

RUSSIANS DRIVE INTO FINNISH TERRITORY

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Loboes ended their season yesterday in a very highly satisfactory home folks, despite defeat which they suffered at the hands of the Bridge Buckaroos. The does not tell the story of the game, because it says nothing of the battle which Loboes made, the aggressiveness and spirit and high quality of teamwork of the squad demonstrated against a team rated as the best in the state.

The game with Ranger weeks earlier, equally good and won by the Loboes adds to the sum of satisfaction over a season which, at best, was not shining at the outset. Lack of reserves nowadays is very fatal to any high school team, because the competition is intelligent and hard. Loboes has lacked reserves that lack has been the handicap. Building all teams is not an easy task. It means starting at the ground, training kids in grammar and developing two or three good men for every pound, above all, instilling into the kids the will to win. All teams can't last on moral victories. It scores on the right side of the ledger. And these are not made in a seamy way, but through the process of developing over long periods. They are made by developmental teams at home by importing players. It is glad that that peppy high school football have passed. There are a lot of good boys at Cisco who are just as good as anywhere, boys who will put out team with every effort given. Too often these are overlooked, because of the contempt for them. There are several football stars who are shining today while that need them so losing games.

Around Cisco there are a lot of boys, many would make first class school players. A program that is into force now, will have a chance of being discovered. The team program this year has uncovered several potential stars. The team school Midgets in several more.

This policy of looking for players at home and drilling from the ground up continued there will be no reason to complain about no football in the future. The enrollment of Cisco schools is such that there will be a high average of football material there. It won't make championship teams year after year. But will produce its share of great teams.

Crumbling Crib Injures Baby Twice

Cracking up in her crib is getting to be a habit with six-weeks-old Patricia Ann Boyce of Beaver Falls, Pa. She suffered a broken arm when her crib fell apart the first time. Now she's patching a broken leg after it crumbled again. Her parents had tried to repair the crib, natal present, with glue the first time.

Loboes Give Bucks Scare Thursday

Cisco's fighting Loboes, yielding a decided advantage in reserves and manpower to their rivals, gave the Breckenridge Buckaroos a tough afternoon Thursday before bowing 20 to 0 to the district champions who meet Waco high in the first round of the state play-off next week.

Nimrod Game Management Ass'n Elects

Officials of the Nimrod Game Management association were elected this week and rules for the coming season drafted. The officers chosen were J. E. Stansell, president; B. P. Notgrass, vice president, and A. N. McBeth, secretary-treasurer.

After a report on an inventory of quail had been given, which disclosed there are less this year in the community than last year, it was decided that only members of the association may kill quail the coming year.

It was stated that the kill of members of the association will be limited to not over 40 per cent of the birds on the land.

Given as reasons for the decrease in quail on the land were that June rains drowned many eggs and wild house cats had killed more than hunters.

A change was made in the by-laws which permits the annual meeting to be held in November instead of the last of January, as heretofore.

There are 19 members in the association who have adopted conservation rules on a total of 6,007 acres.

Work Resumed on Snyder Ranch Test

MORAN, Dec. 1 (Sp.)—Work was resumed on the test being drilled on the Snyder ranch in the northeast corner of section 8, Lunatic asylum land, Tuesday, after a shutdown of several months.

The well, six miles due west of Moran, was started early in 1938 and shut down after being drilled to approximately 4,200 feet.

Prospects were good for a producer when drilling operations were suspended several months ago, according to local oil men.

Long and Wolf of Graham are contractors on the well and plan to complete the hole, acidize, and test thoroughly for oil.

Some 30 days will be required for finishing the well, it was stated.

FINN CABINET RESIGNS; SEE PEACE MOVE

Russian Army Swarming Over Border; Planes Bomb Cities

HELSINKI, Dec. 1 (AP)—The Finnish government, its capital bombed and aflame, with the soviet Russian army swarming across its frontier, resigned early Friday despite a unanimous vote of confidence in parliament.

The cabinet, which for weeks had negotiated vainly with Moscow on Russia's territorial demands on the little republic, stepped aside after a Moscow broadcast threatened annihilation of Helsinki unless an agreement was reached by 3 p. m. Friday (7 p. m. E. S. T. Thursday).

Although no announcement was made regarding a new government, it was believed a new cabinet would be formed before Friday night.

Mentioned as probable new premier was Vaino Tanner, finance

MARK TWAIN'S WAR PRAYER

"O Lord our God, help us to tear their soldiers to bloody shreds with our shells; help us to cover their smiling fields with the pale forms of their patriot dead; help us to drown the thunder of guns with the shrieks of the wounded, writhing in pain; help us to lay waste their humble homes with a hurricane of fire; . . . help us to turn them out rootless with their children to wander unfriended through wastes of their desolated land—for our sakes who adore Thee, Lord, blast their hopes, blight their lives, protract their bitter pilgrimages, making heavy their steps, water their way with their tears, stain the white snow with the blood of their wounded feet."

minister in the old cabinet, who took part in the unsuccessful conferences in Moscow.

Move for Armistice
The resignation was seen in some circles as a move for an armistice. Reports were received in Copenhagen that Tanner probably would attempt to restore diplomatic relations with Moscow and would seek cessation of hostilities.

Word of the government's resignation, which came less than 24 hours after the first Red troops crossed the border, was forwarded to Moscow by a representative of the American legation. It was expected the American embassy would communicate it to the Kremlin.

Before the cabinet resigned, Russia's troops were marching into Finland at points along the 800-mile frontier from the Ithmus of Karelia, near Leningrad, to Finland's narrow corridor on the Arctic ocean, 200 miles above the Arctic Circle.

Helsinki Bombed

The Russian air force bombed Helsinki, setting fire to buildings in the southwestern section of the capital. Newspapers estimated the dead at between 100 and 200 persons.

After the extraordinary session of parliament Thursday night, the Finnish cabinet decided tentatively to move the seat of government to Niokolainkaupunki (Vaasa), a Western Finnish port on the Gulf of Bothnia, it was stated in advices received in Copenhagen.

A Finnish defense ministry broadcast heard in London said Russian troops "were all repulsed this afternoon. There was lively artillery fire on the border and two Russian tanks were destroyed."

Another broadcast heard in London, from Moscow, announced the beginning of hostilities against Finland and said the soviets began

75 or 80 Attend Putnam Community Dinner, Program

SUCCESSFUL PROGRAM HELD IN SCHOOL

Rain did not matter Wednesday night to the 75 or 80 Ciscoans who went to Putnam for another in the series of community visits, sponsored by the rural-urban committee of the Cisco Rotary club, in cooperation with the Lions club. The meeting, to which Putnam played the host in grand fashion, was regarded as the most successful of the series.

The dinner and program took place in the magnificent new school building at Putnam, where Supt. R. F. Webb presented the program, to which Cisco contributed numbers by the high school girls' trio, consisting of Misses Marion Jacobs, Betty Lou Powell and Billye Cole, and by Ernest Hittson, Ray Judia and their orchestra. The most of Putnam's program was broadcast over the intercommunicating public address system, with which the school is equipped, and this included a demonstration in radio class work. A take-off on Supt. R. N. Cluck of Cisco schools, who marshaled the Cisco forces for the trip, and who is chairman of the Cisco Rotary's rural-urban committee, was a feature of the program.

The meal was served cafeteria fashion, with the Putnam P.-T. A. serving. Guests filled plates and seated themselves at desks in any of the rooms of the building to eat.

REJECTS $50, ACCEPTS $3

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Dec. 1 (AP)—William J. Kelley, real estate man, was offered $50 a day to testify as an expert in litigation over a right-of-way for a highway through Dania. Kelley turned it down because he was studying law at the University of Miami and didn't want his classes interfered with. Tuesday a policeman handed Kelley a summons to jury duty on the same case—at $3 a day.

13 Moran Bulldogs to Receive Letters

MORAN, Dec. 1 (Sp.)—Thirteen members of the 1939 Bulldog squad will receive football letters this year, according to an announcement made recently by Coach M. S. Norton.

Co-captains J. B. Montgomery and Roy Lee Steen, and Glen Pool, A. Q. Plummer, Fred Dixon, Niell Cardwell, Ralph Brooks, Ernest Pinnell, Otha Lee Grisham, Edgar Lee Bartee, Jack D. Pennell, Rudolph Wiloth and Orval Dennis are to receive jackets which were ordered last week.

The awards were made on the basis of quarters played, playing ability, sportsmanship, training, scholastic rating, discipline, attitude and cooperation with team members, Coach Norton said in naming those to receive the awards.

Reserve letters were awarded to Eugene Brabell, J. T. Rogers, Buck McCanlies, Eugene Groda, Guy Thomas and Leonard Midkiff.

Cleo Noland, Forest McDonald, and Eugene Brooks were also awarded reserve letters because they were out of play with injuries most of the season, Norton said.

It is hoped that the awards can be made December 19, Coach Norton said, when the annual football banquet will be held.

Gunshot Wound Kills Rising Star Youth

RISING STAR, Dec. 1 (Sp.)—Weldon Tollerson, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Tollerson of Pioneer, died in the City hospital here today the result of an accidental gunshot wound received as he was hunting ducks on Phillips lake with three young companions.

The bullet, from a rifle, entered his forehead between the eyes. He was immediately rushed to the hospital here, dying about an hour after the accident.

His father is employed by the Phillips Petroleum Co. in the Pioneer plant. The family moved here about six years ago from Cisco. Young Tollerson is survived by his parents, two brothers and one sister.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed this afternoon.

Miss Anne Hamilton is spending the week-end with her Austin college roommate, Miss Gladys French, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. French.

Cotton Farmers Suffer Decline In Cash Income

AUSTIN, Dec. 1 (Sp.)—Little more than half as much cash rolled into the Texas farmers' pocket during October as he was accustomed to receive during the "average" period of 1928-32, a University of Texas agricultural statistician said today.

The declining farm cash income—only $56,297,000 last month—Dr. F. A. Buechel, university business research assistant director, attributes "almost solely to the decline in production and price of cotton," and predicts lagging receipts during the marketing season "until such time as necessary readjustments in agriculture have been made in the state."

Areas of the state devoted principally to cotton have suffered more strikingly than other sections, he said, while the specialized livestock districts have "held up" very well, due to relatively large forwardings of cattle and hogs together with a fair level of farm prices for these products.

In the lower Rio Grande valley, an enormous increase in volume of citrus marketed in the sharp rise in income during October, the index for that district standing at 230.2 per cent of the five-year average.

Despite the October slump, farm cash income for the whole state during the first ten months of the year totals $347,500,000, almost $5,000,000 more than during the corresponding period of 1938, Dr. Buechel said.

It's Safe to Hit 'Em, Now

HOPKINSVILLE, Ky., Dec. 1 (AP)—Two automobiles can collide at a street intersection without either driver being criminally reckless or careless, Judge Hunter Wood believes.

Two drivers haled into his court were vehement in accusing each other. Both demanded an arrest. So officers charged one with recklessness and the other with carelessness.

Judge Wood held only a question of civil damages was presented by the case and "police court is no collection agency."

Miss Helen Hansen of Leuders has returned to her home after spending Thanksgiving day with her roommate, Miss Melvina Heyser.

PROVOCATION BY FINLAND IS CHARGED

Soviet People Told of Invasion for First Time

MOSCOW, Dec. 1 (AP)—The Soviet government early today announced that its red army legions had advanced 10 to 15 kilometers (6 1/4 to 10 miles) into Finland.

The announcement, distributed by Tass, official news agency, declared that Russia had hurled her military might against the neighboring republic only after "new armed provocations" by Finnish border forces.

As a result of these reported border violations, the announcement said, Russian forces crossed the frontier at 8 a. m. yesterday (11 p. m. CST) on the Karelian isthmus and a number of other points.

First News

The statement was issued following a midnight broadcast which gave the Russian public the first news of the invasion.

The broadcast said merely that red troops had invaded Finland. (A broadcast from the Moscow station, picked up in Copenhagen and London, said Russia had given Finland until 3 a. m. today (7 p. m. CST Thursday) to capitulate or Helsinki would be destroyed.)

Until then, despite alarming rumors in foreign circles, the general public was kept completely in the dark on what was happening.

The official announcement declared that despite unfavorable weather, soviet airplanes had reconnoitering flights and dropped bombs on the aerodromes at Helsinki and Viipuri (Viborg).

Rectifying the alleged actions of Finnish troops before the invasion, it said that at 2 a. m. yesterday (5 p. m. CST Wednesday) "at the village of Kovoina, on the northern bank of Lake Ladoga, a group of Finnish soldiers, having crossed the border of the USSR from the direction of the village of Massila, attacked a red army advance post."

Finns Driven Back

"The Finns were driven back with losses, to Finnish territory by soviet troops."

"The same night at 3:15 a. m. machinegun fire opened up on the Karelian isthmus from the direction of the village of Reasuli (Raasuli), after which a large group of Finnish infantry attacked the village of Korpiakyla (Korpiakyla). The Finns were driven back into their territory by a counter attack of soviet troops, with 10 soldiers and one

COME, GOOD CHRISTIANS ALL

"Come, good Christians all and join our caroling. Lift up your voice, give thanks to God and sing."

This French carol, popular with the peasant classes in the vineyard sections of the country, dates from 1483. As "Noel Nouvelet," it was mentioned as being popular in the 16th century by the French physician-philosopher Rabelais.

A Formula for Licking Depressions

NEW ENGLAND is fed up with the depression. Co-operating with their state and municipal governments, the folks living along the upper Atlantic seaboard took the matter into their own hands and put into operation a simple formula for making industrial smokestacks puff again.

Right after 1929 things looked bleak for New England. The textile industry took a pretty severe kick in the stomach and for a long time people did what they could to resuscitate it. The states helped by trimming business taxes to the bone. Most of the efforts were like hypodermic injections with short-lived effects. It looked as if cities that once sizzled with activity would become ghost towns.

Then New Englanders began to approach the problem from a brand new angle. So the textile business was no longer what it used to be. So what? Were textile products the only commodities ingenious Yankee communities could produce? The Massachusetts Institute of Technology lent a hand. Financiers transferred idle capital to new enterprises. Some communities took over the factories and leased them to energetic business men. New England forgot it was a textile center and began manufacturing articles for which it knew there was a market.

NEITHER the most stable industry nor the most reliable agricultural product can forever hold out against the terrific offensive of progress. Advancement of science is always shoving some industrial group out the back door. The redeeming feature is that for every industry pushed off the scene, at least one new one springs up.

Even established industries are hit whenever a new machine is developed to speed up production, cut down the number of workers needed. Someone must build the new machines, someone must service them, run them; others must build parts for them. And while the changes are being made—while workers are worrying over technological improvements—the laboratories plod on, uncovering new by-products to be manufactured.

The invention of the automobile put virtually all blacksmiths and wheelwrights out of business. But the industries that sprang up and the jobs created directly and indirectly by the automobile industry are almost beyond computation.

It requires some pretty radical readjustment sometimes to put the world aright. New England, for instance, refused to mope away in its corner. It simply adapted itself to a new order. People are going back to work. In three years, not only have most of the old plants been put back into operation, but 1600 new factories have been built and are running under full steam.

Other communities may have to come around to this system of salvation before very long. There is nothing sacred about a traditional industry when it ceases to support its people. It is much better to find something new—something that will bring in enough cash to cover the payroll.

A moving company accidentally carried a piano from Minneapolis to Dallas, Tex., by mistake, instead of moving it to another house three blocks away. Oh, well, it might have been a shipment of tractors.

Let Us Be Thankful.

Best thought of the day: A well known news commentator says both Thanksgiving holidays will be observed at his house, one for each of the two oceans adjoining our shores. Could our president, we ask, have chosen a more fitting time to create confusion over the Thanksgiving issue, thereby resulting in the observance of both days in many instances? We think the people of this nation have so much to be thankful for that a whole week of thanksgiving would not be out of place. Brother, if you haven't already, close your eyes this minute and thank God from the bottom of your heart that we are at peace with the world, that none of our sons are being slaughtered or, worse fate, maimed on the battlefield, or drowned on the high seas; that we are free to do as we please and speak as we please, so long as we do not infringe on the rights of others; that we do still live in the "land of the free and the home of the brave." Yea, verily, let us be thankful.

SERIAL STORY

5 WOULD KILL

BY TOM HORNER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

ARNOLD BENTHORNE—Five persons wished him dead.

HELEN BENTHORNE—His charming young wife.

WILLIAM ALSTON—Benthorne's father-in-law and business associate.

JOEY DI TORIO—Night club owner and gangster.

ARA JOHNSON—The mystery girl.

JOHN DOUGLAS—A young mining engineer, in love with Ara.

CAPTAIN DAWSON—a detective who likes to listen.

YESTERDAY: Ara tells how a John Douglas married her mother, deserted her before Ara was born. The mother died, leaving Ara letters and photographs which may help her find her father. Ara is brought up in an orphanage, has to struggle to live. She hates her father. At last she meets a likeable young man, discovers his name is John Douglas.

CHAPTER XIV
Dawson was not surprised as Ara related her first meeting with young John Douglas, but the young man's connection with Arnold Benthorne was still mystifying. The detective waited for Ara to continue.

"Let me go on from here, darling," Douglas put in, anxious to spare her as much as possible of the ordeal. But she refused, tenderly but firmly.

"There are some things I've never even told you, John dear," she said, taking his hand and pulling him down to the arm of her chair. "I've never let you know how much I hated my father. You've thought I wanted to find him because I loved him. And perhaps you wondered that I fell so much in love with you, almost immediately. I detested you, because I thought you were related to my father. That's why I ran away that first night."

John laughed at the memory. "You see, Captain Dawson," he explained, "after Ara had promised to help me search for this man, she left me standing there after I had told her my name. I couldn't figure it out. I went back to the coffee shop the next day, though, and explained that I was looking for my uncle, John Douglas."

"And I thought your uncle was my father. I saw a chance to locate him, at last, through you, possibly to hurt him, by hurting you. But I never could have honey." Her smile revealed the love that had grown out of her hate.

Ara and John could find no trace of any John Douglas in Salt Lake City. Then one day, when they had almost given up hope, John found a picture of Arnold Benthorne in the rotogravure section of a New York newspaper. Benthorne and his wife had been guests at a costume ball, and the financier had gone dressed as a miner.

"Benthorne made only a few mistakes," Douglas said, "but that was one—a fatal one . . ." Dawson gave no indication that he had noticed the word "fatal"—as the young man continued: "I had one picture of the man I was trailing, an old, faded print. But it showed the man with a beard. Benthorne's picture was astonishingly similar. Then Ara had one of the pictures of her father copied and we sketched a beard on his face. The result was so perfect we were convinced that Benthorne was our man.

"You would have thought that dressing as a miner for a costume party was the last thing that Benthorne would ever have done. I guess he was so confident that the past could never bother him, but he overplayed his hand. Perhaps I'd better explain," he added, noting Dawson's unspoken questions.

"The real John Douglas was 'Big Red,' my uncle, as I've already told you. He was a prospector in the Yukon, went to Alaska in the first gold rush. For years he grubbed along, looking for that one great mine. Then he disappeared into the unmapped interior.

"For years no one heard of him. The family, my father and the others, lost track of him, believed him dead. That opinion would have remained unchanged if I had not got a job with the Great Northern Mining Company, after graduating from college.

"In going over some data for a survey, I found that a John Douglas had sold a rich claim to the company in Seattle in 1916, long after my uncle had disappeared. I told my father about it and he sent me to Alaska to check on the sale. It took me over a year to search out old miners who had known 'Big Red' personally, and to check 20-year-old records.

"I had one piece of real luck. The old papers had a photograph of my uncle, taken just after he had filed on the claim which the Great Northern later bought. Pictured with 'Big Red' was a gambler, a bearded fellow named Benson.

"I never liked this fellow, Benson," the old editor told me. "Red and I were good friends and I told him that Benson was a crook. But Red seemed to like him. After Red went back to his claim, this Benson fellow disappeared."

"I reported the whole thing to my father and we agreed that Benson probably either won or stole uncle's claim. If uncle had sold his claim in Seattle, in 1916, as the records showed, he never would have gone back to Alaska without seeing his family."

From there the trail grew faint. A single, slim clew was a brief letter, addressed to "John Douglas, Salt Lake City," in the company's files. That was the last communication the company had with Douglas, subsequent efforts to locate him having failed.

On the vague lead, young John Douglas had come to Salt Lake City, where he found Ara. After they discovered Benthorne's picture, they compared all their notes and records, even the handwriting, and concluded that Ara's father, the gambler Benson, and Arnold Benthorne were one and the same.

But proving it was another matter. They came to New York and determinedly set about learning all they could about Benthorne.

The financier had refused to see Douglas, but did agree to an interview with Ara after she had mentioned her mother's name, and a few personal matters known only to her mother and father.

It was the smudged fingerprint on the letter that broke Benthorne's denials, Ara told Dawson. Only when she confronted him with the irrefutable proof did he finally admit that he was her father.

"Then he made all sorts of promises, if I would only go away, never come back. He had no more love for me than for my mother. His only fear was that his social position might be endangered, that a scandal might hurt his business. His one idea was to get rid of me as quickly and as painlessly as possible . . ."

"You're lucky Benthorne didn't live longer," Dawson said. "He might have 'removed' you permanently . . . But why, after you had let the house earlier in the evening, did you come back with this silly marriage stuff?"

"That was my idea, Captain," Douglas replied. "I figured if I could get in the house for a few minutes, I might recover Ara's proofs; and I wanted a chance at Benthorne myself. I know he robbed my uncle."

"But Miss Johnson had no further use for those letters and pictures, unless she really intended to try to ruin Benthorne."

"I wanted to do just that, Captain," Ara said. "I intended to wreck everything that Arnold Benthorne had—his marriage, his business, his entire life. He showed no mercy to my mother. . . ."

"So you suggested that Douglas come back for the proofs. . . ."

Did you tell him about the secret entrance from the street?"

"I didn't know you knew of a secret entrance, Ara," Douglas interrupted. "I did not know you had been here last night. I thought—" Dawson directed his next question at Douglas.

"Did it occur to you, Douglas, that this girl might have wanted to have you discovered in the house . . . to cover up a murder she intended to commit?"

No Title at Stake as TCU-SMU meet

FORT WORTH, Dec. 1. — Not since 1934 have Texas Christian and Southern Methodist met on the gridiron with the outcome of the contest having no bearing on the flag race.

This year the Methodists have a mathematical chance at second place but the Christians could do no better than tie for fifth. "All we're interested in is trying to win another conference game," says Coach Dutch Meyer.

All of the dope points to a Mustang victory. In addition, the Frogs are still plagued with injuries. Capt. Bud Taylor, Earle Clark, Connie Sparks, Logan Ware and Kyle Gillespie being among the first-stringers who are handicapped, by various hurts.

The Frog command is hard at work, both on offense and defense. New plays are being developed and ways and means of stopping Coach Matty Bell's boys are being given a thorough going over.

"We'll shoot the works," Coach Meyer reports. "This is our last game and there's nothing to hold back for. Although we have a lot of injuries, the boys are in pretty good spirits. We'll give 'em all we've got and if that isn't enough, well—" and Meyer shrugged his shoulders eloquently.

The Swiss Army Rounds Up Sheep

SCHWYZ, Switzerland, Dec. 1 (AP)—Swiss mobilization brought prosperity to the peasants of Schwyz, one of the forest cantons which formed the original "Oath of the Confederates" to which Switzerland's government owes its origin.

A scarcity of mutton on the main city markets sent Swiss army buyers into the Schwyz hills where they purchased 3,000 of 6,000 sheep belonging to peasants on the cantonal poor lists.

Army buying in the country direct from needy peasants is to continue as long as the army is kept above normal strength—probably for the duration of the war in western Europe.

Spreading the Good News

Text: Matthew 10:24-39

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of Advance

EVERY great movement of religion involves great responsibilities and dangers as well as blessing—especially if the movement is new or if it represents some newness of truth or newness of its application. Discipleship in the new movement inevitably involves sacrifices and it may involve perils.

This was true in the beginnings of Christianity, when Jesus sent forth His disciples to proclaim the good news concerning God's mercy and human redemption that He had come to declare. It was necessary to remind the disciples that the disciple is not above his teacher, nor the servant above his lord. Those who were willing to accept Jesus as their Master, and to serve Him must live by the rule of His own life.

They must expect to be misunderstood and reviled and persecuted; and it was necessary for Jesus to warn His disciples of the dangers that were before them. The disciple must live above fear, with the realization that even the destruction of his body might mean nothing in comparison with the destruction of his soul.

Was it worthwhile for men to accept such sacrifices and to face such dangers? "Yes," Jesus said, because of the profound value of human life. God watches over the fall of the sparrow, but the life of a human being is infinitely more valuable than the life of a sparrow.

In stern, strong words, Jesus emphasizes the exacting nature of Christian discipleship. The very proclamation of a gospel of love stirs up those whose lives are given over to selfishness and hate. So Jesus, the Prince of Peace, uses the strange words that He came to send on earth "not peace, but a sword."

One must not interpret those words too literally, for Jesus is the Prince of Peace and His Gospel is concerning the peace that could be found among men if selfishness and hatred and the lust for power were all cast out of human life. But even peace cannot triumph in a world where hearts of men are attuned to war, and where the lives of men are given over to the disregard of interests and needs of their fellow men, without struggle and without devotion. The Christian must bear a cross, as much as the soldier in an earthly war. He must be willing to give his life for the cause of peace, and it is only in losing his life in devoted service that he can really find his life and make it worthwhile.

This lesson was selected before the outbreak of the war in which European countries are now engaged and even before the outbreak of war in the Far East, but the lesson has a particular appropriateness and intensity of interest because of the world situation. We speak of peace and we pray for peace and we hope for peace; but when have either individuals or nations been willing to make any such sacrifices for peace as they have been willing to make for war?

May it not be that in God's economy the cost of peace may be quite as high as the cost of war? It is impossible here to discuss the complex issues that war and the threat of war bring before the Christian conscience. But one thing is certain: whether men use force in a righteous way to repel and overcome unrighteous force or not, we shall never have peace in the world until, both in peace and in war, the dominant purpose of men is to achieve peace and the willingness of Christian disciples to pay the necessary price of peace.
