Cluck Elected to Ninth Term as Superintendent

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE
Thousands of thousands have been fleeced unsuspecting by irritable insurance companies, blue sky stock salesmen and other institutions, to sell their wares to the public. A long war has been fought in Texas on mutual insurance companies of shady character and on the scoundrel as loan sharks, to a degree of success. The remedy for this criminal, who steals the law is a rope and a gall at this writing it is legal nor civilized to give society of the likes of such an unnecessary. In time we may have a whipping post and publicly flog those who take advantage of their victims' needs.

Houston representative introduced a bill in the legislature to bring these associations under legal regulation. All previous efforts to regulate such associations ended in failure, although it is given to wonder why this is so, since in other kinds has been regulated.

There are some burial insurance organizations which are honest. These suffer the hands of the disreputable variety, the class as the Houston class has only to "print some money and application to sharpen their pencils and writing insurance."

The company writing insurance should be able to carry sufficient assets to reasonably insure against claims and to meet in other respects to standards and regulations which guarantee the discharge of the obligations which it accepts. Any company which cannot so conform has no business being in business.

Have heard many complaints of the drastic methods some operators use to get policy holders," said Houston son, J. M. Heff. "They have sprung up over the state like mushrooms and are gathering in thousands of people who are not protected whatsoever by the state. Many of the operators

Fighting Breaks Out at Meeting of Nazi Bund

NEW YORK, Feb. 21 (AP)—Fighting broke out last night on the stage of Madison Square garden at a mass meeting of the pro-Nazi German-American bund.

An unidentified black-haired man jumped to the stage while national bund leader Fritz Kuhn was speaking and advanced toward Kuhn.

Uniformed "storm troopers" knocked him to the floor and beat him severely. City policemen leaped to the platform, pulling the victim from the storm troopers. His clothes in shreds, he was hustled by police from the garden.

In scarcely more than a minute the incident was over and Kuhn continued his speech almost immediately.

The fight was participated in by perhaps a dozen storm troopers, and at least an equal force of police were used to break it up.

Kuhn had been bitterly attacking the Jews when the disturbance occurred.

Packed Garden
The outbreak occurred in the presence of a crowd that packed the garden. From the great throng shouts arose. But the audience generally kept its places.

A few moments before, mounted police outside the garden forcibly dispersed a lusty, quarrelsome crowd that waited nearby for the end of the rally.

The crowd was routed after a 15-minute street fight that started when the demonstrators attempted to piece tightly-held police lines to march on the eighth avenue sports arena.

Several persons were knocked down and injured, some by policemen's fists. One man planted an American flag in the center of the street. A policeman dismounted to take the banner. Bystanders saw the man poke the patrolman with the pole.

"Save the flag," several persons shouted. The flag-bearer was struck down.

The pro-Nazi bund showed its strength to an excited New York rally by raving a throng that filled the garden for a meeting with all the trappings of a German mass assembly.

Mrs. Perkins to Speak at Galveston

EASTLAND, Feb. 21.—Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins, president of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, will speak Friday, February 24, at the third annual state conference of the Texas Cause and Cure of War committee at Galveston.

Mrs. Perkins recently returned from Washington where she attended the 14th annual conference on the Cause and Cure of War.

BOARD MEETS AT BEDSIDE OF MEMBER, HURT

School Head Came to Cisco for First Term in 1930

In a meeting held last night at the home of Mrs. N. A. Brown, who is recuperating from injuries received in an automobile accident Friday night, the Cisco Independent School district board re-elected R. N. Cluck for a ninth term as superintendent of Cisco schools.

The meeting was the first to be held away from the board's offices on D avenue, and it was taken to the Brown sanatorium because Mrs. Brown, a member, could not attend otherwise. She is confined to her bed with a serious head injury and severe bruises which she sustained when the car in which she and Dr. Brown were returning from Abilene Friday night skidded on an icy patch on the overpass three miles west of Cisco, threw her to the pavement and struck her in the spinning. She was knocked 20 or 30 feet from the machine, a small artery in her head injured and severe body bruises sustained.

Improved
Friday night she had improved to a point where she could sit up in bed and take part in the meeting, which was brief and occupied with routine matters other than the re-election of Mr. Cluck.

Mr. Cluck came to Cisco for his first term in September, 1930. His regime has been marked with success both in maintaining the high standards of scholastic merit enjoyed by the schools, which are now fully accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and in increasing enrollment and adding to the courses of study. Twelve common school districts now send their schoolchildren to Cisco, and the local schools now have an enrollment greater than at any time in their history. The financial condition of the schools has been maintained in such a manner that teachers are paid regularly and the operating expenses are met on time. The bonded debt problem has also been handled in satisfactory manner.

Boys Warned Not to Fly Kites Near Wires

The approach of kite-flying days has prompted the West Texas Utilities company to invite youngsters hereabouts to notify the local office in order to prevent possible accidents resulting from entangled kite strings in electric line wires.

"We remember when we used to fly kites," said O. J. Russell, local manager for the company, "and we're willing to do the work when it comes to rescuing a kite from light and power poles or lines."

He urged that boys notify the local office in event their kites become entangled so that an experienced pole-climber can help get it down.

"The safest thing," he said, "is not to fly kites near the lines due to the danger of contact with current. We are anxious to prevent possible tragedy from interfering with the fun of flying a kite."

He urged parents to cooperate by insisting that dry, clean string always be used for kites and kite-tails instead of damp string or wire which, he said, "is a dangerous practice."

Johnson Says U. S. Must Prepare for Air Attack

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 21 (AP)—Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, said last night the United States must be prepared against the possibility of a swift and unannounced attack by bombing planes because "the wars of Europe and Asia may transfer themselves to the western hemisphere."

Addressing several hundred delegates to a national aviation forum, Johnson reviewed President Roosevelt's program of air rearmament and asserted, "We must have planes in sufficient quantities actually on the line ready to protect our hemisphere on all fronts at any time."

Johnson hinted, as he has before, at this country's having developed pursuit planes which can fly more than 400 miles an hour. Throughout the first of two days devoted to a discussion of aviation's role in American progress, speakers referred to the new situation abroad created by the expansion of warplane production by Italy and Germany.

"Out of Germany and Italy," said Rep. Starnes (D-Ala.), a member of the house appropriations committee, "has come a concept of national destiny and of the individual's relation to that destiny repugnant to every fiber of free men reared in the domestic tradition."

"And, shockingly enough, that concept has expressed itself in threats writ broad across the skies of Europe, and written with that instrument so peculiarly American, the airplane."

16 More Babies Enter Big Parade

Sixteen more babies were added to the list in the Big Baby Parade sponsored by the Cisco Daily Press and cooperating merchants this week as the third week of the Parade got under way with increased enthusiasm and activity despite the hampering influence of the severest cold wave of the winter.

Babies from outlying rural areas and from communities at a distance are prominent among the new entries, showing the extent to which the fame of the Parade has gone out of Cisco.

Nothing that the Cisco Daily Press has published in many years has created the interest with which the pictures of the babies printed from day to day has been received. More pictures of the youngsters appear today and tomorrow another group will be printed. As quickly as it is possible to make the pictures and the cuts they are published in the paper.

The first week's honor roll was published last Sunday and next Sunday morning the names of the 20 babies standing first in this week's voting will be published.

Following are the latest entrants in the parade:
Johnnie Abner Trigg, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Trigg, R-1, Rising Star.
Barbara Sut and Lewis Don McGough, Mr. and Mrs. Pat McGough, R-4, Cisco.
Lewis Giles, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Giles, Cisco.
Roger Donn Lisenbee, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Lisenbee, Cisco.
Clyde Wilkins, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Wilkins, Cisco.

Supervisors for Recreation Project Needed

All Cisco people who are interested in work of a supervisory character, which is non-relief, were notified today to write Miss Marguerite Bales, at the office of the field supervisor of recreation, United States courthouse at Fort Worth.

Applications should be made in connection with a WPA recreational project, jointly sponsored by the city and the Cisco public schools, which is due to start here within a short while.

Workers in the recreational projects will be chosen from the WPA rolls, but supervisors of recreational will not be relief clients, it was pointed out.

Those who are interested in serving as supervisors of recreation were notified to make application at once.

DROPS TO 18 DEGREES HERE THIS MORNING

Rising Temperatures Are Promised for West Texas

The coldest weather of the season descended upon Cisco this morning with the temperature dropping to 18 degrees at 8 o'clock for the low point of a decline which set in Monday morning. From 8 a. m. the mercury rose as steadily, the Cisco Gas corporation chart registering 38 degrees at 1 p. m.

The highest temperature here Monday afternoon when the reading was 38 degrees. At 9 p. m. this had dropped to 29 and at midnight to 24. The reading at 6 a. m. was 20 degrees.

Generally rising temperatures were in store for west Texas, the weatherman reported today.

Ranger Road Project To Start Wednesday

EASTLAND, Feb. 21 (Spa.)—A. F. Taylor, county engineer, announced Monday that work on a WPA road improvement project to provide expenditure of $192,393.24 and employment of 181 men for one year will begin Wednesday.

The improvements will be on a series of four roads connecting from Ranger north through Colony, Pleasant Hill and to Eastland. The improvements will provide for fixing of 14 miles of road.

This is another in a series of projects for improvement of county roads which when completed will place Eastland county among those of counties in Texas which have the best system of farm-to-market roads.

The improvements on the new project will provide for grading, widening of right of way, clearing of fences, building of drainage structures and other work.

All improvements will be in precinct - for which Henry Daventport is county commissioner.

READER NEEDED HELP

AUSTIN, Feb. 21 (AP)—An emergency gave Mrs. Francis Cloud the opportunity to become the first woman reading clerk in the history of Texas' legislature. The incident occurred during the current session when Reader Clarence Jones had to call for help because there were 149 captions of bills to be read. Jones read 100; Mrs. Cloud read 49.

Breckenridge Man Buys Larkin Lease for $8,000

EASTLAND, Feb. 21.—On a bid of $8,000 cash, J. F. Baker of Breckenridge purchased Saturday the Hayner, Reeves and Hose property in receivership on the P. C. Larkin lease near Rising Star. Next highest bid, it was reported by Judge B. W. Patterson of 88th district court, in which receivership proceedings have been heard, was $7,200.

The receivership proceedings were instituted by E. M. Howard vs. B. W. Daniels, the latter of the company which drilled the well on the Larkin lease. Hayner, Reeves and Hose and others were made defendants also.

Later various others intervened and also were made plaintiffs. It was estimated the plaintiffs had claims totaling in the neighborhood of $14,000.

W. E. Tyler, Rising Star banker and oil man, was receiver, having been appointed by Judge Patterson.

Property included a small producing well and various other equipment.

Whales live on other fish and like to eat the octopus. But there's one part of the octopus the whale's stomach can't digest—the beak-like mouth. This is left undigested in the whale's stomach. A wax-like substance collects about this undigested food, and in the meantime the whale suffers from a stomach ache... and a whale of an ache. Later before the whale can obtain relief, it must vomit this bit of food. The wax-like substance then is known as ambergris, worth $88 an ounce.

SERIAL STORY

WOMEN WANT BEAUTY!

BY LOUISE HOLMES
COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

SUSIE LAMBERT—She served waffles and dreamed of being beautiful.
DICK TREMAINE—He liked Susie's waffles but he couldn't see Susie.
JEFF BOWMAN—His chief concern was to make Susie as beautiful as she wanted to be.

Yesterday: The rigorous beauty treatments are an ordeal for Susie but she agrees to go on, with Jeff's encouragement. He says he will stick with her.

CHAPTER XIV

Jeff asked eagerly, "How do you like the publicity? That's my idea, urging the gals to profit by your experience. Later I have in mind a radio program, Swen putting you through your paces. We'll call it, 'The Susie road to beauty.' Maybe, if there's enough response, you can sponsor a question and answer column in the paper." His voice was rich with enthusiasm.

"Quite a program," Susie observed. "Certainly a lot more to it than meets the eye." She laughed good-naturedly. "Do you know what I remind myself of?"

"No. Tell me."

"I knew a little boy who received a guitar for Christmas. He was crazy about cowboy yodeling on the radio and begged for a guitar night and day. When he got it he went for his first lesson and what do you suppose the poor youngster thought? He thought one lesson was all he needed, that the teacher would show him how to play and—presto—he'd play."

"I get it," Jeff laughed. "You thought someone would show you how to be beautiful and—presto—you'd be beautiful."

She nodded. Jeff was an understanding person. She liked him. Odd how easy it was to tell him things. Remembering how Dick had smitten her dumb she thought it extremely odd.

Out of her thoughts she asked, "Do you know Dick Tremaine, Jeff?"

"Yeah," he said, wheeling the car into his stall in the garage. "I used to know Dick well. He's several years younger than I am, but we went to the same summer camps when we were kids. Haven't seen much of him recently. My father lost his money and Dick's didn't. It makes a difference."

"I just wondered," Susie murmured. They went in the employees' entrance. Groups of men and girls at the lockers greeted them and looked curiously after Susie.

"Do you know Dick?" Jeff asked, pursuing the subject.

"He went to the University," she said. "He liked my waffles." On an impulse she added, "I had a date with him once."

She waited for the surprised lift of Jeff's eyebrows. It did not come.

"Dick's all right," he said. "I used to think him quite a baby, hated to have him tagging me around, but he's all right." Jeff got off the elevator with a cheery, "Good luck, Susie," and she went on to the gymnasium.

Swen met her. "Did you drink three glasses of hot water with lemon juice?" he asked suspiciously.

"Yes, Swen." Susie felt happy, lifted. Jeff knew Dick, admired him. It was almost as if she'd had a glimpse of Dick. She hurried to the dressing room and donned the brief suit. On with the task of making herself over for Dick.

She had her breakfast, a pint of orange juice, one slice of toast so thin that it crackled when she bit into it, black coffee. The day went on, work, rest, hair sunning, more orange juice in mid-morning, a glass of water every hour. A young artist made a pen sketch of her while she sunned her hair, another as she lay on a mat with her feet in the air. He was a clever artist, a few lines, the face blank. Susie knew the sketches would appear in the paper with the next day's lesson.

In the afternoon, after the kneading and pounding and spanking, after the restful massage, Emma covered Susie with a sheet and two girls took over the job. One worked on Susie's nails, finishing with cream rubbed into her hands and arms and a treatment for her elbows. The other girl toiled over her feet, pedicuring the nails, trimming the callouses, smoothing them with delectful lotions. Susie drowsed while this was going on, blissfully relaxed.

Followed a busy week, a profitable week from Mr. Harker's point of view. The drug department reported 89 calls in one day for Susie's shampoo, the tea room was swamped with orders for Susie's diet. Women called John Harker to commend him, to ask questions, event to report progress.

"May we see Susie when you've finished with her?" they asked. And, "Is she a real girl? Does she really do all these things?" Mr. Harker congratulated Kane and Jeff Bowman on their campaign.

At the end of the first week poor Susie, the subject, the experimental laboratory for beauty, the guinea pig, had just about reached the end of her own particular string. Swen was merciless, Emma hard as the well known nail, Jeff sympathetic but inflexible. The fact that Susie lost seven pounds during that first, gruelling week brought her small comfort.

Her stomach, expanded for 23 years, refused to shrink. Instead, it folded up on itself, paining constantly, gnawing and grinding. She filled the aching void with orange juice, with water, with unsweetened tea. She chewed on her broiled lamb chop and toast to the last thread and crumbs. She forced her stiff muscles to perform miracles in the way of stretching and straining and doubling, she tightened her belt three inches.

It was when the battle had raged for seven days that Susie fell; that is, she was prepared to make the downward plunge had not the faithful Jeff been on the job.

Sometimes Jeff doubted if he would ever attain success in his chosen field. He knew himself to be a good advertising man, he was fairly bubbling over with ideas. John Harker listened to Jeff's ideas and acted upon many of them, slowly but steadily his pay increased but, to his disgust, Clifford Kane had the last word and got the credit. He, Jeff, did the dirty work, the things that didn't show, the mean bits of trouble shooting. And for Susie he was responsible. Not that he considered Susie dirty work, in truth he liked her better with every passing day, immensely he admired her pluck and fairness.

On this night, a week after the beautifying began, Jeff had taken Susie to her hotel. He often drove her out, it was on his way home, he liked to hear of the daily events, they gave him more ideas.

On this particular evening Susie had said not one word. There was a kind of weary desperation that made him park his car a block from the hotel and walk back with the intention of taking her to Edna.

His mother was vitally interested in Susie, often she urged Jeff to bring her home with him. Jeff had hesitated on several counts, the first being the matter of food. Edna was a hospitable soul, possibly didn't appreciate the importance of Susie's diet. Beside that, Susie was always dead tired after the day's workout.

This night, however, he decided that Susie needed Edna and walked back to the hotel. Poor Susie, she hadn't even said good night. Passing the drug store in one corner of the hotel Jeff stopped and exclaimed softly. Susie sat at a small table in the rear. Even from the sidewalk Jeff sensed her attitude of mind. Defiant, reckless, for-the-moment-don't-care.

Gazing at her he saw a white-coated young man place a tall glass before her and, to his horror, he recognized it. A double malted milk, chocolate thick. As Susie inserted a huge straw into the mixture Jeff strode through the door.

He marched to her table. Susie, her lips parted over the straw, stopped in arrested motion. No habitual drunkard, lately having signed the oath of abstinence, caught with a flask in his hand, could have looked more guilty.

"Susie—" Jeff exclaimed. Her lips closed over the straw and Jeff swung on the glass. There was a sharp struggle, foamy liquid slopped on the table. Jeff was victorious.

Free Light Tests Are Offered by Utility Company

Joining in the national "Save-Your-Vision" week, which extends through February 23, is the West Texas Utilities company, now urging that customers take advantage of the free light tests conducted by trained lighting advisors.

"Scientific light conditioning in homes helps to prevent eye strain," said O. J. Russell, local manager. "Our lighting department has trained a group of young men in the science of lighting and how to obtain the most beneficial light at little or no additional cost. They co-operate with home-owners in the proper placement of lamps, selection of proper-sized bulbs, and in the use of shades to prevent glare."

The service, he said, is free. Home-owners are invited to call and ask a lighting advisor to visit the home, bringing his testing kit along so that practical information can be obtained about the amount of light needed by various members of the family.

Eyes need adequate light to see well and prevent strain, it was pointed out. Despite many years of educational work by the service company, it was said that many homes, schools and business houses still are poorly lighted with the result that countless eyes each year are injured needlessly by working under too severe a handicap.

"Human eyes were developed for outside, distance seeing," according to the Better Vision institute. "Sunlight has an intensity of 10,000 candles. In the shade the light is of 500 candlepower. Even indoors near a window the light is as bright as 100 to 200 candles. But workers in many homes, schools, offices, and factories work in light having only five or 10 candlepower. Studies have indicated many eyes need for close work, as sewing, as much as 100 candlepower of light. For close focusing work, as proof-reading, drawing and similar tasks, light of an intensity of 50 candlepower or more is desirable."

"For ordinary reading and other tasks, light of 10 to 30 candlepower is needed. Eyes differ, and some need more light than others. Usually, older or weak eyes need more light than younger and normal eyes."

A few years ago a light meter was developed which measures simply the candlepower of light. The West Texas Utilities company is glad to make surveys of lighting conditions in homes, offices and businesses.
