

NEW SHALLOW TEST FOR CISCO TERRITORY

Lowest Temperatures Promised in New Cold Wave

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

The junior chamber of commerce is getting ready to "go to it" in a big way with its second trade promotion program for the month of December. The first will be the children's rodeo at the soft ball next Saturday afternoon, which will include opportunities for some of the more business men to show their wares aboard horseback, begin at 1:30, Carlton Holder led by a parade, which will be at the north end of D avenue, led by the Lobo band, and to the park to arrive in time for the show to commence.

There are no more than six in the parade," said Holder, "going to start it at 1 p. m."

Every horse and saddle in the surrounding country is being prepared for that parade, along with every Shetland pony, dog and even mule. Children are being put on their feet and their pet mounts are particularly wanted.

Advertising for the rodeo in the form of placards already has been scattered throughout the trade territory. The event, which is expected to bring a tremendous crowd, Cisco merchants should throw in with the parade in a big way to put this over right.

The TCU won as expected, and ask D. G. Streater didn't predict they'd win by much. Now the question is "Who will go to the Bowl?" According to a report in the papers the other day Tennessee Volunteers had the lead. The scribbler of the piece figured that the Duke Dennis would be liked by the Pittsburgh Panther and so out Wally Wade's boys beat their chickens had hatched. It didn't seem to pay much attention to the Southwest's campaign, probably being opinionated by the liking which the coast teams seem to have for representatives from Alabama and Tennessee.

It was suggested that in the Tennessee is selected by west coast team that Duke TCU be invited to play in the Bowl. I am of the opinion that any such meeting would overshadow the Rose Bowl game that most folks would favor. However, there is little doubt that such a magnificent event could be arranged in the west. If it should be there, it wouldn't be any paper published in Cisco on the day it was played.

Successful Band Banquet Closes Probation Period

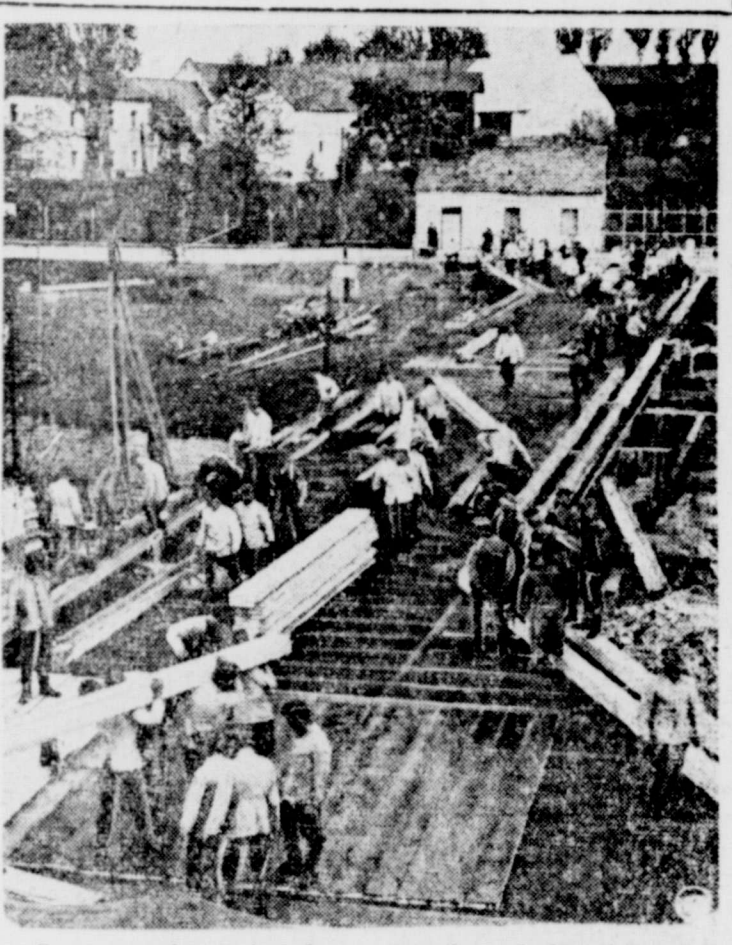

One of the most beautiful and successful banquets that any high school organization has ever held Friday night marked the high spot of the Lobo band's social calendar, and brought surcease to trouble of band members, who endured a week of service before graduating into full-fledged seniors automatically Friday midnight.

The banquet was held in the basement of the First Christian church in a setting made lovely with yellow candles and festoons of evergreen. Places were laid for 165. Band President Vance Bowman presided and presented the three principal speakers, W. J. Leach, band committee chairman, who spoke on the band's relation to the community, E. B. Isaacks, president of the Band Parents club, who spoke on the band's relation to the parents, and Mrs. Alfred Irbly, who spoke on the band's relation to the schools.

Wilson to Work at Washington

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26 (AP)—Acting Secretary Welles of the state department said Saturday that Hugh Wilson, who arrived here Saturday from his post as Ambassador to Berlin, would be assigned to the state department for an indefinite period.

Welles said Wilson would take up duty as a consultant as soon as he returns from a conference over the week-end with President Roosevelt at Warm Springs, Ga.

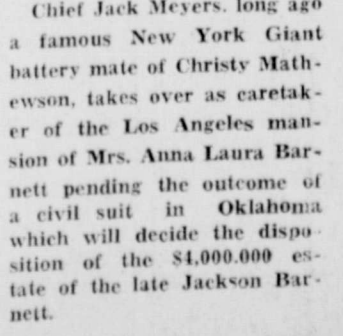

Welles said Wilson's duties would be to advise state department officials on German affairs. Although no further information was given, it was indicated this action might be preliminary to Wilson's permanent transfer from his Berlin post.

Indications of the state department that the decision whether he shall return to Germany has not yet been made and probably will not be made for several weeks.

It is probable that the German Ambassador Hans Dieckhoff, who sailed this week for Berlin, will not return until Wilson's status is clarified.

Wilson's recall already has been interpreted in some quarters as a sign of stern presidential disapproval of the latest outburst of Jewish persecutions in Germany.

Wilson Saturday went into conference with the acting secretary of state.

SUITOR KILLS WOMAN; TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Slayer Angered When Pleas for Marriage Are Spurned

NEW YORK, Nov. 26 (AP)—An attractive young red-haired woman was shot and killed Saturday on the seventh floor of the Grand Central Terminal building in the heart of the midtown section as she fled from a man, described by police as a disappointed lover.

The man then shot himself through the right temple and was dead when police arrived.

The woman was identified as Marian Wheeler, 32, of Yonkers, N. Y., a clerk in the office of L. V. Porter, comptroller of the New York Central railroad. Her slayer was tentatively identified as John McNeal, 32, a widower, of Yonkers, N. Y.

Police Capt. Patrick Kenny said fellow employes of Miss Wheeler told him McNeal had argued with her in vain to marry him, and lately had become so abusive that she was in fear of her life.

Scores of persons in the crowded Park avenue office building which adjoins Grand Central terminal heard the shots.

McNeal met Miss Wheeler by accident or design as she was going to work. Captain Kenny said he learned the two quarreled bitterly as they rode up to the seventh floor in the elevator, and were still arguing as Miss Wheeler started down the corridor to the office. Suddenly she began to run. Captain Kenny said the man then drew a .32 caliber revolver and fired three times. All of the bullets hit Miss Wheeler in the back, felling her at the entrance to her office.

McNeal then shot himself.

"Pawnshops" Are Opened by Nazis to Help Jews Pay

BERLIN, Nov. 26 (AP)—German nazis Saturday opened a glorified pawn brokerage business to help hard pressed Jews raise funds to pay the $400,000,000 fine imposed for the assassination of Ernst Vom Rath.

The Berlin chamber of industry and commerce started a bureau on behalf of the economics ministry to take over jewels, art works and other valuable objects from Jews throughout Germany.

The fine's first installment, due Dec. 15, is to be cash principally. Many Jews have been assessed 20 per cent of their wealth as part of the fine and will have to liquidate much of their personal property to raise the money.

It was explained that this central bureau was established to make it easier to convert possessions into cash after appraisal by experts.

Finance Minister Count Lutz Schwerin-Krosigk has reserved the right in collecting the fine to empower officials "in suitable cases" to take securities and real estate when later installments come due Feb. 15, May 15 and Aug. 15.

BAIRD MAN TO DRILL 2 MILES SOUTH OF CITY

Location for 1,200 Foot Well on E. N. Strickland Land

Location was made Saturday for a shallow test on the E. N. Strickland land two miles south of Cisco by Sam Henderson of Baird. The well which will be started this week will be drilled to the 1,200 sand where a good showing was reported in a well drilled by C. M. Root in 1926. The Root well topped a sand at 1,165 feet and drilled through it at 1,200 feet. Showing was estimated from 25 to 100 barrels daily.

Location of the test is in the southwest quarter of Section 45, Block 3, H. and T. C. survey, only a short distance southeast of the Root well. It is about a mile east of Highway 23.

A giant spudder rig will be used. Henderson has a block of 600 acres.

There is a considerable body of opinion to the effect that a large pool of oil exists in that section. Showings of a considerable extent have been found in a wide variety of operations although no discoveries of sufficient character to warrant extensive activity have been found.

Henderson's test will be watched with considerable interest, especially in view of the fact that it will test a different and a shallow horizon.

Meanwhile, west of Cisco in the Clark area two miles south of Pecos, Warren and Kleiner spudded their third well Friday and Stiles, et al, of Eastland were drilling ahead in a well, the Clark No. 1 of Warren and Kleiner. Production is from a 300-foot sand.

The territory has attracted widespread interest and predictions of a large shallow pool have been made.

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Any one looking for the New Anglo-American trade treaty to draw a throttling cordon around the neck of German trade likely will be disappointed.

Trade experts point out that German exports to this country are largely goods in which Germany specializes. Two of the largest classifications are chemicals, of which this country's importations are extensive, and cameras and lenses. The boom in the German export of cameras to this country has been one of the outstanding trade developments in some time. Camera-conscious America is demanding an increasing portion of German types as well as those made in America.

Since the German exports to this country are mostly her own specialties, trade experts say English goods are not likely to replace them extensively even with the concessions granted by the U. S. in the treaty.

"Intangibles" May Hit Nazis

Any blow at Germany will be found in the "intangible" factors in connection with the treaties. These treaties and others already negotiated have linked France, England, Canada and the United States in a trade group pledged to treat one another fairly and without discrimination. Among those nations and others willing to reciprocate, trade will be on a non-discriminatory basis as distinguished from the German-style nance subcommittee, and Republican Arthur Vandenberg at Washington hearing on industrial profit sharing.

It should be remembered that both the United States and the British Isles enjoy extensive trade with Germany in spite of barrier difficulties. It is a fairly advantageous trade in both instances. Both the United States and England find Germany a good market for petroleum products. England also sells Germany coal, iron ore and copper, of which she has either plenty or access to plenty.

In turn, the United States sells to Germany cotton and a host of agricultural products, just such products as she sells to England. In recent years the cotton market has largely failed, being usurped by Brazil which is able to absorb in exchange for her cotton a larger share of German manufactures than this country's competitive industries will permit. In 1934, however, we sent Germany 1000,000,000 pounds.

England's concessions to the United States are largely on agricultural products, which will not injure Germany's trade with England because Germany does not sell agricultural products. Instead she is an avid buyer of them from any country which will sell under her own particular exchange terms.

Same Concessions To Nazis

It is barely possible that the concessions given the United States in trade with Britain and the colonies may make it easier for Germany to compete with the U. S. in these markets. For while it is true that Germany is on our blacklist, she is not blacklisted by England. So, every concession England granted to the United States she also grants to Germany. That isn't as ominous as it might sound, as here again, the concessions are mainly on goods which we have to sell but Germany doesn't.

The primary aim of the Anglo-American trade pact is to increase the net amount of trade between the two countries without necessarily squeezing out any other country. It is quite likely that such an increase will be reflected in an increased trade on all hands, Germany included, as Secretary Hull hoped.

The reductions made by the two countries and Canada are important but not exactly revolutionary. One trade analyst said the most immediate increase in trade would result from the assurance of stability of conditions. As long as the treaty was pending and uncertain, exporters and importers as well as domestic business men have felt uncertain as to what to expect. Many trade commitments have been held up. Now that uncertainty is gone.

Exports from the state of Georgia during the first eight months of 1938 amounted to $12,713,240 against imports of $6,999,361.

Approximately 65 per cent of Polish workers make their living from agriculture.

HOW 25 WOMEN LOST UGLY FAT In Special N. Y. Test

Ask Your Doctor If It Isn't Good Way. Read Every Word

NEW YORK, N. Y.—In a test by a prominent N. Y. physician and nationally known newspaper woman—25 women lost a total of 250 lbs. in 30 days. YOU, too, can follow this SAME, SENSIBLE plan right at home and here it is:

First of all go light on fatty meats and sweets. Eat plentifully of lean meats, fish, fowl, fresh fruits and vegetables. And for proper functioning—take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen salts in hot water every morning. DON'T MISS A MORNING! And this is important: Kruschen is NOT harmful. It is not just one salt as some people ignorantly believe. Rather it's a blend of 6 active mineral salts—found right on box which when dissolved in water make a beautiful mineral drink similar to famous European spa waters where wealthy fat women have gone for years. A jar of Kruschen costs only a few cents and makes 3 gallons of a most highly efficient mineral drink.

So, fat ladies—get some punishment! MAKE UP YOUR MIND YOU'LL STICK to the above plan for 28 days—and just see if you don't lose fat and feel healthier and younger. (Note: You can get Kruschen at drug stores everywhere.)

STORIES IN STAMPS

The Story of a Famous Imagination

A POOR start for a great career was Hans Christian Andersen's. He was born at Odense, Denmark, on April 2, 1805. His father was a sickly shoemaker of 22, and his mother, still younger, was also fragile. Moreover, they were miserably poor. The whole family lived and slept in one room.

Perhaps the lack of things helped to foster young Hans' imagination as he passed his infancy. At any rate he early showed a disposition to shift for himself. After his father died in 1816 Hans ceased to attend school. Instead, he built himself a little toy theater and sat at home making clothes for his puppets and reading all the plays that he could borrow. Among them were those of Holberg and Shakespeare.

On Easter, 1819, Hans was confirmed in the Church of St. Knud, Odense, and began to turn his thoughts to the future. Wishing to be an opera singer he started for Copenhagen. There he was received as a lunatic, snubbed, and nearly starved to death. He then turned to a dancing school, found friends who later won his access to the theater. There King Frederick VI became interested in the strange boy, sent him to a grammar school free for several years. Before he had finished his studies young Andersen had published the first volume.

But his real success was to come in 1833 with the publication of the first volume of his immortal "Fairy Tales." He wrote many novels through the years but each new volume of the "Fairy Tales" brought him increasing fame. Andersen died in 1875. He is shown here on a 1935 Danish stamp honoring him.

October Stock Shipments Above 1937 Period

AUSTIN, Nov. 26.—Forwardings of Texas livestock to the Fort Worth stockyards and interstate points during October were sharply above those of the like month last year, although aggregate shipments for the year to date were still substantially below those of the corresponding period last year, a result of unfavorable year-to-year comparisons in preceding months, according to the University of Texas bureau of business research.

Reports from all railroad shipping points in the state and the Fort Worth Stock Yard company show total shipments of 11,196 cars during October, compared with 9,119 cars during the corresponding month last year, an increase of 22 per cent. Cattle shipments, 6,727 cars, increased 20 per cent; calf shipments, 2,393 cars, increased 23 per cent; sheep forwardings, 1,651 cars, rose 60 per cent. The only class of livestock to show a decline was—425 cars, compared with cars last year, a drop of 15 per cent.

Receipts at the Fort Worth market showed little change from October last year. The large increase was registered in the Los Angeles market. Much of the increase in shipments went to feeding areas such as Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, and Indiana.

If the total American population was divided evenly among 128 million inhabitants, each person would have received $48.89 a week, during 1937-38.

OVERS AWEIGH

BY BETTY WALLACE

OF CHARACTERS ALCOTT—admiral's she faced a choice between navy suitors.

"I've got to talk to you. Is Bill home?" "No. He's on the Enterprise. Deviling acrology or something. They're going out in the morning, and he had until midnight. But she laughed. "The honey-moon is over when he doesn't take full advantage of every liberty."

Judy knew better than that. She knew that Diane respected Bill's anxiety about the weather, and she knew, too that those extra hours of fellowship and work aboard the ship were actually necessary if Bill was to keep up his excellent record.

"Dwight Campbell came to the house tonight," she said. "What shall I do? He wants me to—" "Don't tell me! Let me guess." Diane towed her dark hair vigorously, and then let it fall back, a soft cloud of black. "We want you to explain etiquette. The Navy's own Emily Post."

Judy was silent. Diane said, "I hope you sent him packing!" "N-no. I didn't." Diane picked up a comb. "Of all the damnwitted nincompoops I ever saw! You told him you would!" "That's about it. And please—won't you help me?"

Diane said, "The Navy League for the Rescue of Becalmed Vulgarians in Heavy Seas," she said. "Or is that mixed?" "I get the idea."

"What do you want me to do? Join you in lecturing?" "Stop it, Diane. I—this is serious. I thought you—well—we could invite her to bridge, or something."

"At a twentieth of a point!" Judy said. "Ellen Sharp and Magda Hamilton would come. They're sweet. And that Bostwick girl and—"

"Two tables," said Diane. "And I'd have to feed them. And that girl for Billy."

But in the end, she consented. Yet the bridge party was a dismal affair. Marvel insisted on talking about her interior decorator and her new clothes and the housewarming that the other women were uneasily aware was premature.

Tagada Hamilton and Diane talked of their children. Marvel said, "I don't see how you keep it up! Always talking about babies! It seems to me that if they didn't have any teeth, it would be more remarkable than merely cutting them." She tried to make the remark sound light and humorous, but it fell flat. No one laughed.

At four o'clock she cried, "Mercy, I've got to run! I have a tea date downtown. You'll excuse me!" They were delighted to see her go. Judy knew. And not once during the afternoon had the conversation turned to the subject Judy had hoped it would. That was odd, because usually politics of a naval description hogged much of the time. Who might be passed over. Was it true that this wife or that had pulled a honor at a reception. That sort of thing.

Jane Bostwick looked out of the window at where Marvel was maneuvering her long, shining car out of the tangle of small, elderly Fords. Jane said, "I suppose I'm jealous."

And then the post-mortem began. Lieutenant Sharp's wife, a girl who had been a school teacher in the east, and who had been shy and unsure of herself at first, said, "I feel sorry for her. But she's got it different from most brides. She thinks she's better than the Navy. I thought I wasn't good enough."

"I know one thing," said Magda Hamilton. "I could hardly keep myself from telling her not to order too much food for that housewarming. Nobody will come."

"Why not?" asked Judy quietly. "She didn't call on the commandant's wife, she didn't even return Mrs. Lane's tea. And that's his skipper, remember! That awful brassy, Gertrude Hatcher, won't come because she takes a slight to her superiors as a slight to herself. I can't. Tammy won't go. He says this girl is a vixen. The exec's wife told me in a roundabout way that she won't come. Who will be there?"

"I will," said Judy. There was a shocked silence. Then Diane said sensibly, "No one won't. Not if—" "I will," said Judy again. "She may not know much about the amenities, but she's Dwight Campbell's wife, and he's a friend of mine. He's a friend of all of you. Mrs. Lane is very fond of him. I'm sure she'll come, returned tea or none. Mother certainly has nothing against her, and if Daddy goes, everybody else will, too!"

That was true enough. The silence deepened. Judy plunged rashly. "Admiral Alcott will be there," she said. "I'll see to it!"

13 Stalwarts of TCU Squad Play Their Last Year

FORT WORTH, Nov. 26.—What will the Frog team of 1929 look like? Minus its O'Brien, its Aldrich, Hale, White, Kline, Hall, and next year's Purple eleven upheld T. C. U. football tradition and became a winner?

It will be farewell for 13 of Coach Dutch Meyer's griffin stalwarts—key men in the present Frog setup who have lifted T. C. U. to the greatest heights of football success that it has ever enjoyed.

Outstanding among the losses from this year's squad will be, of course, Capt. I. B. Hale, Ki Aldrich and, perhaps the one who will be the worst-missed of all, Dynamic Davey O'Brien. However, one cannot overlook the strength like hefty Forrest Kline, Allie White and Russell Hensch in the line and Johnny Hall and Lucy McClanahan and Ward Wilkinson in the backfield.

Capt. Hale was a starter as a sophomore in 1926, taking over a tackle post from the beginning like a vet. Sub-Capt. Ki Aldrich has started every Frog game since he was eligible for varsity, with a very few exceptions.

O'Brien was overshadowed by Sam Bough as a sophomore but got lots of action and earned his "T". Since then he has been the heart and soul of the Frog defense, just as Ki is of the offense. As a junior last year, Davey missed only 14 minutes of play in 10 of the toughest games a T. C. U. team ever played in a single season.

Hensch, Paul Snow and Bob Jordan, all letter ends, will not be back next fall. There are six letter wings on the present Frog squad.

White, the great defensive tackle who could play on anybody's team, according to Line Coach Mike Brumbelow, has been a starter ever since the beginning of his junior year. Kline, 140-pound guard, is a three-year veteran who close observers say is the most under-rated player in the conference.

Clifford Kellow, squadman for three years who plays guard, is the only other man at that position besides Kline who will be in the backfield for the Frogs.

LIST everything you've ever hoped for in an automobile at any price—chances are you'll find 'em all in the new Ford cars.

Both the Ford and the De Luxe Ford reach new heights in beauty, inside and out. They are true to the Ford tradition of brilliant, dependable service with economy. They are still set apart in the low-price field by their eight-cylinder engines. And "eight-cylinder quality" is reflected in all their new features.

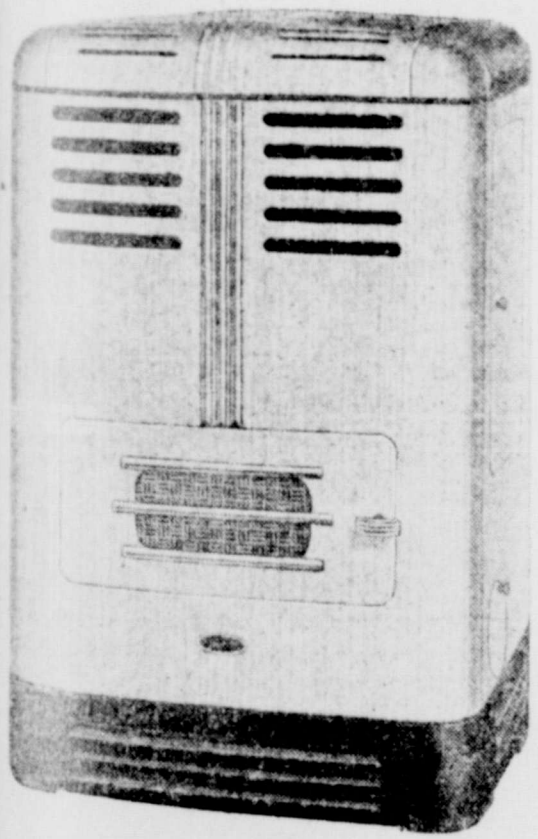

There's a fine new "ride" this year in both Ford cars—Triple-Cushioned Comfort! The new hydraulic brakes are big, powerful and precision-built to strict Ford standards of safety. Scientific soundproofing brings new standards of quiet operation.

With many other improvements, with Ford quality higher than ever, and with an unusual amount of equipment included—the lower 1939 prices emphasize Ford ability to give more for the money each year. Your Ford dealer invites you to see the new cars.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

If you want to do things, let God command them, so when they fail, you will not be ashamed, and all this people shall also do in their place in person. — 2 Cor. 13:14

Know that whatever earthly god wrote summons he must, supports the earth, and Hence the most vital moment mortals see is hope, the helm and life-blood of the soul.

What sweet enjoyment it is to be able to shed a little happiness around us! What an easy and agreeable task is that of trying to render others happy!

An Appropriate Name?

WE may be tempted to laugh at such advocates of organizations as the Curiosity clubs, blackshirt organizations found to exist in Oklahoma City high schools, as something of no importance but we may well ask ourselves the question: To what extent do such organizations among high school students indicate a certain dangerous idealism finding root in the young mind? It is extremely doubtful that there is any real menace in the clubs themselves. They merely indicate a liking for the romantic features and trappings of imitated organization without any appreciation of the realities that underly these trappings, in some such manner, perhaps, as the uniforms worn by bands and other social organizations are modeled on themes borrowed of the military.
The Curiosity clubs are the result of the romantic appeal of the "isms" dictatorships and of the natural interest in secretive organizations.

BUT the ideal is very often taught by the sign, and the fact that there are high school organizations which espouse such trappings indicates the extent to which foreign ideologies are making impression upon our youthful mind.

IT suggests that perhaps we are not dramatizing democracy sufficiently. Our citizens, born and reared in democracy, take it for granted. They may think they know what the terms nazi, fascist and communist mean, and have some idea of what it means to live under such governments. But they do not. And they do not realize to what extent dramatization and organization have made these European "isms" acceptable.

And they do not realize, therefore, how necessary it is to make the advantages of the government under which we live sufficiently real to the young minds which have inherited these advantages. The discovery of such organizations as the Curiosity clubs, it seems to us, should emphasize the need of a more serious education in the principles of democracy for the children in our schools.
The name "Curiosity club" appears to be peculiarly appropriate in this connection.

Hull Plan Increases U. S. Commerce

"U. S. COMMERCE increases under Hull's plan," says a caption. Thus again one of the most significant parts of the New Deal program—the most significant part, we might say—is dealt with under a modest heading. Exports and imports from countries with which the quiet man in the state department has negotiated trade agreements have shown great increases over those from nations with which no agreements have been made. Quietly but efficiently the secretary of state has been going about the unspectacular business of breaking down trade barriers between this and other countries, opening up the world channels to the interchange of goods and the development of prosperous international trade which is the only effective answer to those diplomatic problems which are wrinkling the brows of statesmen the world over. Where Hull goes trade is going and when the history of the New Deal is written, whether or not it will be a success will in the largest measure, no doubt, rest upon the efforts of the secretary of state.
Conclusion of a trade treaty with the British empire is the latest and crowning achievement of Hull's program. Great Britain is by far our largest customer. The agreement with Britain, then, is of vast importance and we may look for even greater increase in the trade of this country abroad and, consequently, a greater increase in domestic economic activity as a result of this pact.

Old enemies of Ataturk turned out for his funeral in great numbers. A little impatient at the delay, no doubt.

Purge news from abroad will be side-tracked for the next few weeks while football coaches are liquidated.

CUBIC FOOT OF DRY SAND WEIGHS MORE THAN A CUBIC FOOT OF DAMP SAND! RIGHT OR WRONG?

ANSWER: Right. Dry sand is heavier, measure for measure, than wet sand... up to a certain percentage of moisture. Sand, on being dampened moderately, increases in volume all out of proportion to the amount of water added.

OUT OUR WAY

By William Ferguson

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

Belongings are not easily identified. We might almost wish that the good things of the world had been personally labeled; then the right intentioned person at least could have some certainty as to when he had reached his quota. But even that would not insure everyone having neither less nor more than his own. The Eighth Commandment says tersely, "Thou shalt not steal." But it has taken the ethical discussions of all the centuries since to even partially define the crime. The difficulty lies largely in the vague notions of men as to where personal possession ends and the strong desire for possession that lives like fire in his own apportioning of goods.

Many a man has excused himself for helping himself to things not his own on the plea that circumstances or the schemes of other men had kept him from getting his share. Therefore he can get to make up the deficiency, even though he may thus leave another more lacking than he was. If this plan worked so as to take from those who had unjustly got more than their share it would not be so bad. And yet it would be conscience-blunting enough to the man who took even in this way what was not his own. Many a robbery has been perpetrated on this ground. There has been too much glorification of the crimes of these last few years after the manner of the romance of Robin Hood. A man said to me one time to excuse his negligence of a Christian profession, "A man can't stay in business and be a Christian." He thought the business world is too full of practices inconsistent with such a profession to permit a man to succeed and be honest. Of course I did not agree with him. But it is that specious argument which presents the chief difficulty in getting business on a strictly open and honest basis today. And yet stealing includes all tricky ways of getting what is not mine.

At 84 she rode on the "rumbly seat" of a motor-bicycle "because," she explained, "I saw other girls doing it."

At 90 she learned to drive a car.

WHAT IT MEANS---

Trade Pacts

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
WASHINGTON.—Scraps of new trade treaties with Canada and the British Empire down to their economic bones, and you have left a fairly simple agreement that will test out two opposing principles of international trade—regular tariffs vs. rigged tariffs.

It's really a small-scale experiment, for the great bulk of trade between the two nations will remain its great burden of tariff duties. A few outstanding reductions in duties will provide the basis for the experiment.

Practically all nations today are high tariff nations. Most have gone a lot farther; they restrict imports by imposing quotas, and prohibit the exchange of money between foreign sellers and domestic buyers.

Germany is the outstanding exponent of these "rigged" tariffs, bating foreign sellers with higher prices, and at the same time protecting important industries with subsidies. Foreign sellers, however, must spend in Germany most of the money they collect for the goods they sell there.

Meanwhile, Cordell Hull, the American Secretary of State, has insisted that the whole scheme of things is heading to a ruinous economic war that eventually will deadlock world trade.

High T. Off Principles Fixed
Mr. Hull agrees that the principle of high tariffs is too well established everywhere, especially in the United States, to throw overboard. It would be like yanking the roof off your greenhouse in mid-winter to let in more air and sunlight. But he insists a little tariff window should be opened here and there to encourage trade and, above all, tariffs should be equal to all comers.

On that principle, the secretary struck bargains with 18 minor nations between 1934 and 1936. The idea was "You lower a few duties, and I'll lower a few," and most important of all—share the benefits of the reduced tariff with all nations except Germany, the only trader refusing equal treatment to the United States.

The treaties with Canada and the United Kingdom (the British Isles and colonial possessions) represent his crowning achievement because Great Britain and the United States together do almost half of the world's 40 billions of dollars worth of swapping every year.

Two questions remain: "What have our first 18 treaties done to stimulate trade?" "What will the British agreement do?"

With figures galore to play with, there are almost as many answers as economists, but gradually economists have been dividing into the pro-Hull school and the anti-Hull school.

Lineup Of Beliefs

Here is how the two schools of thought line up on the major treaty points:

1. World Peace
Hull School—Orderly trade based on the principle of fair play and equal treatment for all is necessary for world stability. "Live and let live." Any other way leads to misunderstanding, cut-throat competition, dumping, savage economic feuds, and ultimately, war. Set your tariffs high or low, but leave them there for ever.
2. Trade Increases
Hull School—During the nearly four years of the trade agreements program, the volume of American exports and imports has been on the upgrade. Although this phenomenon is not due alone to the treaties, our exports have shown a consistently greater growth with treaty nations. For example, exports to trade agreement countries in 1937 increased 72 per cent over 1934.

Becomes Bride in Ceremony

Mrs. Wesley Harrell, nee Miss Agnes Bearman, whose marriage occurred at 8 o'clock Saturday in a ceremony at the home of Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Graham in Humboldt.

Miss Bearman Becomes Bride of Mr. Wesley Harrell Saturday

At the home of Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Graham before a beautifully decorated altar, of colored plumes, with a cross of polished brass, brass vases with white chrysanthemums and a pair of floor candelabra with seven white tapers, Rev. Austin B. Mitchell, Episcopal priest of Mineral Wells, read the vows uniting in marriage Agnes Talbot Bearman and Wesley Lee Harrell.

Hjalmar Bergh played bridal music while the guests, numbering about 100, assembled. He then sang "O Perfect Love," playing his own accompaniment. Mrs. Robert McNeill, gowned in a dress of silver cloth, lighted the tapers in the floor candelabra as the first strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March were played by Mr. Bergh. The bride entered on the arm of her uncle, Mr. Robert W. Talbot of Tulsa, Okla., gowned in a white net dress with round neck, leg-of-mutton sleeves and fan-shaped train, with a veil of illusion caught in her hair with a spray of orange blossoms. She wore an antique chain and locket, gifts of the groom. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley and an orchid, tied with a white ribbon.

The bride's attendants, Miss Sally Mitchell, Austin, maid of honor, and Mr. R. M. Montgomery, Randolph Field, matron of honor, preceded the bride and were gowned in bouffant style white taffeta dresses with tiny hats of white velvet and bouquets of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums. The flower girls, Betty and Joanne Bearman, nieces of the bride, were dressed in white tulle dresses patterned after the other attendants. Each carried a tiny colonial bouquet of chrysanthemums.

The groom was attended by Mr. Pleas Childress of Ozona, best man, and Messrs. Jeff Merriman and Nathan Chelt, groomsmen. The men all wore conventional black. During the ceremony ports from foreign countries have increased 90 per cent during the trade program, while exports were increasing only 50 per cent. That's like putting out 10 cents to get a nickel's worth of business, and the new treaties will intensify the evil.

3. Domestic Benefits

Hull School—Trade agreements mean better times for everybody. They bring more trade, and more trade puts more workers into jobs. These workers will have money to buy farmers' products, and the farmers in turn will have more money to buy industrial output. Furthermore, the new Canadian and British treaties offer the farmer direct concessions on such important items as wheat, lard, apples, pears and other domestic products.

Anti-Hull School—The average price of all American imports during the treaty period 1934-38, increased 70 per cent. The average price of items on which the United States reduced duty as a concession to other nations, dropped 10 per cent. Manufacturers of articles suffering from sliding prices could not continue to raise wages and consequently were unable to maintain their prices. Some curtailed production and thereby increased unemployment. Those who couldn't meet foreign

Marked Increase in Commercial Failures

AUSTIN, N. V. 26 (Spe)—A marked increase in number of commercial failures occurred in Texas during October in comparison with the preceding month and the corresponding month last year, according to the bureau of business research of the University of Texas. Total liabilities also rose sharply.

According to reports from Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., there were 26 failures in October, compared with fifteen the month before and nineteen during October last year, the bureau said. Total liabilities of $475,000 were up 177.2 per cent from the preceding month and 141.8 per cent from the like month last year. Average liability per failure was $18,000 during October, compared with $11,000 the month before and $42,000 during October last year.

Poultry Shipments Extremely Low

AUSTIN, Nov. 26 (Spe)—Shipments of poultry from Texas interstate points during October almost reached the vanishing point, but egg shipments were well above a year ago, according to the University of Texas bureau of business research. Only four carloads of poultry were forwarded this year compared with 43 cars during October last year; egg shipments totaled 40 cars, compared with 22 cars a year ago.

Only one car of eggs was bought into the state, compared with six cars during October last year.

Power Consumption Declines in October

AUSTIN, Nov. 26 (Spe)—Consumption of electric power in Texas during October declined more than the usual seasonal amount from September but was slightly above October last year, according to the bureau of business research of the University of Texas. Reports from seventeen representative power companies in the state show a decrease of 6.3 per cent in consumption from September and an increase of 1.7 per cent over October last year, the bureau said.

Commercial consumption was down 10.2 per cent from September but 14.7 per cent above October last year; industrial consumption decreased 2.8 per cent from September and was 8.7 per cent below October a year ago, while residential consumption declined 10.0 per cent from September but was 11.9 per cent above last year.

prepare. At this time children are taught proper table manners and to wait on themselves at all time. Daily health inspection reduces the spread of contagion. Physical examinations guard against illness and preventive measures protect the health of the child.
2—The nursery school provides good play facilities. The variety of indoor and outdoor play apparatus and equipment gives the child an opportunity to gain control over large and small muscles, in addition to acquiring skill.
3—The nursery school builds up good habits in the children. Such simple needs as running, climbing, jumping, building, playing games, eating, and toileting routines involve definite habits which are not as easily or safely built up in the average home.
4—The nursery school assists in preventing and eliminating behavior problems. Almost every parent has had unhappy experiences with child's teats, food refusals, tantrums, and bullying. By steering a middle ground between coddling and neglect, the nursery school reduces these problems to a minimum. They also help mothers and fathers to get the same results at home if proper cooperation is established.
5—The nursery school helps to socialize the child. Children learn to work and play with other children of the same age. One great lack in the average family and in many neighborhoods is the small number of children who are of about the same age and size.
6—The nursery school has shown that children as young as two or three years of age take an active interest in working with paints and clay and in music, story telling, and simple acting. The nursery school period is an ideal time to initiate exploration and explanation of the world of nature because at this time the child is invariably interested in live things.
7—The nursery school fits in well with the kindergarten or with the first grade. The children get used to being with other children and to working on group projects. They learn to live with other children. They acquire control and facility in the use of speech and enter the kindergarten or first grade well equipped for their school work.

8—The nursery school teaches parents as well as children. The parents, when they can, use the nursery school for observation and learn more about their children. The nursery schools have books and bulletins on child care which parents can read and discuss at their leisure. Many parents come to feel that the things that they themselves have learned about the child are almost as valuable as the daily activities of the child in the school.
9—The nursery school helps the parents do better by the child when he is at home. Good habits of play, eating, sleeping, and

Honesty in All Things
Text: Exodus 20:15; Luke 19:1-10, 45, 46
BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of Advance
OUR lesson on the eighth Commandment, "Thou shalt not steal," contains a New Testament story which is itself a lesson upon the Commandment.
The Commandment is simple, old and plain. It does not go into any niceties of definition to define just what is stealing. It does not consider such questions as the rightfulness of possession, nor whether the thief might not under certain circumstances be more entitled to the things stolen than the man from whom they were taken. We must remember, of course, that these Commandments have their origin and emphasis in a simple and rather primitive society where the conditions of life were not complex and where, if a man stole from his fellow, he took that which was likely to be the direct product of his neighbor's labor and honesty.
In a complex society many questions arise. A professor of ethics, under whom I studied, used to tell a story of a man who was walking across a field on an English estate. The owner of the field came upon him and, accusing him of trespassing on his land, ordered him off. The trespasser questioned his right. He wanted to know where the owner got the land. The owner replied that he got it from his father. "And where did he get it?" continued the trespasser. He got it from his father. And so it went on, back to the original ancestor who, the owner said, fought for it. At that, the trespasser pulled himself into a fighting mood and said, "I'll fight thee for it now."
SOCIAL matters, whatever may be the rights or wrongs of the past, are today not quite so simple. We are living in a world of law, and although the law itself may not always operate fairly or uphold inherent justice, we would have a condition of far greater chaos, disorder and injustice, if every man were to decide for himself to take from his fellowman what he thinks he ought to have. This is the point at which the Commandment has very real validity, even in our modern world where there is so much lack of justice and inherent right.

But the story of Zacchaeus, the publican, throws some light upon this problem of the reality of ownership and the reality of theft. Here was this man Zacchaeus, a collector of taxes. It was the custom in those days for a man to pay so much for the privilege of collecting the taxes, and he was wont to make as much as he could for himself by extortion.
Whether Zacchaeus practiced extortion or not is not clear, but when Jesus came into his life and salvation came to Zacchaeus, he dared to look at his own business life and work, and he said, "If I have taken wrongfully anything of any man, I restore fourfold."
That was what a thief was compelled to restore under the law. Zacchaeus said in effect, "If I have taken anything that really does not belong to me, I am a thief, and I want to square my conscience by restoring a thief's portion."
What a revelation would come to the world and what a change, if all men similarly met Jesus and faced their lives and their actions upon such a basis of reality! Zacchaeus had learned the meaning of the Commandment, "Thou shalt not steal."

With Our WILD LIFE
By JOHN R. WOOD, State Game Warden
Waterfowl Restoration Projects
The United States is taking the most interest of the three countries in the Migratory Bird Treaty Act-Mexico, Canada and the United States. At that the major steps were taken in the great undertaking of attempting to restore our waterfowl to former numbers. Agencies interested in this project are More Game Birds in America Foundation of New York City, The United States Bureau of Biological Survey, National Association of Audubon Societies and several State Game Departments, and thousands of individuals interested in this great program that have given money to this great cause. It is against the law for the United States government to spend money in a foreign country, therefore other means must be undertaken to raise money to spend on the waterfowl refuges and breeding grounds in Canada. Canada has the greatest breeding area for waterfowl in North America. When Canada was first asked to join this treaty she refused because she stated that she had all the ducks and the waterfowl self-dependence tend to transfer to the home situation.
10—The nursery school frees the mother without taking her place. No nursery school teacher will take full charge of the child even during the twenty-four hours. There is a good deal of the child's day which is still directly under the care of the parents, and on Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays the child remains in the home. Most parents do not feel that they have lost contact with the child by placing him in a nursery school. In fact, they tend to become more interested in him. The child, too, seems to enjoy the change from home to school and readily enters into the new life.
Experts in the field of child care and guidance contend that the first six years of a child's life are now regarded of great importance in laying the foundation for good health and development; therefore, no money, time, energy, effort, or material is wasted when spent for the welfare, protection, and care of young children.

that she needed and did not need the help of the United States. The federal government immediately told them that the United States and Mexico had charge of the waterfowl in the winter months and what would Canada do if we did not send her some waterfowl back for the breeding season. This changed Canada's viewpoint on the subject and joined forces with the United States in trying to restore the waterfowl to near former numbers.
Canadian Marshes Drained
Prior to the time that these treaties were signed many thousands of acres of Canadian marshes were drained and turned over to agriculture. In time this land proved to be worthless for agricultural uses, and was totally ruined as breeding grounds for waterfowl. The work of restoring these vast areas back into waterfowl breeding areas was started. Dams were built to hold the water on the former marshes, vegetation began to grow and thus thousands of dollars were spent and the breeding areas restored. Thousands of acres of forest land owned by the Canadian government was turned over to wildlife experts in the United States to be used as wildlife breeding grounds. The income from the grazing rights received by the Canadian government was cut off. This was done by the governments at their own suggestion in order to aid the increase of our waterfowl.

Overcutting of the forest land was cut out. Overcutting would cause the marshes to fill up with silt and thus ruin thousands of acres of waterfowl breeding ground. The increase of our waterfowl in the past few years is due to the combined efforts of the United States and Canadian governments.

Building Permits Moderately Up

AUSTIN, Nov. 26. — Building permits in Texas during October were moderately above the preceding month and sharply above the corresponding month last year, according to the bureau of business research of the University of Texas.

The major portion of the increase in the total is attributable to Houston where permits increased more than 50 per cent over September and 250 per cent over October last year.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Where Nazis Rioted On Medieval Ground

HARDLY could the Nazis have picked more sacred ground in all Vienna for their attack on Theodore Cardinal Innitzer than the Square of St. Stephen and the majestic St. Stephen's Cathedral. Here for hundreds of years have beat the pulse and heart of Catholicism in central Europe.

The great Gothic cathedral was originally a small Romanesque church, consecrated in 1147, but burned down in 1193. The second church was completed in 1230, but supplementary construction has continued intermittently on the massive building for centuries.

Nearly 100 years was spent on the ornate 450-foot South Tower alone. It was begun in 1359. On its second story it contains a bell weighing 20 tons. The pulpit, added in the 16th century, is one of the most exquisite pieces of Gothic carving in existence. Its design includes the four fathers of the church.

St. Stephen's has been Vienna's "watchdog" through countless trying periods, including those tragic days when the Turks marched westward in 1683 and again when the French threatened Austrian supremacy in 1809. From its ancient tower gold-braided generals have stood watching attacking armies and sending forth messengers upon hazardous missions. One room of the tower is an abandoned fire watch where guardians of the city's safety kept a constant look out for signs of suspicious smoke and reported it by a huge trumpet. The great cathedral is shown here on a 1929 Austrian stamp.

DO BANKS WANT TO LEND MONEY?

There is a current impression that banks do not want to lend money. This may be due to lack of information. The larger part of a bank's income is derived from interest on loans.

Every bank has two plain duties: First, to safeguard the depositors' money—that means it must make safe loans—second, to provide the public with the most helpful financial service possible.

First National Bank in Cisco—and we are sure the vast majority of other banks—is glad to lend money and is seeking good loans. Our record over almost a quarter of a century past, during which time we have always been in position to take care of the legitimate demands of our customers, is evidence of it.

We believe our regular borrowing customer will tell you that First National Bank in Cisco is equipped, willing and eager to lend money to borrowers of responsibility.
