PARADE, GAME POSTPONED UNTIL MONDAY

Laymen's Rally at First Christian Church Today

GENERAL RAIN COMED IN CO AREA

Cut Attendance Football Games, Poppy Sales

General rains covering the area in a benevolent fall Friday night and Saturday, bringing to an end the drought which has delayed grain planting in the area.

Precipitation amounting to approximately an inch fell in the area, and farmers are pleased over the long-awaited fall rains, and will be able to proceed with grain planting, and many drills are in the fields.

Rain has already been reported in the area, but due to moisture, it was unable to get into football games, and will result in postponement of many of the games in Cisco.

Poppy day sales, which would have totaled thousands of dollars for the area, will probably suffer due to the lack of people on the streets and walks where the poppy usually are most abundant.

ICKES AIMS CRITICISM AT TEXAS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Secretary Ickes asserted today national interests and defense requirements necessitated federal legislation to prevent waste in oil and gas production, especially since the states had failed to establish adequate safeguards.

He told the house oil committee that a bill he and President Roosevelt had recommended would extend the cooperation between state and federal governments in production control regulation, but would not lead to a harmful usurpation of state authority by the federal government.

He added, however, that if there arose a dispute between a state agency and the interior department over what constituted waste, "the federal authority would prevail."

Expressing the wish that he could say that states had done "a complete job of preventing waste" and that the federal government need not be concerned with that situation, Ickes told the committee.

Program Is One of Series of Gatherings of Unusual Character

One hundred or more laymen of the Christian church were to gather in Cisco today for one of a series of unusual rallies at the First Christian church. Laymen for half a score of churches in the 11th district will be here for a program of spontaneous character, looking toward the district convention, which meets in Cisco on November 24.

Ministers of the churches take a back seat at these rallies, said the Rev. Clark W. Lambert, pastor of the host church. The men gather for informal talks of an inspirational nature and to plan participation in the more formal programs of the church.

A luncheon will be served at 5:30 this afternoon, the menu to consist of sandwiches brought by visitors and Cisco church members and coffee furnished by the Cisco church. Separate meetings for men and women will follow the luncheon and the day's program will conclude with the evening worship at the church.

Interested Audience Sees Mondro

A good audience practically filled the main floor of the high school auditorium Friday night and enjoyed the acts of Magician Mondro, who rendered splendid entertainment and made his audience wonder just how his magic was executed.

The entire performance was a rare treat to the juveniles, some of whom the magician called to his aid in "doing his tricks," and the adult audience gave him the closest attention and wondered how it was done.

That Mondro is considered away up in his profession was evidenced by the presence to King Felton, well known in Cisco, and Dr. Gaffney, of El Paso, both eminent magicians, who came to be entertained and learn by their fellow's mysteries.

The entertainment was sponsored by the Band Parents club, and netted that body a neat sum.

Chairman of Hot Lunch Makes Appeal For Aid

C. J. Kliefer, chairman of the school lunch project, gives a comprehensive outline for feeding under-privileged school pupils, and tells what is needed to operate the project for the entire school period. Mr. Kleiner points out that these meals to school children cannot be sold, even to those able to pay, as the terms of the donation from the federal government specifies that all meals must be free when any part is furnished by the government. He suggests, to overcome this inhibition, those able to do so should make a donation to supplement a fund sufficient to carry through the project.

C. O. Pass, Long-Time Cisco Resident, Dies At Home Here

CHAPMAN DIES LATE SATURDAY

BULLETIN
Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Lubbock, and services and interment will be at Cisco Monday afternoon at 2:30. Burial will be at Oakwood cemetery here.

Word was received in Cisco just before press time that Weldon Chapman, former Cisco football coach, died at the West Texas hospital in Lubbock, following a serious illness.

Chapman, who was coach of the Lubbock Weslerner, and who gained fame as mentor of the Cisco Lobos from 1923 to 1932, died about five o'clock, and at press time, no funeral arrangements had been made.

Intermittently Ill at Home for Past Nine Years

C. O. Pass, 49, long-time resident of Cisco, who has been ill intermittently for the past nine years, died at his home Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Mr. Pass' death followed a serious illness of seven months.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter, Martha Jo, and three brothers, D. A. Pass of Midland, H. N. Pass of Denton and Tallis Pass of Dealing Louisiana.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 3:30 at the First Presbyterian church, with Dr. Gary L. Smith, assisted by Rev. M. H. Appiewhite, of Sweetwater, officiating. Neil Lane Funeral home is in charge of arrangements. Burial will be in Oakwood cemetery.

Active pall bearer for the services are: A. D. Anderson, F. E. Shepard, Joe Clements, B. A. Butler, H. R. Garrett and George Boyd.

Mr. Pass was born August 4, 1890, at Taskwood, Arkansas, where he lived until 1900, at which time he came to Cisco with his family to make his home. On September 18, 1916, he was married to Miss Bessie James Eppler. To this union was born a son, Omar, Jr., who died September 23, 1920, and a daughter, Martha Jo, 17.

Immediately after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Pass moved to Arizona to make their home. After five years in Arizona, they returned to Cisco, where Mr. Pass was the manager of the C. O. Pass Chevrolet company for the following three years. During this time, and until 1936, he served as city fire chief, succeeding the late Bob Bettis.

Until the time of his death, Mr. Pass was associated with the A. G. Motor company here.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Ayers of Woodson were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam B. King.

CONVENTION OF BAPTISTS AT SANTONE

According to governmental statistics representatives of the largest church in the world with the exception of the Catholic will gather in San Antonio, Texas, this week for the fifty-fourth Baptist General convention of Texas. Representatives of 700,000 white Baptists in Texas will gather to hear reports of the work done in 1939 and make plans for 1940.

It is significant that Baptists, who have played such an important part in Texas history, should gather for their meeting in the historic city of San Antonio.

Indications point to the reaching of the million dollar objective of the co-operative program.

Another significant thing about the meeting in San Antonio is the world's largest educational building, just recently completed of the First Baptist church of that city.

The Rev. Judson Prince, pastor of the local First Baptist church, and Mrs. Prince will leave early Monday to be on hand for the pastors and layman conference held the first two days of the convention proper, and Mrs. Prince will attend the Women's Missionary Union auxiliary, held prior to the convention proper.

The convention proper opens Tuesday evening. Dr. R. C. Campbell is the executive secretary and Dr. J. Howard Williams, pastor of the First Baptist church, Amarillo, is president of the convention.

NO PAPER MONDAY
In observance of Armistice day, there will be no Cisco Daily Press published Monday, November 13.

PARADE TO BE AT 1:30; GAME AT 2:30

Rains Cut Football Game Attendance and Poppy Sales

Persistent cold rains that promised to cut attendance at both the parade and game caused the postponement of the Ranger-Cisco football tilt and the Armistice day parade, originally scheduled for Saturday. The game and parade will be held Monday, according to announcements made yesterday by O. L. Stamey, principal of the high school, and Ed Brown, president of the Junior chamber of commerce.

Ed Brown, who is in charge of arrangements for the parade, announced that original plans for the Saturday parade will be carried out Monday, with the exception that the parade will start at 1:30 on Monday, instead of 1 o'clock, as planned for the Saturday celebration. All participants are urged to be present by 1 o'clock at 11th street and D avenue, where the parade will form, and then march down D avenue, and will end at the high school stadium.

According to O. L. Stamey, the kick-off of the football game will be at 2:30, and with weather condition favorable, a near-capacity crowd is expected at the tilt.

This announcement of postponement was welcomed by nearly all of the citizens of Cisco, for practically all of the business houses will be closed on Monday, instead of Saturday, which will make for better attendance at the game, and will not interfere with the regular Saturday trade anticipated by the local merchants.

John Heilscher Dies On Friday

John Heilscher, 73, of the Lutheran community, died at his home five miles south of town Friday night at 8 o'clock, following a lengthy illness.

Mr. Heilscher, who was born in Germany October 3, 1866, is survived by his wife and several children.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Lutheran church. Neil Lane Funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

America Still Has Its Promises

THIRTY years ago, Herbert Croly wrote a book which he called "The Promise of American Life." Croly couldn't foresee such events as the First World war and its hangover, the 1929 depression and the Second World war. But even in that era, dimmed now by three great catastrophes, the author found the need not only for the preservation of democracy, but for conscious political effort directed toward such salvation.

Betting Odds Based on Staying Power Give Allies 9-5 Edge in New World War

By MORGAN M. BEATTY AP Feature Service Writer WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—If staying power makes a winner in modern warfare, then it's beginning to look as if the score is about 9 to 5 in favor of the allies.

Table with 3 columns: Item, Perf., Total. Rows include Food Supply, Raw Materials, Financial Assets, Industrial Capacity, Military Strength, Organization for war.

Germany has reserves of 8,600,000 tons of grain, more than a year's supply. On the other hand, the America's and the British and French empires normally supply 5,000,000 tons of German's food deficiency.

Republic has been generally recognized as one of the foremost organs of liberal thinking. It is read by people with a wide variety of political philosophies not because they happen to agree with everything its writers say but because here, at least, are presented problems that must be dealt with.

ON its twenty-fifth anniversary, The New Republic takes time out to cast a mirror back to the First World war and to project on the future the image that it finds, using today only as a focal point.

War always blocks a clear view of the future. There is a tendency not to look too far ahead, not only because everything is confusing but because there is some doubt whether there will ever be a future.

If there is any one thing in which all of the writers have faith, it is the theory that modern society needs intense planning. Vast enterprises are accepted as part of the American system.

THE New Deal has planned, and you like it or you don't. But even if you don't, that will scarcely upset your faith in the necessity for an integrated American life.

You can collect $500 if you capture a spy in the United States—somewhat less than a good-sized bank night pot.

to one in first line planes) balances the superiority of the French artillery. The British army is hardly a factor until a long training period has elapsed.

ORGANIZATION FOR WAR—Here's where the German's shine. The nazis had a six year head start on the allies. They have been practicing a rigid regimentation in economics and industry ever since Hitler came to power in 1933.

INDUSTRIAL CAPACITY—Until the United States lifted the arms embargo, Germany had the advantage here. Neither France nor Great Britain could match her armaments output.

MILITARY STRENGTH—Here the two powers will match up fairly evenly for some time to come, due to Germany's head start, in the opinion of most experts. The superior German air fleet (perhaps one and one-half the lease to another driller who would develop the lease with a probability of valuable remuneration in royalties.

I have believed that some day, some land owner would bring this issue to the attention of the courts who would justify the contention I have held.

This question was decided by the second court of appeals Friday in reversing and remanding a Gray county case of Clarence Powell vs. the Danciger Oil and Refining Co. for damages as a result of the firm's refusal to drill more than one well on a tract.

Associate Justice Brown, in his opinion concurred in by the justices of the appeals court, said: "The firm was under an implied contract to drill as many wells as would be reasonably necessary for full development of the lease."

been permitted to determine if a reasonable effort was made to develop the lease."

Another decision, handed down by the third court of civil appeals, sustained a verdict for damages to lease rights of a tire company to maintain a large tire sign on a 60-acre tract for which lease rights had been obtained.

Probably you nor I do not concur in the court's decision as to the attractiveness of the presence of obstructive signboards along the highways, though on private property, but we are bound to acquiesce in the soundness and equity of the opinion.

As to the first decision there may be many victims of the lease speculator in west Texas, who have leased their lands with the expectancy of getting a well, only to learn that the leasehold is simply held for the purpose of securing a monopoly of the mineral rights, to be developed only when the lease holder gets good and ready.

of the law, is one most people will think justifiable, and in line with the best interest of society, was that of the pardon board of my native state—Alabama—when the board granted freedom to a fugitive from the Alabama state prison, Talmadge Baker, under life sentence for murder of a Gadsden merchant 18 years ago, when a boy of 17. Talmadge's death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

While serving his life sentence he escaped, went to Kansas City, where he secured work and lived an upright life while a fugitive.

Prisons, primarily, are for the reformation of criminals. Within the law the pardon board could have returned Talmadge to prison, where doubtless he would have become a graduate criminal.

that assurance and that I must stress the need for legislation which will assure adequate protection against avoidable waste of the oil resources of our nation."

His criticism of Texas arose during the questioning by Woiwerton about the possibility that the administration might be more interested in economic waste and prices than physical waste.

Ickes remarked that the action of Texas in shutting down its oil wells for two weeks last August after a major company started a short-lived price cut was bad procedure. Such action, he said, tended to confuse the issues and beyond the interior department's efforts to reduce actual waste.

BRUCE CATTON'S AMERICAN ROUNDUP

BY BRUCE CATTON NEA Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON.—In a scrub-timbered tract on the banks of the Little Black river in Butler county, Missouri, there is a "lost colony" of four or five hundred people who are, collectively, a headache to their neighbors, an unsolved puzzle to the Department of Agriculture and an active worry to one of the C. I. O.'s most energetic unions.

This colony is made up of the remnants of the famous "hunger march" that drew headlines in southeastern Missouri last winter.

That march to nowhere was broken up, or pertered out, after it briefly focused attention on the plight of the dispossessed sharecropper and tenant farmer.

EX-PREACHER LED MARCH THE march had been pretty largely organized by the Rev. Owen H. Whitfield, Negro who gave up the pulpit for a career as organizer for the United Cannery, Agricultural, Packing and Allied Workers of the C. I. O.

Whitfield had had to leave the scene in haste before the march broke up; but last spring he raised a little money in St. Louis, went unobtrusively down to Butler county, and made a down payment on a 93-acre tract of land.

On this tract the 100 families camped out sometime in June. They have been there ever since—living in tents, log huts and makeshift shacks. They haven't land enough to do any farming, and they haven't the equipment anyway.

They haven't any money, except for a few who managed to get jobs during the cotton picking season. They have lived, according to reports to the cannery union headquarters here, almost solely on corn grits, meal and beans furnished by the Commodities Corporation. Local authorities don't seem to care, but they can't afford to keep on relief, pointing out that wanderers came from parts of the state anyway.

NO AUTHORITY TO PROVIDE LAND AGRICULTURE'S Farm Administration doesn't know what to do with them, except to stop grants, but that's just to-day stopgap. It would settle the colonists on some place, but it no longer has the authority to buy land for purpose.

If an individual can't get ground or get on as a tenant will enable him to get on, but these people can't get on, partly because land grants, partly because no one in Missouri and partly because none of them can furnish a recommendation from his last landlord.

The cannery union is pretty too, because it finds it responsible for the upkeep of odd human beings who go on supporting them.

Donald Henderson, head union, says the whole thing is symptomatic of the in which the steady shift from cropping and tenancy to labor is creating in the south. "Just keeping these people starving doesn't solve the problem," he says.

"There ought to be new legislation. First, there should be guarantees that sharecroppers and tenants get their share of benefit checks.

"There ought to be a program given to landowners who pay their help an adequate minimum wage.

"And—since work in the fields is bound to be scarce there must be more relief for workers in the off

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY

SERIAL STORY
JOAN OF ARKANSAS
BY JERRY BRONDFIELD

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JOAN JOHNSON—a mysterious co-ed, glamor girl of the Tech campus.
KEITH RHODES—Tech's star halfback, headed for All-America honors.
DAN WEBBER—the blocking back who clears Keith's way; a steady, industrious student.

YESTERDAY: Joan's plan to burn the hideout works. She breaks a jar of coal-oil, sets it afire. In the confusion she reaches Sam's gun, covers Big Ed Dan, freed, takes care of Sam as he hurries into the house. Dan herds the two kidnapers into the car, orders Joan to drive to town.

From every direction, people streamed toward the great Tech stadium. It was like a pilgrimage, with the huge concrete horseshoe as their mecca.
Tommy Peters, leaning upon his megaphone, stared up at the stands. "They'll hit 75,000 sure today," he remarked to an assistant.

Suddenly his eyes froze on a spot six or seven rows above him. There sat Rocco Petrone! Tommy dropped his megaphone. "Take over till I get back!" he yelled, and dashed for the Tech dressing rooms.

There was still 20 minutes before the kickoff. It was a bare chance, but Rocco Petrone might be able to lead them to Joan and Dan. Tommy swore excitedly as he raced to tell Bill Slocum.
He raced across the running track. Just as he approached the gate on the other side of the field he almost stumbled from shock.

Dan Webber and Joan Johnson, escorted by three policemen, were being rushed into the stadium.
Tommy shrieked and dashed toward them.
"No time for talk now," Dan howled happily. "Gotta get dressed."

He hurried toward the tunnel leading to the dressing rooms, suddenly stopped and ran back to Joan. He grasped her shoulders, his eyes sparkling.
"This'll have to do until later," he said as he kissed her and dashed away.

Tommy howled and threw his arms around Joan. He shrieked in her ear but she hardly noticed. Her eyes swam with happiness as she watched Dan disappear into the tunnel.
"Hey, snap out of it . . . wake up!" Tommy pleaded. "What . . . Where . . . C'mon, tell me something or I'll pass out!"

She told him as much as she could in a rush of words. It didn't occur to her that she ought to be resting now. This was no time for coyness. She'd call her father just as soon as she could get to a phone.
Tommy stopped short. "Tell me . . . was there a guy named Rocco . . . ?"
"Rocco?" she echoed. "Yes, but how did you . . . ?"
"Wait here," he ordered. "Don't cross the field yet!"

Never had there been such a scene in the Tech dressing room. Tears actually flooded Bill Slocum's eyes as he smothered Dan in his arms. Joe Donchek danced around in his stocking feet and howled in native Slav. They all acted like a bunch of Comanches, hurling helmets into the air in their delirium.
It took Dan just one minute to convince Slocum he was strong enough to play. Slocum slapped him on the back and shoved him toward his locker.
Keith came over and embraced him. "Gee, it's swell to have you back, Danny boy!"
"Thanks, pal. We're gonna take these guys, aren't we? Any new stuff?"
"Very little," Keith informed him. "We'll steer you on one new formation . . . and you know all the old stuff."

Dan felt like telling him that wasn't all he knew, but let Keith find out for himself, he figured.
The public address system had broken the news about Dan and Joan, and when the Tech squad raced onto the field, a bedlam of sound arose.
"Get yourself warmed up good," Johnny White advised. "You're probably a little soft and this is gonna be murder."
He wasn't far from right. Barney Hughes won the toss and chose to kick. The referee blew the whistle, the Tech line moved forward, and Tony Manganio sent the ball down to the five.

There was a roar as Hal Forrest took it, moved in behind his interference and started up field under a full head of steam. There was a flash of maroon as Joe Donchek, chortling like a kid with a new toy, smashed in from the side and brought him down on the 14.
Joe got up chattering furiously. "Okay, Danny boy . . . welcome home . . . that one was for you . . . let's get 'em . . . let's get 'em, Danny boy."
The rest of them took up the cue as they lined up. Dan almost had to fight to keep the tears back. He knew how they felt.

Pitt went into a single wing to the right. The Tech line shifted out with them. Dan nosed up just behind his tackle when the ball was snapped, and was right in his diagnosis. They thundered toward an opening but Dan knifed through and dropped the runner on the line of scrimmage.
Marty Gallagher helped Dan to close, plugging gaps desperately. The Panthers bruted their way down to the Tech 30. First and 10. The Pitt quarter took the ball from the center . . . spun. Hank came. There was to be a defense. They had to stop Forrest and McCarroll and wait for a break of their own.

"No use springing much till we get a real opportunity," Tommy panted at their first time out . . . "Just hold 'em . . . make 'em punt on third down if we can . . . we can't take this pounding long!"
But the mighty Pitt forward wall slowly pushed them back. Dan and Tony Manganio played up close, plugging gaps desperately. The Panthers bruted their way down to the Tech 30. First and 10. The Pitt quarter took the ball from the center . . . spun. Hank came. There was to be a defense. They had to stop For-fully. Hal Forrest took the ball from the spinning quarterback and sailed through the hole for five yards.

Forrest pounded for two more before Dan and Marty rangled him.

Pitt gave it to McCarroll on the deep reverse and the into the mass... reached for the ball. It lacked two inches of being a touchdown.

Tony Mangano embraced Dan... kissed him in Latin emotion, but they weren't out of danger yet.

He barely got it away, but the kick was short, McCarroll taking it on the Tech 39. He almost got loose, but Barney Hughes brought him down with a desperate lunge on the 18.

Forrest... Forrest... McCarroll... smash... smash... crushing power plays over center.

And Dan Webber, feeling on his feet, plugging the gaps until he no longer felt pain, but just a dull, throbbing ache all over his body.

First and goal to go on the eight. Eight short yards packed with full misery and punishment.

Hal Forrest wasn't human. He hurried over tackle, stepped on his own interference, driving his 200 pounds with the speed and force of a projectile.

Marty Gallagher stopped him once after being dragged for two yards. A minute to go.

Forrest again... spinning like a top and crashing through a slight opening between center and guard. Dan saw him coming, smashed aside the Pitt guard who had slipped through to check him and poured his tired body into the hole.

Stopped again... but how much longer could they stand it? Third and four, McCarroll this time... almost as bad...

Good for a yard. The Tech guards' hands and knees raged up and down, slapping, pleading.

Still fourth and four. But the great Hal Forrest had been stopped cold. Pitt called for a place kick.

The stands screamed a mighty crescendo... "Block it! Block that kick... block that kick!"

As if they had to be told, Barney Hughes poised himself for a quick dash. Tony Mangano looked for a spot he could knife through the line.

McCarroll was kicking. The ball came back to the man holding. McCarroll stepped forward... right foot meeting the ball squarely... Marty Gallagher smashed through, leaped high... the ball grazed his fingers and continued on its way. It split the crossbar for three points just as the gun ended the half.

Dan kept his hand hidden during the intermission so its swollen condition would go unnoticed. They sat around and sucked on lemons as Bill Slocum talked softly, encouragingly.

They almost dreaded going back on the field. It would only be a repetition of the first half... and it was.

Grimly, blindly they fought off the power that was Pitt. If only they could get the ball in decent offensive territory. Ten minutes to go.

And then Dan Webber, hurtling in to stop what looked like a weak-side reverse, lunged through the air and deflected a shovel pass. The ball popped into the clear. Joe Doncheek smothered it to his chest on the Pitt 45.

"Now or never," Johnny White painted. "It's yours, Keith... yours on old 62... How 'bout it, gang?"

Two minutes to go. It was Keith Rhodes on a reverse. Joe Doncheek and Dan Webber led the way. Joe hit the end with his last explosive gesture. The end out of the way, as Keith and Dan swept by... wide.

Barney Hughes had gone through, checked the Pitt linebacker on that side of the line. They were through the secondary... down to the 30... the 20.

Hal Forrest and another member of the Pitt last line of defense tore across the field... headed to cut Keith off at about the 12. But they ran too close together. "Cut to the right!" Dan yelled.

And then he flung his body forward in a long roll block. He caught them both at the same time... smashed them to the turf. Blackness... deep and welcome, engulfed him, but not before he heard the tremendous roar which told him Keith had crossed the goal.

His arm bandaged from the elbow down and smelling from rubbing liniment, Dan found Joan waiting for him outside the dressing room.

Then he noticed she was with someone... a tall, well-dressed man whose arm she clutched possessively.

"Dan... this is my father."

thorough investigation of the probable cost to this community in carrying this project through for a series of weeks, which will be shown in this article. Said cost based upon the experience, and, as near as possible, the facts obtained from the records of the last years' project. Let us bear in mind first, that the federal government is furnishing an equal share of the burden, same furnished in commodities, as many of you are familiar, and not in moneys.

"In this article we are dealing with the cost of the meals only, derived from donations and contributions by our citizenship. Your committee has deemed it folly to attempt to open the lunch counter without ample funds to carry it through for a period of twelve or sixteen weeks.

"Great game, young man," J. G. boomed as he took Dan's hand. "Great, I say... wonderful the way you looked over my daughter, too, these last few days... won't forget it... You've got to have dinner with us tonight... just got to."

Dan grinned. "I should be doing all the thanking for what Joan did for me... but the dinner date sounds swell. See you at the hotel after I get back to the house and change clothes."

It took him a half hour to fight his way through the wild jam-boree at the Gamma house. They almost tore him apart... and might have had he not held up his bandaged hand in self-defense.

He was almost dressed when he found the letter on his desk. It was from Acme Pottery Products. About his job, perhaps. He tore it open eagerly, scanned it rapidly.

When he had finished he crumpled the letter up into a ball and tossed it into the wastebasket. There was a bitter expression on his face as he stared moodily out the window.

(To Be Concluded)

It is the intention of this committee to carry on, in terms of cash, to match the federal government's food donations, and in no sense can we carry on from the stand-point of credit.

Food Must Be Free

"Let me first say that the federal government will not permit the sale of any of this food, of which any portion is furnished by the government. Therefore, we cannot make a charge per meal to any individual student, and all of the cash derived will have to be considered a donation. Said donation to be made directly to the committee, and under no consideration can any money be accepted at the lunch counters. The cost to the people of Cisco to carry on this will be approximately 5 cents per child per meal. I have been reliably informed that we have at least 400 underprivileged children in our schools, and that there will be approximately 200 parents of children who would like to take advantage of this hot lunch project by permitting their children to eat the lunches served. If we were speaking in terms of sale of the food, it would be a cost of 10 cents per meal. As we cannot use the term 'sell,' your committee would like to have a contribution of 50 cents per week, to cover this cost, so as to serve these children of yours.

"I will endeavor now to give you some facts for your consideration: At a cost of 5 cents per meal to the people of this community to match the federal donation for this purpose, and with 400 youngsters to feed, it will equal $100 per week. To carry this project for a term of 12 weeks will be a cost of $1,200; for 16 weeks, $1,600; for 18 weeks, which will about cover the remainder of the term of school, will cost $1,800.

"Now let us look at the other side of the picture. If you have contributions from 200 pupils, on the basis of 10 cents per meal, there would be a cost of $100 per week for these 200 pupils. It would equal the same proportions of money as above outlined on the 400 under-privileged children. Now let us look at it from the angle of feeding 600, through the assistance of the government, in matching the cost to the public. The cost per week, for feeding 600 children, to this community would be $150 per week; $1,800 for 12 weeks; $2,400 for 16 weeks. In adding the cost for 18 weeks of the 400 under-privileged, of $1,800, adding the cost for the 200 on the basis of 10 cent donations, which equal $1,800, you have a grand total of $3,600. Subtracting the total cost of $2,700, based upon the government project, from the $3,600, you would have a net saving to the people of this community of $900. This saving would represent $900 furnished by the federal government, furnished in commodities and not in money. In my opinion the public is heartily in accord with carrying on this hot lunch project for the benefit of the children of this community.

Donations May Be Refunded

"Your committee is going to make a strong effort to accomplish this, with your assistance. As chairman of this committee, I am going to ask that each and every one who donates shall sign his name and address and the amount of his donation, and I am going to take the personal responsibility to return to each and every one the money that he or she donates, in the event we do not obtain enough money to carry on at least twelve or sixteen weeks. It is the intention of this committee to operate on a cash basis only, and will close the hot lunch counter at the end of the 12- or 16-week period, unless the public contributes in terms of cash, or acceptable commodities, to keep it open for a longer period, of which information your committee will keep you informed at such time. While the federal government is furnishing all the labor and a dietician, and your committee is functioning without compensation, it is going to be up to the people of this community as to whether we shall open and continue to operate the hot lunch project.

"Charles J. Kleiner, chairman."

Football Tackle Means Thirty Days

GREELY, Colo., Nov. 11 (AP)—Lee Eldred, 17, high school football guard, has discovered there is a place on Main street for grid-iron tactics. Strolling along the avenue he heard someone shout: "Shoplifter! Stop him!"

Eldred saw a man running toward an alley, gave pursuit, and performed the sort of tackle his coach had been teaching him for weeks. The operation was a success. Eldred's "opponent" was tossed for a 30-day loss.

Miss Theresa Weddington, who has been quite ill at her home for the past two months, is able to be up again, it was announced by her mother, Mrs. Beatrice Weddington, Saturday.

Coming Marriage of Miss Brown is Announced at Tea

An autumn tea, announcing the approaching marriage of Miss Ova Milling Brown to Mr. Allen Withee of Kermit, was given by her mother, Mrs. N. A. Brown, and Mrs. Hugh Chief Brown Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Ruppert.

Lovely fall colors were used in living room decorations, tall floor baskets and low table vases of bronze and gold chrysanthemums. In the dining room the table was laid with beige lace, in the center of which was placed a long mirror plaque. On the mirror reclined a bridal bouquet of tallisman roses, shaggy bronze chrysanthemums, marigolds and ranunculus. Gold ribbons, on which were tied tiny chrysanthemums and marigolds, streamed across the table from the bouquet to the edges of the table. Tall gold tapers in gold candlesticks flanked the centerpiece. Silver appointments were used. Other floral decorations in the dining room were large bowls of chrysanthemums and fern.

The guests were greeted at the door by Miss Brown, Mrs. N. A. Brown, Mrs. Hugh Chief Brown, Mrs. George Ruppert, Mrs. C. C. Dean of Wichita Falls, and Miss Orlena Milling of Wichita Falls.

Mrs. Alvin Agnell of Fort Worth presided at the bride's book.

Mmes. Howard Poe of Winters and Alfred Irby poured. Other members of the house party were Misses Olga Fay Ford, Mary Elizabeth Cliett, Lillian Shertzer, Betty Fee Spears, Mmes. Ed Brown, Jack Anderson and Roy Gallagher of Cisco, Misses Jean Langston and Idahlia Allen of Kermit.

Announcements, in form of tiny books entitled "Autumn News," tied with bronze ribbon, and bearing the inscription, under a tiny shaggy chrysanthemum, "Ova and Allen, November 30," were handed the guests by Misses Mary Jo Deen of Wichita Falls and Mary Alice Brown of Putnam.

Among out-of-town guests on the invited list were: Mrs. R. G. Milling and Dorothy McIntosh of Brownwood; Mmes. Joe Smith and A. O. Richardson of Abilene; Mrs. C. C. Deen, Misses Orlena Milling and Mary Jo Deen of Wichita Falls; Mmes. H. H. Milling, W. H. Brown, Wilson Vaughn, of Mineral Wells; Mmes. Will Townsend, Garland Shelton, A. J. Taylor, W. P. PRE-NATAL CARE

There is no reason why the childbirth mortality rate should be high if essentials of prenatal care are generally understood and practiced.

Parents should be free from disease, and, if every potential parent was absolutely sure on this point, there would be fewer imbeciles, blind babies, deformities and weakness. If tests show infection, much can be done by a competent physician to prevent communication to the unborn child.

During the prenatal period, teeth of the mother and bones of the child should have proper calcium diet or dosage. The mother should be instructed on the importance of the proper functioning of the kidneys.

Many complications of childbirth and pregnancy are particularly amenable to antenatal prevention and correction. Throughout the prenatal period, keep in touch with your doctor, and then follow his instructions.
