were not cut as it runs through the machine, it would make a cigarette a mile long? That modern cigarette machines turn out 800 to 1000 finished cigarettes per minute? That the output of every machine is continuously under inspection and test to make sure each and every Camel is perfect? Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic.

Smoke 6 packs of Camels and find out why they are the LARGEST-SELLING CIGARETTE IN AMERICA

A QUARTER-MILLION miles of flying are behind Miss Lolly Sisson (left), air hostess on TWA's "Sky Chief." She says: "Caring for passengers on long flights is a real strain on the nerves, but I keep away nerve tension by pausing when I can. I let up and light up a Camel."
