District VFW Wants Abilene Man for State Head

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Gen. Mann, petitioner of the Texas supreme court for an order forcing strict judges to vacate positions which they have stopping enforcement of truck load limit law, it, regardless of the merits or demerits of the law. For Atty Mann is demanding the integrity of a state respected by the very person which is charged with maintaining the law's integrity. The truck load law has been upheld by the Texas supreme court as constitutional. Its enforcement is therefore strictly the responsibility of state officers, who are to enforce the laws of the state with impartiality.

Two district judges, certainly cognizant of the supreme court's decision, the premises, recent state highway men from stopping trucks to check them in violation of the law. Who, in this case, is violating the

The use of the injunction should not be denied the merely because one jurist employ it as a means of nullifying law and the violation of which have been by the proper legislative machinery and approved by the final judicial authority as conforming to constitutional principle.

Attempt to Take Over Peruvian Gov't Fails

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 20 (AP)—Gen. Antonio Rodriguez taking advantage of the absence of President Oscar Benavides, seized the government palace about 2 a. m. Sunday in an attempted overthrow of the government, and was killed.

General Rodriguez, minister of government and interior since 1935, escorted the president to the pier at Callao, Lima's port, Sunday night when Benavides and a party of government ministers boarded the naval transport, Rimac, for a three-day holiday.

He embraced the president, expressed wishes that he would have a happy holiday, and bade him farewell. After seizing the palace, Rodriguez proclaimed himself head of the government and issued two manifestos, one addressed to the nation and the other to the armed forces, in which he explained his far-reaching measures to replace the Benavides administration.

Trucking Operations Continue to Expand

Sales of motor trucks in January skyrocketed 39.5 per cent above December and 21.9 per cent above January a year ago. Indications of improved business conditions as compared with last year, sales of new passenger cars gained 19.2 per cent over last January, but dropped 11.6 per cent.

Brownwood Veteran Chosen for District Commander

C. E. Garretson of Abilene, past post commander and past department chief of staff of the Veterans of Foreign Wars for Texas, was unanimously nominated for state commander of the VFW District Eight here yesterday afternoon. The district will sponsor Mr. Garretson's candidacy at the state encampment to be held at Amarillo in June.

L. R. Billman, Brownwood post commander, was nominated for district commander to be elected at the next district meeting to be held in May at a place to be selected by District Commander Jack Nabers of San Angelo.

The nominations took place at a business meeting of the veterans in the afternoon after memorial services had been held at the First Methodist church where Dr. Frank Turner, president of McMurry college at Abilene, preached. Mrs. Vera McLeroy of Eastland sang a solo for the services. The eighth district auxiliary met with the VFW.

About 75 out-of-town veterans and their ladies attended the convention.

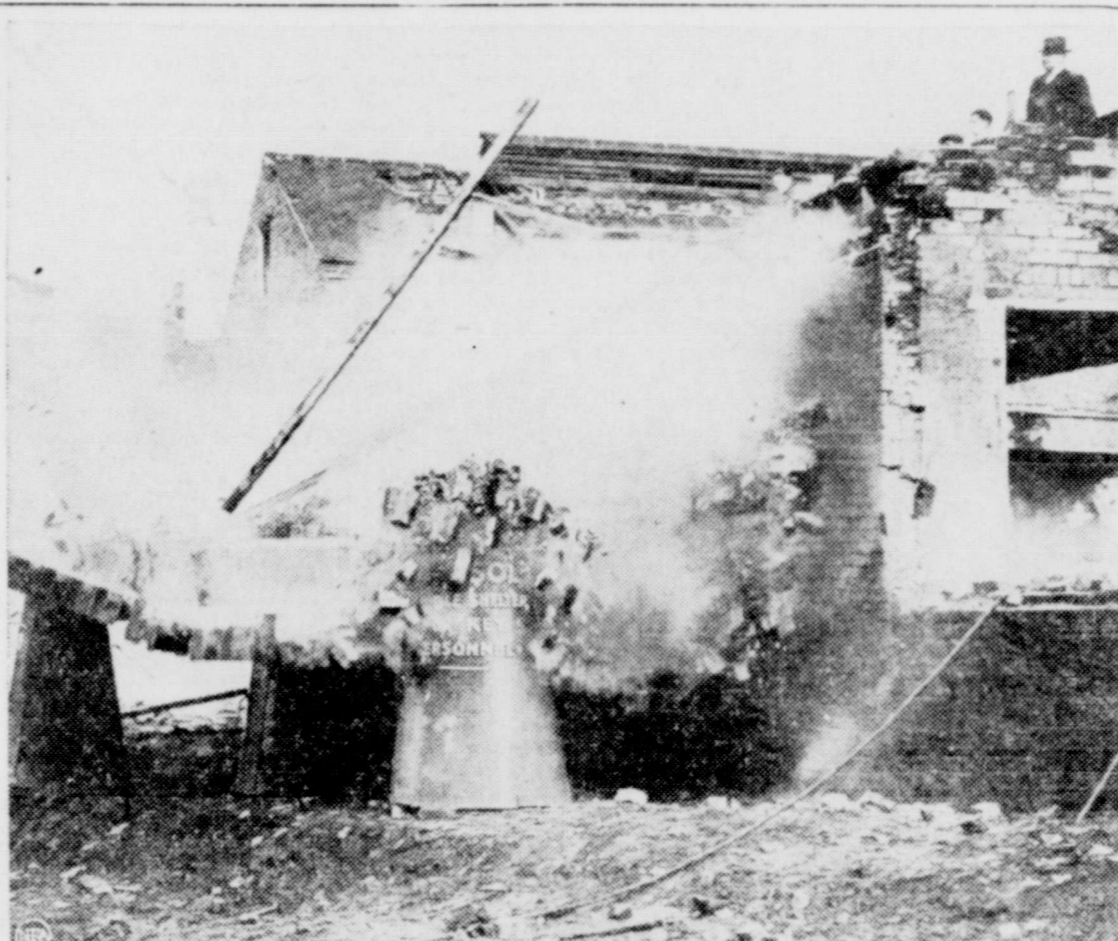

Interesting Talk
The business meeting was presided over by District Commander Jack Nabers of San Angelo, who introduced the women of the auxiliary before the meeting started. An interesting talk on "Americanism" was made by the department chaplain, the Rev. E. F. Williams of Denison, Texas. Texas Co-eds Are More Slender

AUSTIN, Feb. 20.—University of Texas co-eds are much slimmer than girls of the middle west and north, Miss Leah Gregg, physical training professor, said today in connection with the recent posture parade held at the university. The average university freshman is 17 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 115 pounds. She should weigh 121 pounds, according to height-weight charts for college girls, Miss Gregg said. At least 61 per cent of all university freshmen co-eds are underweight five pounds or more, while 42 per cent are 10 pounds or more underweight.

Murray Says Texas Should Back Garner

DALLAS, Feb. 20 (AP)—W. H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray, former governor of Oklahoma, said here Sunday Texas should back Vice President John Nance Garner at the 1940 democratic convention. En route to Houston, where he was to speak today on anti-neo deal politics, Murray, in a brief interview, said Garner had the right stand regarding policies of the present administration.

In his opinion, said Murray, a stand with Garner would not be in step with the new deal. The former governor said he was staying out of Oklahoma state politics at present, and discussing national needs, declared the country needed freedom of industry. "Such freedom is even more necessary than freedom of speech," said Murray. Murray said another speaking date Wednesday at Corsicana, and said he may have some more "before we beat this new deal."

Governor Says Pension Program Will Be Passed

AUSTIN, Feb. 20 (AP)—Governor O'Daniel expressed confidence Sunday, in his regular Sunday broadcast from the governor's mansion of Texas, that the legislature would approve his old age pension program or a better one. He devoted very little time to political matters, pointing out he had emphasized that when the legislature began to consider his proposals he did not intend to discuss them or "interfere" in any way with the legislature's deliberations. There was no answer or reference in any way to the bitter criticism by a group of senators last week of his appointment of J. C. Hunter, a west Texan, to the chairmanship of the highway commission. COLD DURING THIS SEASON IS CONTINUED

Temperature Falls to Freezing Point Early in Afternoon

West Texas winters are celebrated for their extremes, but so far this year the season has been one of sustained cold of normal severity, according to observers. At no time has the thermometer dropped below 20 degrees above zero, nor has the temperature arisen into heat. On the contrary constant cold has prevailed to an extent unusual to this climate.

Today's norther, coming on the heels of a freezing mist last weekend sustains the record High and disagreeable wind prevailed during the brief respite from low temperatures which Sunday afforded, a wind which proved merely the vanguard of what weathermen promise will be rain and snow in some portions accompanied by much colder weather tonight.

Temperatures declined from 66 degrees at 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon to 32 degrees at 1 p. m. today, according to the thermometer at the Cisco Gas corporation. It was due to drop further before and during the night.

Farmers and truck growers were pleased over the prospect that sustained cold weather would hold back the budding of fruit until spring normally opens and thus protect it against a freeze.

Last year's crop was almost completely destroyed by a late freeze after unseasonable early warmth had forced blooming.

P-TA's to Sponsor Shakespeare Program

Cisco's four Parent-Teacher association organizations are sponsoring a Shakespearean evening at the high school auditorium February 24, at 7:45 p. m.

The members of this club are Gail Jones, Virgil McCorkle, Bob McGowan, Dick McPherson, Kenneth Huffman, A. D. What It Means: The Court Lineup

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The supreme court is closer today to all-around balance in membership than ever—thanks to five presidents and the accidents of time and history.

The retirement of Justice Louis Brandeis and President Roosevelt's prospective appointment of his successor brings within the realm of the possible an even closer trial, provided the magic wand points westward.

Balance, of course, implies vastly more than the mere party politics of a man when he gets the coveted White House nod and senate approval.

Balance is not mandatory. It is not even required that a member of the court should be a member of the bar, but they always have been lawyers.

Every section of the nation wants a sympathetic ear on the high court—a man who understands its particular problems. Too, any minority or religious creed in the great American melting pot takes legitimate pride in the selection of one of its members for the robes that make a man a justice of the United States.

Fine Point of Division
Most important of all are a man's legal and economic leanings.

On this court, balance in the highest court is commonly discussed on the basis of liberalism vs. conservatism. But the more finicky are inclined to use other terms. Some suggest the division should be made between justices who lean strongly on precedent and custom, and those who believe the constitution is a flexible instrument admitting of social and economic experiments in government.

But, odd school or new, the views of nine justices (eight at the moment) on social and economic currents have as much to do with John Q. Citizen's welfare as those of the 300-odd members of congress and the president, for they hold the veto power over laws passed by congress and signed by the president. Their views inevitably find their way into the fundamental law, the law that ever has had a tendency to change the fortunes of men. For, the "power to tax is the power to destroy."

Minus the successor to Brandeis, the court is even-strengthened on a close decision in the fundamental law.

Regularly in the experimental corner are three Roosevelt appointees, Black, Reed and Frankfurter. Usually with them is Stone, a one-time Wall Street affiliate gone liberal.

On the other side are two dyed-in-the-wool precedent-followers, Butler and McReynolds, and two middle-of-the-road men, Chief Justice Hughes and Roberts. Their older records put these two pretty close to the conservative camp, but their more recent opinions indicate that they, too, are taking an experimental turn of mind occasionally.

About Even Politically

Similarly, the court is split about even in party politics. Hughes, Stone, and Roberts bear the republican stamp, having drawn their appointments from two republican presidents, Coolidge and Hoover.

Reed, Black, McReynolds and Butler are democrats. As a New Deal adviser of first rank, Frankfurter falls vaguely into that slot, too, although the record implies that he is agnostic in politics. Or at least he was before Roosevelt came to Washington.

Curiously, one republican, Stone, and two democrats, McReynolds (a Wilson appointee) and Butler (a Harding appointee) jumped the traces somewhere along the road. They found themselves consistently siding with strange bedfellows, so far as politics are concerned.

Sectionally, the division of the court is not quite so happy.

The east is well taken care of with New York's Hughes and Stone, Pennsylvania's Roberts, and New England's Frankfurter; Middle Americans can't kick exactly, having on the court Kentucky's Reed and McReynolds; while the south has Alabama's Black and the northwest, Minnesota's Butler. Missing is a far westerner, explaining the present hue and cry for somebody farther west of the Mississippi than Minnesota. If such an appointment goes through, then geographical balance also will have been achieved.

On the score of race or creed, the court is closer than usual to proportionate representation. The overwhelming majority of protestants is represented by six justices. The Catholics have one and the Jews one in Butler and Frankfurter, respectively.

Significantly enough, Brandeis, the first Jew ever appointed to the court, withheld his retirement until Frankfurter was firmly seated on the court. The only other Jew ever appointed, Justice Cardozo, died recently. Technically, it was he who Frankfurter succeeded. Actually, however, the famous Frank-

Foshay Discovers Happiness Formula In Colorado City

By NEA Service
SALIDA, Colo., Feb. 17.—Wilbur B. Foshay, who in 1929 headed a 22-million-dollar utilities empire, is working these days for the people who got him out of jail—and doing a good job, too.

As the super-salesman manager of this city's chamber of commerce, a job that was handed him without solicitation, the 57-year-old Foshay is one of Salida's most admired citizens. And the job he's done of selling Salida (population 5,000) would seem to more than merit his fellow townsmen's admiration.

Wilbur Foshay—his heart belongs to Salida.

The same flare for promotion and selling ideas that enabled him to build from his Minneapolis headquarters a network of corporations controlling power, gas, water and telephone enterprises in 23 states and five nations before the crash in 1929 is paying dividends on his Salida job.

About 4,000 miles of highway round about heart-shaped signs lead the way to Salida—"Follow the Hearts to Salida," is the slogan—Foshay's slogan for the community that gave him his chance to come back after a bombardment of letters from these same friends persuaded President Roosevelt to pardon him in April, 1937, after he had served three years of a 15-year sentence on a charge of using the mails to defraud.

On a Friday in October, 1929, Foshay was leaving a New York hotel to keep an appointment with his bankers to complete arrangements for a loan. His corporations were making money fast and America was enjoying a prosperity to which there seemed no end.

A newsboy thrust a paper in front of Foshay's eyes. "WALL STREET CRASH," the headlines screamed. The depression was on in earnest. Foshay's loan didn't materialize.

Foshay threw his concerns into voluntary receivership—a receiver ershay he felt certain would be temporary—a convenient device for safeguarding the stockholders' interests until the financial storm had been weathered.

Be that as it may, the receivership reorganized the Foshay holdings, wiped out all common stock, and, in the process, wiped out Foshay.

To Salida went Foshay to work for a granite company, hoping to start over and win another fortune. Two years after the crash of his financial structure, Foshay and several associates were indicted. Foshay fought his case for two years through the courts, lost, was sentenced to 15 years in prison.

During his four years in Salida, Foshay made many friends who believed in him. Their pleas to President Roosevelt, combined with those of Minneapolis friends, gained Foshay his freedom. When he left prison he was broke, but with no ambition to return to the super-promotion days of his earlier financial career. In a letter to a Salida friend he said he wanted a job that would pay a "living wage," nothing more. Without his knowledge the Salida chamber of commerce elected him manager by unanimous vote. Foshay accepted with alacrity.

"I think Salida is the best place on earth," says Foshay. "I want to stay here and do things for the community."

He IS doing things.

Says U. S. Could Help Britain Little

BERLIN, Feb. 20 (AP)—The United States could give little help to Great Britain and France in a European war, the influential Boerszeitung said Sunday in a leading editorial.

The article emphasized that Germany need not fear the United States because "the era in which division after division following speedy training could be thrown over the ocean belongs to history."

The newspaper said "quality" soldiers of authoritarian powers would carry the day against the democracies' "quantity" and it was not certain the United States navy could figure strongly.

"Despite warlike gestures by Roosevelt and Ickes, the United States are not, no more than is England, in a position to appear on the continent with millions of well-trained men," it said.

Some Views on Purchasing Changes

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP)—The administration's nation of its aid to France purchases in this country some senatorial criticism Sunday that its course was not properly.

From the republican senator Austin of Vermont, senate military committee investigation had convinced the administration's action was "not unbecomingly provocative to any other not an impediment to procurement program and violation of the army's rights to the latest developments."

This was the argument of Secretary Morgenthau, other administration testimony which the senate made public Saturday. French bought 515 planes.

Texas Commercial and Industrial Research Council.

In 1929, an oil mill superintendents' association with the $300,000 grant started Dean Woolrich and his colleagues at the University of Tennessee on the road to improvement of oil-extraction methods. The process has gathered momentum with aid from the Tennessee Valley authority, and other agencies to become one of the "most likely to succeed" projects of the American Engineering foundation.

Improved cooking operations developed in the practical oil mill experiments in Tennessee have reduced by 1 1/2 to 2 per cent, the 6 per cent oil content of already-processed cottonseed—formerly considered an inevitable loss.

One and one-half per cent of the 20-year-average for the nation of $100,000,000 cottonseed oil output is approximately $1,500,000, the Texas engineering dean estimates.

In his paper on this research to be presented at the national meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in New Orleans, February 23, he will advocate the development of new oil-extraction processes to wring still more income from the cottonseed. Despite the tremendous cotton surplus, the United States continues to import vegetable oils, Dean Woolrich points out. An expensive processing is leveled at corn's original oil content of approximately 5 per cent, when almost that amount can be saved from improved extraction of the cottonseed oil, he believes.

With the $300 "nest egg" for investigation, nearly 2 per cent more oil has been taken from the cottonseed. That oil would have been virtually wasted if left in the "fertilizing" cottonseed meal, since its absence has no effect on the fertilizing value of the meal, Dean Woolrich states.

Eastland County Agricultural News

900 Acres Terraced

Terraces and contour lines have been run on 940 acres of Eastland county land since January 1 by workers from the county agent's office, according to a report compiled by County Agent Elmo V. Cook. This represents terrace lines on 720 acres of cropland, lines for contour rows on 170 acres of cropland, and lines for terraces on 45 acres of pasture land. Twenty-nine farms and ranches were included in the report.

Two extra farm levels made available at the county agent's office by the county commissioners' court have been in almost constant use by farmers who know how to run their own lines.

The itinerary of the county agent for the next two weeks includes plans for running terrace lines on 904 acres on 23 farms.

One Fourth Cropland Terraced

During the last 15 years, 48,758 acres or about 28 per cent of the cropland in Eastland county have been terraced, according to records in the county agent's office. There are about half a million acres of land in Eastland county with 175,000 acres in cultivation.

Rapid strides are also being made by the ranchers in soil and water conservation, who, during the last two years built more than 200 earthen water tanks of a type that will hold water during unusually long drouths. They have also terraced and contour furrowed more than 500 acres of pasture land, reseeded 15,000 acres of permanent pasture by keeping all grazing animals off several months of the year at the time the grasses were making seed, and eradicated cactus and other range destroying plants from more than 2,500 acres of pasture land.

Soil Building Major Problem

Farmers operating at least 100,000 acres of cropland in Eastland county have a greater problem than just conservation of soil and water, thinks Elmo V. Cook, county agent, who estimates that at least that many acres of sandy and mixed land in the county have already lost most of their fertility by wind and water erosion, and by continual cropping with soil depleting crops. The problem of these farmers is to build soil instead of conserving it.

Terracing is the first recommendation for any soil, whether virgin and rich or worn out and poor. Before any system of soil building can work properly all run-off water and wind erosion must be controlled as any fertility that is added to the soil will be immediately lost without erosion control. If the farmer finds it impossible to meet the expense of terracing he should at least contour his rows.

Although Eastland county sandy soils wear out quickly, they can be

Worn Out Soils Lack Three Essentials

Three essentials lacking in worn out Eastland county soils are decayed organic matter, commonly known as humus, nitrogen, and phosphorus. It is possible that some of the soils are also shy on potash but chemical analyses do not show such a shortage.

A system of farming that can be used by all farmers to build up their soils, and which is already being used by a few Eastland county farmers, consists of terracing, striping with alternate strips of cash crops and legumes, and addition of phosphate fertilizers to the legumes. All available barnyard manure is applied to the le-have too many laws. Too many laws lead to contempt for a government which cannot command a sufficient respect and loyalty of citizens and they are turned under while still green.

By this system the strips can be rotated so that each strip will grow legumes at least every third year. The manure and the legumes supply the nitrogen. The phosphate is added as a commercial fertilizer, and the decaying of the turned-under legumes supplies humus or organic matter.

izes to enable it to function decently without strapping them about with a multitude of harassing restrictions and obligations. But the way to remedy such a situation is not the encouragement of outlawry in high places. It is the encouragement of a demand for reform and less special privilege.

As long as we have a 7,000-pound load limit law on the statute books of Texas, such a law ought to be enforced. In moving against such "government by injunction" Att'y Gen. Mann has kept faith with his pledges and his state. He is right, as right as right.

Hopkins Program Is Awaited by Business Leaders

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (AP)—Leading industrialists Sunday outlined the program they hope Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins will endorse in a speech at Des Moines, Ia., this week.

Hopkins is expected to announce details of a program worked out in secret conferences with big business leaders at Washington during the last two months in preparation for an administration-sponsored "drive for lasting recovery."

Prominent members of the business advisory council of the department who collaborated on the plan flatly refused Sunday to discuss it, but on the basis of discussions with outside executives it is possible at least to give the outlines of the program business hopes for.

First in order, the executives hope, will be changes in the tax laws and in securities and exchange commission law and procedure.

Wall street financiers whose advice has been sought in the program say that a primary need is to stimulate the flow into industry of the largest reservoir of stagnant capital resources ever accumulated in the history of the world.

Seek Changes

The banking leaders said they hope at least these changes will be made:

1. Virtual elimination of the undistributed profits tax, to attract investors.

2. Re-enactment of the Harrison amendment to greatly reduce the tax—bringing it down as much as 80 per cent to around 20—on profits on the sale of securities held only a short time. Financiers say they believe this would start a flood of equity or common stock buying, which would in turn permit the flotation of vast sums of new corporate securities in the equity division, which would in turn make possible wholesale expansion of business, especially in the utility field and in heavy industry generally.

3. Plan for balancing the budget at the earliest practical time, even if additional revenue be necessary; provide for at least part of this additional revenue by broadening the income tax base along the lines proposed by Senator La Follette, and by opening up other new sources of revenue—such as ending exemption of federal and state securities and of public office holders. If this were done without substantially increasing existing tax rates, financiers say the result should be greatly beneficial to the nation's credit structure.

4. Graduate corporate taxes.

several state representatives, were in the north drawing rooms of the mansion as the broadcast was delivered.

The governor said things had been rather quiet in the last week but "the big question of the hour" was under way. He was referring to the fact committees of the house of representatives began consideration of his recommendations for a transaction tax and liberalized old age pensions.

U. S. Will Seek To Recover From Tire, Auto Firms

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 20 (AP)—The justice department announced Sunday it would file a civil suit for $1,053,474 Monday against 18 automobile tire manufacturers and dealers.

Thurman Arnold, head of the anti-trust division, said the suit would be filed in the federal district court for the southern district of New York and would seek treble an amount alleged to have been lost by the government as a result of collusive bidding by the defendants on government tire contracts.

A section of the Sherman anti-trust act provides that any person injured in his business or property by reason of another's violation of the act may sue and recover treble damages.

Justice department officials said Monday's suit will be the first time, however, that the government ever has brought action under this section. In this connection, Arnold pointed out that the maximum fine recoverable by criminal action is $5,000.

Arnold said the government will allege there was a conspiracy to fix the price to the government for tires in the period from October 1, 1936, to March 31, 1938, and that as a result of the conspiracy the government was required to pay high prices for its tires.

Streamlined "Fever Cabinet"

A "fever cabinet" which induces fever mechanically instead of by inoculation with bacteria has been developed at the University of Pittsburgh for treatment of a variety of diseases. The cabinet has a sliding door, as pictured, permitting physician to give intravenous injections during treatment. An electric fan helps keep the patient comfortable as his temperature goes up.

Pneumonia Is More Prevalent in Cold Weather

AUSTIN, Feb. 20.—Pneumonia is a seasonal disease in that its incidence and mortality are much increased during wet, cold weather, according to Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer. Last week 234 cases of pneumonia were reported to the state health department. The disease is most prevalent and serious in urban centers where contact with people is most frequent. Pneumonia is always dangerous but it is especially so to persons in a run-down condition. This accounts for the number of cases following illness from some other disease.

The germs that cause pneumonia are spread by careless coughers, sneezers, spitters and objects they thus infect. The first symptoms are usually a severe chill and fever, a very sick feeling, loss of appetite, rapid breathing and a heavy sensation in the chest. Sometimes coughing brings up blood from the inflamed lungs. Any of these symptoms should be the signal for going to bed at once and sending for your family doctor.

The rules and prevention of other respiratory diseases apply to pneumonia. These rules should become personal habits and not put on or off at times of prevalence or absence of disease. Persons should avoid careless coughers and sneezers even if it means rudeness. Wash your hands thoroughly before each meal. Keep your hands, pencils, money and such objects away from your mouth and nose. Get plenty of fresh air day and night. Exercise and eat in moderation and wear clothing suitable for the weather.

Pneumonia ranks second as a lung ailment. It is a disease which is urged to make the trip. At each point visited a brief program will be presented, consisting of speeches and music by the band, and an invitation to visit the stock show here presented. It was planned to leave the high school at 12:30 p. m.

WOMEN EVERYWHERE TELL TEXAS STORY

Wherever they go, those Touring Reporters are overwhelmed with "Yes" answers to their question, "Were YOU helped by CARDUI?" First 100 times this question was put to Atlanta users brought 98 "Yeses". Average for other states visited—Texas, Florida, Oklahoma—reveals that 93 of every 100 users say they were helped. Users everywhere are glad to tell cause of death in Texas. In 1938 5,432 persons died of this disease. It should be remembered that contagious and infectious diseases cannot be decreased or eliminated without the cooperation of the people and this means the people who are sick with contagious and infectious diseases should be isolated and visited as little as possible by relatives and friends.
