Cisco Charity and Welfare association has appealed for clothing can be contributed to worthy cause of assisting destitute families to the rigors of winter. The economics of a period of depressed conditions have enforced the people, there are closets which do not contain articles of clothing and shoes, which are not being used by members of the family and which are contributed to the care of the poor without any manner depriving donors of necessities, or desires.

The welfare association headquarters in the building next door to the Texas Produce company on East Ninth street. Articles of clothing were returned to leave their contributions there.

The spirit of Christmas is becoming rapidly in evidence with the decorations in streets and stores and the advertisement of holiday goods by merchants. The spirit of Christmas is the loveliest and the richest gift that humanity has brought to the world. It recognizes as its own the ideal of the interdependence of man. Too often our giving quality of the egotism and selfishness that are foreign to the ideals of Christmas as communism is democracy. We give and are sacrificial, but to be honored for our giving to curry favors for per-aggrandizement.

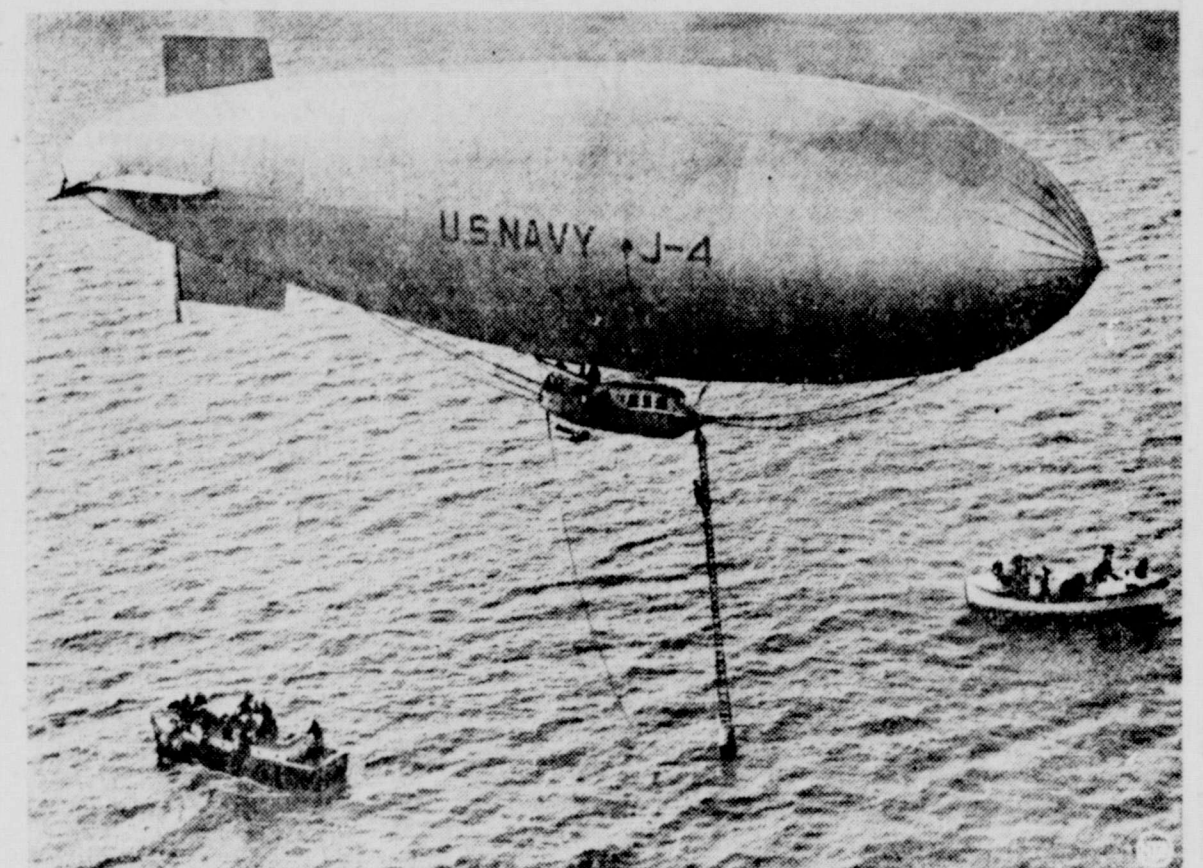

There is a chance to give the sheer beauty of giving. Among all the festive images of gifts where are not essential, this opportunity to give where gift is essential, if not vitally vital, exists. And contribution therein is meant to justify all the

'Rescue at Sea'—With U. S. Navy Blimp in Dual Role

Ten miles out over the Atlantic ocean, four blimps from the Lakehurst, N. J., naval station gave a demonstration of effectiveness in rescue work at sea. To save man "floundering" in sea, the J-4 drops overside a new sea anchor consisting of a bag capable of holding 1000 pounds of water. This, suspended at end of rope ladder, sinks below surface, holds blimp steady. Man climbs to safety.

WELFARE ASS'N NEEDS $1,500 TO MEET NEED

The Cisco Charity and Welfare board met this morning at 9:30 at the chamber of commerce. Rev. Clark W. Lambert, pastor of the First Christian church, presided in the absence of President Asa Skiles. Aside from the regular routine business, reports were made from the various teams regarding the drive for funds. The organization expressed its sincere appreciation of the fine way in which many Cisco firms and individuals have responded to its appeal. As has been stated, the goal this year is $1,500. After thorough investigation of conditions by the ones who have this work in charge, it was found that it would take that amount to take care of those in Cisco and in the immediate Cisco territory who will need assistance this winter. So far, the board is far from having the above amount, it was announced.

CLEOPATRA'S PALACE?

ROME, Dec. 4 (AP)—Italian archaeologists believe they have found the site of the sumptuous palace occupied by Cleopatra during her two-year residence in Rome from 48 to 46 B. C. Excavations along the bank of the Tiber six miles from Rome have uncovered ruins of several buildings, with frescoes, mosaic flooring and fragments of statuary where the glamorous queen is supposed to have entertained Marc Antony.

Garrett Names Supervisors for Census

EASTLAND, Dec. 4 (Sp)—Congressman Clyde L. Garrett announced Saturday that appointment of J. C. Shipman of Abilene and Mrs. Royal Headrick of Sweetwater as district supervisor and assistant district supervisor, respectively, of the industrial census and general population census had been approved by bureau of the census officials. Headquarters for the census taking in the 17th congressional district have been selected at Abilene. The industrial census is to begin around January 1, and the general population census April 1. Application for enumerators will be taken by the district supervisor at Abilene after the office is opened there. Enumerators will work throughout the district and there will be no county supervisors.

The 17th congressional district is in the Amarillo area, where an area office is located. The district supervisor and his assistant will be given instructions in all matters effecting the census at a training course, to be conducted by Area Manager W. S. Ruffner at Amarillo. The office in Abilene should open around January 1, said Garrett.

That the census bureau had approved appointment of Shipman and Mrs. Headrick was learned in a telegram from J. C. Capt, assistant to the director of the bureau of the census.

This Story Passed The French Censor

PARIS, Dec. 4 (AP)—The French newspaper L'Ordre appeared on the streets of Paris recently with a woman's picture at the bottom of Page 1. Surrounded by a bountiful amount of white space, the portrait suspiciously resembled an uncomplimentary drawing of Tom Sawyer's Aunt Polly. The blades of a huge, open pair of shears framed her countenance, and underneath was the simple caption "Anastasia." "Anastasia" is the patron goddess of censorship.

BRITISH AIR FORCES CLAIM DIRECT HITS

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP)—A "strong formation" of British bombers made "direct hits" on German warships, including a cruiser, in an air raid near the base of Helgoland, the British asserted Sunday. The air ministry announced the raid, and later an official announcement said among the ships hit near the German North sea stronghold was a German cruiser. The cruiser and another cruiser were lying close to a flotilla of six or seven destroyers when the big British bombers swooped from a gap in the clouds and began dropping bombs, the unofficial report said. (The official German news agency in Berlin said that an attack of British bombers on Helgoland had been driven off.)

The air ministry also announced that a British plane patrolling the North sea "attacked and destroyed with bombs an enemy submarine surprised on the surface." A communique said "a direct hit was obtained on the base of the conning tower."

HELSINKI IS EVACUATED AS BOMBS FEARED

Stiff Resistance Is Put Up By Finnish Defense Forces

HELSINKI, Dec. 4 (AP)—Long lines of sad-faced Finnish women and children moved into the rocky interior of Finland Sunday, while workers boarded up buildings and with sand bags prepared Helsinki for what they feared would be terrific soviet Russian air attacks. The German liner Donau took aboard some 500 Germans, a few Russians and about 50 Italians for removal to Tallinn, Estonia, and Finns believed that her presence in the harbor was the only circumstance which held off attacks Saturday and Sunday.

The vessel was due to leave Monday morning and the fear was general her sailing would be the signal for renewed bombardment of the capital.

From Helsinki and Grankulla the United States legation arranged the departure Sunday night for Stockholm of 60 women and children, including members of families of the legation staff.

Temporary Quarters The legation itself already had established temporary headquarters at Grankulla, west of Helsinki, where there is less danger. The British legation also was helping to remove British nationals from the country.

President Kyosti Kallio moved from his palace to a residence on the outskirts of the city, believed to be safer, while his wife went to the interior. Finnish military authorities said Russian troops suffered severe losses when they crashed through thin ice on the many lakes dotting the Finnish border.

A communique said Finnish troops were "very active" north of Lake Ladoga and had inflicted many casualties on the soviet soldiers attempting to cross the lakes where they were easily seen and mowed down by sharpshooters and machineguns on shore. The authorities also pointed out tersely that "thin ice frequently breaks."

Heavy snowfalls from Helsinki to Petsamo, on the Arctic ocean, hampered military operations, the Finns said, except in the Lake Ladoga sector. A military spokesman said Russia had lost 24 airplanes in bombing operations in the first two days of the war, as compared to two Finnish losses.

Cisco Boy Given N. Y. A. Promotion

RANGER, Dec. 4 (Sp)—Robert D. Russell of Cisco, an enrollee in the Ranger NYA training project, has been sent to San Antonio, where he will enter the shop project at Randolph Field. Young Russell will be one of 26 boys from over the state admitted to the San Antonio project, and is one of five from District 7, in which Eastland county is located. He left Friday, Dec. 1, to go to San Antonio for special training.

1939 Marriages Show Increase Over 1938

EASTLAND, Dec. 4 (Sp)—A check-up disclosed that 1939 is leading 1938 in marriage license issuance in the office of County Clerk R. V. Galloway. For the first 11 months of this year a total of 335 marriage licenses were issued as compared to a total of 314 for the same period last year. In November, 1939, 27 licenses were issued as compared to 19 for the same month last year.

Winnie Ruth Judd In Second Escape

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 4 (AP)—Winnie Ruth Judd, insane trunk murderer, escaped Sunday night from the Arizona state hospital for the second time within a month, Governor Jones announced. The governor, telephoning from a sick bed, said that he had no additional information. He added, however, that she had been gone from the grounds for only a short time and that hospital officials hoped that she would be apprehended shortly.

Dr. Louis J. Saxe, hospital superintendent, also is confined to his home by illness. On the night of Oct. 24, Mrs. Judd, mad murderer, heaped a mound of boxes, bottles and cakes of soap in her bed, and slipped out of the State Hospital for the Insane. Her escape, undiscovered for more than 12 hours, added another lurid chapter to the spectacular career of the "blond tigress," who in 1931 killed two women friends, dismembered their bodies and expressed the grisly cargo in trunks to Los Angeles.

Within an hour after her flight from the asylum, Mrs. Judd appeared at the Phoenix home of her aged parents, The Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, and, after a brief visit, vanished again in the darkness, leaving with her mother a letter to Governor Jones.

In the letter Mrs. Judd complained of "persecution" by hospital officials who, she said, took away her privileges, and explained her escape was prompted by a desire to visit her ill father and her husband, Dr. W. C. Judd, a patient in a veterans' hospital. Orders were issued quickly by the league secretariat for the council, guiding body of the league, to convene Dec. 9 and for the assembly of league members to meet Dec. 11. Finland's appeal asked the

Funeral for Mrs. Cogburn Sunday

Funeral rites for Mrs. Lillie Cogburn, daughter of N. J. Tarver of Dan Horn, and wife of Albert W. Cogburn, employee of the Eastland post office, were held at 3:30 Sunday afternoon at the First Methodist church in that city. Her death Saturday morning culminated an extended illness. The religious services were conducted by Rev. P. W. Walker, pastor of the Eastland church, with burial in the Eastland cemetery. Mrs. Cogburn had been a resident of Eastland for 10 years. She would have been 35 years of age December 9. She was born in Scranton, Mo., and Mrs. Cogburn had been married 10 years. Mrs. Cogburn had been a member of the Baptist church for 20 years and was also a member of the auxiliary of the county veterans of foreign wars post.

Survivors are her husband, her father, N. J. Tarver, Dan Horn; two children, Pauline, 3, and Benjie, 4 1-2 months of age; two sisters, Mrs. Vida Loftin of Anson; Mrs. Ely Roberson of Sinton; two brothers, O. J. Tarver of Eastland and Fred Tarver of Romney; a half sister, Mrs. Cecil Jessop of Dan Horn, and three half brothers, Walter Tarver, N. J. Tarver, Jr., and A. L. Tarver, all of Dan Horn.

Could Save 'Em For Next Year

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 4 (AP)—Joseph J. Ballard, a circuit court clerk, can go to the 1939 World series now. He's just found his tickets. Ballard wrote to a Cincinnati friend before the series and was promised four tickets "as soon as they go on sale." He didn't receive them and thought his friend had forgotten him. When fiscal court clerks began moving to a new office, the tickets turned up in an overlooked, unopened envelope.

SANTA CLAUS TO BE HERE WEEK LATER

Prizes To Be Awarded End Program Winners in Week-

Every pet owner in the Cisco trade territory is invited to take part in the pet parade, which will be sponsored by the Cisco chamber of commerce here Saturday afternoon in the first of the December series of Holiday Trade events, to be held under the auspices of the chamber. Winner of the parade will receive a $5 enlarged photograph of the pet and $2.50 in cash. Prizes of $1.00 will be awarded second and third place winners. The Lobo band will play for the march, which will begin at 1:30 and will extend from 14th street and D avenue through D avenue to Third street.

The following week the high point of the Holiday Trade program will take place with the appearance of Santa Claus on Saturday, December 16. There will be an out-of-town band contest, with decorated floats, distribution of free merchandise and other features. A prize of $10 in cash will be awarded the best band. Old Santa will make another appearance in Cisco the following week, arriving on December 23.

Cisco merchants are already warming up to an early season demand for new gift merchandise. Windows and counters are even now blossoming out in as colorful an array of unique gift items as has been seen since pre-depression days. Regardless of personal struggles, or world strife, the American nation responds with heart-charming enthusiasm to the urge of the yuletide holiday season, and Cisco, with its unified celebration program, and liberal supply of shopping needs, is prepared to contribute its bit.

COME, ALL YE SHEPHERDS

"Come, all ye shepherds, and be not afraid; See where all lowly the Christ-child is laid . . ." This shepherds' carol originated in Bohemia, where peasants tending their flocks sang it to the accompaniment of flutes and reed pipes. The shepherd theme is found in so many carols because the singing of Christmas songs first began among devout peasant folk.

Waiting for the Dust to Clear in Building

ALONG about October of each year, the building industry has come to expect an increase in the number of construction contracts. During the past 13 years building activity has averaged an increase of 8.7 per cent in October over September contracts.

So while the industry waited with un-filled pens and sharpened saws to initiate the increased volume of business it quite naturally anticipated, figures began coming in to show that something had gone haywire. Business not only failed to show the usual seasonal increase, but contracts fell off 9.3 per cent in October of this year from the September level. This situation was all the more enigmatic because the general manufacturing curve was heading upwards.

Residential building contracts in October, 1933, aggregated 29,371,000 square feet of floor space as contrasted with 32,977,000 in September. Building contracts of all kinds, including residential, totaled 44,865,000 square feet in October and 49,467,000 square feet in September. The October, 1933, total is about 5,500,000 square feet below that of October, 1933.

It is very likely that Thurman Arnold, assistant U. S. attorney-general in charge of the anti-trust division, holds the key to this disturbing puzzle. Arnold has charged into the building industry with a stiff-bristled broom, determined to pry out all the muck he may find in the corners. It is not exactly a hidden fact that Arnold, with the blessing of his boss, Attorney-General Frank Murphy, has started a general housecleaning and that he hopes to bring about decreased building costs by uncovering contractors' monopolies and union obstruction.

As long as there is any hope that building costs are to be trimmed in the near future, few prospective home-owners are going to sign contracts now. There is no point in buying more than just enough sugar if a drop in the sugar price is in prospect. If the dream cottage has waited this long, there is no reason why it can't wait a few months longer when, perhaps, the price will be substantially reduced.

October was the first month this year during which building contracts failed to exceed the volume for corresponding months last year. During the first 10 months of 1933 construction contracts were 29 per cent ahead of those in the same period last year. The October volume was off 11 per cent from that of October, 1933.

Whether Mr. Arnold's dynamic campaign will have its effect remains to be seen. It probably will. According to Bruce Catton, Washington columnist, a downward trend in construction costs has already been noticed in Pittsburgh, where a number of indictments have been returned. If nothing else, the campaign against the building industry will have a psychological effect.

Generally, however, building costs showed a slight rise in October over the previous month. Using 1928 as 100, the index in September of this year was 106.2, but in October it had risen to 106. This was higher than in peak-year 1929.

No matter what happens to Mr. Arnold's campaign, people will probably begin looking up architects again when the whole matter is settled—one way or the other.

Students at an eastern girls' college are not afraid of ghosts, they said. Well, that's some progress since the Middle Ages.

A truck dropped off a highway onto a front porch, thereby surprising the family who thought it was grandpa.

"Fellow Workers, Arise!"

Petamo on the north, and a strip of territory some 25 miles wide to protect Leningrad from a surprise attack.

POINT FIVE: Robbed by the expert Russian timing of the protective heavy sand dunes, marches, granite boulders, and open facets between Leningrad and the border, and the protection of water close ashore along the Finnish coast (because the ice is already forming), the Finns must look with considerable despair at their prospects.

Finland Needs a Miracle

Heretofore, a German friendship gave them superior morale over the Russians, for they felt assured of German aid. This is obviously not forthcoming now. Sweden can send no airplanes or other help, because her safety, too, is threatened by the Russian advance. Despair could lead the Finns to retaliate against the Russians by bombing extremely vulnerable Leningrad. The January thaw could help, by bogging down the Russian infantry and the Russian planes.

But that is entirely unlikely. If the Finns should have any such miraculous piece of luck, however, they might be able to count on a revolt later on among the Russians of the north against the Stalin regime. Anti-Stalin feeling is reported here to be comparatively strong around Leningrad and among the Russian sailors on the Baltic. But that, too, is a flimsy possibility, because the

Washington Daybook

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Yankee statesmen see really solid ground under the widely discussed plan for a European federation based on economic factors rather than on a purely political basis.

They would like to believe it would work. It has at least the advantage of a different approach, one based on assuring adequate bread and butter rather than on so-called national inspirations. Two things keep Americans from whooping up a too-zealous enthusiasm for the idea. First is a deep-seated belief that European peoples are determined to have their quarrels regardless of the general welfare.

Second is the fact that it is being advanced primarily by England, and therefore in the eyes of many, should be scrutinized closely. It is popular and politically important just now to look first for propaganda and only later for facts in any proposal from "Perfidious Albion."

Chamberlain Hopes

Chamberlain's speech sounded for a paragraph so as if he had his eye on Secretary Hull.

"In such a Europe," said Chamberlain, "Stalin opposition is not well organized. So short of a miracle, the jig is up for Finland—for the present."

berlain, speaking of the "new Europe" he hoped would grow out of the war, "it would be recognized that there can be no lasting peace unless there is a full and constant flow of trade between the nations, for only by increased interchange of goods and services can the standard of living be improved."

Continuing in the same vein, he said: "In such a Europe, fear of aggression will have ceased to exist, and such adjustments of boundaries as would be necessary would be thrashed out between neighbors sitting on equal terms around a table, with help of disinterested third parties if it were so desired."

Off-Trip Idea

Europe has been looking for a federation of some sort for a dozen generations. The Catholic church tried for several hundred years to fend off the break up into tight little nationalities. The Holy Roman Empire, with a far less noble motive, sought this, too.

Louis XIV of France tried two hundred years ago to make Europe a nation of one mind — his own. England shook him down. The enthusiasts of the French revolution thought they had found the one-and-only type of government and tried to batter all Europe with it. Napoleon, with the same machinery but fewer of the ideals dreamed for a time of a sort of United States of Europe—under him. Waterloo ended that.

What It Means:

The Rise in the National Income

By MORGAN M. BEATTY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The national income of the American people will top the 68-billion-dollar mark this year. That's about four billions ahead of the net income for 1933.

The unemployed at the end of the year will number about 8,000,000—or less than they've been since the stock market crash of 1929.

That income is far short of the 90-billion-dollar economic millennium desired by President Roosevelt. And the unemployed are still four times as numerous as they were in 1929.

But there has been a sharp upturn—better than most economists set out to preserve the status quo in Europe and even in the Americas by the "Holy Alliance." South American nations and in turn, Greece, Belgium and Spain, shook down that house.

The League of Nations was the next such attempt, but its machinery was better designed to make political adjustments than the economic adjustments about which Europe now is talking.

BRUCE CATTON'S AMERICAN ROUNDUP

BY BRUCE CATTON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Just about the time Russia was breaking relations with Finland and laying the groundwork for invasion, the U. S. State Department was preparing to dispatch the little "please remit" notices which ordinarily get attention from Finland, and Finland alone.

On Dec. 15, payments on Europe's debts to the United States came due. Late in November the State Department asked the treasury for a statement of the various accounts. The treasury had just finished its reckoning when Russia broke with Finland.

Due from Finland on Dec. 15 is $234,693, representing a $74,000 payment on principal, $141,662.50 in interest, and $19,030.50 due under the moratorium agreement of 1932.

Had Stalin held off, this sum would have been sure to come in on time, judging by past performances. The other sums due, which won't be paid no matter what Stalin does, are as follows:

Belgium	$ 4,642,453.88
Czechoslovakia	1,682,812.78
Estonia	463,850.29
France	22,308,312.22
England	122,670,785.05
Hungary	32,260.86
Italy	2,141,593.38
Latvia	192,483.28
Lithuania	121,466.93
Poland	5,662,039.71
Romania	956,309.89
Yugoslavia	38,515.83

It is a tolerably safe bet that the Dies committee won't go through with that idea of calling Mrs. Roosevelt a witness. When Mrs. Roosevelt remarked that she wouldn't mind coming, Chairman Dies said he'd consider the matter — which undoubtedly is as far as it will get.

New Deal groups here figure that Mrs. Roosevelt could take a lot of the zip out of the committee's work if she once got in its

Russian Attack on Finland Seen as Move to Stymie British, Nazi Push

By MORGAN M. BEATTY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Heavy Finnish war and where it's going. It comes from a leading American observer of east European affairs.

The Russian objective plainly is first to re-establish the Baltic supremacy of the seas, second to dominate Sweden, economically, at least third to incorporate Leningrad against any surprise attacks from England or Germany.

The Russian have chosen precisely the right moment to attack the Finns—moment that should guarantee success in the shortest possible time.

If the Finns give in quickly, the Russian might well be disposed to allow them to hold nominal independence, subject to Russian military and economic domination. This is the probable course of events.

If the Finns hold out too long, the Russian would establish a protectorate at the end of the struggle, re-annexing Finland into Russian territory, much as Germany treated Czechoslovakia.

The only immediate hope of the Finns is a successful counter-attack on Leningrad from the air. If they could possibly hold out against the Russians until January, the Russian army might be caught in the muck of the usual January thaw. Either possibility, in the opinion of a leading military expert, would be a miracle.

Russia's Reasons

Taking these capsule points in order, here's the explanation:

POINT ONE: Russia feels she must protect her vulnerable northern and western flanks against possible future attacks from Germany or England. She demands the northern part of Petsamo from the Finns because it is open the year-round, and would afford the British an excellent base from which to attack first Murmansk and then Leningrad.

The German navy, once free of its blockade with England, could attack Leningrad from the west. That means the Russians must have naval bases on both the northern and southern shores of the Gulf of Finland, and in the Gulf of Bothnia.

That would give warning and outer defenses for vital Leningrad and the road to Moscow. Otherwise, bombers could swoop down over the paper-thin metal roofs of Leningrad, and the invaluable timber stored in the harbor, and make shambles of Russia's second largest city.

At the same time, the bases in these two gulfs would give the Russians a position to dominate Sweden. Once the Aaland islands are in Russian hands, Sweden will have to listen to Russian trade proposals.

POINT TWO: Germany and England have the only forces capable of resisting the Russian advance on Finland, and they are obviously too seriously occupied to give Finland any help now.

Furthermore, a Russian attack in Finland is most advantageous from the Russian point of view in the month of December, because the marshes and lakes of south and central Finland are frozen hard enough to sustain motor transport and infantry troops.

Snowfall is not yet heavy enough to impede progress, and above all the usual January thaw is still ahead. That means the Russians can threaten from the air first, as they are doing, in the hope the Finns will quickly give in. But if they should resist further, the Russian's could spread a huge army across a wide front and overrun the Finns with a motorized attack similar to the one used by the Germans against the Poles.

This is the only month of the year such an attack would be feasible and practically guaranteed to succeed before it started.

POINTS THREE and FOUR: Because world opinion inevitably sides with the underdog, and Finland is the under-est possible dog, the Russians may well be that opinion against her, and allow the Finns to keep nominal independence, so long as the soviet retains the Aaland islands, the Hango naval districts, the Finnish islands in the Gulf of Finland.

But that is entirely unlikely. If the Finns should have any such miraculous piece of luck, however, they might be able to count on a revolt later on among the Russians of the north against the Stalin regime. Anti-Stalin feeling is reported here to be comparatively strong around Leningrad and among the Russian sailors on the Baltic. But that, too, is a flimsy possibility, because the Stalin opposition is not well organized. So short of a miracle, the jig is up for Finland—for the present.

SERIAL STORY

5 WOULD KILL

BY TOM HORNER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
ARNOLD BENTHORNE—Five persons wished him dead.
HELEN BENTHORNE—His charming young wife.
WILLIAM ALSTON—Benthorne's father-in-law and business associate.
JOEY DI TORIO—Night club owner and gangster.
ARA JOHNSON—The mystery girl.
JOHN DOUGLAS—A young mining engineer, in love with Ara.
CAPTAIN DAWSON—a detective who likes to listen.

YESTERDAY, Douglas searches the study, finds Ara's letters and pictures hidden beneath the clock. He looks for a place to hide them, finally goes out the window. Joey tells Dawson how he hid in the living room, then heard Benthorne's shout and at last the shot. "I looked around the edge of the doorway, like this, and—"

CHAPTER XVII
Dawson's automatic flashed into his hands as he leaped over Joey's body and ran up the stairs two at a time.

"Krone!" he shouted as he ran. The door of Mrs. Benthorne's room opened as he reached the upper hallway, and Ara peered out. She had taken off her dress and shoes and apparently had been asleep—or almost so—when the shot was fired.

"Wh-what happened?" she asked. "Wh-what happened?" she asked hesitatingly.

"Get dressed! Get downstairs!" Dawson roared, and ran on to crash into Alston's room. The old man lay on the bed, as before, sound asleep. Dawson shook Alston. "Wake up! Wake up, man!" Alston stirred and Dawson shook him again. "Damn sleeping pills!" He slapped the old man sharply across the cheek.

Alston's eyes opened, slowly. "Get up, get downstairs, at once!" Alston looked up blinking, as consciousness slowly returned. "You heard me, get out of there!" And Dawson hurried from the room, turning toward the back stairs.

He collided with Helen Benthorne, running up the steps, at the landing. He grabbed her arms and together they struggled to keep from falling headlong. She screamed and Dawson muttered a few choice observations on women running without looking where they were going.

"What—what's the matter?" Helen Benthorne panted after she had regained her balance. Her face was flushed and she gasped for air. "You gave me quite a fright, Captain. I thought I heard a shot."

"Sorry I bumped you, Mrs. Benthorne. I was in a hurry." She was staring at his revolver, still clenched in his hand. "I wanted to see you and Douglas and all the rest. Will you come with me, please?"

"My father—he's all right?" "He's been asleep," Dawson reassured her. "Come on, let's get back to the front hall."

"Captain, what is the matter?" But Dawson ignored the question. When he reached di Torio's body, he found Krone standing near. "Just like Benthorne, Captain. A well-placed shot, in the center of the forehead," Krone explained. "He was dead when he hit the floor."

"Get the coroner's office and tell someone to come back," Dawson ordered. "Where'n hell is Flynn? Did he think I wanted him to take a vacation?" The captain looked up. Douglas was framed in the door of the study. Mrs. Benthorne was standing nearby, terrified and awe-stricken. Ara, dressed again, and looking a little more refreshed, was coming down the stairs. Alston followed her a moment later. All of them were staring, with varying expressions of fear and bewilderment, at the body of di Torio, stretched across the archway opening into the living room. Joey's sightless eyes were fixed on eternity above the ceiling; his mouth half open, as if he were trying to complete his unfinished story.

"There's been another killing, right under our noses," Dawson began, as his eyes searched first one then another of the group. "Di Torio was giving me some important information. Someone here in the house was afraid that he would say too much. That person silenced him. "I believe the shot was fired from upstairs—from the top of the steps—but it is equally possible that it was fired by someone standing here in the lower hall, someone who jumped out of sight before I could get out of the living room. You'll all have to give an account of where you've been for the last 10 minutes..."

"I was resting, as you suggested, in Mrs. Benthorne's room. I guess I was almost asleep... I jumped up when I heard the shot—it seemed to be very close—then I heard you shouting and running up the stairs..."

"Would you have had time to get from the head of the stairs to Mrs. Benthorne's room before I started up? What I mean is, was there a sufficient interval between the shot and the instant I topped the stairs, for you to have made it back to the room?"

Ara stared at Dawson in wonder. Did he think he was going to trap her? "If you're trying to make me admit I shot Mr. di Torio—" she began.

"Answer the question! Would you have had time to get from the head of the stairs back to the room?"

"Why—why, yes, I guess so." "Good!" Dawson's searching gaze focused on Alston. "I suppose you slept through it all, Mr. Alston!" Dawson said sarcastically. "You probably wouldn't have heard the gun if it had been shot under your pillow!"

The older man smiled, a bit wanly, almost condescendingly. "To tell the truth, Captain, I didn't hear the shot. This whole affair has exhausted me. I've taken three sleeping tablets..."

"That's right, Captain," Krone broke in. "I gave him the last one not more than 15 minutes ago. And I stayed there with him until he went to sleep... Mrs. Benthorne asked me to..."

"I'm hardly awake yet," Alston went on, yawning. "Please excuse me if I appear frightfully dull..."

"You were pretty sound asleep when I tried to awaken you, Alston," Dawson looked at Benthorne's partner speculatively, and his glance let it be known that there was much left unsaid. "You had to be, to miss a revolver shot, not 20 feet from your door." He went on to Helen Benthorne. "And you, Mrs. Benthorne?"

"I had gone to Jameson's quarters to use the telephone there." "There are other telephones more convenient..."

"Yes, Captain. But with so many people in the house, I preferred using Jameson's. It is on a line separate from Mr. Benthorne's. It is also possible to cut off the upstairs extensions from Jameson's room..."

"How long were you there?" "Where was Jameson?" "I was there about five minutes. I had talked to Jameson and the cook in the kitchen. I left him there."

"Could you have made it, without being seen by either the cook or Jameson, from the butler's quarters to the rear hallway?" Dawson machine-gunned the questions at her.

"Mrs. Benthorne eyed him icily. "I don't know just what you mean, Captain. I suppose, as you suggest, that I could have sneaked upstairs without being seen. But I could hardly have run back down, then up again, as I was doing when we collided, without arousing some attention. That's silly!"

"Not so silly as you imagine. Now, Douglas, where were you?" "Right in the study, where you left me. Haven't moved out of the chair..." And Captain, I'm sure the shot was fired from above. I would have heard anyone who went by the study door."

"So you haven't been out of the chair, huh? Just sitting around waiting for things to happen." Dawson's voice turned dangerously soft. "Then how do you explain that damp mud on your shoes?"

We Don't Blame Him; We'd Protest, Too

LUGANO, Switzerland, Dec. 4 (AP)—Giuseppe Albisotti, lieutenant colonel in the Swiss army and a former police officer of Lugano, has asked Swiss authorities to investigate pro-fascists in Swiss Ticino canton. He said they denounced Italian-speaking Swiss who were anti-fascist to Italian authorities.

Albisotti had a reason for his request. He went to Italy for a week-end visit in April, was jailed, and didn't get out of jail and back to Lugano until October. He said he was the victim of "false denunciations."

Bear-Faced Negligence

WINCHESTER, Ky., Dec. 4 (AP)—The desk sergeant hung up the receiver and sent Patrolmen Robert Baker and Herman Ecton out on assignment—to drive a bear out of a resident's back yard. Arriving at the scene, they found 300 pounds of black bear surrounding a garbage can. The officers stepped back for a consultation. A neighbor finally suggested the bear might belong to another local man, a medicine salesman. The latter was summoned and he led the bear away. World production of coal is about one billion tons annually.

Lobo Band Has Fifth Annual Banquet Friday

With the Band Parents club as host, members of the Cisco Lobo band, their guests and ex-band members, held their fifth annual band banquet Friday evening, beginning at 7:30, at the First Christian church.

Glenn Tableman, band president, was toastmaster and brought the welcome, followed by the invocation by E. Buford Isaacs, president of the Band Parents.

The principal address was brought by Burgess Brown of Abilene, of the White Music Co. Mr. Brown's speech was sprinkled with humor, and highly entertaining. This was followed by a short talk on "What the Band Means to Cisco" by W. J. Leach.

Miss Jane Moore, drum major of the band, represented the members in presenting Director R. I. Collier with a table lamp, gift from the band. Songs were then presented by Mmes. Collier and Brown.

The freshman members were introduced and they in turn presented their guests. Paper hats, balloons and serpentine added much to the gaiety and fun of the occasion. A delicious turkey menu was served.

After the banquet, the guests went to the Cisco Country club for further entertainment. Approximately 150 were present.

Italian Officers Avoid Foreigners

ROME, Dec. 4 (AP).—Italian army and navy officers have cautioned to avoid foreigners as much as possible, presumably as a safeguard against spies.

Unlike in soviet Russia, where contact between officers and foreigners has been discouraged for several years, Italian officials have had many friends in Rome's foreign colony. But they are seeing their foreign friends much less frequently since the war.

Italian officers have been instructed even to avoid the cafes of the Via Vittorio Veneto, the capital's main street, where they might encounter foreigners.

230 Colleges to Be Represented at Rainey Inauguration Saturday

AUSTIN, Dec. 4.—Representatives from 230 colleges, universities and learned societies have already been designated as delegates to the inauguration of Homer P. Rainey as president of the University of Texas on the morning of December 9, the inauguration committee has announced.

With representatives of the state government, the board of regents, the faculty, ex-students' association and the student body in line, the procession preceding the inauguration will be the longest and most colorful in the history of the southwest.

Dr. Rainey's address will be the highlight of the inaugural ceremony, but other features of the program, including the formal installation into office by Major J. R. Parten, chairman of the board of regents, and the address by Chester H. Rowell, former editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, will attract widespread interest.

Sentiment and long-time personal relations will also be in evidence, when Dr. George W. Truett, pastor of the First Baptist church of Dallas, asks the invocation and Dr. Thomas Stone Clyde, president emeritus of Austin college, Sherman pronounces the benediction. Both men have had marked influence in Dr. Rainey's life. Dr. Clyde was president of Austin when Dr. Rainey was a student there two decades ago.

Following the inauguration a luncheon will be given in the Texas Union in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Rainey and the visiting delegates, then at three o'clock, also in the union, the new president and his wife will receive all persons who wish to call.

The inaugural exercises will be held in front of the Main building and are open free to the public. In case of inclement weather the program will be held in Gregory gymnasium. Prior to the opening of the inaugural exercises at ten o'clock, the concert band of the University of Texas, under the direction of Colonel George E. Hurt, will give a 20-minute concert. The band will also play two numbers during the program, one of them being "The Eyes of Texas" as the ceremony ends.

Preceding the inaugural exercises will be a two-day conference on the theme, "The State and Public Education," in which many national and state leaders will participate. Thursday afternoon at 2:30 Dr. Newton I. Edwards of the University of Chicago, will speak on "The Oncoming Youth Population of Texas and Their Educational Needs," then Dean B. F. Pittenger of Texas, will present

Successor Speaks
Dr. Floyd W. Reeves, director of the American Youth commission of the American Council on Education, will conclude the Thursday afternoon program with an address on "A Program of Action for American Youth." Dr. Reeves succeeded Dr. Rainey as head of the commission. He is also chairman of the President's Advisory Committee on Education.

A change in the original program has caused the Latin American session to be set for Thursday night, starting at 8:15, when Dr. Richard Pattee of the division of cultural relations of the department of state, Washington, will be the leading visiting speaker. Dr. Americo Castro, distinguished professor of romance languages at Texas and former Spanish ambassador to Germany, and Dr. Charles Hackett, leader in the Latin American institute developments at the university, will follow Dr. Pattee.

"The Utilization of Texas Resources for the Well-Being of the State" is the theme for the opening program Friday morning at ten o'clock. In this session the speakers will be George A. Hill, Jr., president of the Houston Oil company, E. H. Johnson of the university's research staff, and Dr. A. B. Cox, director of the university's business research bureau.

Spotlight Program
Holding the spotlight Friday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock, will be a discussion of the reason why a state supports public education. Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin; Dr. Luther Halsey Gulick, director of the Institute of Public Administration, New York City, and Dr. E. H. Sellards, director of the University's Bureau of Economic Geology and director of the Texas Memorial Museum, will give the answers, emphasizing the importance of teaching, research, extension, and the training of citizens and leaders for democratic citizenship.

"Fine Arts in a State University" will be featured Friday night, at nine o'clock in Gregory gymnasium when the Houston Symphony orchestra will give a concert that is free to the public. Guest tickets may be secured from the president's office by mail, and in person at several places on the campus and in Austin.

Preceding the concert, Dr. John Erskine, noted professor, author and musician of New York, will lecture at a dinner meeting, starting at 6:30 o'clock in the Texas Union.

In the conference Thursday and Friday there will be opportunity for public discussion. Many prominent citizens of Texas will be present to preside and assist in many ways. The public is invited to attend the conferences, all of which will be held in Hogg auditorium and are free, except the luncheon and dinner.
