Nat'l VFW Auxiliary President Is Guest of Cisco

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

Good news Saturday. The president has decided to let Congress do some of its own thinking. A very heartening indication, that. Perhaps the body has reached a point wherein it can be taken off the bottle and gradually introduced to some of the responsibilities it was originally supposed to assume under the constitution. In any case, the administration may have been forced to conclude that the boys in the capitol dome will have to have a little to do with the running of the government, instead of being merely an expensive rubber stamp, but we can't help but think that the man in the White House has regained a sufficient faith in democracy to be willing to let the people run the country for a spell.

Not enough of that this morning. The newspapers are full of battles at Washington, unless I guess they, and we shall hear it again from now on. The government thus preoccupies perhaps we can go about our own mundane business without finding a New Deal oomahawk and all, climbing up through the loose ends of our office floors.

Good news in Cisco. Meritts Saturday entertained those pre-Christmas cards and buying was brisk. Gloomy weather was a little one of nature's smiles that carried the promise of rain and good crops in spring. There is money here, and people buy when they are offered what they want. Most of the boys found their business good.

"Doc" Sellers, publisher of Rising Star Record, dropped into the editorial office this morning. Son goes to the Brownwood Bulletin to become associated with that paper's advertising department. He makes the paper a valuable asset.

"Doc" is sold on Rising and its aggressive merchandizing which makes that city one of the best agricultural markets in this section. Rising Star merchants, said, are alert to the needs of their customers, and to the competition they meet, and on their toes to serve. Step into one of Rising Star's leading stores and a person gets instant and courteous attention, "Doc" agreed. He was bragging.

Representatives Reaffirm Stands Upon Economy

Reaffirming their promise to serve economy in their legislative activities at Austin and urging their constituents to contact them by letter or otherwise to make their wishes known, Rep. P. L. Crossley and Rep. Omar Burkett issued the following statement before leaving for Austin last week:

With the beginning of the new year when newly elected officials throughout the state are being sworn into office and in fairness to the people of our districts, we are issuing this brief statement reaffirming our intentions to serve the people of Texas and our respective districts as efficiently as is possible for us to do.
Everyone is familiar, from recent newspaper articles, with the type of legislation that will be presented to this session of the legislature, and the demands that are going to be made on the people which, in all probability, will call for new tax money. #### To Brownwood

Wayne Sellers, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Sellers of the Rising Star Record, has joined the advertising staff of the Brownwood Bulletin, it was announced Saturday. Young Sellers, a graduate of Texas Tech and until recently employed by the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal at Lubbock, will assume his duties Monday. Young Sellers, who despite his youth—he is only 22 years—ran a splendid race for the Texas legislature last summer, is well grounded in all phases of newspaper work, mechanical, editorial and business.

PAY REPORTED IN PHILLIPS COZART IS AIM

L. A. Warren to Begin Operations Within 60-Day Period

Testing of the shallow horizons of the Scranton area, in which the Phillips Petroleum company was reported to have found excellent showings in the course of deeper drilling, was assured Saturday when L. A. Warren, Cisco operator, confirmed reports that he had secured rights to production down to 2,000 feet on large acreage held by the Phillips Petroleum company there and would drill a well within 60 days.

Location of the well has not been made, Mr. Warren said, but it will be on the Cozart tract near the deep test which the Phillips sunk there more than a year ago and in which it was reported, the company found production good for an estimated 35 or 40 barrels at 1,700 feet.

The Phillips subsequently and before drilling their deep test, core-drilled the area extensively in order to secure authentic geological data for sub-surface mapping. The sandy nature of the country, it was pointed out, makes geological examinations difficult because surface indications are concealed.

IN THE PUTNAM AREA

In the Putnam area, the Clark No. 1 of Taylor and Beard was reported drilling around 750 feet Saturday expecting the caprock of the upper sand sometime Saturday afternoon.

Retiring Sup't Commended by County Board

EASTLAND, Jan. 7 (Sp.).—The county school board at a recent meeting, commended work of C. S. Eldridge, retiring county school superintendent, in a resolution which follows:

"Be it resolved that we, the county board of trustees of Eastland county commend C. S. Eldridge for his great work as county superintendent of Eastland county and we recommend that the same policy be carried out during the following years. We are sure that his administration is the very foundation of a system of affiliated high schools unsurpassed in the entire state. His slogan, 'Every child in Eastland county must have access to an affiliated school free' is also the desire of the county trustees.

"Be it further resolved that we express to him our sincere appreciation for the many courtesies found in the office during his term, and is our desire that a copy of these minutes be published in all the papers of Eastland county."

The resolution was signed by W. P. Roach, president of the board. Mr. Eldridge has been employed by a book company to introduce its textbooks of the adopted history into west Texas schools. His territory will be west of Fort Worth to El Paso, and include all territory north of the T. & P. railroad. He says that this includes the counties through which the railroad passes.

Swiss Show How to Answer Nazi Threats

THE French seem to have learned, at last, the one great lesson which has to be digested by any nation which has to live in the neighborhood of one of the dictator states. The lesson is simple—when the other fellow acts tough, just act tougher. As a result, Mussolini's synthetic campaign for Tunis, Corsica, Nice and any other French properties not securely nailed down has fizzled, and for once a dictator's attempt to cash in on his nuisance value has failed of its goal. But an even more striking example was furnished recently by Switzerland. Because it was less spectacular, it drew little attention, but because Switzerland is a small state and lives right under the gun, so to speak, its action is all the more remarkable.

SWITZERLAND is a democracy. It lets Nazi newspapers circulate in its territory and permits Nazi visitors to come and go freely. It has put up with an unconscionable amount of plotting and spying by German students in its universities and by German commercial travelers, and it has allowed its 170,000 German inhabitants to form Nazi bands and clubs.

But a couple of things recently strained Swiss patience a little too far. First, a Nazi industrialist wrote to a client in Switzerland advising him to let certain business affairs wait "until there is a Statthalter in Bern"—in other words, until the German partition of Switzerland was announced by Hitler. The letter was somehow made public.

Next, the official Nazi paper, Voelkischer Beobachter, wanted such small states as Holland, Belgium and Switzerland to preserve their "integral neutrality"—or, more bluntly, to refrain from all criticism of Nazi acts and permit nothing to be said that could possibly offend Hitler. And the National Zeitung of Bern made spirited answer:

"There is for us only one reply—thus far and no farther. We recognize no right to propaganda masters who, while permitting themselves intolerable butting-in on our internal affairs, seek to say that we are in a world-Bolshevik front which exists only in the minds of the enemies of democracy. We will not permit them to treat us as obedient vassals... for if we sacrifice a parcel of our liberties we are in danger of losing all."

THEN the government acted. Nazi officers in Bern, Zurich, and other cities were raided; Nazi leaders were jailed; sharp laws were passed to restrict foreign propaganda; and power was given the federal council to dissolve any group which threatened the nation's security. And at the same time the excellent Swiss army was strengthened.

For a tiny nation living under the Hitler shadow, this was a brave action. But it seems to have worked. The Swiss don't propose to be walked on, and they have taken the only effective way of stopping it.

And that is the point. The dictator-state lives by threat and bluster. A soft answer does not, in this case, turn away wrath. The one solution is to refuse concessions—and to be ready to defend that refusal at a moment's notice.

Nick Miller says Jake runs out and looks over the situation along in January and then comes home and puts until about November when Christmas business starts. W. But Mr. Leach tells us this newspaper story which shows some wisdom and initiative on the part of the editor... of course you know, the editor wants to get along with as much ease in his work as possible... or so they say.

It seems there were in this town, as in most towns, a lot of get young chaps who insisted in mixing their drinks and driving rather recklessly... as the editor went to them and said "Boys, if you fellows are going to get your cars out on the road this Christmas time and insist on driving as you usually do, I suggest that each of you file your statutory down at the office with me... it will save me a lot of trouble and I can give you a better service. ### Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

Jesus was always turning on occasion to good use in bringing out the truth of His gospel. He seemed even to be going about the occasion at times. Moreover He let the occasion or some one present at it do the speaking sometimes. We do not know just when the great fundamental fact of our Jesus today would have been given to the world if it had not been on this particular occasion. When Jesus had been with a party of Lazarus Phillips and they asked them that rather strange question he must have been leading up to an important event. All of the disciples present were awakened and had some part in the answer. They must have discussed with questions among themselves at one time or another. Peter must have undertaken to answer for the group in some earnest. And he said more than he or all of them had dreamed on this subject, or it shown by some of their words and actions afterwards. And yet from the words that Jesus directed to Peter alone after his remarkable confession we are led to believe that for the moment these flashed into this impulsive disciple's mind a new realization of the Messiahship and the Sonship of his Master, flashed out of the inspiration of the immediate occasion or of several occasions in his months of association with his Teacher.

Jesus certainly did not lay the foundation of His church on that occasion but He did reveal the only one that has been or will be laid, "which is Jesus Christ." When religious groups attempt to approach unity they usually by a process of elimination come to some such simple declaration as this one made by Peter. And no better could be found because it is so inclusive at the same time that it is so simple. In view of the oneness of the foundation it is hard to explain the multiplication of distinct superstructures that are claiming to be built upon it. Does it mean that all of them except one are entirely of the foundation? Or that the foundation is so broad that men have substituted for the magnificent superstructure a variety of insignificant icans seem to find their inspiration in the results of the November election. They discern in their gains a desire by John Q. Citizen to return to a balanced budget, to cut relief and other spending, and to end experiments in government.

 So the republicans hope to interest those people who want to restore the kind of prosperity the country knew in the years just before the 1929 crash, or close to it as possible, without taking away newly won rights of labor and agriculture.

 The keynote of the administration was sounded long before the new congress came to town. It was perhaps best expressed by the president when he addressed the opening session of the last session of congress a year ago.
 "In a world of high tension and disorder, in a world where stable civilization is actually threatened," he said, "it becomes the responsibility of each nation which strives for peace at home and peace with and among other nations, to be strong enough to insure the observance of those fundamentals of peaceful solution of conflicts which are the only ultimate basis for orderly existence."
 "Resolute in our determination to respect the rights of others, to command respect for the rights of ourselves, we must keep ourselves adequately strong in defense. . . ."
 After that statement was made, congress voted a billion dollars for defense last year. This year the administration apparently wants more. . . .

Martin Speaks
 Now, listen to the recent plea for the "good old days" from Joe Martin, the new minority leader in the house for the republicans:
 "Out of the November election," said Martin, "there came at least one clear mandate: The people want the 76th congress to be a real legislative body — an independent congress which will do its own thinking, and will put the welfare of the country ahead of the selfish aspirations of individuals or parties.
 "With law by fiat flourishing in many lands, with personal liberty becoming daily more precious, there is genuine opposition to the concentration of government either in personalities or bureaus. . . .
 "The call today is clear. It is to dedicate our first efforts to provide real jobs at real American wages for more than 10 million unemployed; to bring about a restoration of those former days when every boy and every girl, upon leaving school, could look forward to a job and a real opportunity in life. . . ."
 These two opposing views of the political scene express the hope of their authors to capture public attention and acclaim.

 known missionary, has completed

CHAPTER XXV
 After Dan had found Sally and Corey, the rest of the trail down had been easy to make. Not only because the storm had lifted, as Sally had noticed, but because Dan had taken the precaution to note landmarks, a pair of twin pines, standing solitary and alone, the frozen waterfall again, a certain big rock, small things in themselves, but guideposts that led to safety.
 They did not say much until afterwards. There was no need for words. Afterwards there would be plenty of time to say all that must be explained and understood between them.
 Corey knew, too well, that there was no need for him to say anything. When they finally had reached the lodge and warmth and security, he stopped and thrust a hand toward Dan. He had gained control of himself once more; he was the old Corey, self-contained, almost arrogant. "Thanks, old man," he said. He wore his wide grin, but his blue eyes were narrowed. "You saved our lives again. The third time—for Sally—and the third time is the charm, you know."
 "That's all right," Dan said briefly. He accepted Corey's hand. "Forget it. You'd have done the same." But they knew, all three of them, that that was not so.
 "Well, so long," Corey dropped Dan's hand. "I want to get thawed out. You two probably have forgot you're nearly frozen. You won't miss me." His laugh was short. At his own expense. For Corey knew that this was one time he had not won.

"Sally, my sweet," he looked at her a brief moment, she was sweet, she was too good for him, he knew that now; but he could make her one last gift, leave her with one kind thought for him, "the best man wins. And that's Dan, of course. He was always the best man, Sally. I tried to outsmart him. But it didn't work. Don't blame Dan for anything. So long, and good luck, to you both."
 Before they could answer, he had turned and left them.
 Sally only looked after the tall blond figure, somehow gallant in this moment of defeat, a second. She turned to Dan, her dark eyes softly shining.
 "I don't know how to thank you," she said. "To think you would risk your own life, Dan, to come after us. To think I ever stopped believing in you, even for a little while!"
 "I don't blame you for that," Dan said. "I ran away. But I had my reasons. I meant to come back some day, when I could pay back all that I owed to you and your father, Sally."
 Then he knew all about that! Someone else had told him. Sally began to understand a little.
 "Corey told you—that last night, before you went away!" she said. That was what Corey had meant when he said he had tried to outsmart Dan. Poor Corey, who had thought he had to win, no matter what means he must use.
 Dan nodded. "He hold me a lot of things," he said grimly. "But we won't talk about that now. It's all past, all done. There are so many far more important things we have to talk about now, Sally. Do you thing you can get off those damp clothes, hop into a warm bath, get dressed again, and meet me in a half hour—or is that too soon, darling?"

 "It won't be nearly soon enough!" Sally dimpled at him. What Corey had said was true; she had forgotten that her clothes were damp and heavy, that her body ached with cold and weariness. The deep glow in her heart, happiness spreading all through her, had given her all the warmth she needed.
 In half an hour to the minute, refreshed and rested, Sally met Dan. He had found a nook in the big living room of the lodge that was deserted. A window seat built just for two, looking out on the beautiful white world that was calm and serene now that the storm had abated.
 "There's so much to say," Sally said, with a sigh, as Dan took her hands and drew her down beside him. "Where shall we begin, Dan?"
 "At the end," he answered, smilingly. "Nothing else matters, does it, except that we have found each other again?"
 "I've found myself," Sally returned; her dark eyes shining. "I thought I had changed before; I tried to change, for you, Dan. But I hadn't tried hard enough. I didn't kill the old Sally altogether. I should have told you the whole truth. But I was a coward."
 "Don't say that!" He put a finger against her lips.
 "Yes, I was," she insisted. Sally who put bravery of heart above everything else. "I was afraid to tell you the truth. In the beginning, Dan, I was afraid if you knew it was I—and my father—who wanted to help you that you would refuse help. You didn't believe in me then, you know, after that accident, when you were in the hospital, when you thought—because of me—you might never walk, or ski, again."

 "I was afraid to believe in you, then," Dan admitted. "So I was as much at fault as you were."
 "I should have told you, later," Sally continued, for she must make him believe in her now, "but I still was afraid. I still wasn't the Sally I was trying to be. I didn't know that the only thing not to fear is the truth. No wonder you didn't believe in me, Dan! No wonder you ran away from my world."
 "I thought you were laughing at me, I thought you meant to deceive me," Dan explained; "to carry through that first dare. That was what Corey told me that night. And that you were engaged to him."
 "Poor Corey," Sally said. It was easy to forgive him, now, to understand. Though he had broken his word to her, nearly ruined all their lives.
 "I told you that the past is gone," Dan said. "The future is all that matters. I had an offer today, Sally. Besides the Olympics. That's not what I want after all. I'm going to stay here, at a good salary, instructing, putting on exhibitions. I can begin to repay your father part of what I owe him. I can take care of you, Sally. If you'll leave your world, and stay in mine."
 He did not wait for her answer.

He drew her to him, gently, yet forcefully. He found her lips. That first sweet kiss pledged their faith in one another more bindingly, more truly than any words.
 "There's only one thing, Dan," Sally's dark eyes looked up into his, the soft color flooding her lovely face. "Are you sure that you believe in me now, that I'm the kind of girl you want?"
 For answer, Dan kissed her again. "You are the only girl I want," he said. "Queen of my heart."
 "And you're the king," Sally said. "King of skis. For—to me ski's the limit, darling!"

Freakish Weather Deals Misery But WTU Service Men Keep Power Going

ABILENE, Jan. 7. — Freakish weather in 1938 dealt misery to line and service men of the West Texas Utilities company throughout West Texas, records in the general office here reveal. Although death and destruction, as well as humorous happenings, occurred along the company's network of transmission lines, relatively few interruptions of electric service were recorded. Tornadoes, floods, wind, snow, sleet, and auto accidents all contributed to the woes of the linemen whose job it is to maintain service in the face of overwhelming odds.

Greatest toll of life and property was at Clyde where a tornado struck at dusk on June 10, claiming 14 lives and destroying 22 homes. W. T. U.'s 2,300-volt distribution line in the storm's center was left a tangled mass of wreckage. The company's emergency crew and truck was among the first of rescuers to reach the scene. Lights were restored in the stricken town within 32 minutes after the tornado struck.

Earlier in the year a similar tornado struck at Mertzon, west of San Angelo, about 3 o'clock in the morning. The San Angelo Standard-Times quoted Mrs. John P. Lee of nearby Tankersley, from whose home news of the tragedy first was telephoned to the outside world, as saying: "I want to say a good word for the West Texas Utilities company. We appreciate them out here in the country. I think they got to Mertzon before anyone. The first crew sized up the situation, telephoned back for what was needed and we had lights and power on again in a very few hours."

Damage to Lines
The San Angelo paper also cites an example of damage done to power lines. "The electric light pole at the corner of the West Texas Wool and Mohair association's headquarters, instead of being broken in two like many others, was twisted and twirled apart leaving a stump four or five feet high that but for its size looked like a chewed and whorled toothpick."

The year's worst blizzard early last April led the Donkey County Leader of Clarendon to comment: "The patron may be resting snugly in a warm bed at the very time a W. T. U. employe is freezing atop a high pole, depending upon rubber gloves alone to preserve life. It's all in a day's work, but how much the patron should thank those who maintain the service at all costs!"

Service Uninterrupted Flood waters in the Hill country last July, which took a toll of lives and property from west Texas to the Gulf of Mexico despite flood control claims for Buchanan dam, disrupted transportation and communication lines but did not interrupt electric service in the hard-hit towns of Junction and Menard, served by W. T. U.

"We sincerely want the West Texas Utilities company to know how earnestly we appreciate the generosity shown to the town as a whole," wrote R. B. Boyle, former editor of the Heart O' Texas News at Albany News. A similar comment was made by Mayor E. A. Hallum, of Brady, after the utility company had rescued the flood-swept city from darkness. Rumpaging waters inundated the Brady municipal light plant on the night of July 23. W. T. U. linemen rushed emergency construction of highlines to connect the city's distribution system with the company's 33,000-volt transmission line. "Juice" flowed throughout the town on July 24. Although water of six feet in the station at Menard interrupted.

Kind Man Saves Cats From Power Lines

MORAN, Jan. 7.—A bird one day was flying around Moran looking for a place to roost. It spied the West Texas Utilities company sub-station—not a very safe place for a bird to roost, but to a bird, as good as any place. So it landed.

Other birds saw it there, and soon many birds were roosting on the steel framework of the sub-station.

ment on the fact that in the course of time he found the remains of five cats in the sub-station—five bits of fur lying on the ground.

To protect the cats who unwisely hunted the birds, which roost in a sub-station, Mr. Walker installed "cold" wires around corner posts and blocked all entrances. Now, reports, the birds are roosting in peace. The cats? Well, maybe they're cussin' the utilities.

ESCAPED FROM WIFE PARIS, Jan. 7 (AP)—Clothed only in a nightshirt and carrying a saber, a man stood in the Boulevard Raspail. He told police his wife had threatened him and even more unsafe place for cats than for birds. He bases his statement on the fact that in the course of time he found the remains of five cats in the sub-station—five bits of fur lying on the ground.

League Urges Prompt Cage Tournery Filing

AUSTIN, Jan. 7 (Sp.)—With schoolboy football over, the University of Texas Interscholastic league today urged 1,500 Texas high schools to close out by January 15 entry lists for the annual state basketball tournament.

Foster parent of extracurricular high school activities, the league regulates competition among all of the state high schools in basketball as well as football. State finals will be conducted on the university campus here March 3 and 4. R. J. Kidd, league athletic director, said.

Established for 15 years, this year's tourney will see county championships settled February 10 and 11. District and regional tournaments will be run off on successive week-ends over the state. The eight regional winners will come to Austin early in March to settle the state title.

Mr. Kidd urged prompt attention to the filing fee, declaring that in the last few years strong high school teams have been omitted from the competition through their oversight in failing to register for the tournament.

Shackelford County Oil Output Drops

ALBANY, Jan. 7 (AP)—A decline of nearly 350,000 barrels of oil produced during the year 1938 in Shackelford county from the previous year is evidence that local operators have turned their influence toward the efforts to curtail new development and production.

Many leases have been permitted to stay on marginal production and undrilled locations remain in many pools, only offsets having been drilled in many instances to comply with obligations.

The 2,263,846 barrels of oil produced in 1938, bringing a probable net value of around $2,250,000 do not compare favorably with the 2,611,249 barrels produced during 1937. Big producers of the area, Roeser & Pendleton, Inc. and Humble Oil & Refining company have completely shut down during 1938 on new operations, and outside of the activity in the new Palo Pinto lime pool of the Ivy-Haterius area in extreme northwest Shackelford, few new discoveries were made. Shallow oil pools on the Diller ranch 10 miles north, Harbaugh five nine miles east and Lee ranch five miles southwest were the only active areas drilled to any extent.

Peter Commended and Rebuked

Text: Matthew 16:13-25

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

"PETER commended and rebuked." How well that seems to sum up a great deal in the life of Peter, both during the days of his earthly association with our Lord as a disciple and as an apostle and founder of the Christian Church.

Later on we shall find Peter, after his Master who commended and rebuked him in love had been crucified, commended by the greatness of the occasion when he preached at Pentecost but rebuked inominously in the vision on the housetop, as he was still in his pride and narrowness disposed to be a respecter of men and to call unclean the things that God had cleansed.

How much these words concerning Peter—"commended and rebuked"—might apply to us all, for which one of us has not something to be commended and a great deal to be rebuked?

It is this nearness of Peter to ourselves that makes him so vital a study for Christians today, and that makes these lessons so incisive and helpful in establishing our own faith and vision. Here in our lesson we find Peter making the great confession of his belief in Jesus as the Christ or the Messiah, the son of the living God.

THE words in which Jesus replied to Peter have been the occasion of a great controversy in history and in some measure a division of the Christian Church. The Roman Catholic Church interprets these words with considerable literalness and establishes its authority upon the succession to Peter as the first bishop of the Christian Church, the man to whom Jesus committed the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven. Protestants interpret the words in a more spiritual and mystical sense.

"They point to the fact that almost immediately afterwards Jesus rebuked Peter with the startling words, 'Get thee behind me, Satan.' They take the whole passage as one, and they regard as the rock upon which the Church is built not the weak and impulsive Peter but the Peter of the moment of that great confession and the faith that Peter expressed. They point to the fact that it is by the words and acts of the disciples of Jesus that the Kingdom of Heaven is advanced or retarded, and that, much as Christians might wish to be relieved of the responsibility, they do by their own words and actions bind or loosen it. Into these controversies the teacher cannot very well go, but they cannot be altogether ignored for they have had historical reality.

PERHAPS we could give altogether too much importance to questionable interpretations. The one thing that is sure is that no church on earth—no matter what its name or its profession—will, in truth and reality, represent the Kingdom of Heaven on earth except as the Kingdom of Heaven is enshrined in its life and its teachings. The great truth concerning Christians and Christianity is that "if any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of this." In all churches and in all creeds wherever men have found the manifestation of God and have yielded themselves in devotion and consecration, the Kingdom of Heaven has become established in their hearts and in their relationships.

Why did Jesus rebuke Peter so keenly when Peter urged Him that He should not go to Jerusalem, where Jesus intimated that He was about to suffer many things?

We must remember that Jesus took on Him our human nature and that, as a man subject to temptation, Peter probably voiced the temptation that was in His own soul—to avoid this way of peril and duty. But Jesus did not hesitate. For Himself and for His disciples there was only the way of truth and duty. The test of discipleship was "denial and willingness to bear the Cross."

In the campaign last summer, we especially stressed economy in the operation of our state government, and we now reaffirm this statement and say that we will vote for every item pointing to economy, where, in our opinion, the state will not lose in efficiency. Our stand on the many issues now before the people are well known, and it is our intention each week to keep the people informed as to the happenings in the legislature, to the end that they may know just what we are doing. We shall expect to hear from our constituents by letter and otherwise their desires and views on proposed legislation, in order that we may know just what the people need and want. We will know that we cannot please everyone in our actions, and with this in mind it is our desire to do the right thing and cast our votes in such manner as to benefit the most people over the state as a whole, and to reflect credit upon the state of Texas, the legislature and ourselves.

We were each issued a few formal invitations to the inaugural ceremonies on January 17, and we have mailed these to as many as we could, but due to the fact we did not receive enough for all of our friends, we are hereby inviting everyone to attend, make yourselves at home, visit with us and we will do everything that we can to help you have a good time.

40 Czechs Killed In Border Battle

BUDAPEST, Jan. 7 (AP)—Hungarians engaged in cleaning up after the one-day battle on the nation's post-Munich border announced today that 40 Czechoslovaks and seven Hungarians had been killed.

The Hungarian dead included one officer hit by a shell fragment at the Hotel Ossilag in Munkacs, the town ceded to Hungary by Czechoslovakia at the November 2 Vienna arbitration award of Italy and Germany.

The official Hungarian report added that 200 houses in Munkacs, center of yesterday's battle, were damaged by Czechoslovak shell-fire.

Thousands of Hungarian troops, meanwhile, were moved up to the zone of yesterday's sporadic hostilities.

New Friction Brews In East Africa

By The Associated Press
New friction brewed Saturday in East Africa between France and Italy, at loggerheads over colonies, while an armed truce preserved at least temporary peace along the enflamed border between Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

Travelers reaching Djibouti, French Somaliland, from Italian Ethiopia reported that Italian authorities had ordered a strict boycott of the French-controlled railroad connecting the coast and Addis Ababa.

An attack on the railroad station at Direwada in which heavy damage was done and railway employees were manhandled also was reported. The French blamed Italian fascists. Wheat is scarce at altitudes of 10,000.
