LARGEST LIST OF INDIVIDUAL ENTRIES MADE

Awards Made Only to FFA and 4-H Club Exhibitors

Cisco closed a very successful livestock show Saturday afternoon, although sudden cold, damp weather Saturday materially cut into the prospective attendance. The show, opening Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the Nance Motor company's used car lot, closed Saturday at noon with the completion of judging in the beef cattle and sheep divisions. Dairy cattle and hogs were judged Friday.

T. G. Caudle, Cisco agriculture teacher and superintendent of the show, said the show was, in point of individual quality of the animals shown, one of the best, if not the best, in the history of the annual event, which is sponsored by the senior chamber of commerce. Prizes this year were confined to exhibits entered by FFA boys and 4-H club members.

In connection with the show, the junior chamber of commerce sponsored a rodeo at the Lions softball park. Two performances were given and visitors pronounced the competition equal to that of the biggest rodeos. Competition was exceptionally keen among the performers who came from long distances to take part.

Awards in the livestock show were announced by Mr. Caudle as follows:

- Fat steer—First, Gail Jones; second and fourth, J. V. Heyser, Jr., and third, R. D. Donham.
- Grade Hereford heifer, one year and over—First, Glen Jones; second, R. Hodges.
- Hereford bull—First, A. Schorr, and second, Harlan Donaway.
- Angora goats, nanny under one year—First, R. M. Sneed; second and third, J. C. Thurman.
- Angora goats, nanny one year and over—First and champion, J. C. Thurman; second, J. C. Thurman, and third, R. Hodges.
- Angora goats, billie—First and second, J. C. Thurman, and third, R. M. Sneed.
- Fat lamb—Sid Faircloth, only one.
- Jerseys under one year—First, Buddy Rogers; second and third, L. C. Love.
- Jerseys one year and under two—First, Bobby Wisdom; second, James Walker; third, Earl Ervin.
- Jerseys two years and over—First Jack Walker; second, James Walker.
- Jersey bulls—First, Jack Walker; second, Chester Ervin; third, Elbert Boney.
- Poland China gilt under one year—First, Shelton Tankley; second, Thomas Huling; third, O. D. Plumlee.
- Poland China sows one year and over—First, R. N. Sneed.
- Poland China boars—First, G. W. Jones; second, S. S. Faircloth.

Second Honor Roll in Big Baby Parade Is Published

Italians In Exodus From France

Italy's territorial aspirations at French expense cast a new shadow over Europe's peace Saturday as thousands of Italians began an exodus from France in what many quarters viewed as a direct slap at the French.

The Italians' return to their homeland was said to be part of Premier Mussolini's plan to repatriate Italians abroad. Italian sources said 3,000 were leaving continental France and 1,000 were leaving Corsica, French island department which has figured in fascist clamor for French possessions.

An Italian embassy spokesman in Paris said this was "only a beginning" and foreign circles in Rome expressed belief it was another gesture of Italian ill feeling toward France.

It coincided with signs of imminent peace in Spain. Both France and Britain were making urgent efforts to end the Spanish civil war and clear the way for their formal recognition next Monday of Generalissimo Franco's rule as Spain's legal government.

France already has disclosed her intention to give Franco recognition and the nationalists were said to have given assurances encouraging to Britain.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Stephen and sons, Rodney and Stanley, of Eastland, transacted business in Cisco Saturday.

Bishop Holt Is Guest of Churches Here

Bishop and Mrs. Ivan Lee Holt were the guests today noon at an informal luncheon at the First Methodist church. The bishop, on a two-day tour of the Cisco district, escorted by the Rev. Roy Langston, presiding elder of the district.

Members of the First church and Twelfth Street church, welcomed the bishop and his wife at 12 o'clock with a covered dish luncheon. The luncheon program was over at 1.

Sunday evening Bishop Holt will address the young people of the Cisco district at the First Methodist church at Eastland. The Rev. Joe L. Patterson, pastor of the Cisco First church, said today that he will lead a large number of the Cisco young people to Eastland to meet the bishop. Services at First church Sunday evening will be conducted by the Rev. R. H. Heizer.

FOUND: TWO GRAND

LODI, Calif., Feb. 25 (AP).—When Misses Helen and Esther Cone were making up beds in their auto camp, they found $2,130 under a pillow. The sisters held it, anticipating that an elderly couple who had occupied the cottage the night before would return. They did.

Voters Crowd Daily Press Office at Deadline Saturday

The second honor roll of babies in the big Baby Parade of the Cisco Daily Press and cooperating merchants appears on page six of this issue.

Counting of the votes cast for the babies during the week proved a stupendous job Saturday. Late voters crowded the Cisco Daily Press office during the morning to put in their ballots for their favorites.

Competition in the parade is exceptionally close, the tabulations revealed. The leaders all appear to be well "bunched" with only a few votes between. Some of the babies not named in the honor roll are extremely close to being listed among the first 20 and, as far as work and credits are concerned, well deserve to be there.

Listing in the honor roll is based only on the current week's voting and it does not show the standing to date during the campaign. The leader in each week's honor roll is awarded an 11x14 enlargement.

Interest in the campaign is gaining momentum daily and with the fair, warm weather near at hand it will undoubtedly develop much excitement.

New babies entered since the last list published are:

- Howard Ray Rich, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Rich, Cisco, Route 2.
- Jerry Don McBeth, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde McBeth, Cisco.
- Shirley Rae and Huey Ted Sessions, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Sessions, Cisco, Route 4.
- Shirley Sue Cearley, Mr. and Mrs. Bee Cearley, Lake Cisco.
- Dwayne and Durwin Dill, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dill, Cisco, Route 2.
- Hubert Allan Donaway, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Donaway, Dothan.
- Terencia Speegle, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Speegle, Dothan.
- Ernest Wayne Fricke, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Fricke, Cisco.
- Jimmie Posey, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Posey, Cisco.
- Donna June Aldridge, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Aldridge, Cisco.
- Janice June Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. David Duncan, Cisco.
- Melba Rose Crowder, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Crowder, Cisco.
- Harry Floyd and Jimmie Don Warren, Cisco.
- Doris Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Curtis, Cisco.

Ministerial Alliance to Meet Monday

The monthly meeting of the ministerial alliance of Cisco is scheduled to be held Monday morning at 9 o'clock in the pastor's study of the First Baptist church.

The message to the ministers is to be brought by a layman and all ministers of the city and others are cordially invited to attend.

13 Treated After Wreck of Train

LARAMIE, Wyo., Feb. 25 (AP).—Injured when five cars of the Union Pacific's "Pony Express" passenger train "keeled over" a 20-foot embankment in Southern Wyoming, 13 persons were under treatment Saturday at a hospital here and five others were in a Rawlins, Wyo., hospital.

Three persons were able to leave the Laramie hospital after receiving first aid.

W. W. Jaeger, one of several insurance executives bound for the Golden Gate Exposition at San Francisco, said his fellow passengers "kept their heads patty well" when the cars jumped the track and overturned near Bosler, Wyo., at 10 p. m. Friday.

Jaeger said he and his wife were sound asleep in their berths but awoke when they felt "the bumping of the wheels over the ties."

"There was a smash, a crash and I sensed the car sailing through the air," Jaeger said. "Then the car keeled over on its side and came to rest."

There was little screaming or other confusion among the passengers, Jaeger related after he and his wife were brought to the hospital here. Bosler is 17 miles north of Laramie.

Ambulance drivers were impeded.

Mrs. Harvey Sunday School Speaker

The missionary book, "Invincible Advance," will be reviewed by Mrs. James Harvey at the assembly of the adult department of the First Methodist Sunday school at 9:30.

All young people of the church are requested to meet at the church at 6:45 this evening to go to Eastland for Bishop Ivan Lee Holt's address on the "Youth Crusade."

The congregations of the First and Twelfth Street churches will meet at the First church at 7 for a sermon by Rev. J. D. Hendrickson on the subject, "How Adults Can Assist in Enriching the Spiritual Life of Youth."

The stock show program, it was said, will appeal to the old-time cowmen who rode the trails 50 years ago. Present day cattle families also will be honored through their daughters, eight of them coming from separate sections of the cattle country as honor guests of the show.

Funeral For J. S. Mitchell to Be at Sweetwater

The body of J. S. Mitchell, 64, Hickok company employe who died at his home east of Cisco Friday evening at 8 o'clock was at Green's Funeral home late Saturday awaiting word from a daughter at Toledo, O., before being sent to Sweetwater for burial. Word from the daughter was momentarily expected.

Besides the daughter, Mrs. Tom Bourque, Mr. Mitchell is survived by his wife; one son, M. W. Mitchell of Clayton, Idaho; one brother, Brock Mitchell of Sweetwater, and two sisters, Mrs. Sam Lovelace of Verden, Okla., and Mrs. A. G. Green of Sherman, Texas.

Mr. Mitchell was employed by the Hickok companies here for five years.

Jaycees Give Good Show But Go in Hole

The best bucking stock available and the hottest competition that any rodeo ever drew, failed to overcome the disadvantages of weather Friday night and Saturday afternoon and the Cisco junior chamber of commerce went in the "hole" to the tune of about $200 on the most ambitious rodeo attempt of the Jaycees' history.

Everything was a success except the weather and the attendance.

Competitors came from as far as Lufkin and Alpine. Many came from Abilene, Merkel, Ranger and other nearby places. Contestants pronounced the bucking stock and the competition as good as any that could be found in west Texas. All praised Cisco highly for the hospitality.

But this does not pay bills and the Jaycees will be "seeing you" this week.

The Double Heart ranch at Sweetwater furnished 10 bucking steers and five broncs, all of them "tops." Gus Brandon of Putnam and Weldon Isenhower of Cisco furnished roping calves. Quincy Lee furnished the outstanding bucking horse of the rodeo, known as Sally Rand. One rider hugged leather to stay on. None other was able to stay topside. She tossed one rider at least 20 feet.

Two performances were given. One Friday night at 7:30 and the second Saturday afternoon. Two contests paid money Saturday afternoon. George Brown of Albany won first in calf roping in 9.5 seconds without tying the calf. Joe McLuskey of Throckmorton was second.

In the regular calf roping contest in which contestants were required to tie the legs of the calf, Weldon Young of Albany won in 14.2 seconds. Young, however, bettered this time in the contests Friday night which he also won. Felton Harrington, who also took second Friday night, was second Saturday afternoon with 17.4 seconds.

Young took first in calf roping

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Ask and receive that your joy may be full.—John vii. 24.

How the Most High doth truly treasure
Joy for His servants.—EDWIN ARNOLD

What is it to wait for God on the strength of His word, but to taste at once the charm of mystery, and the great joy of certainty, to discern across a golden twilight the brightness of the uncreated light, to have at the same time the rapture of learning and knowing, to collect our thoughts for happiness, to prepare ourselves for joy, to call and find that we are answered.—Madame Swetchine.

Modern People and Ancient Superstitions

COULD there be any connection between these things: The world today is governed less by reason and more by instinct and momentary feeling than at any time in recent years.

"Superstition is increasing by leaps and bounds," says Rev. G. R. Balleine and Dr. H. L. Goodge, British Church of England divines, who have studied the superstition situation and written a recent pamphlet about it.

FROM PAINE, philosophical father of his country, thought he saw dawning, 150 years ago, "The Age of Reason." He believed ed he could see a day coming when men would regulate their affairs sensibly, sanely, without passion, and in the sweet light of pure reason.

For a while it seemed that this might almost come true as Payne dreamed it. But today it seems farther away than ever. More and more in the affairs of today's world we substitute bluster for brains, impulse for intelligence, jitters for judgment, and rancor for reason.

Whole peoples today are ruled by the idea that to settle human problems by the exercise of cool reason is somehow degenerate; that the really red-blooded way to settle a problem is to work up a temperature of 104 and then grab a club and knock the ears off anybody who happens to be standing in the way.

WHAT has all this to do with the growth of superstition envisioned by the learned English divines? Just this: it is in such a world that rank growths of superstition flourish most abundantly. They compliment and support the lack of reason as applied to affairs. That is why the campaign of the British clergy to stamp it out is a timely one.

They believe that all superstitions are "forms of mental disease." We wouldn't know about that, but it is certain that the extremely superstitious live in a world which they have unnecessarily filled with terrors and restrictions. Life is quite complex enough with real and perfectly evident troubles and griefs. To fill it with purely imaginary dangers, threats, menaces, and terrors, or even with illusory omens and portents of good fortune, is to suffer unnecessarily.

UNFORTUNATELY, one man's superstition is another man's laughing-stock. Nobody believes them all. Why, imagine a man going around knocking on wood, refusing to walk under ladders, sit with 13 at table, do anything on Friday, or shake hands over a threshold. Huh! Such foolishness! Or worrying about spilling salt—emulsions of different types. The curvature of the lens is exact to one-one-millionth of an inch, "as near perfection as possible." The mirror is 100,000 times as powerful as the naked eye, staff astronomers said.

Also outstanding is the declination deviation control, which automatically allows for the bending of light as it strikes earth's atmosphere. The control will also be used to focus the lens on comets and asteroids in flight both automatically and continually.

Constantly on Star A slow control calibrates the 75-ton instrument to the exact position of the star and keeps the huge glass "light funnel" constantly under the star as it moves. Staffed by the Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago, experiments with the giant "light funnel" to probe the secrets of the sky will begin almost immediately.

Dr. C. T. Elvey is astronomer in charge. Also to work with the giant telescope are Drs. George Van Biesbroeck and G. P. Kuiper, both of whom are likewise on the staff of Yerkes observatory. Dr. Karl K. Seyfert is also on the McDonald staff. Other staff members working on a cooperative basis with the Yerkes observatory are Professor Morgan, spectra expert, and Dr. S. Chandrasekhar, Indian authority, foremost in the world, on stellar constitution.

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

The love of power over men seems to be one of the most fascinating of pastimes. For after all it is a way in which the despot is satisfying his whims, only he deals with men instead of imaginary people that were enough to satisfy him as a child. Simon of Samaria had fooled men with his tricks of sorcery until he had them acknowledging him as the Great Divine. He gloried thus in sharing a little in the power and honor of Deity. But there is evidence to show that he also loved the income that came from his tricks. Of course it is always hard to tell how far one has come to believe in the reality of his own pretences. One can allow himself to fall into almost any belief. After his conversion Simon seemed to turn his powers into a new channel. One of the fascinations about this new religion was the demonstration of wonders that accompanied the work of Philip and others of those early workers. He was amazed. His habits of mind were not easily laid aside. And having been used to a money value for such powers he

McDonald Telescope Serves as Giant Funnel to Gather Light From Star

ALPINE, Feb. 25 (Spe)—Purpose of the giant telescope at McDonald observatory, on Mount Locke, is to serve as a giant funnel of light, permitting astronomers to concentrate in one spot a large quantity of star light. Dr. Otto Struve, director of the joint University of Texas-University of Chicago sky laboratory, explains

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON—She was a very nice little old lady, and she flagged me in a corridor of the capitol and demanded to know where the House chamber was. I took her there, and as we walked she talked. She had just been in the Senate, and she was horrified because there was a bare score of senators in the chamber. "What are we paying taxes for?" she demanded indignantly. "Why aren't those men in their places?" I tried to explain about committee assignments and such, which keep senators off the floor except when big things are going on. "Hmf!" she said. "Young man, I taught school for 25 years, and I'm sure I wouldn't have held my job if I had stayed out of the school room half the time. How can these men vote intelligently if they don't hear the discussion?" Business that day had been routine, I explained. So many speeches are made which aren't really very important; when such a speech begins, the wise senators duck out and find something else to do. But that didn't help. "Well!" she said, with fire in her eye. "Why do they let them make speeches then, if they haven't got something important to say?"

LILLE, France, Feb. 25 (AP)—A native of Holland, Aart Akkersdyck, was sentenced to 20 years in jail and 10 years' banishment for espionage on Franco-Belgian frontier fortifications.

one responsible for the conduct of business." He predicted Hopkins will be "the greatest secretary of commerce we ever had."

In New York, Floyd B. Carlisle, chairman of Consolidated Edison company of New York, and Wendell L. Wilkie, president of Commonwealth and Southern corporation, commented favorably on Hopkins' speech.

Carlisle said the secretary's comment on utilities "clearly indicates a desire on the part of the administration to remove doubt as to the competitive fields of public ownership and operating and the fields occupied by the private companies."

Willkie expressed the view that if Hopkins "speaks with the authority of those governmental agencies that have to do with the power industry, his offer of cooperation will be reassuring. The log jam in utility investment, which if broken would mean so much in promoting employment must be broken by action on the part of government."

The widely-known economist, Dr. Lionel P. Edie, commenting in New York, asserted the secretary's statement of purpose to bring out private investment "will be most welcome to all business circles," adding that business men "will wait and see what these generalities will mean when he gets down to specific cases."

T. C. Williams Is Guest Speaker For West Ward P.-T. A.

The monthly meeting of the West Ward P.-T. A. Wednesday afternoon at the school opened with a prayer by Rev. Joe I. Patterson and Mrs. Jimmie Allen, presided. Following the business session Mrs. D. Ball outlined for the group an interesting account of the meaning of Founders' day, held on February 17 of each year.

Mrs. Allen then introduced Miss Jennie Reed, representative for the World Book Encyclopedia, who spoke to the association of the benefits in obtaining these volumes for the school's library.

Guest speaker for the afternoon was T. C. Williams, county superintendent, whose subject was "Soon We'll Vote," in keeping with the year's program theme, "Citizenship."

Work being done in the Boys Sport club, sponsored by the Lions club, was told by Rev. Patterson. The nominating committee for selecting officers for next year's work was chosen by the group as follows: Mrs. J. C. McAfee, Mrs. D. Ball and Arlin Birt.

In the room count for attendance, Mrs. Williams' room won for the lower grades with Mrs. Irene Hall mark's and Miss Maymie Estes' rooms tying for the higher grades.

Perfectly Balanced

The 125-ton revolving dome, mounted on locomotive wheels, is operated by a small 10-horsepower electric motor. The 75-ton instrument itself is so perfectly balanced that it is driven by a one-third horsepower motor and focused to a hair's breadth.

To operate the observatory, five and one half miles of wiring was required. One hundred and thirty-seven push buttons furnish the main control system.

Modern living quarters for the staff dot the peak of Mount Locke. Operation of the huge telescope is actually simple, according to Dr. Elvey. The observer may choose one of three vantage points in the observatory. One is under the telescope, one is on the bridge 20 feet above, and the third is in the constant temperature control booth.

A master control switch transfers operation of the instrument to the observer's station. There push buttons in a portable table control start the massive instrument in pursuit of a star, focusing it upon the immediate vicinity of that star.

The one-third horsepower driven declination-deviation control is used here to counteract the effect of the earth's rotation and to hold the lens in constant focus.

STORIES IN STAMPS

How Jefferson Wrote The Declaration

FIFTY years after the Declaration of Independence was written, the historians began to assemble the story of the framing. But the accounts were fragmentary and memories faulty. So the original drafts prepared by Thomas Jefferson proved of inestimable value.

Jefferson was only 33 when he was chosen to write the astounding document. He was chosen because he had the "reputation of a masterly pen" and he had been named a delegate from Virginia as a result of a "very handsome public paper which he had written for the House of Burgesses."

He proved equal to the historic task. The drafting committee of five unanimously pressed on Jefferson the sole job of writing. He first submitted his work to the committee and then to Congress and the changes were few. Franklin and Adams added a word here or there or deleted another. Jefferson himself was the hardest critic and he wrote and rewrote, polishing, strengthening until time almost for the final endorsing. The result was a document remarkable for its cadence and facility of expression.

Strangely enough, Jefferson kept no record in his papers of his work on the Constitution except a mere 25-word notation that he had been assigned to the drafting committee. The drafts themselves were left to tell the story. Jefferson is shown above on a stamp of the series of 1890, 10-cent black, enlarged. (Copyright, 1929, NEA Service, Inc.)

SERIAL STORY

WOMEN WANT BEAUTY!

BY LOUISE HOLMES

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
SUSIE LAMBERT—She served waffles and dreamed of being beautiful.
DICK TREMAINE—He liked Susie's waffles but he couldn't see Susie.
JEFF BOWMAN—His chief concern was to make Susie as beautiful as she wanted to be.

Yesterday, Susie is beautiful, the beauticians agree after their long work on her. Susie wants to see her face herself, but they tell her not yet. She is to be presented to Mr. Harker.

CHAPTER XVIII

There were no mirrors in the room. Susie waited for the first view of herself with the still excitement of a bride awaiting the first peal of her wedding march.

Then, with the net still over her hair, she was dressed. An army of maids in waiting helped her while an army of department heads looked on critically. Susie stood herself in the hub-bub. When a straight, dark dress, deceivably simple in design, a miracle of clever workmanship, was slid over her head and zipped neatly up the side, a linen apron was tied around her neck and Pierre reverently took command.

He removed the net and loosened deep waves. He spun soft curls around an expert finger, he tucked in hairpins, bringing the curls close to Susie's white neck, he fashioned a transparent whirl over each ear. Then he put a mirror into Susie's hand.

Eagerly she gazed into it. Childishly she looked behind the mirror. At last she gasped.

"Why—why she doesn't recognize me," Susie faltered.
At her words the room was swept with a gale of laughter. "How about you recognizing our beautiful friend, Suzanne?" Pierre asked. The heads of departments crowded around, buzzing, complimenting, exclaiming.

Fascinated, Susie stared into the mirror. Shining hair, pale brown with golden high lights, framed an oval face. Dizzily bright eyes sparkled between curling lashes. Slim straight brows gave a slightly oriental touch to the provocative eyes, faint, blue green shadows added unbelievable depth and allure. Susie saw a pert little nose, cunningly applied lip rouge made her mouth a delicious temptation. Natural color came and went in her cheeks. Tears filled Susie's eyes.

"Look—out," Emma exclaimed, rushing forward with a soft tissue. "Look—out," Pierre repeated. "Dry those tears, girl, or you will spoil everything."

Susie laughed shakily and the tears were gone. The clock said 3:30 and she was to be presented to Mr. Harker at 4. The linen apron disappeared, a hat was deftly fitted to her head. And such a hat. It shaped tightly to one side, coming down almost to an eyebrow, snugging into the curls. A fragile veil came just over Susie's nose, making a dusky cloud around the little hat.

"Ah—," sighed the milliner, "I knew it—perfection." She was crowded aside by a young woman with a knee length coat that matched Susie's dress. The soft elegance of imported wool, a flaring collar of exquisite fur, huge fur sleeves. The coat fastened at the neck with a dull gold clasp, it fell gracefully over the short, narrow skirt. The head of suits and coats smoothed Susie's shoulders and stood back in rapt satisfaction.

Gloves, finest suede, hand stitched, were slipped on Susie's hands, softly crushed at the wrists. Someone handed her a purse, suede again, like the shoes and gloves, with a huge, fanciful "S" in burnished gold. The clock said 3:45.

With every passing second, Susie's nerves grew tenser. It was becoming difficult to swallow, her eyes felt stiff, too wide open. The girl in the mirror was a stranger, she had lost herself, her spirit floundered foggy in a daze.

Someone said, "Mr. Kane is waiting." Someone opened the door. Then Susie, the prima donna, the debutante, Harker's sensation, turned on a temperamental fit. Susie had never indulged in temperance, but she was feminine, she knew how. Her behavior was the outgrowth of terror and rising hysteria.

"I want to see Jeff Bowman," she said.

"Please, Miss Suzanne," said the head of the glove department. "It's almost 4. Mr. Kane is waiting to take you to Mr. Harker."

But, remonstrance only added to Susie's nervous tension. Mr. Harker, too, was a stranger. She hadn't seen him in six weeks, she didn't want to see him. And why should Clifford Kane be the one to escort her to his office?

Firmly she said again, "I want to see Jeff Bowman. Her feet had to see Jeff Bowman. Her feet would walk, her knees would only shake, she had a crazy impulse to throw her purse at the head of the glove department. She couldn't and wouldn't go on without Jeff.

Clifford Kane called from beyond the door. "What's the matter in there? We're due at the Chief's office in three minutes."

Hands patted Susie, they pushed and prodded. She stamped her slim, arched foot. "Find Jeff Bowman—or I'll throw things," she threatened, frantically.

Someone located Jeff. He was loitering near the desk in the beauty salon. He'd said he would be hanging around. He came with a rush when peremptorily called. The heads of departments, the fitters with pincushions fastened to their bosoms, faded relievedly through the door. Clifford Kane fumed, watch in hand. Jeff walked close to Susie, sensing her hysteria, understanding her terrible need of him.

"I'm afraid, Jeff," she quavered. "It isn't me—I can't find me. I want them to stop looking at me. My knees are going to crumple—"

Jeff did not laugh. He took Susie carefully in his arms. She clung to the amazing comfort of him. Putting a finger under her chin he raised her distraught face and smiled confidently into her eyes.

"You're swell, Susie," he said. It was the best possible line. Sympathy would have reduced her to tears, bullying would have antagonized her. Jeff's remark made her laugh.

"Well, that's something," she managed to say.
"Boy how you've turned the trick. You're a knockout, a double-barreled knockout. Forget the old Susie we both liked." Stepping back he bowed with one hand on his vest. "I salute Suzanne," he said.

Her chin went up, courage took the place of shrinking fear. "Thanks, Mister," she smiled, and walked toward the door. Over her shoulder she twinkled. "Ready or not, here I go."

"Walk smart," she advised her. "Shoulders back, head up."

Susie was laughing as she joined a nervous irate Mr. Kane. Upon seeing her he forgot to be irate. He whistled through his teeth. "Ye gods," he muttered. "The impossible has come to pass, the age of miracles is upon us."

It was a triumphal march to Mr. Harker's office, a buzz in the wake of Susie and Mr. Kane. Near the elevator Susie saw Jeff's mother and ran to her with both hands outstretched.

"Am I all right?" she asked in the manner of a little girl.

If Edna could have whistled through her teeth she would have done so. Instead she said, "My dear, you are lovely—lovely."

The department heads had gathered in the outer office to hear the first word which meant work well done. Susie saw Sven and waved at him. He looked dazed, not even recognizing her. Pierre stepped forward to touch a curl.

Newspaper reporters, who had been making themselves inconspicuous up to now, surged up.

Jeff, appearing from now between them and; Susie broad back was the one taken when a camera Harker's wanted Susie but they wanted it done their own way.

As Kane guided Susie to the closed door of John Harker's office she said, "May I go in just for a moment?"

Kane, who had been reviewing a presentation which reflected much of himself, drew back in dismay.

"But Mr. Harker asked me to bring you," he objected.

"Well, you've brought me," said, smiling, the ripe of her lips emphasized by the "Okay—okay," he said and she opened the door.

"Flying Hotel" Set for Pacific Hop; 74-Passenger Ships to Fly Atlantic

By SAM JACKSON AP Feature Service Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 25.—The world's biggest airplane, typifying America's supremacy on the peaceful side of aviation, awaits only a final government okay before spreading its wings over the Pacific.

Nameless as yet—except for the label "Model 314"—the craft has been dubbed locally "the flying hotel." It is the first of six identical giants to be delivered to Pan-American Airways by the Boeing plant in Seattle. This one will reinforce Pan-American's established airline to Hawaii and the Orient, but most of them are destined for a new adventure—plane service from New York to England, expected to start this spring.

The great ship justifies the oh's and ah's of the throngs who have watched it circle San Francisco bay.

It takes a crew of 10 men to operate it, and comfortable accommodations are provided for 74 passengers. As a night sleeper it can carry 40.

Regular Dining Room

One does not dine off the portable lap-tables of the ordinary transport plane. There is a dining room which seats 14 at a time. Between meals it converts into a recreation room and the galley becomes a bar.

Passenger accommodations include the so-called "bridal suite." This richly appointed compartment contains a love seat, an end table, a davenport that converts into berths, a combination dressing table and writing desk, a folding wash-stand cabinet, an occasional chair and a coffee table.

The standard compartments contain 10 berths each, and there are commodious men's and women's dressing rooms. The galley has a steam table and a refrigerator.

The plane is operated from an upper deck entirely separated from the passengers. Pilot and copilot sit together as in smaller planes; but behind them the navigator, the radio officer and the flight engineer work at separate desks.

And in a corner overlooking them all, like an executive in his busy office, is the supervisor who coordinates all activities.

Can Cruise 6,500 Miles

The craft weighs 83,000 pounds and its four engines, developing 6,000 horsepower in all, can drive it at 200 miles an hour. Under best

Broadcast Helps Owner Find Pooch

BUTTE, Mont., Feb. 25 (AP)—A stray, dejected little black-and-white fox terrier slunk into the room of George Needy, police radio broadcaster who was busy at his microphone.

Needy paused for breath and the dog yelped into the mike. A newspaper reporter wrote a story about the yelp that was heard round the police radio system and the dog's owner read it. He hurried to police headquarters to claim his pup.

With Our WILD LIFE

Fur and Fur Bearers

The average citizen of Texas and the United States ordinarily does not fully realize the value of our fur-bearers, and the actual money value that they mean to us. This is an industry that is not considered very much when industries are being discussed in sections of the United States. For example, in 1937 it was estimated that trappers and fur farmers in the United States received a net return of 65 million dollars. This averaged about $22 per square mile for the United States. A very big item to consider.

The principal fur-bearers of the United States are muskrat, beaver, mink, skunk, marten, badger, mink, weasel, o'possum, coyotes, wolves, foxes, lynx, bob cats, rabbits, bear, squirrels and raccoons.

In the report on the fur situation it showed that 65 to 70 per cent of the total fur catch was east of the Mississippi river. Louisiana alone had an annual income of $7,000,000, over twice as much in returns from fur as does the 1,000,000 square miles west of the Rocky Mountains. Louisiana has 48,000 square miles. Note the comparison of area. Too, it was noted that Louisiana had a yield of $140 per square mile, compared to an average over the United States at $22 per square mile. Muskrats constitutes over 5 million of the million dollar return from fur in this state alone. In early days the west was first in production, but now the returns are way low.

Why Reversal of Yields?

In the foregoing paragraph it is noted that the bulk of the fur yield shifted from the west of the Mississippi to the east in a short period of time. Why this reversal? The eastern states have been the most conspicuous in regulating the economic development of its wildlife resources. Pennsylvania has increased its income from fur from the 1901 yield of $200,000 to $5,000,000 at the present time. In New York the returns have increased from $300,000 in 1908 to over $5,000,000 at the present time.

Poisoning Campaigns in West

The Bureau of Biological Survey is spending annually about $10,000,000 to poison predators and rodents. Four things have resulted in this respect: 1. Marked reduction in wolves, coyotes, bears, mountain lions, foxes, bob-cats, lynx, etc. 2. Marked reduction in other fur bearers, which take poison not intended for them. Badger, marten, skunks, weasels, etc. have been killed by the thousands. 3. Killing of carnivores has permitted great increase in rodents, which in turn have been poisoned. The carnivores left are hard put to

Brothers-in-Law May Rule Spain

Spanish Rebel Generalissimo Franco, left, is reported about to establish a new insurgent government, with himself as dictator and his brother-in-law, Ramon Serrano Suner, right, as premier. Suner, now minister of the interior, is considered strongly pro-Fascist.

Prof Regrets Good Breeding in Bulls

BIG BEND PARK AREA, Feb. 25 (AP)—J. Frank Dobie, Texas university professor and writer of folklore, regrets that cattle breeders have "bred all the bellow out of the bull."

"The old longhorn bulls could lift sand upon their backs and necks with their forefeet, bellowing constantly as they worked themselves into the proper mood for fight," says Dobie, who was raised on a longhorn ranch.

"Acres of brush would be trampled before one bull succeeded in going to death or whipping the other one and it was a grand spectacle."

"The modern Hereford can't bellow. He sounds like a sick cow calling her calf. No power behind his nose."

AFTER HEAD-HUNTERS

BOMBAY, Feb. 25 (AP)—British officials have hurried to Margherita, Assam, to investigate a rumor that a 30-year-old slave, bought for about $230, was sacrificed to the deity by the Nagas tribe of head-hunters near there.

Enough furs could be produced in the United States to meet our annual market demands valued at $190,000,000, if the policy of conservation and management of our fur-bearers were in operation in all the states. Here is a dollar and cents cash value of $125,000,000 annually not being reaped because of the bad practices now in operation.
