O'DANIEL WOULD ABOLISH DEATH PENALTY

Loboes Win Opener From Strong Morton Valley 5

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Up in the state of Ohio, according to this morning's papers, legislators are arguing for a bill to make nudism legal. One side argues that to enact such a measure would impinge dangerously on the civil liberties of individuals. The other side asserts that the privilege of being around naked is not a proper right and offends public decency. With a side of which, I quite agree. I am not a fence-dweller on the issue, either.

Quite to the contrary, I think that the quality of the public morals will take care of the indecency of public nakedness, and that if there is not, there isn't a bit of sense in passing any laws to prevent it. It all boils down to a temper in a teapot.

Marcel Harrison was high point man with 15 to his credit, followed by Odell Harrison with five, Coy Warren, R. D. Donham, and others.

The local lads meet the Morton Valley quintet again tonight at the latter's gym in the second of the three-game play-off. Reports were that a special bus would be run from here to Morton Valley for fans wishing to go. Victory in this game will give the Loboes undisputed possession of the county title; a loss would necessitate the playing of a third game on an undecided neutral court.

SECOND TITLE SERIES GAME DUE TONIGHT

County Cage Title Hinges on Outcome of Three Contests

By Gordon Sherman

The Cisco Loboes moved within one game of the Eastland county cage title and the right to enter the District 6 meet, first step in the state play-off extending through regional and state meets, at the local gym last night when they downed a fighting Morton Valley five 31-25 in a rough battle.

The Loboes led throughout the contest, holding a 13-9 margin at halftime and an 18-17 lead at the end of the third quarter. The game was marred much during the last half by the ejection of players via the personal foul route. No less than seven players suspended activities on this account and many of both team's points were accounted for from the 15-foot marker.

Reports were that a special bus would be run from here to Morton Valley for fans wishing to go. Ranger Project to Improve Street Gets Approval

RANGER, Feb. 9 (Sp.)—Presidential approval of a WPA project for Ranger was announced in telegrams from Congressman Clyde L. Garrett and Senator Tom Connally, addressed to the Ranger city commission and the Ranger chamber of commerce. The project calls for:

The project calls for improving drainage facilities in the city of Ranger. The allotment is for $30,694.

The telegram received from Congressman Garrett reads: "Presidential approval for your street improvement project in sum of $30,694 was secured this morning. Official notice to start work will be received in regular official channels from San Antonio."

The telegram from Senator Tom Connally contains the same information, with a few more details. It reads:

"Works Progress administration has approved allotment of $30,694 to improve drainage facilities along Blundell and Haig streets in the City of Ranger, including clearing and grubbing along present channels, building retaining walls, placing bottoms in drainage ditches, removing old walls, constructing crossings and performing incidental and appurtenant work. Project now eligible for operation at discretion of state Works Progress administrator."

The project, which has been approved, is one of three now in Washington, and which have been approved in the Eastland, Fort Worth and San Antonio offices. The other projects include street work and building a swimming pool at the Willows. The latter project includes the pool proper, a lake above the Willows from which water is to be obtained.

Fighting Virginia Gentlemen

Latest political storm signals over Washington indicate President Roosevelt has joined those seeking to break the Virginia political machine headed by the potent Senators Carter Glass, left, and Harry Byrd, pictured with heads together at senate judiciary committee meeting which rejected the president's nominee Floyd Roberts for a federal judgeship. Looking to 1840, the president would like a Virginia delegation controlled by someone else than Byrd and Glass, political observers say.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 9 (AP).—Senator King (D-Utah) today blocked senate confirmation of former Gov. James V. Allred, named by President Roosevelt to be federal judge of the southern district of Texas.

Portable X-Ray Added to Graham Hospital Here

A portable X-ray machine, hardly any larger than an average-size suit case, has been added to the equipment at Graham sanitarium this week. The instrument, which represents a late development in X-ray mechanism, will take pictures of the human body from any angle now possible with stationary equipment, and it greatly increases the facility and convenience of X-ray examination.

With it, X-ray pictures of patients may not only be made at the home or elsewhere, but patients suffering from skull fractures, fractures of limbs and other serious injuries, need not be moved from the beds on which they have been placed. Instead of taking the patient to the X-ray laboratory the X-ray comes to the patient.

Flag Etiquet Is Rotary Club Topic

Flag etiquette was the subject of an interesting program presented at the Rotary club today noon when Edward Lee, chairman of the program committee presented J. T. Eggan of the Cisco Lions club, in a catechism on rules for displaying and reverencing the flag.

Mr. Eggan conducted the program in question and answer form, members being asked questions by him.

President R. L. Ponsler named R. N. Cluck, H. H. Monk and Lee Heltzel on a committee to arrange for the Rotary inter-city meeting to be held in Cisco soon.

Thompson to Be Witness at Hearing

AUSTIN, Feb. 9 (AP).—Texas' lone witness at a congressional hearing on freight rate equalization, starting Feb. 28, will be Ernest O. Thompson, a member of the state railroad commission.

RESPONSE TO BABY PARADE TODAY GREAT

Many Babies Entered in Unique Contest for Honors

Response to the announcement Wednesday of the Big Baby Parade being sponsored by the Cisco Daily Press and cooperating merchants was almost instantaneous. Entrants began coming into The Daily Press office early this morning and numerous inquiries were received by telephone from parents and relatives of babies who could not come to the newspaper office asking that the Baby Parade editor call and explain the Parade.

For eight weeks baby will be glorified in Cisco and the Cisco trade territory. Rules of the contest were explained in a big double-page advertisement in the Wednesday issue of The Daily Press, and from time to time there will be other big advertisements showing the progress of the Parade.

Baby Pictures

Pictures of the smiling, chuckling, cooing youngsters will be taken free of charge by the Osborn Studio at Cisco, whose baby photos are celebrated for their excellence and particularly for the lovely expressions which the camera is able to capture. These pictures will appear from time to time in the pages of the Cisco Daily Press, and as the voting advances, pictures of the leaders in the contest will be repeated.

Nothing that has been announced in Cisco in years has created response as has this Baby Parade. The contest will be put on nowhere else in this trade area. Cisco has exclusive right to the Parade in this section, so that for the next two months the Baby baby capital of this area will be here.

Babies from Eastland, Gorman, Carbon, Rising Star, Scranton, Putnam, Moran and other communities in this territory are invited to enter the Parade of Babies which already promises to be one of the most exciting events that has taken place in this part of the state since the discovery of the Ranger oil pool.

Awards

Every baby entered in the campaign not only will receive honor and glory, but the opportunity to Twenty-five vocational agriculture teachers from Area IV have already registered for the school, according to A. J. Spangler, director of the school of agriculture at Tarleton college.

The morning session of the training period will be devoted to the study of milk judging. This will be under the direction of Dr. V. M. Scott, veterinarian at Tarleton. The afternoon session will be under the direction of Prof. J. W. Sorenson, and will consist of a study of farm shop methods.

RECOMMENDS ACTION TODAY IN MESSAGE

Says Thousands of Letters and Wires Are Received

AUSTIN, Feb. 9 (AP).—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, in a special message to the legislature today, recommended abolition of the death penalty. He said he had received thousands of letters and telegrams asking substitution of an "irrevocable life sentence."

The senate was expected to reach floor consideration today of a bill authorizing the old age pension administration to borrow an additional $900,000 so as to avoid a 28 per cent cut in grants, which now average only $13.80 a month. Governor O'Daniel has not said what he will do if the senate approves the bill, already passed by the house.

The bill would keep the rolls at approximately their present level until September 1. What they will be after that date would depend on the amount of new taxes authorized.

Rep. Mainer Westbrook of Fairdale recalled that O'Daniel repeatedly had said bigger old age pensions should be the first order of business and had submitted revenue raising as an emergency matter.

"What I want," he said, "is for this house to get down to business and stop attending picnics, barbecues and adjourning on Thursdays to run home for the week-end. I'm willing to work nights, all night, to get some important business transacted."

Rep. E. H. Thornton of Galveston pointed out that house committees would hold a hearing next Wednesday on O'Daniel's proposed transactions tax.

Rep. George H. Harper of Jefferson commented that if this house would spend more time on

The case had been appealed from the 88th district court of which B. W. Patterson is judge. Mr. Conner stated it was probable the woman would begin her sentence in the county jail today.

District Lions Meeting at Ranger

RANGER, Feb. 9 (Sp.)—A district meeting of Lions clubs, with visitors from Eastland, Cisco, Breckenridge and Albany, will be held at Ranger Thursday night, February 9, with members of the Ranger club as hosts.

An interesting program for the affair has been worked out by the entertainment committee from the Ranger club, with each club in the district furnishing a part of the program.

Officers of the Ranger club stated today that the meeting would be entirely informal.

Dr. Rupert E. Richardson of Hardin-Simmons university, governor of District 2-E, will be the principal speaker of the evening.

The Ranger portion of the program, in addition to the address by Dr. Richardson, will be presented by Mrs. Mamie Ruth Hamrick's sextet.

Approximately 125 are expected to be in attendance.

Boundary Vacancy Case Is Settled

AUSTIN, Feb. 9 (AP).—Another chapter, perhaps the final important one, was written by the Texas supreme court Wednesday in the epic history of litigation growing out of the varying locations of the 100th meridian as it forms a boundary between Texas and Oklahoma.

In an opinion by special Chief Justice Sidney L. Samuels of Fort Worth, the court refused an application of Gus L. Wortham of Houston for a writ of mandamus seeking to compel the state land commissioner to declare about 28,000 acres along this boundary a vacancy between surveys and therefore subject to claim as public domain.

Emergency Crop Loan Applications Being Received

Applications for emergency crop and feed loans for 1939 are now being received at Cisco by J. D. Word, county commissioner of the emergency crop and feed loan section of the Farm Credit administration.

The loans will be made, as in the past, only to farmers whose cash requirements are small and who cannot obtain credit from any other source. The money loaned will be limited to the farmer's immediate and actual cash needs for growing his 1939 crops or for the purchase of feed for livestock.

Farmers who can obtain the funds they need from an individual, production credit association, bank, or other concern are not eligible for crop and feed loans from the emergency crop and feed loan section of the Farm Credit administration. The loans will not be made to standard rehabilitation clients whose current needs are provided for by the Farm Security administration, formerly known as the resettlement administration.

As in the past, farmers who obtain emergency crop and feed loans will give as security a first lien on the crop financed, or a first lien on the livestock to be fed if the money borrowed is to be used to produce or purchase feed for livestock.

Where loans are made to tenants, landlords, or others having an interest in the crops financed or the livestock to be fed, are required to waive their claims in favor of a lien to the governor of the Farm Credit administration until the loan is repaid.

Checks in payment of approved loans will be mailed from the regional emergency crop and feed loan office at Dallas, Texas.

SERIAL STORY WOMEN WANT BEAUTY!

CAST OF CHARACTERS
SUSIE LAMBERT—She served waffles and dreamed of being beautiful.
DICK TREMAINE—He liked Susie's waffles but he couldn't see Susie.
JEFF BOWMAN—His chief concern was to make Susie as beautiful as she wanted to be.

Yesterday Dick had once dated Susie as a jest. Now she recalls the day sorrowfully, wishes she might have been beautiful just for him.

CHAPTER IV
Susie went to bed, but not to sleep. Her thoughts still pursued the well-worn path of memory. She had bought an evening dress for Dick's party, bright blue, moire taffeta on the outside, definitely satene underneath. It was long and extremely backless and sported two red velvet poppies on the bosom. She bought high-heeled red sandals. Actually they made her feet appear pretty and small but they hurt terribly.

On the day of the party she had her hair done, marveled into a frizz, the bangs swirling from left to right. The frizz made her hair shorter than ever, it left a straight fringe on her chubby neck. She had her nails manicured, very pink very shiny. She bought bath powder and a brilliant shade of lipstick.

By Saturday night Susie was in a dither. It took two hours to dress. She dropped everything, upset everything. The thin silk hose were a bit too short when she carefully pulled them over her well-rounded knees. The tight buckles snapped off its one hook when she leaned over and she had to undress. The dress was more snug than she had thought it in the shop, but the long skirt was beautifully slenderizing.

Susie's mirror said unflattering things concerning bright blue with her sallow skin. She airily denied the accusation and put on more rouge. Her mouth, cherry red to the far corners, was enormous. This, too, she refused to admit. It was no night for faultfinding.

Over the festive gown she wore her spring coat, the swagger style. Noticing its dimensions one of the waitresses had said, "Susie's coat must have been made by Omar the Tentmaker." Susie was sorry she had no evening wrap, but a budget could only be stretched so far.

Never would Susie forget the moment when Dick arrived. Nothing that happened afterward could blur the rapture of that moment. Waiting in the lower hall, tense with anticipation, she had opened the door for him. Had he looked horrified for a split second? Surely not. Smiling, he removed his hat. Oh, the cleanliness of him, the breathtaking smoothness of his hair the splendor of his evening clothes, the whole perfection of him.

Susie always remembered what he said, "Lady, the carriage waits." She giggled hysterically. The carriage was a roadster, long, low and swanky. Susie tripped on the long dress and literally fell into the seat. The top was down and the night air blew some of the frizz out of her hair, leaving a dismally unmanageable strands. On the drive to the fraternity house she laughed too much, talked too much, was jumpy as a toy balloon. All at once Susie was stricken with fear. What went on at a fraternity dance? She hadn't an idea. Excitement dissolved and with it went confidence.

"I've never been to a nice party," she said to Dick. "Maybe I shouldn't have come."
"You'll get along all right," he assured her. "I'll see that you do." He sounded a bit firm.

He took her to the dressing room and, as she entered, the chatter ceased. Girls everywhere in slim satins, soft chiffons, their heads coifed smoothly, their eyebrows daintily arched. Some of the girls turned their backs as Susie uncertainly took off her spring coat. She heard a suppressed snicker. Several of the more kindly inclined said, "Hello, Susie," and she stammered an answer. Then the girls left Susie alone, and she heard the ripple of laughter on the stairs.

Nervously powdering her nose she stopped, aghast at what she saw in the long mirror, squat bulk, overhanging eyebrows, the bulging fatness of her back. Frantically she fussed with her hair while panic seized her. She couldn't go down—she couldn't. Then came Dick's voice from somewhere beyond the door. "Bout ready, Susie?"

After that the party was a series of vague impressions, young men whom she had served with waffles being ostentatiously polite, girls who ignored her, dress too tight, shoes too light, Dick always there. From 9:30 until one Susie danced with Dick, stumbling, losing the step, coming up with a jolt against his smoothly moving feet.

At twelve she had said, "Take me home, Dick."
He looked at his wrist watch. "Just a little longer, Susie." There was a little white line of fatigue around Dick's young mouth. He smiled gallantly. At one they were served with tiny sandwiches and huge black olives, sherry and coffee. The girls were presented with silver compacts with the Delta Phi emblem embossed on one side. Susie was delighted with the trinket.

At one, descending the stairs, she came in for a waffle the next, but by that time Susie had learned the bitter truth. Her hurt was so deep and so wide that the bud of love might have been nipped had Dick been anyone except himself.

she saw one of the older boys talking to Dick in a low tone. Distinctly she heard the words, "kiss her" and Dick's angry exclamation. Bewildered, she saw Dick tear the pledge pin off his vest. The older boy backed away, refusing the pin, laughing, saying, "Okay—you don't need to get sore." None of it made sense to Susie.

Sitting comfortably in the roadster beside a strangely preoccupied escort Susie pondered over the incident in the hall. Obviously the upper classman had not wanted Dick to kiss her. Her blood pounded furiously at the thought. And Dick had been angry at the interference. Tremblingly, Susie waited.

At last she glanced at him from under her heavy brows. "Why didn't he want you to kiss me?" she asked, rather ingeniously for one unversed in subtleties.
Dick looked at her quickly, startled. He uttered, "Those guys had better mind their own business."

What Susie had answered still lay like a scorching coal in her heart for four years. She had said, "Well—if you want to and—if I don't care—" Unkissed, hungry for love, flaming with it—
Dick stopped the car at Susie's shabby rooming house. "Look," he said, "I don't like fellows who kiss every girl they take out. I think it's common and not very complimentary to the girl."
"I've never been kissed," she said wistfully. It wasn't like Susie to be forward. Something outside herself, or perhaps within herself, wanted to be kissed. The still, crisp night, the star bitten sky, Dick's clean honest mouth, the urge of youth—she leaned heavily against him.
Dick still hesitated. "Would it make you feel better about tonight if I kissed you?" he asked. She gazed at him not understanding. "If you knew I'd never take you out again would you want me to kiss you?"
Susie raised her lips and he kissed her. It was quick, reluctant, but in that instant Susie's lonely, thwarted heart gave itself into Dick's keeping without thought of consequences, without question. Little wings of ecstasy beat in her heart, the cool night beat in her heart, the cool night whispered, life had suddenly become mysterious and sweet. Love had come to stay with Susie.
"Thank you," she said softly.
"Oh, please don't—"
Dick took her to the door. Going up the porch steps she tripped again on her skirt and she laughed, a throaty, dreamy little laugh. Dick thanked her for going to the party with him, said he had enjoyed the evening, said he'd be in for a waffle the following day, and hurried back to his car.
He came in for a waffle the next, but by that time Susie had

A delightful party and miscellaneous showed was given on Tuesday afternoon of last week at the clubhouse of the "21" Study Club, the honoree being Mrs. Elizabeth King, whose home near Lewis store, three miles from town, about a month ago. The clubhouse was attractively decorated with Valentines. The party was planned by and had as hostesses the welfare committee of the club, Mrs. W. H. Davis, C. W. L. After the crowd had gathered all joined in singing "Bright Corner Where You Are," "Smile" song, and several other songs. Let No One Misinterpret America's Will to Peace

GRADUALLY, one by one as war hysteria grows, Americans seem to be slipping away into the resigned belief that "there is going to be a European war; we can't keep out of it; and maybe it's just as well because somebody has to stop the aggressor nations. Besides, maybe it would be good for business."

BRUCE BLIVEN, a keen observer, has gone so far as to say that the American attitude toward Germany is now about what it was in February, 1917.

This is, therefore, exactly the time to sit back, light a cigaret or eat a gumdrop, according to preference, and think a minute.

True, a chorus of loud and angry voices make the United States at the moment seem very bellicose. Certainly the people are deeply concerned, puzzled, angry, at the way the world goes. But the country is not nearly as angry, not nearly as bellicose, as some of the voices would indicate.

Behind every voice demanding "a strong stand," "firm measures," "being armed to the teeth," "standing for no more nonsense," "taking up our place in world leadership" and all those ringing phrases, there are thousands of silent, inarticulate men and women who cling to peace. They saw the results of the last great crusade in 1917-1918. They look on a world tottering to ruin largely as a result of that war. They see today's wars, more destructive, more ruinous, more ruthless than of old.

These same people would fight to the death any imminent menace to our country, its lands and people, its vital interests.

BUT war is still hated and despised in this country as in no other. When President Roosevelt said "I hate war!" a murmur of approbation swept across the whole country. When he said "quarantine the aggressors," there was not unanimous applause, but division. And when he was quoted as having said something to the effect that "the Rhine is now our frontier," there was such a storm of indignation that he was forced to explain three days later that he said no such thing.

Let no one misinterpret America's will to peace. Some of the American colonists, before the revolution, used a flag with a coiled snake and the motto "Don't tread on me!" Not "Don't tread on Joe Doakes!" or "Don't tread on our particular conception of democracy," but "Don't tread on men!"

There has been considerable thrashing in the bushes near us. Some heavy footprints have clumped down perilously close. But as yet no foot has trodden on us. Until something like that happens, let us remain cool, unhysterical, and vigilant.

Old Doughboy with the din of the last fracas still in his ears wants to know if we are paying rent on our first line of defense which it is reported President Roosevelt has said is in France.

A boy with a future in politics has been found in the merchant marine. His job was peeling potatoes and cutting the eyes out. He described himself to land lubbers as "ship's optician."

Patriotic fervor as handed over the microphone by Hitler is said to be furnished by a radio mechanic with asthma.

A Kentucky jury has fined a man $200 for striking a poet. Protecting our songbirds, eh?

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

The law of "survival of the fittest" announced many years ago by certain scientists was based upon observations of nature that seemed to point to a relentless struggle for supremacy, between rivaling forms of life, or with hostile environment. Here in the dead of winter I placed sixteen good eggs under a hen. One was broken soon after. Fifteen came through the period of incubation intact. One I gave a good chance to hatch and then threw it out with that heavy sound inside that suggested a well-formed chick. One came up to the very point of emerging but weak vitality or tough shell was too much for it. One I helped into the light of day but it did not survive. Twelve chicks followed their mother from the nest. But still another had to be counted among the unfit, for they had hardly begun to take food when it succumbed to the testing rigors of environment. So I had a hen and eleven fluffy chicks for my early flock. Scarcely of sunshine withheld one of the chief requirements of an unclothed chicken in winter time. Along came one of those chilling northerners that is trying even on a grown person. I found two or three of my eleven pretty much drawn up and creepy. I brought them in by the fire but they were too far gone or else the sudden change got the best of them. I now had eight—one half of the original setting, that promised to become fitters. But one of these broke his promise when he began to droop his little wings and stub of a tail and the next morning lay in the coop a victim of circumstances. Now, subject to the gauntlet of hawks, weasels, skunks, rats, spring showers, falling boards, prowling cats, wrong feeding, chicken thieves, or some unheard of peril, I have seven prospects for the table or the market. These last two, from the chicken's standpoint, must be included among the hostile features of environment. If these seven can escape all of these they will live to a deserv'd old age.

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

BY BRUCE CATTON NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—After six years of strenuous and expensive effort, the New Deal program to help the farmer is back within shouting distance of its starting point. The farm belt is sore again, and its soreness is reflected in Congress. It is quite possible that this Congress will go ahead and write a brand-new type of farm bill, tossing production control out of the window, having the government underwrite the farmer's cost of production, providing for the dumping of export surpluses and greatly broadening the field in which the present agricultural act operates. An influential bloc of farm belt senators and representatives has lined up behind such a bill. A similar bill failed to pass the Senate last year by just six votes; this year, the bill's backers may find those six votes and more.

First, he feels that regimentation and restriction of production must stop. If there is to be any control, he says, let farmers impose it on themselves rather than submit to something devised at Washington. Next, he believes the farmer must be assured of the cost of production of his crop, plus a fair profit, as far as crops grown for domestic consumption are concerned. Surpluses, he feels, should be exported for whatever they will bring, either with or without government aid. He would shape tariff and foreign trade policies to preserve the American market in toto for the American farmer.

He would keep the present soil conservation program, and would continue to finance agriculture through the Farm Credit Administration—but he thinks 3 per cent interest is plenty for farm loans. All of which comes reasonably close to expressing the provisions of the Frazer-Lemke bill introduced recently by the newly-formed farm bloc. Senator Capper admits with a wry smile that farmers themselves are far from united in their views. "Those farmers I talked with at Topeka certainly weren't in agreement. Most of them, I think, do want the AAA act of 1938 repealed. But one group—a small but noisy one—wants the government to stop trying to do anything at all for the farmer. A larger group wants some control of surpluses to keep prices from going down too far. Still others bitterly oppose production and marketing control, but do approve of the soil conservation program." Interest Grows in Livestock Auction Here

Interest and attendance at the livestock auction at the Cisco stock show on Monday, when the place, taking all the active selling began. The showing of trading and stock of all kinds filled the place.

Analysis of the trend shows signs of the good this year for stock farmers and is accomplishing for Cisco territory. At first, dairy and swapping seemed to dominate the event. Monday, however, breeders, young and yearling bulls seemed to be the dominant feature. "What we need," said a prominent breeder, "is more breeders and young growing breeders to bring this country into a stock farming country."

Marketed Through Stock

There is plenty of value in the place for men to bring their stock to market. They no longer need to trade their stock to get value to Cisco is to provide a foundation stock to be marketed in large or small lots to farmers who want to raise their stock in a quick and profitable manner. There is no more profitable way to raise stock than by feeding it to the market.

At the livestock auction for Cisco, the institution, but has always been itself as a needed service that fits into this section of the general scheme of providing a market for the stock farmer. There are many things to be done. For instance, it is estimated that those who bring in their stock should arrive in the morning so that their stock can be classified and listed before the selling begins.

Good blooded hogs are also listed. Work horses and mules are also listed in pens to be sold or sold. Guns and traps were also on the ground. It is believed to be having the livestock auction and trading at Cisco seems to be a big play and its popularity seems assured as a big Cisco's stock farming industry.

4-H Club Boys Condition Registered Dairy Heifers for Cisco Stock Show

Twenty-three registered Jersey heifers are being conditioned by members of the Eastland county boys 4-H dairy club for a spring dairy show. Plans are being made for these cattle to be exhibited at the Eastland County Livestock show which will be held at Cisco on the 24th and 25th of February. Sam E. Rosenberg, assistant county agent, announced these cattle also will be shown at the Ranger Livestock show and will then be taken to the Fort Worth Fat Stock show.

Realizing that the condition which these cattle are in when they reach the shows, the boys are busy training the animals to load, brushing, clipping and blanketing them to get the hair in shape, and feeding them to get them in the proper fleshed condition.

Boys who plan to exhibit their Jerseys are Jack Walker, Earl Ervin, Marvin DuPuy, James Walker, Chester Ervin, Alton Rogers, James Calvert, L. C. Love, Billy Mack Parrish and Bobby Wisdom.

News From County 4-H Clubs

Beef Calf Doing Well
Billy Johnson, Eastland 4-H club boy and son of Mr. and Mrs. J. U. Johnson, says his Hereford calf is beginning to show his oats and barley. Billy bought his Hereford steer calf last summer and started him on feed when he weighed about 425 pounds. Good care and proper feeding has made Billy's calf stretch his hide and today he weighs about 700 pounds, says Assistant County Agent Sam E. Rosenberg. Billy is planning to exhibit his calf at the Eastland County Livestock show which will be held at Cisco on February 24th and 25th.

4-H Club Boys Still Enrolling
Two hundred and fifteen boys have enrolled in the Boy's 4-H clubs in Eastland County for 1939, according to Sam E. Rosenberg, assistant county agent. There are 14 organized clubs in the county. These clubs are located at Alameda, Kokomo, Lone Cedar, New Hope, Gorman, Okra, Morton Valley Colony, Ranger, Young School, Hudnett-Grove, Romney and Desdemona. These four boys, whoever they will be when finally selected will enter their first Judging Contest when they enter the ring at the Fort Worth Livestock exposition and Fat Stock show to exhibit their skill in judging Dairy cattle along with 4-H judging teams from other counties in Texas. San Antonio Mayor Freed on Funds Charges

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 9 (AP).—In a turbulent courtroom scene that saw the judge driven temporarily from his bench by cheering, screaming spectators, Mayor C. K. Quinn, leader of Bexar county's political machine, Monday walked out of court freed of charges he misused public funds in the democratic primary in 1938.

Quinn, beaming after District Judge R. D. Wright of Laredo dismissed indictments against the mayor and two city employees, L. P. Bishop and O'Neill Campbell, proudly announced he again would be candidate for mayor of San Antonio. He has held the office since 1932.

Judge Wright held Mayor Quinn and his aides could not have misused $3,487 of public funds last July to pay some 400 political workers "because the mayor does not have custody of public funds by virtue of his office." The court ruled that no criminal offense had been committed.

The indictments against Mayor Quinn and his two followers were in connection with alleged increased payrolls during the week of the Bexar county democratic primary. Maury Mayerick, former congressman and implacable foe of Mayor Quinn, went down before

Paul Kilday, brother of San Antonio's chief of police, Owen Kilday, in that election.

Senate Committee O.K.'s Allred as Judge
WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 (AP).—The senate judiciary committee Monday approved the nomination of former Governor Allred of Texas to be federal judge in the southern Texas district.

Allred's nomination had been challenged by Representative Dies of Texas, who contended the nominee was not a resident of the district. The nomination was approved without dissent. It goes to the senate for final action.

The Story of OD and AD

and the TOMATOES

OD and AD owned neighboring farms. Both decided to grow tomatoes. But when their tomatoes were ripe, OD and AD had different ideas as to how they would sell them. This is the story of what happened.

How OD and AD Sold Their Tomatoes

OD filled baskets with his tomatoes and put them in a wagon and drove to town. He went up and down the streets looking for people who wanted to buy tomatoes. Some days he sold all. Some days he sold only a few. When the season was over, he found he had made just enough to live on.

AD thought there must be a better way to sell his tomatoes. He knew he must tell people about them, but he decided he could never sell very many tomatoes if he talked to people one at a time. So he used one of the simplest forms of ADVERTISING. He built a stand by the side of the road where many people passed. He put up a sign that said: "AD's big, red, ripe, juicy tomatoes." Because so many people saw the sign, enough people stopped to buy so that he sold all his ripe tomatoes every day. Many who bought, remembering his name on the sign, came back again and again. When the season was over, he had money in the bank.

One day AD heard that tomato juice was healthful and good to drink. He thought it would also be convenient to handle, to sell, and to serve in the home. He told OD about it. The next year both decided to make and sell tomato juice.

How OD and AD Sold Their Tomato Juice

OD's wife squeezed tomatoes all day and put the juice in bottles. OD took it to town and went from door to door, looking for people who wanted to buy tomato juice. In a whole day he could call at only about 50 homes. As most people had never heard of tomato juice and did not know how good it was, he sold only a few bottles each day.

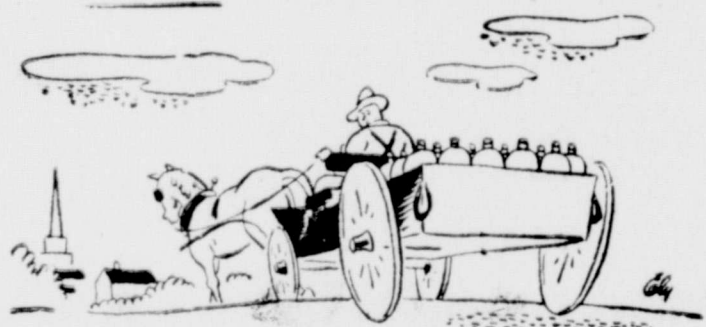

AD felt sure there was a better way to make and sell his tomato juice. He took some money from the bank and bought a shiny new press that squeezed out juice easily and quickly. He put the juice in bottles that could be tightly sealed. He had labels printed for the bottles, reading: AD'S PURE TOMATO JUICE.

He went to the grocery stores in town, where many people came every day, and asked the grocers to put a few of his bottles on their counters. Then he put an advertisement in newspapers read by thousands of people. The advertisement said:

"Enjoy the refreshing taste of AD'S PURE TOMATO JUICE, pressed from big, red, vine-ripened Tomatoes. Good to drink and good for you. At your favorite grocery store."

Because so many people read about it, enough people asked for it to exhaust the supply quickly. And remembering AD's name on the label they came back and asked for it again. So AD bought tomatoes from his neighbors and made more tomato juice to supply the demand.

What OD and AD Did The Next Year

OD and his wife decided that if they were going to make any money, they would have to work harder. So she got up earlier in the morning and picked tomatoes and squeezed and bottled juice all day. OD spent a longer day in town trying to see more people in order to sell more bottles. But, even though OD and his wife worked long and hard, they could not make any money.

AD now saw how true it was that the more people he told about his tomato juice, the more he sold. So he advertised in other cities, telling women how good tomato juice was for their families to drink. He also sent salesmen to call on grocers. He got so many orders that he arranged to buy tomatoes from hundreds of other farmers, built a bigger building, bought more equipment, more bottles and labels, and employed more people. AD knew that, because his name was on every bottle, he must always maintain the high quality of his product. And, because he did this, women soon insisted on AD'S PURE TOMATO JUICE.

AD already had found that the more he advertised and the more bottles he sold, the less it cost him to put up each bottle. Therefore, as his advertising was extended all over the country and his sales increased, he reduced the price. Thus more and more people could afford to enjoy tomato juice, and, although his profit per bottle was now very small indeed, he sold so many bottles that he had a very fine business. So both AD and his customers were benefited.

AD tells OD how an Idea Became an Industry - through ADVERTISING

ONE DAY, years later, OD called on his old neighbor AD. He said "It's remarkable how your business has grown since you got that idea about selling tomato juice."

"Yes," said AD, "but even more important have been the benefits to other people. We are now only one out of many producers of tomato juice. Yet we take all the tomatoes grown by more than a thousand farmers who have here an assured market for their crops. We give steady employment the year round to several hundred people and employ hundreds more on part-time. We pay more than half a million dollars a year to manufacturers of cans, bottles, labels, supplies, and equipment.

"The entire industry now sells more than twenty million dollars worth of tomato juice a year and the public enjoys its healthful benefits—at the lowest price at which it ever has been sold. Yes, tomato juice was a great idea, but that idea would have benefited very few —without ADVERTISING to tell the story."

Baby Parade--

win a big 24-inch Athenian loving cup and substantial cash awards.
Twenty original cash prizes have already been announced.
Of course, the babies (children six years of age or under) cannot be expected to do much cheering for themselves. They will supply the fetching little curls, the bright smiles and roguish eyes while parents, relatives, and friends help them take step after step in this fascinating parade of baby beauty.

Here is all you have to do: Use the entry blank on this page and mail or bring it to the Cisco Daily Press. Arrangements will then be made to have the baby's photo made free of charge, and published in the Cisco Daily Press. If you cannot call in person, use the telephone. That is all there is to enter your baby in the Baby Parade.
The Baby Parade is of short duration, so we advise getting into it at once and securing as many "baby steps" as possible for your baby.

A free coupon good for five "baby" steps will be given on every 50-cent purchase by the merchants listed. Coupons will also be issued on back accounts and on charge accounts when paid. It is imperative to help baby right away,
as these coupons lessen in value.
Later they will be good for only three "steps," and during the last week two "steps." Get your family, relatives and friends to help your baby right away. Have them ask for baby steps at the stores.

Thousands will be viewing your baby's picture in The Press, and many of these folks will certainly regard your baby as their favorite, and will do everything possible to help you get the cash awards and the expensive loving cup. Subscriptions to The Press will also be honored, so you will have many avenues over which to take the steps necessary to secure these coveted awards. Get your baby's entry and photograph in to The Press office today.

Mothers, fathers, grandparents, aunts and uncles! If you are proud of those babies in the family, here is your opportunity of a lifetime to win real recognition for the little one. If the baby's parents do not need the money, think what a wonderful thing it would be to add to the baby's bank account, buy an insurance policy, or set up an education fund. These are only a few of the many possibilities afforded by the Baby Parade announcement. Be sure your baby is entered.

Babies six years of age or under, except those of employees of the Cisco Daily Press, the Osborn Studio and children of co-poreat-ing merchants, are eligible for the $250 in cash to the 20 most popular children. First prize is $100 cash and a 24-inch Athenian finished loving cup. Second award is $50, third $25, fourth $15, fifth $10, sixth to tenth $5, and eleventh to twentieth, $2.50. Cash for your baby—free photos of your baby—
do not let this opportunity slip by.

A locked ballot box has been placed in The Daily Press office
in which "baby step" coupons shall be placed. Friends and parents should write the baby's name on the coupon and deposit same in the ballot box. They can be deposited singly or in bunches.
Two weeks from this Saturday
the ballot box will be opened for the first time and the 20 babies having the highest number of "steps" to their credit will be placed in their respective positions in the honor roll. To have your child's name high on this first honor roll will mean much to the success in the Baby Parade. An honor roll tabulation will be made

GRAPEVINE

This cold weather is hard on us but fine on the fruit trees. Let's hope we make some fruit in this part of the country this year.

Grandmother Sharp, who has been ill for some time, is slowly improving.
Howard Warren Wright returned with his sister, Mrs. J. T. Weaver, to Idalou, Texas, to finish the school year there.

Ladies, don't forget the class meeting for Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. We are enjoying these meetings very much and hope to see everyone present who can possibly be there. The topic for discussion on Friday night of this week is "Rural Communities;
What They Need Most." So please be present and let's find out what our community needs.

Most of the farmers are quite busy in their fields just now, since it is the first time in some time that it has been dry enough to work in them. Some are sowing grain, some harrowing and some breaking land.

A few Baptist people from this community attended the preaching services at Corinth Baptist church Sunday. There should be more of you go since we do not have any church here in our community and this is close by. We are welcome over there. They have Sunday school each Sunday and preaching services by the Rev. Mr. Thompson of Ranger once each month.

Set Up Weather Bureau
At the North Pole

THE Russians predict freely that within five years airplanes carrying 100 passengers will fly regularly between the Soviet Union and the United States by way of the North Pole.

The Russians are confident of this because they have already tested the weather conditions at the Pole through their own bureau established there for an eight-month period. It turned out to be the world's most hazardous bureau and its keepers were rescued finally by a Soviet ice breaker. But Moscow still claims that the Polar route is certain for tomorrow.

The Polar weather bureau expedition was headed by scientist Ivan Papanin. He was accompanied by three associates who were landed with him at the Pole in 1937. Immediately they set up a weather office, a radio station, tent dwellings for themselves. And all went well for a time until the ice began to shift.

It split with a thunderous warning, leaving the Russians to float away from the Pole on a tiny jagged cake. They were able to rescue enough food for several weeks but they nearly lost their lives in the undertaking, dodging the huge blocks of ice that piled up and jammed around them.

The party was rescued finally by a Russian icebreaker in February of 1938. When Dr. Papanin and his companions returned to Moscow they received the highest decorations of the Soviet Union.
Now, claim the Soviets, the next step is commercializing the Polar route. The rescue of the scientists is shown here on a new Soviet stamp, one of four commemorating the Papanin expedition.

Anthropology Museum Finds Fallacy
In Idea That Man Came From Monkey

AUSTIN, Feb. 9.—In confuta-tion of charges sometimes made that institutions of higher learning teach the theory that man descended from the monkey, the University of Texas anthropology museum has put man and the giant ape side by side and found the fallacy in the doctrine.

Two skeletons, one of a negro man, the other of chimpanzee, are displayed in the museum on the top floor of Waggener hall. The differences between them are pointed out by museum authorities.

"The important differences between man and the great apes pertain mainly to the size of the brain and the locomotor habits," Dr. J. Gilbert McAllister, director, said. "Man is not up from the ape" though in bone structure,
muscles, organs and pathology,
there is but a difference of degree
not kind.

Listing some of the differences between man and the chimpanzee, gorilla or other ape, Dr. McAllister pointed out that man has a much larger brain, less facial protusion,
a pronounced chin, a flatter chest.

Man does not have interlocking
canine teeth as do the giant apes,
his cervical vertebrae do not
"bristle," his spinal column has an
"S" curve, his leg bones are longer and stronger, his pelvis is more basin-shaped, he does not have an opposable big toe.

More conclusive than anything else that man did not descend from the monkey, however, is man's culture, Dr. McAllister declared.

"It is this social heritage of language, beliefs, customs, morals, techniques, that marks the greatest difference between man and the giant apes," he said.

Both skeletons were reconstructed by Dan Bussey of Timp-son, a university pharmacy student, as a National Youth administration project.

Would Woo Ducks To Improve Hunting

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 9 (AP)—Missouri duck hunters want the privilege of making ducks comfortable when they migrate through Missouri; they would like to feed them so the ducks will sit down, relax, eat, take things easy—and be shot. Such was the hunters' request sent recently by the Missouri Duck Hunters association to game officials. The hunters said the game restrictions that prohibit feeding and the use of decoys have just about taken all the ducks out of duck shooting.

Hearing on a bill to regulate travel bureaus will be held next Wednesday.

Cisco Musicians Have Enjoyable Time at State Music Convention

By REPORTER) Wednesday, February 1, saw the departure of the group to attend the State Music Educators convention in Houston. Mr. and Mrs. Maddox, accompanied four members of the all-state blue band, John James Haynie, Glen Tableman, Glenn Boyd and Ralph McCandless, attended the meeting. First point of interest was John Tableton at Stephenville, where we stopped to watch the cadet corps and band drill. Afterwards we saw several of the Cisco boys who attend the college, and the band director, D. G. Hunewell. Next stop was at Waco for lunch. We went out to Baylor university, saw the statue of Dr. Baylor, which was unveiled that morning, the new gymnasium, and the band house. From there we went to Cameron park, one of the loveliest in Texas, and drove all through the park, with stops at the zoo and other points of interest.

A. A. & M.

Our next stop was also in a college town—this time the home of Texas A & M. college. We were all impressed by the immensity of the campus, the greenness of the grass there, and the riot of colors in the flowers in bloom. Between Bryan and Houston we were interested in the trees hang with long festoons of gray moss, and in the increasing mildness of the weather as we went south. We arrived in Houston about dark, and after registering at the hotel, proceeded to see all that could be seen at night down town. The next morning the convention opened with tryouts for places in the bands. All the players from Cisco were in the blue band—merely a designation, as there was too much music for one hand to cover. Ralph McCandless sat first chair in the brass section, Glenn Boyd second chair in the baritone, and John James Haynie and Glen Tableman had the first two chairs in the cornet section, alternating on solos. The blue band was under the direction of Mr. Raymond Dvorak of the University of Wisconsin. Friday night the red band under the direction of Mr. Gerald Prescott of the University of Minnesota, and the blue band gave concerts at the music hall, recently completed. All students in the bands wore the uniform of their home band, and they were extremely colorful and brilliant as they sat in concert. Uniforms of gold, black, red, maroon, green, blue, white, purple, orange and various combinations of these colors presented a most brilliant spectacle. Rehearsals occupied the time up to 6 p. m. Saturday. That night the all-state orchestra presented a concert at music hall, followed by the A Capella choir of A. & I. college at Kingsville, directed by Paul Riley. This last organization created quite a sensation with their rendition of old negro spirituals. The entire evening was one of great enjoyment for music lovers, who won't soon forget the inspiration received from the concerts given by the clinic groups.

To Galveston

Sunday morning at 6 we left for Galveston. There was quite a wind blowing, so we were privileged to see whitecaps and a heavy surf rolling in. We drove around the sea wall, hunted shells on the beach, drove through the city to the boat docks. There we saw the coast guard cutter Saranac and inspected a lighthouse keeper's ship which had docked that morning. We visited the fishing wharf, saw the nets spread to dry, the fishing yaws, and then at the market we watched a man opening oysters freshly dredged from the water, saw various kinds of fish in boxes where they had been dumped out of the nets. Leaving Galveston we took the old causeway, which carries the new highway and railroad. The new causeway is a four-lane highway. In the center of both causeways is a drawbridge to permit passage of vessels in the channel marked out down the bay by buoys.

While in Houston we drove out to see the fourth college on our trip—Rice institute. It was late Saturday evening, and we couldn't distinguish details, but it was a beautiful campus set in a rather select residential section. Coming home we stopped in Huntsville to see the state penitentiary, but could only look at the walls and guard towers, as there is no visiting on Sunday. On the other side of town is the fifth college, Sam Houston State Teachers college, situated on a hill overlooking the Sam Houston monument.

From Huntsville we cut across to Bryan, then to Waco. From Waco to De Leon was fog so dense that at times we were forced to stop to see whether we were on the road or in some farmer's field. We arrived in Cisco about 1:30 a. m. Monday, tired, sleepy, but happy with the memories of an eventful trip and an inspiration received at the clinic. We will long remember also Cook's paints signs and "throw him a fish."

SERIAL STORY WOMEN WANT BEAUTY! BY LOUISE HOLMES

CAST OF CHARACTERS SUSIE LAMBERT—She served waffles and dreamed of being beautiful. DICK TREMAINE—He liked Susie's waffles but he couldn't see Susie. JEFF BOWMAN—His chief concern was to make Susie as beautiful as she wanted to be.

Yesterday, forlornly, Susie recalled her only date with Dick, the kiss in the dark. Had he not been so kind she might not have loved him.

CHAPTER V

Susie, crouching in the dark with the sweet, earthly smell of Dick's Violets filling the room, resolutely went on, remembering the black day after the Delta Phi party. Not often had she allowed her mind to reconstruct the hated details.

On that day after the party, thrilled with the thought of Dick's kiss, with her first taste of living like other girls, she had gone on duty at the waffle shop shortly before noon. Busily she whipped up her batter and baked an endless number of golden brown cakes.

The waitress had greeted her with a volley of questions. How was the party? Had she enjoyed it? Was Dick a good dancer? Who was there? Glowingly, Susie related the details, embellishing them a bit as she went along. Proudly she displayed the compact, minutely she described the food.

She went about her work in pleased retrospection. Perhaps her hair hadn't looked so bad. Perhaps Dick had not noticed her fumbling dancing. Had he not danced with her constantly, even urging her to stay? Did not that constitute what the college girls called a whirr? Susie's thin line of lips softened, almost smiled.

At two o'clock, when the noon crowd had thinned, Susie took two waffles, a jug of syrup and one of honey, four bacon curls and a cup of coffee to a corner booth. She sat with her back to the shop. Eating slowly to prolong the restful interval she scarcely noticed behind her. Deep in dreams she was startled by her own name.

"Where's Susie?" one of the girls asked. "Probably sleeping off her wild debauch," the other remarked, a thread of laughter running through the words. Did you ever see anything so screamingly funny as Susie was last night? "Positively never. She bulged out of her dress at every conceivable point, if you can find a point about Susie. She was a riot if I ever saw one."

During this conversation Susie's brows had drawn even more darkly over her eyes, the pleased uplift of her lips straightened. Little cats. Let them talk. She hadn't gone to the party to please them. No doubt they were jealous. Dick was the best-looking and most popular freshman on the campus. So ran her sinking thoughts.

"Well, that's what he gets for being a pledge. Bill, a senior you know, thought up the idea of making Dick date Susie for the party. He said Dick argued himself hoarse before giving in. Imagine—Dick Tremaine and Susie, the waffle queen!"

"And he had to take every dance," the other voice added, quite hilariously. "Did you see her clumping around, walking on his feet, falling all over him?" Susie was no longer eating her waffles. With heart pounding, with shamed, furious tears choking her, she sat rigid, listening. She felt bruised and cut as her pathetic dream castle tumbled around her bowed head. But there was still more.

"Did you hear what Dick did when Bill commanded him to kiss Susie on the way home?" "Kiss Susie!" It was an assounded hoot. "What did Dick do?"

"He absolutely refused, tore off his pledge pin and said the Delta Phi could go to the devil. Bill backed down since he was taking no chances on losing the most eligible pledge of the season."

The two girls giggled and talked on while Susie sat on the other side of the thin partition, sick with shame, angry with a beaten inferiority. She made no move, no sound, until the girls had gone. She sat still, suffering, crying out at fates, hating the fates, hating herself for a witless fool. And above all she hated the Delta Phi for having forced this humiliation on Dick and herself.

Susie had heard of pledge stunts, some daring, others merely absurd, but she had heard nothing like this. She cringed with the shattering realization that she had become the season's best laugh. Last night's episode would go down through the years, a laugh, a sneer, a legend.

Sitting there Susie touched the absolute depths of despair. She actually thought of the river, of the little gas plate in her room. If she put something in the key-hole, if she filled the cracks around the door—it wouldn't take long. Afterward she'd be free of the peering co-eds, the thought-taken exceptional care of her hands. Singing for an indifferent professor she had thought of Dick, the dream of him enriching her voice. And it had led her where? To this night when she must pick up the threads of a beaten life. It was in the mood that Susie wept over Dick's violets, that she moaned again, "I'd give my life to be beautiful."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Ye shall be sorrowful, but your sorrow shall be turned into joy. Ask and ye shall receive, that your joy may be full.—John xv:20, 24.

I would be joyful as my days go by Counting God's mercies to me.

And if sometimes the way be rough and steep,
Let me remember there are things to be—
To work His blessed will until He come
And take my hand and lead me safely home.
—A. O. F. RANDOLPH.

God tests faith not by a balance but by a magnet; it is not the quantity but the quality of it that He values.—Macdonald.

When the World Takes Everything -- But Pride

JESSE ROOT GRANT died of exposure and malnutrition rather than humble the proud name he bore.

He was the son of the brother of the great general, Ulysses Simpson Grant. He was found in a coma in the basement of the cold, barren Chicago house where he and his son had tried in vain to wrest a living from a world that no longer cared.

Once a railroad accountant, he retired some 10 years ago. At 74, he had nothing, could do nothing. Even his son, Ulysses S.

Grant, 38, had been unemployed since 1930. The last of a small legacy had been exhausted. The fire in the furnace had gone out. The only thing in the house was a pewter pitcher which had been kept brightly polished. It had belonged to the general, the surviving Grant said.

THOUGH everything was gone, Jesse Grant had been too proud to ask help of friends, too proud to allow his name to appear on relief roles. All he could do was to keep the pitcher bright, and die.

His pride, like his name, descended to him legitimately. The man who brought fame to the name of Grant was a proud man, too. In his last years, ex-President Grant saw his fortune crumble when a scoundrelly partner decamped with the funds of the firm of Grant and Ward, bankers and brokers.

An old man, he sold everything he had, his houses, his property, to apply on his resulting debts.

To pay the remainder he sat down to write his memoirs. And while torturing cancer grasped at his throat and death itself hovered over his invalid chair, he wrote and wrote, seeking to pay the debts and clear his name.

FEEL that we are on the eve of a new era, when there is to be great harmony between the Federal and Confederate. I cannot stay to be a living witness of the correctness of this prophecy.

So U. S. Grant wrote in May, 1885, feeling those awful fingers at his throat. And in July he died, his last energies gone to pay his debt and clear his name.

So Jesse Root Grant died. He was defeated in the battle of life, but proud to the end. And he kept the pitcher bright.

Peter Heals a Lame Man

Text: Acts 3:1-10; 4:8-12

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance
PETER and John were going up into the temple at the hour of prayer. Just think what that implies! The temple in a sense was the center of the religion and was the chief religious symbol of those who had crucified their Lord. How often, when someone in the church has mistreated an individual or done something out of harmony with the profession of religion, the individual wronged refuses to have anything more to do with the church!

How much more sensible was the attitude of Peter and John! The temple was still their temple. It was the place where Jesus had gone when He was in Jerusalem. In spite of those who practiced their religion unworthily, it was still a sacred place to them as Jews; and they did not allow the evil-doing of others to affect their attitude of faith and worship.

IT is not this, however, with which our lesson deals, though it is by no means an unimportant thought. Here at the door of the temple, called the Gate Beautiful, was a lame man unable to walk whom kind hands carried and laid daily at the door that he might ask for alms of those who were entering. As Peter and John approached, the lame man asked for their charity. Peter bade him look earnestly at himself and John. The lame man was all agog, appreciating the interest and expecting some gift.

Think of the healing that has been made possible with our knowledge of the laws of medicine and surgery where money has established hospitals and clinics! How much more could be done if those who have the gold and silver were willing to do all in their power to help their fellowmen in the same spirit that Peter and John were willing to give all that they had!

Far more important than discussing the question of the miraculous is this clear perception of what we can all do under the power of God if His grace moves us to acts of mercy and goodness.

New Bills—Some of the bills recently introduced are: Extension of stabilization fund and of president's power to revalue the dollar, introduced in the house by Representative Somers of New York; Senator Walsh introduced the amendments to Welsh-Healey public contracts act; Senator Russell of Georgia wants a standardization of U. S. contribution under social security act for old age assistance.

Navy Bases—The Vinson bill to construct 12 submarine and air bases at a cost of $65,000,000 with $5,000,000 for defense improvements at Guam, held the center of interest and attention. The $5,000,000 would only make minor improvements at Guam, but according to Admiral Heppburn an air base and submarine base fully equipped, would be justified from the defense standpoint alone. Such a base would cost $80,000,000. The other air base locations mentioned in the Vinson bill were not given much attention. The little island of Guam held the interest.

Securities—The factors determining the flow of capital investment has always been of interest to anyone interested in economic problems. Financial circles were specially interested, therefore, when the Securities and Exchange commission announced that it would inquire into the problem of private sale of securities, as part of its investigation for the temporary national economic committee. A loop-hole was left open, in the securities act of 1933, that allowed corporations to sell their securities to small groups of investors without complying with the registration rules of the act. This was said to be done in order to let small business men avoid the cost of preparing registration statements.

Senate Fight on Nominations Hits Allred

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 10 (P)—The tumultuous fighting over President Roosevelt's nominations to high office spread Thursday when Senator King (D-Utah) arose in the senate and blocked, for the time being, confirmation of former Gov. James V. Allred of Texas to be a federal judge in the southern district of Texas.

King, explaining that Allred was not a resident of the district, asserted that he was opposed to "carpetbag judges." Because of his objection, the subject of confirmation was deferred. It was known that Allred was named without the recommendation of either of the Texas senators, Sheppard and Connally, democrats.

It was President Roosevelt's action in ignoring the recommendations of Senators Glass and Byrd, Virginia democrats, which led the senate to reject recently the nomination of Floyd H. Roberts to be a federal judge in Virginia.

However, Sheppard and Connally made plain they had no intention of opposing the Allred nomination on the senate floor.
