President and some of his principal subordinates seem at pains recently to reiterate the business community that it has nothing to fear in the former taxes or punitive money. The business community, including you and your fellow investor, is not to be frightened by these assurances with pleasure, but the still small doubt created by the actuality of such an assurance from one man or one man's word. The fact that democracy one man's word. All Babies Have Equal Chance to Win Parade

Some parents seem to think that their babies do not stand a ghost of a chance to win in the "Baby Parade" if its name has not appeared in the Honor Roll for the past two weeks, or if they were late in having its picture made and published. This is not the case.

Set-Back Handed Advocates of Sale-By-Drink

AUSTIN, Feb. 27—(AP)—Advocates of a bill legalizing hard liquor sales by the drink here handed a substantial setback last night when the house liquor traffic committee failed to recommend it. They managed to keep the proposal alive, however, by mustering a one-vote majority to send it to a subcommittee.

Action came after a warm hearing in which opponents contended the bill would increase drunkenness and supporters countered with assertion it would promote temperance and give the state badly needed tax money.

Attorney General Gerald C. Mann held a few hours before the hearing that the bill was unconstitutional.

A brush between Dr. Jeff Davis of Dallas, secretary of the United States dyes, and committee members enlivened proceedings.

Rep. Pat Dwyer of San Antonio, the bill's author, had asked Dr. Davis whether the United States dyes paid him to work for them and received an affirmative answer. Dr. Davis interposed:

"And now may I ask you a question? Who pays you to represent them?"

Reps. Joe A. Keith of Sherman and Gene McNamara of Waco jumped to their feet to demand an apology for the "insinuation" against Dwyer.

"I meant no insinuation," replied the dry leader. "I merely was engaging in repartee."

Hiker Saves Thumb by Using Red Light

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Feb. 28—(AP)—A youth, attempting to thumb a ride on Colorado Springs' north-south arterial highway, discovered he could operate the traffic signal at a main intersection with a nearby push button.

So he turned the light red, permitted a line of cars to pile up and then walked the length of them trying for a ride. When he failed on that attempt he changed the light to green, cleared the intersection and then tried a new batch of automobile drivers. Police discovered him and he explained he was "trying to save my thumb."

Hiller's new study is to be 88 feet long, which will probably allow for chest expansion of der fuehrer.

Funeral Service For Mrs. Perry Thursday Morning

Funeral services for Mrs. D. E. Perry, 36, superintendent of Graham sanitarium who was found dead at the hospital at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, will be held at Green's funeral home at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, it was announced. A priest of the Catholic church will officiate and burial will be in Oakwood cemetery with Green funeral home in charge.

Mrs. Perry's death was unexpected and discovered by Miss Evelyn Bennie, nurse who came on duty at 4 o'clock to relieve her. Pallbearers for the services tomorrow morning will be Dr. E. L. Graham, Dr. F. E. Clark, Dr. D. Ball, Dr. W. P. Lee, Dr. Paul Woods and Dr. C. C. Jones.

Survivors include Mr. Perry and a foster daughter, Margaret, 16-year-old Cisco high school student; a sister in Chicago, Ill., and a brother with the U. S. army at Galveston.

Mrs. Perry was born Virginia McGrady in West Virginia on May 24, 1902. She was graduated from the nursing school of Johns Hopkins hospital at Baltimore, Md., and 12 years ago came to Cisco to join the staff of Graham sanitarium of which she was made superintendent. She and Mr. Perry were married here.

In addition to her work as nurse and hospital superintendent, Mrs. Perry was an expert X-ray technician and operated the large laboratory at the sanitarium.

'SIT-DOWN' IS OUTLAWED BY HIGH TRIBUNAL

Supreme Court Ruling Is Blow to National Labor Board

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 28 (AP)—The nation's highest court denounced the sit-down strike Monday and ruled that workers who seize their employer's factory have placed themselves outside the protection of the Wagner labor relations act.

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, reading a majority opinion, declared that a sit-down in the Fansteel Metallurgical corporation of North Chicago, two years ago was a "high-handed proceeding without a shadow of legal right."

Declaring that the employer could discharge the "wrongdoers" without violating the Wagner act, his opinion invalidated an order by the national labor relations board requiring the company to reinstate employees who were dismissed when they seized key buildings of the corporation.

The labor board had contended the strike resulted from violations of the Wagner act by the employer, including refusal to bargain collectively.

Besides delivering this sharp blow to the labor board, the court set aside two other board orders for reinstatement. One involved the Sands Manufacturing company of Cleveland, and in this case the supreme court held that employers who strike in violation of a contract sever their relations with their employees.

The tribunal ruled also that the labor board had not substantiated a charge that the Columbian Enameling and Stamping company of Terre Haute, Ind., had refused to bargain collectively with its employees. An order for reinstatement of those discharged was set aside.

The court supported a board order that the Fansteel company withdraw recognition from the Rare Metal Workers of America, local No. 1. The tribunal agreed with the NLRB that Fansteel had violated the labor act in refusing to bargain collectively with the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America.

Justice Reed and Black dissented in each of the three decisions against the labor board. Justice Frankfurter, a new member of the court, did not participate in these decisions.

Justice Roberts, in his majority opinion in the Sands case, upheld the company's contention that violation of a contractual provision not to strike severed the employee relation.

He said that when negotiations between the company and the Mechanics Educational Society of America (MESA) broke up and the factory was closed, the "respondent rightly understood that the men were irrevocably committed not to work in accordance with their contracts."

"It was at liberty," Roberts continued, "to treat them as having severed their relations with the company because of their breach and to consummate their separation by hiring others to take their places."

Tom Hawk, charged with swindling by check and returned to Cisco yesterday from Baird by Constable J. J. Honea, pleaded guilty in Justice Wilson's court and was assessed a fine of $10 and costs. He was transferred to county jail at Eastland.

Dr. Richardson Is Speaker for Lions

Dr. Rupert N. Richardson, executive vice-president of Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, and district governor of Lions International of District 2-E, spoke to Lions and their ladies at the Laguna roof garden last night on the occasion of the annual Lions Ladies night.

Entertainers from the fine arts department of the university assisted with the program.

Mrs. T. C. Williams was given the prize, a beautiful pot plant, for the best introduction of her husband, President Jack Anderson, who in turn introduced Past District Governor Horace Condey, Lion Condey, in presenting the district governor, said that "at last they have elected an educated man to direct the affairs of the Lions district."

Dr. Richardson's address on "True Americanism" was a masterly discussion of what goes for the ideals of American people, citing the outstanding traits by which we remember our American forefathers and builders.

Miss Dorothy Mack Amon played the violin with Miss Wanda Fox at the piano, drawing encores, while Gene Estes was a decided hit as a whistler with accordion self-accompaniment.

President Anderson recounted some of the accomplishments of the Lions club during the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1938.

Those attending were, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Brown, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Horace Condey, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Deigh, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Each scholastic is worth $22 to the Cisco school system, he said.

CLARK POOL IS EXTENDED BY NEW PRODUCER

Fourth Well Good for Between 50 and 100 Barrels Daily

Variouly estimated as good for 50 barrels to more than 100 barrels a day, Kleiner and Warren Sunday brought in their fourth and best producer on the F. E. Clark ranch near Putnam, where their original well opened up a new and prolific shallow sand pool. The new well, the Clark 4-A, extends the productive area 439 feet northeast. The sand, topped at 738 feet, has been drilled 11 feet without penetrating the stratum.

Tubing and rods are being run out as soon as this is completed a test will be made. There is no gas and no water.

Location of the well is 450 feet from the west line and 450 south of the north line of the southwest quarter of section 304. It is 300 feet east of the Clark No. 2-A of Kleiner and Warren.

The drill was started into the sand at 8 o'clock Saturday night and the bit pulled when the formation had been drilled 11 feet. Nine times in quick succession the bailer was run and the fluid gained in the 6 1/2-inch casing.

The well greatly increases the prospects for a major shallow pool in the vicinity. At least four other wells will be drilled in the immediate future by the operators, Charles J. Kleiner and L. A. Warren of Cisco.

Britain and France Recognize Franco Gov't

PARIS, Feb. 28 (AP)—Great Britain and France accorded full recognition to Generalissimo Francisco Franco's nationalist government of Spain Monday after a week-end in which Madrid government leaders stated an armistice was being arranged to end the civil war.

First Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain announced to the British house of commons that his government had accorded recognition to the Burgos regime. Shortly afterward the French cabinet met with Premier Eouard Daladier and President Albert Lebrun and took similar action.

The joint decision meant that only the United States and Soviet Russia among the great powers now recognize the old government of Spain as the real government.

The Madrid government's ambassador to Paris and his staff made it known they would formally vacate the embassy immediately upon official notification of the government's decision. The embassy was stripped of all records and personal belongings of its personnel, but furniture and decorations were left intact for the incoming nationalist occupants.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Thou hast put gladness in my heart. Ps. iv, 7.

I feel the earth move seaward,
I join the great march onward,
And wake with joy while living
My friend of thanksgiving.

Happiness rarely is absent; it is we that know not of its presence. The greatest felicity awaits us nothing if we know not that we are happy. There is more joy in the smallest delight whereof we are conscious than there is in the approach of the mightiest happiness that enters not into the consciousness.

Will Those Who Have Money Take a Chance?

AS Economist John Flynn recently pointed out, one of the things that is holding back business recovery is the increasing reluctance of those who have money to risk it except on sure things.

The old cycle of "three generations from shirt-sleeves to shirt-sleeves" has been interrupted by investment devices and also by an increasing timidity among moneyed people.

Perhaps the chances to make money are fewer than they used to be, and perhaps increasing taxation and other factors have loaded the dice against the man who puts up the money. But there is also an increasing timidity, an increasing feeling that "capital is entitled to a return," whereas the principle used to be that "capital is entitled to a chance to make a profit."

As Flynn so well noted, capitalism and free enterprise as a system depends just as much on the losses as it does on the gains.

and the continual wiping out of accumulated capital is just as much fuel to capitalism's gas tank as the piling up of new.

THAT is why a recent advertisement is so fascinating. Oil stock promoters used to advertise sure things. You couldn't lose. Big money was just ahead by risking a pittance, only there was practically no risk.

The SEC and other things have put an end to that. The advertisement in question is entirely frank. A gamble is being offered. The promoter wants to drill an oil well on some land he has acquired. He hasn't the money. So he offers to take in some partners who will take a chance. "If they (geologists) are wrong, I am going to wind up with a dry hole in the middle of just a cow ranch. If they are right, then we are headed for a discovery well...."

"If you are willing to take a gamble where you will either lose every dollar you put in or it will win up to very many times what you put in, I am going to ask you".... and so on.

THAT'S certainly fair enough, and refreshingly honest in comparison with 1923 "come-on" ads for oil stock. But will there be takers?

Don't forget that it was the unused money tossed into dry holes that built America, no less than the well-lauded pioneers who hit oil. Step up, gents. "you pay your money, and you takes your choice!"

Is the well-known pioneer spirit dead, the spirit of Dan'l Boone and Davy Crockett, of Bill Cody and Brigham Young, the spirit even of Steve Brodie? Hey, dollar! Come out from under that mortgage and take a chance in Texas!

That Chamberlain umbrella may not shed water but it has certainly done well as a peg for jokes.

Sweeping up after an atom-smashing machine sounds like a probable WPA project.

No enterprising law school has yet added a course on "How to Lend Money to a Judge."

Dixie Davis, his testimony almost complete in the Hines case, is now probably in the mood for night club bookings.

An Atlanta, Ga., widow wants bachelors in the state penalized with a $100 annual tax. That's still cheaper than a wife.

Hjalmar Schacht, deposed head of the German Reichsbank, is "going on a long vacation." He'll probably have a fine time, but will he wish Hitler was there?

Come on Out -- It's Just Like Spring!

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—What a given community gets out of WPA depends largely on what that community puts into it.

In effect, WPA authorities say to a local community: "You have such-and-such a number of jobless men. We are going to put them to work, paying all their wages and all administrative expense. It's up to you to tell us what jobs to put them on. We'll have them do anything you say, provided it's socially useful and doesn't duplicate work that your regular city employees would be doing anyhow."

Most of them didn't realize that when the program started late in 1935. In many cases, they cooperated only to the extent of looking hastily about for "made work." Then they began to see the possibilities.

The town fathers might, for instance, say: "Hey, we need a new fire house. Suppose these WPA people could build it? Let's try it and find out."

So WPA would build the fire house. Completed, the fire house would be an obvious civic asset; so the town fathers would think of other things their community needed but couldn't afford, and suggest them. If they thought hard and suggested wisely, they would get genuine benefits out of their WPA program—whereas the town 20 miles down the line, which hadn't bothered to work out a program or review its list of needed improvements, would get only the hastily-thought-up, poorly-considered jobs its authorities had suggested.

The locality must do more than think, however; it must also, in most construction jobs, dig down a bit into its own pocket. The guiding rule in WPA is to put to work as many men as possible with the money appropriated by Congress. That can't be done if very much of the money is spent on materials. Under the existing law, expenditures for other than labor costs must not exceed $7 per man per month.

Suppose, then, that a city wants a new city hall. The cost of such a building may run 50 per cent labor and 50 per cent materials. In such case, WPA will agree to devote a small sum to the cost of materials if the city will put up the rest—plus, in many cases, the equipment.

An indication that more and more communities are willing to make such contributions of their own funds is found in the table of expenditures by local sponsors. These expenditures have risen steadily. A couple of years ago they ran about $25,000,000 a month. The average now is $50,000,000 a month.

Major B. M. Harbo, WPA's chief engineer, is authority for the statement that WPA nowadays is getting a better and better type of project from local sponsors.

One of the most favored types of projects, both with the communities and with the WPA authorities, is highway improvement.

As for WPA's greatest mistakes, the two most spectacular "flops" were the Florida ship canal and the Passamaquoddy dam. Incompletion of these two projects, however, cannot properly be charged to WPA, but to the failure to provide funds for their completion.

The collapse of the $1,500,000 WPA dam in Wyandotte county, near Kansas City, Mo., in September, 1937 was WPA's largest disaster. Faulty calculations were blamed for the collapse, which damaged beyond repair an 800-foot strip in the center of the 1445-foot earth-filled dam.

Even in Washington, WPA's bitterest critics have no facts or figures on WPA's "flops" or mistakes. Recent congressional relief hearings failed to bring forth any such evidence, and even the Republican research department cannot authenticate one specific case.

NORMAN, Okla., Feb. 28 (AP)—Their principal purpose in coming to the university was to "make friendships," 313 of the 333 freshmen women at Oklahoma university said recently in a questionnaire.

Second most important reason was to "learn how to study" and third to "become more self-reliant."

Far down in eighth place was the husband-hunting motive, jotted down as the "make friends with men" purpose on the questionnaire.

Wildlife Resources Are Profitable Fur Income

Last week there was discussion in his column, for and fur bearers. A bird's-eye view of the national income from this source was given and a few facts about the poisonous campaigns put on in the west and just what this meant to the income of the trapper.

Today I am going to give some facts about the fur income to local trappers. People do not ordinarily see an actual money profit from our wildlife resources. Many times this income is very large, depending on the fur bearer and the section where the furs are taken. The author need not say that the fur resources of the State of Texas do not get the proper protection, and little effort is put forth to improve the conditions for building this extra money crop on the farm or ranch. Surely a million dollar industry would mean much to the State of Texas, and most Texans would do all that they could to get such a business in Texas, well, that is just exactly what we have in our fur bearers and I wish that the average landowner could realize this fact, and help build up this valuable source of income.

The counties that were included in this survey of the fur income to the trapper were the counties in my district: Brown, Coleman, Comanche, Eastland and Erath. There is a big area that cannot produce fur bearers in this six counties, and surely not much time was spent in building up this industry. But at that the total income exceeded $12,743.

Odds Against Trapper
The average trapper this year has many odds to work against, and these were big factors in reducing the total income this year. For one the prices are very low, but on the average better than those of last year. This was probably due to the lack of foreign market due to the war situation.

A very dry fall probably had much to do with the class of fur that was produced. Because of the low prices many of the trappers would discontinue their operations. This was a big factor in reducing the total number of animals caught.

Fur-Bearers, Number Taken
There were only 10 of the many fur bearers taken in this area. They were 43 bobcats, 841 ringtail

Program for Convention of District 7 of Teachers Ass'n Is Arranged

At a meeting of the executive committee of District 7 of the Texas State Teachers association at Graham final plans were made for the district convention to be held in Wichita Falls March 10 and 11.

Attending the meeting were: W. T. Walton of Ranger, president; Miss Norma Rollins of Abilene, secretary; Joe B. McNeel of Wichita Falls, program chairman; sitting with the executive committee were Holmes Webb, principal of Alta Vista school, Abilene; I. T. Gilmer, superintendent of schools at Graham; T. B. Parnell of Wichita Falls, and Oma McGabey of Ranger.

Mr. McNeel, program chairman, reported that at least four teacher groups were to hold luncheons on Saturday, March 11. The luncheon of the superintendents and principals of the district will be held at the high school cafeteria. Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools at Atlanta, Ga., and guest speaker for the convention, will address this luncheon. C. B. Breedlove of Haskell is in general charge of arrangements for the school executives' luncheon.

The home economics section will hold a luncheon in connection with the section program. Place of the luncheon and program will be the Woman's Forum, from 12 to 2.

Teachers of the art section will hold a luncheon at 12 in the Zundelwitz junior high school building. This will be followed by the regular section program. Demonstrations will be given in connection with the program. Exhibits of art, materials, and books will be on display in the building. Reservations for the luncheon should be sent to Miss Jennie Robinson, 1105 Holliday street, Wichita Falls.

The English teachers plan to have their luncheon at 12:30 at the Wichita club in the Hamilton building. Places may be reserved by writing to Miss Bonnie Workman, senior high school, Wichita Falls. A "tea" for music teachers will follow the Saturday afternoon section program which is to be held in the auditorium of Hardin junior college from 2 to 4. Dr. Wilfred C. Bain, head of the music department of North Texas State Teachers college, will be the principal speaker for this section.

Miss Ima L. Kuykendall, director of primary education of the North public schools, will be the outstanding attraction for teachers of the primary section. This group will meet at the Zundelwitz junior high school at 2.

In addition to Dr. Sutton, who is scheduled for three addresses during the convention, E. E. Conroy of the federal bureau of investigation will address the general session on Friday evening.

Other convention speakers will be George B. Wilcox of College Station, president of the Texas State Teachers association, B. B. Cobb, secretary of the Texas State Teachers association, and Hob Gray of the University of Texas.

An outstanding attraction for the Saturday morning general session will be a 20-minute program by the capella choir from North Texas State Teachers college. This group will be under the direction of Dr. Wilfred C. Bain, head of the music department of the college. Dr. Bain came to Teachers college last summer from New York university and has developed this a capella choir into one of the foremost musical organizations of the Southwest. This group sings frequently on the regular Saturday morning broadcast of North Texas State Teachers college, coming over WFAA at 11.

Equally interesting and profitable programs will be held in subject sections. Sections which will meet, and their chairmen, are: Art, Miss Jennie Roberson, supervisor of art, Wichita Falls; commercial arts, Miss Ludee Harrison, Sweetwater high school; intermediate subjects, E. H. James, elementary principal, Vernon; English, Mrs. Selma Bishop, English department, Abilene high school; foreign language, Miss Lois Rae, Electra high school; home economics, Miss Willie Mae Hines, home economics department of Abilene high school; mathematics, Carl Savage, Anson high school; music, Miss Erma Nala Voss, Wichita Falls; primary, Miss Marion Roberts, Wichita Falls; physical education, Otho Polk, Hardin-Simmons university, Abilene; science, M. M. Lisle, Wichita Falls high school; social science, Guy C. Pryor, Burk Burnett high school; speech arts, John N. Watson, Wichita Falls high school.

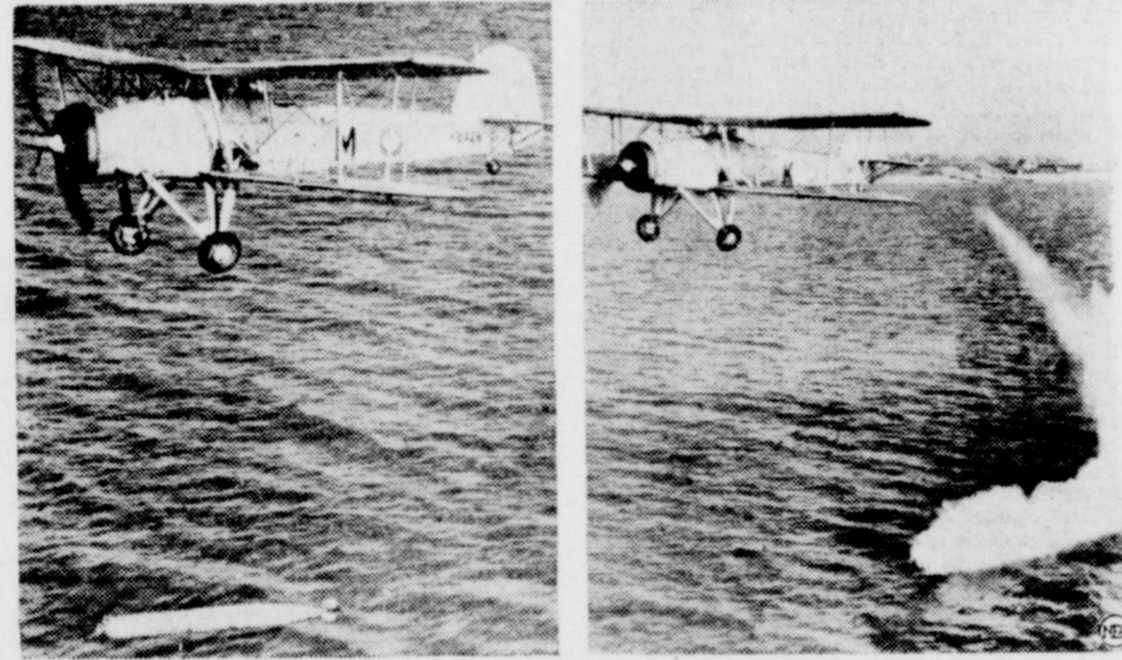

Business session of the district convention will be held at 3:30 Saturday afternoon, March 10, meeting at the district house of delegates. City and county local

Sea-Going Torpedoes Start in the Air

Modern warfare is making it tougher and tougher for sea-going men-o'-war, and here's the latest headache for admirals: Torpedoes from the air. Left, a Royal Air Force plane over Stokes Bay, England, drops a torpedo. Right, torpedo meets water, speeds toward the target. It's all practice, of course.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Discovered America In a Leaky Ship

PROBABLY no poorer ship ever won more lasting fame than the leaky, decaying Santa Maria. It was practically worn out when the merchants Martin and Vicente Pinzon obtained it for Columbus along with two open caravels in which to start out for the unknown.

The Santa Maria, known first as the Gallego, had been trading between Spain and Italy for many years when Columbus finally took command. He could not even get it properly calked. She was hardly more than three times the size of a modern ship's lifeboat, though she did have plenty of beam, enabling her to ride high rough seas.

Yet into this ancient craft Columbus crowded 52 men, together with stores and equipment and armed with two small swivel guns, bows and arrows and swords, set sail Aug. 3, 1492 for an America he did not know existed.

It was invariably a hard voyage. The ship leaked and there was little dry shelter in bad weather. Fresh water turned sour and the charts proved woefully useless. Only by the most skillful handling of his men did Columbus manage to survive at all. So it was that the Santa Maria carried him at last to a new land.

The ship is shown above on the 3-cent stamp of the beautiful U. S. Columbian series of 1893, green, enlarged. The entire issue comprises 16 values tracing the whole story of the Columbus adventure in the new world.

Anyhow, Conscience Doesn't Bother Him

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Feb. 28 (AP). The moral of this is that even for contributors to the "conscience fund" railroads have no cut rates.

A Salem, Ore., business man wrote to R. M. Reed, Cheyenne agent for the Colorado & Southern line that 15 years ago he was stranded in Cheyenne and "hopped a freight" to get home. His conscience was bothering him, he said, and if the agent would let him know the price of a train fare from Denver to Cheyenne, the distance he rode, he would send a check.

He added that he thought he should get half price since it was a freight train.

Reed replied that the cheapest fare was $2.15, in a coach, and he had no authority to make a reduction. Back came the check for $2.14.

Wild Life---

eral interesting facts brought out: There were about two and one-half times as many opossums taken as skunks, but at this great odd the skunk brought three times as much money.

Another odd fact was that there were sold to one fur dealer 59 wolves. These were taken in Callahan county and in the edge of adjoining counties. The price was low and from this one source the total value was only $35.40. Skunks brought the highest total income, this being about $9,981, about two-thirds of the total income.

This survey also pointed out several species that really need rigid protection and laws to close the season for a few years to build up the populations. Badger, mink and coons are very valuable and the report shows that some of these were caught where the populations were very low. A few mink were marketed in sections where that species had not been caught for six years. This shows that this species wants to come back if given proper attention. The coon population is getting low and to save this species, something must be done to protect it.

SERIAL STORY

WOMEN WANT BEAUTY!

BY LOUISE HOLMES
COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

SUSIE LAMBERT—She served waffles and dreamed of being beautiful.

DICK TREMAINE—He liked Susie's waffles but he couldn't see Susie.

JEFF BOWMAN—His chief concern was to make Susie as beautiful as she wanted to be.

Yesterday, Jeff, without knowing it, is in love with Susie and Susie, now beautiful, is thinking only of Dick Tremaine, the man she once loved.

CHAPTER XX

The days hurried by. On Sunday, Susie's picture, together with articles of clothing and allure, filled one page of the paper. She was carefully posed, giving the impression of smartness without sophistication, glamor without conscious artistry. She was pointed out in restaurants and on the street, she was interviewed and talked about.

She talked sweetly with patrons of the store, she smiled until her face felt like a stiff mask, she posed and displayed her finery and allowed herself to be scrutinized until a little of the first rapture wore off. She assured hundreds of doubters that she was the fact, dowdy Susie first pictured.

A few days before Christmas, in the interest of publicity, to keep it alive as long as possible, John Harker gave an exclusive little party. He took Susie, Edna and Jeff to the Ambassador for dinner. He ordered a prominent table and flowers, he let it be known that Suzanne, product of Harker's, was to be present in the Pump Room. Not entirely in sympathy with the scheme, he acted on the advice of Clifford Kane. Jeff thoroughly disapproved of the plan and Edna was only mildly in accordance.

"It won't hurt her," she told Jeff when he growled about Susie having been exploited enough and then some. "We can protect her from unpleasant notices."
Somewhat comforted by this view, Jeff called for Susie. In preparation for the dinner she had gone through practically the same ritual as on the day of her debut. Jeff, waiting for her in the hotel lobby, accustomed to the change in her, sucked in his breath when Susie, late from the waffle irons, was a dazzling revelation of the triumph of man over matter.

She had not been told that the dinner was a stunt. She was unaffectedly delighted to be stepping into Chicago night life. Arriving at the Pump Room, head waiter bowing himself double, subordinates scurrying about, she was charmed with the white leather divans, the extravagant crystal chandeliers, the fashionable well-bred sophistication.

And the Pump Room patrons were charmed with Suzanne. She stood in the doorway, a quaint little figure, so out-dated that she was the last word. Hair piled high on top of her head in fat, finger curls, lavish earrings on her small, uncovered ears. Her gown was a sensation in simplicity, shining satin with draped shoulders.

She stood beside Jeff, unaware that neck craned, that an excited murmur arose. If Susie's features were not perfect, mouth too wide, nose too impudent, no one in the crowded dining room knew it. The Harker people had leaned over backward in their make-the-most-of-yourself campaign and Susie was the living proof of their incredible efficiency.

The were ushered to an orchid-banked table, the master of ceremonies bowing from his platform, the orchestra beating out a fan-fare. Susie's silver sandals peeped in and out from beneath the tulle, taffeta whispered, she walked with the confident grace of healthy, exuberant youth.

Edna and Jeff did their best to appear natural, unconscious of the stares and curious comments. John Harker was silent and dignified. He didn't like it—didn't like it at all. In some vague way he felt his store was cheapened by this particular display of its

WOMEN WANT BEAUTY!

Jeff murmured to his mother, "I feel like a monkey in a cage. Wouldn't surprise me if they offered me peanuts."

She laughed understandingly. "It's all right. Watch Susie—she's so cute about it all."

It was really Susie who saved the situation. Utterly herself, she placed the party on an ordinary basis. The fact that one of the friends had recently dug her from the desolate ignominy of unloveliness and set her feet on the primrose path of beauty, she ignored.

It was after the fish course that Jeff said in a low tone to Susie, "A friend of yours is sitting directly behind you."

"Yes!" Susie moved her eyes sidewise, without turning her head. "Who is it?"

"Dick Tremaine—didn't you say he was a friend of yours at the University?"

Susie nodded. She neither paled nor caught her breath. In a way she was not at all surprised. It was fate that she and Dick should meet again. It was quite natural that he should return to Chicago for the holidays. Why, then, not the Pump Room?

Although Susie had neither gasped nor fallen in a faint she no longer wanted her food. It took considerable self-control to keep from turning around in her chair. Dick sat just behind her. Whom was he with? Had he noticed her? Of course he wouldn't recognize her. She hoped he had seen none of the early advertisements in which her identity was disclosed.

"Shall we dance, Jeff?" she asked, unable longer to sit still.

Jeff went to stand behind her chair. "No sooner said than perpetrated," he said.

Susie arose in a swirl of tulle. Rising, she faced the table behind her where four young men dined together. Dick sat at the right, his blond head as shining, the set of his shoulders as unbelievably gorgeous as of old. Susie found herself looking into his admiring eyes. They were alert eyes, flattered, yet slightly long eyes that did something remarkable in the way of provoking interest.

Jeff said, "Hi, Dick," and Dick absent-mindedly returned, "Hi, old man." If Susie and Jeff had not gone to the dance floor they might have heard him say to a companion, "Who is she—the girl with Jeff Bowman?"

His friend replied, "Some new beauty busily knocking the eye out of Chicago," which statement proved that the male citizenry of the city had not been following Susie's exploits as religiously as had their mothers and sisters.

While they danced Jeff mentally put two and two together. The answer four, came like a shot. With the answer his arm tightened possessively around Susie. He felt somewhat dizzied by her closeness, by the fragrance of her hair, the feel of her hand in his.

"It's Dick Tremaine, isn't it?" he blurted out suddenly. When her lashes fluttered up inquiringly he added, "I mean—he's the fellow

A Million Dollars Is Going Begging

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 28 (AP). There is an estimated million dollars in possession of the Pacific Gas and Electric company that shortly will go begging for lack of people to claim it.

The money represents one-sixth of $6,000,000 impounded during a rate dispute which the courts have ordered rebated to gas consumers. Public utility experts say that in such cases about this proportion of impounded funds cannot be returned, owing to consumers' having died or moved without forwarding addresses.

Under existing law, several officials assert, the money will revert to the company.

labor union's transgression. This decision, coupled with others handed down by the court, will undoubtedly establish faith in the sanctity and high character of the American democratic institution. It will, of course, establish faith in the supreme court as the guardian of American political principles. But the big fact involved in these decisions is that the inherent ability of the American people as a democracy to govern themselves sanely and fairly to all elements has been re-established after a time of doubt and indecision. They prove again that there will eventually and inevitably rise to government in this land those elements of mind and character which insure recognition and preservation of those principles which are best in our national experience.

Tax on Oil in This Area Boosted by Output Drop

DALLAS, Feb. 26 (Sp.)—Reduced oil production, coupled with increased ad valorem tax levies, boosted the average tax per barrel of oil produced in the west central Texas districts last year to 11.1 cents, an increase of 0.2 cents per barrel over the already higher than average rate prevailing in 1937, according to a regional oil tax survey recently completed by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas association.

Nine counties in west central Texas contributed last year in state and local taxes $678,380 on oil production aggregating 6,108,047 barrels. While oil production declined nearly 625,000 barrels last year, tax levies increased more than $58,000.

Loss of markets to other states, particularly Illinois where the tax levied on oil producers is less than two cents per barrel, caused a 7 per cent decline in Texas oil production last year. This, in combination with increased ad valorem tax levies, boosted the average oil tax in Texas to 9.3 cents per barrel.

West central Texas oil operators contributed heavily to the increase in Texas oil taxes last year and at the same time sustained a substantial share of the loss in production of Texas oil caused by competitive factors, in which taxes are proving a serious handicap to oil operators in this section of the state.

As it is, west central Texas oil operators are now paying a substantially higher oil tax rate per barrel of production than the average for the state, despite the fact that 96 per cent of the producing wells in this region are in the high-cost stripper class. Last year, the daily average production from more than 8,400 wells was only two barrels per well.

Her Peach Sapling Proved Very Robust

ONTARIO, Calif., Feb. 26 (P)—In 1932 Mrs. C. C. Barnes bought and planted what she thought was an ordinary peach sapling. She was amazed when, in an off season, it budded well ahead of schedule and bore a crop of fruit. Realizing she "had something," Mrs. Barnes has taken and cultivated saplings from the original tree with conspicuous success in getting early and heavy crops. Many acres now planted with offsprings of the freak specimen.

adequate participation in the New York World's fair.

Pointing out that the 45th legislature created the Texas World's Fair commission to arrange exhibits at the fair, Governor O'Daniel said that "recently, at my request, representative business and industrial leaders met with Lieut. Gov. Coke Stevenson and me to discuss the project. At this meeting considerable sums were pledged and I have since received numerous assurances that others will respond with substantial contributions. We are endeavoring to raise $250,000 to present and maintain an exhibit at the World's fair which will insure representation commensurate with the greatness of our state."

Pure food and drug agents report that while mineral oil is sometimes used to adulterate butter the practice is not widespread.

Farmers Urged to Re-Apply For Loans From FSA

Many farmers who were unable to obtain loans from the Farm Security administration earlier in the year can now be served, and are urged to renew their applications at FSA's local offices.

It is announced that additional office and field help has been received, in order to push loans through promptly, and that assurance has been given by national headquarters that money will be available for every eligible farm family.

A statement has been received from C. M. Evans, regional director, that loans will be made covering a wide range, from a one-team setup in the eastern portion of the state to the large operator in the west who may need several thousand dollars to lease grass land or to stock it.

Loans will be made to those who are unable to get adequate financing elsewhere, but only when they have or can get enough land to provide a reasonable living. Before a loan is made, a sound plan of farm and home management must be worked out through which the family will be able to grow most of its food and feed at home, and repay the loan over a period of one to five years.

Evans said that many farmers would still be able to obtain land this year if they could get livestock and equipment, who otherwise would be in desperate circumstances. He urged them to apply or renew their application promptly at the FSA office in this county, if they know of land they can rent. Many other farmers, he said, are slipping back each year because of insufficient land, livestock or equipment, when they could get upon a paying basis through FSA aid.

Hearing on Ranger Lake Injunction

RANGER, Feb. 26 (Sp.)—L. R. Pearson, attorney for the City of Ranger, J. J. Kelly, water commissioner, and E. T. Eubank, city secretary, appeared in Austin Monday at an injunction hearing in district court, by which the City of Strawn is attempting to prevent Ranger from building a lake for a new city water supply.

A permit to impound water in a lake to cover approximately 200 acres was obtained from the state board of water engineers at Austin last fall, and after the permit was granted, Strawn sought to prevent building the dam and lake by injunction.

The lake, if built, would furnish Ranger a large and clean water supply, and would employ a large number of men for a period of approximately two years, WPA officials estimating that approximately 450 men would be used on the job. Most of the expenses Evans said that many farmers would still be able to obtain land

Hearings on Tax Proposals to End Wednesday

AUSTIN, Feb. 26 (P)—Two powerful committees completed preparations Monday to shove a proposal for many millions in new taxes onto the house floor early next week.

The house committee voted to conclude hearings Wednesday on the wide variety of taxes advanced to finance substantially bigger old age pensions.

They then will send the conflicting proposals to a subcommittee which will be instructed to adopt a tax plan and recommend it in the form of a constitutional amendment by next Monday. The committee will be asked to act at that time on the sub-group proposal.

The revenue and taxation and constitutional amendments committees already have listened to long discussions of Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel's 1.6 per cent general transactions tax and a retail sales tax. They will conduct hearings today and Wednesday, with night sessions if necessary, on an income tax and an increase in natural resources levies.

New taxes constitute the chief issue before the 120-day biennial legislative session, already 49 days old.

Rep. A. S. Broadfoot of Bonham moved that the committee immediately recommend the governor's transactions tax by its motion was blocked by minority rules.

The resolution outlining the procedure to be followed since "tax base for social security financing should be a very broad one, such as a net income, gross income, gross receipts, transactions or sales or service tax, not exceeding one-third in natural resources taxes." The subcommittee will be asked to select and combine the most attractive features of the numerous tax plans.
