

50,000 SEE O'DANIEL INAUGURATION TODAY

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

We have been led to believe that the relief of unemployed people in terms of food, clothing to wear, shelter is the greatest problem before the country. But there is a greater, more closely related and greatly aggravated thereby, which is less apparent but none the more serious for its comparative nature. That is the problem of the delinquent child.

It is a cold fact that this generation, to judge from the extent and the extent of emergency as revealed in hospital and police records, is preparing for one of the most crime waves in history. In Cisco alone scores of boys and girls of the 'teen are being allowed to follow a listless path of least resistance in their mental and physical development, growing up absolutely without the discipline of any sort and their adolescent whims and fancies. Parents are unable to control their children or have no means to control them.

One generation or so ago the problem was less acute and confined to comparative small urban areas. Most of the people, in this part of the country at least, lived on farms and their children grew up inured to hard work and economic responsibility. There was little of the opportunity for associating in groups, little of the chance to develop those gregarious instincts of a dubious character, such as are fostered in the crowded alleys and the resorts of our cities. Boys and girls grew up in the open spaces, learning to work and support themselves and finding their amusement in community activities of a limited and healthful nature conducted about the church and school.

Today, however, we have a great wise paternalistic government at Washington and says boys and girls shouldn't work until they are at least 16 years of age and forbids the practice of child labor. It is allowed jurisdiction. With that sort of advance into the "more advanced life" having been solidated by the New Deal, our cities and communities are faced with an even more serious problem growing with delinquency. Obviously, the public schools are the best approach to the problem. The New Dealers, unfortunately, don't consider the school and school activities to be work.

The proper place for these boys and girls is in the school room. Unless the community sees to it that they are placed there and kept there regularly, it is going to pay a terrific price for the delinquency later on. The state has a compulsory education law which requires that all children between the ages of 6 and 16 attend school until they have finished the eighth grade. If this law

Irresistible Lobo Quint Downs Lions

The Lobo cagers, undefeated on their home court in some two years, last night demonstrated the smooth team-work that has carried them so far this season, when they staged an irresistible scoring surge in the fourth quarter of their game here with Brownwood to bowl the Lions out of the undefeated class by a 41-25 count.

Sentiment to Cut WPA Further Is Seen in Senate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17 (AP)—Sentiment developed in a senate appropriations subcommittee Monday to whittle even further the already-reduced relief appropriation.

The house trimmed $150,000,000 off the fund President Roosevelt requested to operate the WPA until June 30. It also imposed restrictions on use of the money.

At a closed session, the senate subcommittee heard testimony from Col. Francis C. Harrington, the WPA administrator, in support of the original $875,000,000 estimate.

Harrington was reported to have said that needy persons would have to be cut from relief rolls unless the higher figure were authorized.

There were reports that Senator Glass (D-Vo.), chairman of the appropriations committee, favored reducing the appropriation to $600,000,000 or less, but the veteran Virginian would not discuss the question publicly.

Some members of the committee said privately that unexpended and unobligated balances now held by the WPA would make it unnecessary to appropriate as much as $725,000,000, the figure approved by the house.

BIG CROWD IN PROSPECT FOR LOBO BANQUET

Coach Meyer of TCU to Be Speaker Thursday Night

A capacity crowd is expected for the Lions-Rotary club banquet Thursday evening at the Laguna hotel when coach L. R. (Dutch) Meyer of Texas Christian university, mentor of the 1938 national champion football team, will be the principal speaker.

Tickets are being sold at 75 cents each and are going fast. Sutton Crofts and Dr. McKenzie, in charge of the program for the banquet, said today.

Reports that Mr. Meyer would bring with him his all-America players, Ki Aldrich and Davey O'Brien, and that motion pictures of the Sugar Bowl game between T. C. U. and Carnegie Tech would be shown were not definite, it was pointed out. Mr. Meyer had notified the banquet committee that he would not bring any of his players due to the fact that the boys already had lost much time from their studies, and so far as was known today this decision still stood. Moreover, it was not known whether or not pictures of the Sugar Bowl game would be shown, although films of some of the games in which the Horned Frogs have played this year would be shown.

O. L. Stamey, principal of the high school, will be the toastmaster for the banquet and musicians from Abilene Christian college at Abilene will present several numbers.

The banquet will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

Network to Salute Cisco January 24

The Texas State network of 23 radio stations will offer a salute to Cisco during its Hometown Review program from 11:05 a. m. to 11:15 a. m. on January 24, the Cisco chamber of commerce has been informed.

Citizens Urged to Report All "Hookey" Cases

Supt. R. N. Cluck today appealed to parents, guardians and business men of the community to cooperate with the school authorities in enforcement of the compulsory attendance law which stipulates that every child between the ages of 6 and 16 attend school at least until the seventh grade is completed. If they will report to the schools every instance to their knowledge in which a child between the above ages is not attending school, it will help greatly in dealing with non-attendance and delinquency in Cisco, Cluck said.

Business men will be doing the boys or girls a great favor if they will report cases of "playing hookey," the superintendent said. "I am sorry to say that we have some parents in Cisco who seem unable to control their children. In a few rare instances parents willfully permit their children to remain out of school.

"Sources of information will not be divulged. We feel that it is the duty of every citizen to report cases of non-attendance in order that we may deal with them properly. This applies to districts associated with Cisco as well as the Cisco district.

"It is obligatory upon the school authorities to enforce the compulsory education law. We should like to do so as completely as possible, because we firmly believe that its proper and complete enforcement will have much to do with cutting down juvenile delinquency in Cisco."

LOBOS MEET GORMAN TONIGHT

Rebel Armies Are Closing in Upon Barcelona

HENDAYE, France, Jan. 17 (AP)—Three Spanish insurgent armies closed in on Barcelona last night after a day of continued advances.

Despite surface calm, mounting uneasiness was reported in the menaced capital. The nearest insurgent force was barely more than 33 miles away.

(Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco appealed by radio to government Spain to lay down its arms, asserting an insurgent victory was inevitable. His message said the insurgents were marching on Barcelona "not to destroy her, but to save her.")

Travelers reaching the border from Barcelona declared the insurgent advance, which began December 23, was a week ahead of the best the government staff thought Generalissimo Franco's men could do. Some said the capital might fall within three weeks.

Roads of central and southern Catalonia were jammed with refugees from the zone in which the government's new line of "secret defenses" were built in the mountains along the borders of Barcelona province.

The refugees hampered troop movements and created a serious food shortage in the capital.

Against the government's new defense line, to which militiamen fell back after abandoning the important port of Tarragona yesterday, the insurgents pitted three full army corps totaling almost 150,000 men on a front of less than 50 miles.

Proration Hearing at Avoca Jan. 28

AUSTIN, Jan. 17 (AP)—The first railroad commission hearing to be conducted by its new commissioner, Jerry Sadler, was recessed Monday until January 17 at Avoca to permit land and royalty-owners to testify regarding proposed rules for the Griffin oil pool in Jones county.

The hearing developed into a spacing argument, operators testifying being divided on whether 20 or 10 acres to a well would be most feasible.

Jap Paper Warns U. S. Against Guam Fortification

TOKYO, Jan. 17 (AP)—A newspaper considered an organ of the army and ultra-nationalistic elements warned the United States Monday against fortification of Guam and Wake islands if it is intended as the means toward a political foothold in China.

If such is the case, Kokumin Shimbun declared, "the Japanese people are determined to smash the American fleet."

The newspaper demanded to know "the real intentions of the American people in the western Pacific—not those of the president or the state department."

If the United States want only to increase trade with China, the editorial continued, then Japan will assist but if the United States seeks to interfere with Japan's China policy, even resorting to arms, then Japan must be ready to smash the American fleet.

"This is not the view of the army and navy but the determination of the Japanese people," Kokumin Shimbun asserted.

The newspaper said that since Japan had abrogated the nine-power Washington treaty pledging respect for territorial integrity of China and maintenance of the open door for trade she was unable to protest fortification of Guam but that she "realized such fortification would menace Japan's mandated and naturally the Japanese are gravely concerned."

O'Daniel Aid In Rate Fight Is Being Asked

WACO, Jan. 17 (AP)—Representatives of central and west Texas towns, meeting here Monday, telegraphed Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, urging him to represent Texas at the southern governors' conference in Washington Friday to discuss freight rates.

H. S. Milburn, president of the West Texas chamber of commerce, told the group: "Texas cannot become a manufacturing state until the unfair differential is removed."

D. A. Banteen, general manager of the West Texas chamber, discussed freight rate zones in the United States, asserting that the so-called official zone in the east, which he says enjoys the lowest freight rates, controls 90 per cent of the money in America.

Banteen asserted that "contrary to all principles of rate making," west Texas had seen an average increase of 109 per cent of commodity and class rates, while population and production increases averaged 33 per cent.

Chester Harrison of Brownwood described the "problem" as "political." He urged a fight in congress.

Representatives carried back for presentation to their chambers of commerce a resolution of the freight rate equality federation seeking to abolish "the unequal freight rate zones of the United States."

NEW GOVERNOR PLEDGES SELF TO AID MASSES

Inaugural Ceremonies Are Held in Stadium of Texas University

AUSTIN, Jan. 17 (AP)—Under a beaming sun and before 50,000 spectators massed in the stadium of the University of Texas, W. Lee O'Daniel today took the oath as governor of Texas.

Climaxing one of the great spectacles of Texas history, the Fort Worth flour merchant repeated the oath after Chief Justice C. M. Cureton and a 21-gun salute denoted the accession of a new chief executive.

In the words of the immortal "commoner" governor, James Stephen Hogg, O'Daniel, delivering his inaugural address, dedicated himself to the services of the "great masses."

Shortly before O'Daniel was sworn in, Coke Stevenson of Junction took the oath as lieutenant governor in succession to Walter Woodul of Houston.

Retiring Gov. James V. Allred wished the new executives the best of luck.

Text of Address
Following is the text of O'Daniel's address:
Fellow citizens, senators and representatives:

In taking the oath, I have, by the grace of a generous people, assumed grave responsibilities, the obligations of which bear heavily upon me. In return for the confidence bestowed, I hope, faithful service will be rendered by a grateful officer.

On this occasion, I must eschew a discussion of state politics and of measures meriting legislative attention, for, by message tomorrow, I shall present to the legislature my views on many important subjects with confidence that they will be duly considered, to the advantage of public interests.

This government was instituted for the safety and happiness of the people and the object of all laws should be to accomplish those ends.

The splendid body of senators and representatives now in session, with those objects alone in view, will receive my hearty and earnest assistance in accomplishing the work that lies before them.

While the people expect much of this administration, they can be trusted to wait for results, in which they will not be disappointed. Honest, faithful efforts on the part of their servants can not fail of their approbation. There are no better judges of what is proper, or of the efficient performance of duty than the great masses, who of right do, and should forever, control this government. In them, it is with pride, that I confess my confidence. To them, before this imposing and welcome assemblage here to witness the beginning of my official service, I publicly acknowledge unfeigned gratitude.

From penury in boyhood, all along life's rugged way, they have liberally shown me favors; and now, from the subbit of my political ambition, I acknowledge their supremacy and dedicate my honor, my time, and my abilities to the protection and promotion of their sacred rights and material interests.

Doors To Be Open
"In conclusion, I beg to tender to the senators and representatives the freedom of the department over which I am to preside, and to assure them that on no occasion will the doors be closed to their coming, for with them I join in a common work for the good of a proud and confiding constituency, whose pride centers in the glory, the honor and the advancement of a great state."

Ladies and gentlemen, the words I have just uttered are the exact words spoken by Gov. James Stephen Hogg during his first inaugural address delivered before the 22nd legislature January 21, 1891. Pray tell me what words

Business Men Have Writer's Cramp

To read that the United States at attempting to simplify systems under which individuals and business concerns had to render 135,500,000 returns and reports to the federal government last year brings a mixed reaction.

First, there is faint pleasure that something is being done about it. And second there is chagrin that we have allowed ourselves to be overwhelmed in such a mass of bookkeeping.

Many a business man can tell you these days of special clerks hired and of the increasing amount of time of regular employes and himself devoted to answering questionnaires, filling out reports, and mailing both to Washington. It is a serious handicap to the conduct of business.

Many times Americans have laughed at the methods of the German dictatorship wherein 60 to 80 forms have to be filled out to consummate an ordinary business transaction. Many times they have laughed at Russian Communist red tape which so enmeshes executives that they dare not make the slightest administrative move without an endless correspondence with Moscow.

Are we getting ourselves in the same boat? If there is any chance of it, we'd better get out quickly while there is still time. One of the outstanding advantages which a system of free enterprise has over any kind of a socialistic setup is the lack of centralized control, the ability of individual managers and executives to make decisions, right or wrong, on the spot without clearing them through a central point. With all the faults of free enterprise, this advantage is a real one. It makes for flexibility, speed, efficiency.

It is difficult, however, to see how any socialistic system (or any totalitarian system) can help being largely centralized. The sheer inability of any central clearing point to funnel through itself the mass of decisions necessary to the day's work of a great country is one of the most valid objections to socialism.

But to have the disadvantages of centralization without the other advantages claimed for socialism, is folly. Every scrap of this red tape that can possibly be snipped away without sacrificing objectives that have properly found a place in the central government, ought to be sheared off without delay.

It's been discovered that chess was played as early as 800 B. C. Somebody must have come upon two ancients still trying to finish a game.

WHAT IT MEANS--- The Relief Squabble

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The question of the moment in Washington:

"Is congress at long last about to face the relief problem in dead earnest?"

That problem has been pointed out—but not answered—by economists of every hue, from stark radical to ultra conservative. Everybody has been talking about the politics of relief, but few people have been discussing the real problem.

Simplified, it is just this—the arithmetic of relief. That arithmetic is a simple, seventh grade equation almost anybody can understand. But the answer is as elusive as the Einstein theory.

Here's one side of the equation: By most reliable counts, there are about 10,000,000 unemployed persons in the United States—people who can't, or won't, find a job.

On the Other Side
Here's the other side of the equation:

The federal government is spending money at the rate of more than two billion dollars a year to care for some 3,000,000 of the unemployed. Every dollar of that sum represents borrowed money—red ink on the treasury's books.

Just a Compromise
The house sub-committee in charge of the relief purse strings has cut the $875,000,000 to $725,000,000, a slash of $150,000,000. Most authorities on all sides of the political fence agree that this is plain compromise between a policy of spending, and a policy of retrenchment—not a solution.

On the basis of that compromise, most authorities figure that congress is going to make no more than a gesture to cut the expense of relief, or even of the federal government as a whole.

"Zig-Zag" Reading in Conoco Ads

PONCA CITY, Okla., Jan. 17.—Newspaper advertising will again be the backbone of Continental Oil company's 1939 advertising program, the largest in the company's history, it was announced here today by A. J. Rabe, advertising manager.

"While we feel that we have a well-rounded program for the year," said Rabe, "assigning a fair appropriation to every important advertising medium, by far the largest share of our 1939 budget will be spent for newspaper space."

Continental's current newspaper advertising presents the new form of "zig-zag" reading. In this proposed reform for relieving eye-strain, the type of each second line of copy is arranged with the words in reverse order—so that the eye can read from left to right on the first line and from right to left on the second line—avoiding the strain of long eye sweeps between lines. This "zig-zag" advertising is not intended as a reform, but is presented merely as an interesting game or contest for readers.

STAMP NEWS

The New York World is going to bring out a commemorative postage stamp. The United States will list with one value, followed by Brazil, Liberia, Ecuador, and Rumania. Canada, France and Salvador are among such issues and very many other countries taking in the exposition will issue list.

The visit of the British queen to Canada and the States next summer may result in a special U. S. stamp. It is almost certain to issue stamp, possibly a set of three.

Two postal sets, one airmail, one regular, will be issued by Panama Canal Zone this year. Six airmail values ranging from five cents to $1 will be issued February to mark the 10th anniversary of the Canal Zone at service. Designs will be from original sketches.

The regular series, to be issued in August to mark the 25th anniversary of the opening of the canal, will comprise 18 stamps ranging from one cent to $1. They will depict scenes of Isthmus before and after canal was constructed.

Interesting new issues: French colonial from Guadeloupe, French Guiana, Coast, Madagascar, New Guinea, Niger territory, Sudan, Togo.

Japan—nine separate planned showing scenes of Japan's 12 national parks. Each will be four stamps to a set, each containing one stamp of a set.

FROM CONGRESSMAN
CLYDE L. GARRETT

Congress Begins Grind—The first week's formalities are over in congress and work is beginning. The new session will have little new legislation passed, but will be devoted instead, to making old laws work smoother. Social security will have changes, the national labor relations act is likely to be modified, attention will be given governmental reorganization and the problem of railroads must be considered.

Bills and Resolutions—The first day of the new session found an aggregate of 2,183 proposals of all types, ranging from constitutional amendments to private pensions. Some of the measures were: Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) designed a bill to give security to aged and eliminate necessity of those over 60 competing with young people. House Bill No. 1, was sponsored by Rep. Patman (D-Tex.) and had to do with an excise tax on retail stores. Rep. Ludlow (D-Ind.) introduced a neutrality bill authorizing the president to warn Americans when going on vessels of a belligerent nation and forbids exports, loans and credits to a belligerent nation.

Railroads—A new era may be in store for the railroads this year. An era of restored prosperity and an increase in their service capacity. Realization had spread that the railroads are of supreme importance to our national well-being and that methods and means whereby the railroads will be put in possession of facilities needed to make them reach the new heights of service, should be worked out as soon as possible.

Japs Hope to Make China Big Melting Pot

By RELMAN MORIN
TOKYO, Jan. 17 (AP)—Will China finally win the war by absorbing in her own blood-stream the invading Japanese?

Political scientists, pointing to the previous invasions of China by Siberians, Mongols, Manchus and Tartars, long have held that belief. Those invaders conquered China, occupied it—and then disappeared, absorbed through intermarriage, in the colossal Chinese birthrate.

Japanese scientists, however, do not believe that this invasion will end like the others. Active measures, not to prohibit intermarriage but to encourage it, are being advocated in Tokyo today.

A New Race?

Leading the movement is Prince Kashiwa Oyami, a soldier, scientist, and son of one of the great heroes of the Russo-Japanese war. His thesis is simple. "You can't build an East Asia bloc through politics and economics alone. Japan, Manchukuo and China must be merged, physically, through intermarriage."

Oyami is campaigning for the establishment of an institute to map a definite program for that intermarriage. He says that only

Fertilizers Need Exact Labeling

Shifts to high analysis fertilizers are creating a need for more exact labeling, including the content of the secondary elements in the mixtures. The nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium in a mixture are identified in the grade formula, but these grades do not add information as to other elements.

An example is the "4-9-5" grade which approximates an average of all the mixed fertilizers on the market. This was analyzed in comparison with an "8-18-10" grade offering exactly twice as much of the three principal elements. The higher grade includes no filler. Some ingredients are identical, but there are several substitutions of more concentrated chemicals—sales more nearly "pure" in nitrogen, phosphorus, or potassium. For these three, the plant food units are exactly doubled, but not for the secondary elements. Magnesium has increased only from 20 to 24 pounds per ton; calcium content has decreased from 202 to 176, and sulphur from 138 to 77 pounds. As the farmer will use only half as much of the concentrated fertilizer these differences become even more significant.

Celebrates 74th Birthday Monday

EASTLAND, Jan. 17 (Sp.)—C. F. "Uncle Charlie" Shepperd, well known in Eastland county, observed his 74th birthday Monday at Eastland.

He has been elevator operator at the courthouse for about 10 years and is one of the county's most enthusiastic Knights of Pythias members. He has been a member of the organization for 54 years.

He was born in Kentucky. When he was 18 years of age he was made a deputy sheriff. Later he became a deputy jailer and U. S. deputy marshal.

Besides his work as an officer and elevator operator, Mr. Shepperd has been in the grocery business and "a little of everything." His work as a portrait salesman took him into 38 states. He first came to Texas in 1888 when for a short time he assisted in the office work of the late C. U. Connelley, sometimes called "father of Eastland."

Shepperd left Eastland after his work with Connelley and returned to other states. This time he has been in Eastland since 1919. He has seen three presidents, Cleveland, "Teddy" Roosevelt, and Taft, in his lifetime.

SERIAL STORY
NO TIME TO MARRY BY ELINORE COWAN STONE
COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JANET DWIGHT, heroine. She was engaged to handsome young architect.

LANCE BARSTOW, hero. Lance had great dreams for the future. So did

CYNTHIA CASTRELL, orphaned granddaughter of great-aunt Mary Cantrell. Still another dreamer was BARNEY MCKNIGHT, newspaperman. But Barney was more than a dreamer.

Yesterday, Cynthia reveals she has married Timothy Benton, that it was not Barney she wanted, that Timothy is second best. After Janet tells Aunt Mary, newspapermen call.

CHAPTER IX

Margy opened the door, and came back into the dining room, closely followed by Barney McKnight.

"I hope I'm the first of my tribe. I know mighty well I won't be the last," he began grimly. "Mrs. Cantrell, I'd like to help you and Janet handle this if you'll let me."

"Then you've heard?" Janet asked.

"Every newspaper in town has the essentials—that they were married by the parson of that little all-night church off the square, with a special license a friend of Benton's wrangled for them."

"That, Janet thought, was one thing it had not occurred to Cynthia to tell her.

"What the papers are all going to want," Barney was going on, "is the heart-throb stuff—you know, the sobs of the heart-broken grandmother and the homicidal fury of the jilted lover—"

"Oh, Barney, I hope you're not going to be dragged into this," Janet cried.

"Forget it! The important thing is that you and your aunt mustn't be hounded by reporters all day. Now, I'm not asking anything exclusive for the News. My idea was that we might cook up a simple announcement of the wedding, signed by Mrs. Cantrell, to be passed out to all comers. . . . Just that, and nothing more, no matter how they howl and beat their chests."

"Young man," Aunt Mary said, "I think you have something there. I more and more regret that we're not to keep you in the family."

He grinned impudently down at her from the arm of the chair on which he had perched.

"Well, you're free, white, and 21," he suggested. "You better make the most of your opportunities. I may not be in the market long."

"That Irish tongue of yours will get you into trouble yet, young man," Aunt Mary prophesied; but her eyes twinkled.

"Of course," Barney went on, "the papers will all play up the angle of Benton's two divorces; and we can't soft-peddle anything Cynthia and Benton may choose to give out, or the gossip of their friends. But we may save you some annoyance."

Together they devised a brief dignified paragraph: "Mrs. Mary Cantrell, of the Breckenridge apartments, announces—; and Barney made copies for all the city papers.

"Have Margy deal them out at the door," he advised, "just to show there's no ill feeling against the hard-worked press. Aside from that, Mrs. Cantrell has nothing to say."

"She definitely has not," confirmed Aunt Mary grimly. Janet had to rush off at once. There were a myriad of errands she had to attend to before her visit to Mr. Bryant's office. For one thing, she was to meet Lance at Stauffer's to select the twin rings they were going to use in the ceremony.

Lance did not see her when she first went into Stauffer's. His brows were bent over the morning paper. When she spoke to him, and he looked up she was shocked by the pale anger of the face he turned toward her.

"So this was why she ditched McKnight," Lance said, thrusting the paper into Janet's hands. "Of course I knew all along that never would come to anything—but how could Cynthia do anything so cheap and common as this?"

"I've never heard that there was anything essentially cheap or common about getting married," Janet said, trying to laugh.

She glanced at the paper—a copy of the Bulletin, the most sensational of the morning sheets. . . . It was there in glaring headlines, with pictures of Cynthia and Timothy Benton.

"You know what I mean," Lance said through tight lips. "She doesn't care a thing for that roughneck—not even so much as she did for Barney McKnight."

"Lance," Janet said, nettled as she always was by criticism of Cynthia, "I don't like you to speak that way about my cousin. Anyhow, how do you know?"

For a moment he stood staring at her as if startled by her question. Then his frown vanished, and he was his usual engaging self.

"Don't let's quarrel, Jan," he cried. "Of course what worries me about the whole thing is the annoyance it's bound to subject you to. And you must admit it is a little embarrassing just before our wedding."

After they had selected the rings, Janet hurried off on her dizzy round for the day—a fitting, her visit to Mr. Bryant's office, the luncheon at Sylvia Grant's house, a finger wave—squeezed in somehow—and then supper with Lance downtown.

When she put down her bag at the dressmaker's, she realized that she was still carrying the copy of the Bulletin which Lance had put into her hand. She folded it and put it with the rest of her things, thinking she would read the story about Cynthia as soon as she had an opportunity. She might as well have some idea of the worst that was being said.

The gowns were going to be lovely. There was a sea-green evening gown with a bouffant skirt and a tiny jacket of sequins that Lance would love, a beautiful trim afternoon frock of velvet in deep blue, and a black dinner dress with touches of jade. The one Janet liked the best was a knitted wool in shades of brown and orange and russet, pointed with green, which suggested an autumn wood. . . . And there were others.

Suddenly Janet wondered just why she had imagined she could need so many dresses. She wondered still more after she had asked for and been given a tentative estimate of the entire bill, so that she might have some definite idea how much money she would need before she talked to Mr. Bryant.

Mr. Bryant listened silently as she explained her financial dilemma to him, his eyes upon the blotter of his desk, upon which he was absently sketching while she talked. When she had finished, he sat silently for so long that Janet thought, he's trying to think of some polite way to tell me what a fool I am.

"Of course," she added defensively, "I'm just beginning to realize that I have been pretty extravagant lately, but after all, you only get married once—at least, she amended with a confident little smile, "I do. . . . And I'm going to be really careful after this, with the payments on the house to take care of—until Lance is on his feet, of course. . . . Oh, yes—and the money I'll need to help Aunt Mary a little."

It was not until she had finished, and Mr. Bryant lifted his eyes that she realized how very grave he was looking.

"Miss Janet," he said, "I'm afraid I have some startling news for you. . . . I wonder of you ever read the financial pages of the newspapers?"

"Of course not," Janet said.

"Why should she? Her only interest in money was that it should be there when she needed it, as it always had been. Besides, she had seldom before spent up to the full amount of her income.

"Then you don't know that things have been pretty jittery on Wall Street for the past week or so?"

"Why—no," Janet said; then, trying to smile, "Is it important?"

This is the "melting pot" theory, reincarnated in the Orient. It was first applied to the United States when anthropologists began considering the effect of the confluence, in one nation, of so many blood streams.

Japanese do not fear complete amalgamation in China. They argue that, in the case of China's previous invasions, the invaders' native countries were far distant and the occupation was by isolated armies a long way from home.

In the case of the Japanese, the invasion of China is not merely by an army. In time it will be by a people with Japan only a short distance away. Tokyo officials believe the Japanese can be depended upon to maintain their identity in China.

could be more properly chosen to express the needs of our people today. Pray tell me who could read these words with more sincerity than I. And what could better prove that history repeats itself in the perpetuation of the rights of the common citizens than for those immortal words of Gov. James Stephen Hogg to be today heard by millions who now listen here, and on these numerous radio networks, as they were repeated by one who was born in the same year that Gov. James Stephen Hogg was elected.

Ideal Governor

Possibly I may fall far short of the humanitarian achievements of my ideal governor, but his glorious accomplishments certainly provide a goal for which any governor might proudly strive to reach. If full and complete self-sacrificing devotion to duty; determination to achieve happiness and prosperity for others; contribution of every ounce of my ability; and supplications to him on high for guidance, will lead me on and on in the same path trod by Gov. James Stephen Hogg, I shall be happy. Anything short of that accomplishment will leave me sad.

No man could be more void of selfish motives or political ambitions than I. I come to you untarnished politically, and by the grace of God, I hope to remain forever in that category. In my opinion, democratic government is intended to serve but one main purpose and that is to establish correct rules of conduct and enforce those rules, to the end that citizens, individually may equally have the opportunity to enjoy happiness and prosperity in accordance with their own talent and ability; and to properly care for those of our citizens who become helpless and are unable to obtain assistance from their relatives and friends. Other functions of government may become temporarily necessary from time to time during emergencies.

Gift of God
Texas is rich in soil, climate and natural resources. Those things are the gift of God. The touch of man is necessary to develop these great gifts. After we have untangled some of our legislative mistakes of the past and placed our government on a sound, constructive economic business basis, so that the pangs of hunger and poverty of our helpless citizens are appeased, and the minds of our business men eased, we shall then be ready to enter a new era of industrial and agricultural development which should bring to every man, woman and child in Texas, happiness and prosperity.

All this is within our easy reach, but we must all earn it by the sweat of our brow, because it is a basic fact that happiness and prosperity cannot be legislated into existence. We need to tackle the problem and work harmoniously in a co-operative spirit to bring about its realization. It is not a one-man job, but it is the job of the more than six million citizens of this great state of Texas. Each of us must do our part, and the laurels gained shall be sufficient to crown all who take part. To study and determine these needs and requirements and transmit his recommendations to the legislature is the duty of the governor. To formulate the rules by which we shall be governed in carrying out our plans is the duty of the legislature. I am determined to do my duty. I am fully convinced that the legislature will do its duty.

Daughters of Cattle Barons to Grace Show

FORT WORTH, Jan. 17 — Daughters of eight well known cattle families of Texas and the southwest will ride into the rodeo arena amid a burst of fanfare to make their bows before the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock show, March 10 to 19.

The eight ranch-girl honor guests will come to the Fort Worth exposition as favorite daughters of their respective sections, having been chosen by cattlemen in those sections. Each is proficient in horsemanship but make no claims for professional ability in the rodeo.

Manager John B. Davis of the Stock Show announced that these girls had accepted invitations: Miss Walter Fay Cowden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cowden of Midland; Miss Mary Anna Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Smith of Marfa; Miss Lucy Reagan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rocky Reagan of Beeville; Miss Peggy Minnick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Minnick of Crowell; Miss Fern Sawyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. U. D. Sawyer of Cross Roads, N. M.; Miss Syna Yokley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Yokley of Canadian; Miss Glow Rhoades, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rhoades of Throckmorton, and Miss Elizabeth Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Martin of Del Rio.

By honoring the ranch-girl visitors, Davis said, an effort will be made to pay a tribute to the cattle families who have cooperated throughout the years in making the Fat Stock Show one of the best in the nation.

In a little country churchyard near Arlington, Kan., now rests the body of that saintly mother. At this very moment there are gathered around her grave some of my relatives who were unable to come to this ceremony, and for me, in her memory, they are tenderly laying upon her grave a cross of fresh flowers. By that act, and with the trust of God, allegiance to all citizens of Texas, and devotion I pledge my all to help perpetuate government of the people, by the people, and for the people.
