GARRETT IS PRAISED AT DINNER HERE

Judge James K. Stinson of Abilene told the 17th district postmasters banquet, honoring Cong. Clyde L. Garrett, at the Laguna hotel Saturday night, that he was a brass collar democrat, that he was 100 per cent for the new deal and that any man who was not a professional politician had no business in politics.

He eulogized the contributions of the new deal to the security of the average man and commended Cong. Garrett and Cong. W. R. Ponge, of the Waco district, for their part in the program. He also paid high tribute to Garrett, and concluded his address, vibrant with old-fashioned democratic stump-speech oratory, by reading a letter from Cong. Nat. Patton, which spoke of Garrett as a congressman who has the utmost respect of the Texas delegations and is becoming one of the most influential members of that delegation.

Rev. Earl K. Lightfoot of Mineral Wells, a schoolmate of Garrett's of the old Hankins Normal institute at Gorman, told of Garrett's boyhood life. "I am glad," he said, "that Cong. Garrett's father put store-bought windows in the log cabin in which he was born. It enabled the boy Garrett to look out upon a world of service to which he has dedicated himself."

Youthful, personable Cong. Ponge, who "went down the Brazos" to Waco from this district 26 years ago, and whose bride was taken from this district, also spoke, and greetings were brought from the postoffice inspection service by Inspector Alvan S. Page of Fort Worth.

Postmaster D. C. Harris of Mineral Wells, earlier re-elected president of the 17th district postmasters association, presided, and the Rev. Judson Prince gave the invocation.

A cake, bearing 17 candles, representing the number of the district served by Garrett, was presented to the congressman by B.

Chiropractor Says Kidnap Arrest Frameup

PORT ARTHUR, Dec. 11 (AP)—A chiropractor, who insisted his arrest was a "frameup" lloled in jail Sunday, accused of kidnaping for ransom his friends' son, 11-year-old Irwin Mingle.

Dr. W. C. Welch was charged Saturday night with demanding $15,000 for the safe return of the boy, taken from his home by a masked gunman who held up and bound his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mingle.

The boy slipped a gag, and by his cries attracted neighbors, who released him Friday from an attic hideout on the outskirts of the city. The kidnaping, which occurred Thursday was not reported until Saturday.

After the arrest, the boy told Deputy Sheriff Claude Goldsmith, the kidnaper's voice "sounded like Dr. Welch's."

Goldsmith said Dr. Welch was arrested "because we believe we have identified burlap and other articles in the case as coming from his property."

"We have other reasons, but can't give them now," Goldsmith said if an attempt was made to release Dr. Smith on bond "we will file charges of robbery with firearms."

Officers, who took plaster casts of the prints made by the tires of the kidnap car, were seeking the gun used in the holdup.

Dr. Welch, heavy-set, and baldish, said he was visiting his son, Calvert Welch, at 7:15, the night the boy was kidnaped at 7 o'clock. The chiropractor said he went for a ride "as is my custom" after leaving his son.

Mingle, well-to-do automobile dealer, had arranged to pay the ransom before his son was released.

Miss Loretta McElreath of Stamford is visiting friends here.

PARENTS TO VISIT SCHOOL FRIDAY NIGHT

Friday evening, December 15, will be "parents' night" at the Cisco high school. Parents of children are urged to attend a program which will include a condensed schedule of a day's routine at the school, meet the teachers, and follow a miniature schedule of their children's work, in order to acquaint themselves at first hand with the program.

After the schedule, refreshments will be served. Purpose of the parents' night program is to develop a closer understanding of the school work and aims on the part of the parent, to give beneficial contacts between teachers and parents and to encourage better cooperation between teachers and patrons.

Finns Appeal For Aid From Outside

HELSINKI, Dec. 11 (AP)—The parliament of embattled Finland Sunday unanimously adopted an appeal that "as the outpost of western civilization" Finland has a right to expect active help from other civilized nations "to resist the soviet invasion."

The Finnish appeal declared the Finns were fighting not only for their fatherland, but for "democratic institutions, religion, homes—everything which civilized people hold sacred."

Russia Protests German Blockade

—RUSSIA, Dec. 11 (AP)—Soviet Russia Sunday protested to Great Britain over the blockade of German exports.

The official news agency, Tass, announced a note containing the protest had been handed to the British embassy to Moscow, and recalled soviet Russia previously had registered a protest against British measures to enforce a blockade against contraband reaching Germany.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH HERE IS DEDICATED

Inspiring Services Sunday Morning and Afternoon

"Hitherto hath the Lord helped up," was the theme of the inspirational message in which the Rev. Gaines B. Hall of Oklahoma City, former pastor, symbolized the formal dedication of the edifice of the First Presbyterian church.

The text of the minister's inspiring sermon was the 12th verse of the seventh chapter of Samuel I:

"Then Samuel took a stone, and set it between Mizpah and Shen, and called the name of it Ebenezer, saying, Hitherto hath the Lord helped us."

The minister likened the $25,000 church building, which was formally dedicated as free of debt, to the Ebenezer which Samuel erected, pointing out that through the help of the Lord the congregation has been brought this far in a victory which was destined to produce even larger victories.

The solemnity of the morning worship was a preface to the old-fashioned informality of an afternoon program which developed into a testimonial service much after the fashion of the old camp meeting inspirational services. Members of visiting churches took part in the spontaneity of this service which reached its climax in the free conference period. Earlier in the afternoon program the Rev. Judson Prince, pastor of the First Baptist church and president of the Cisco Ministerial council, brought the greetings of the other church of the community.

Participating in the morning worship program and in the afternoon, also, were former pastors of the Cisco church, the Rev. M. H. Applewhite of Sweetwater and the Rev. J. Stuart Pearce, now superintendent of home missions of the Fort Worth presbytery.

The dedicatory consecration and prayer were spoken by Dr. Gary L. Smith, the pastor of the Cisco church.

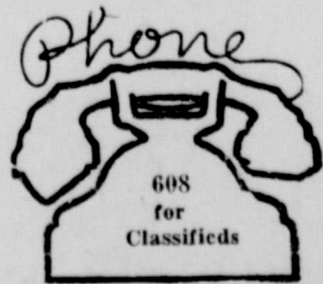

In the afternoon service Dr. Smith directed the leaders of his congregation in a rededication and consecration ceremony which was a moving preliminary to the free conference period and its enthusiasm.

Those taking part in the rededication were L. Y. Siddall, ruling elder representing the session; H. C. Henderson, representing the Deaconate; E. P. Crawford, representing the Sunday school; Mrs. Joe Clements representing the women's auxiliary; Miss Eula Mae Jackson, representing the young people's league, and R. S. Cope, representing the choir.

When red bombs rained in Helsinki to set part of the city aflame, this Finnish church was one of many buildings demolished. Missile ripped through roof and exploded inside. Russians denied bombing anything but military objectives in their raids over Finland.

REDS FORCED BACK DURING HOT FIGHTING

Russian Troops Bombarded on March by Defending Planes

HELSINKI, Dec. 11 (AP)—Violent fighting in knee-deep snow on Finland's eastern frontier at the Arctic circle was reported from the front, where the Finns declared they had repulsed all soviet attacks.

The Russians battered at Finnish defenses in all sectors of the eastern front, but were particularly active near the Arctic circle, sending many observers to conclude they had changed their strategy and were striving to cut Finland in two by driving to the Swedish border and the Gulf of Bothnia.

Heavy fighting also was reported on the southern front, on the eastern side of the Karelian isthmus, where three brigades of soviet troops, behind a tank corps, attempted unsuccessfully to smash their way to the Mannerheim line.

A Reuters, British news agency, dispatch from Helsinki, received in London, said Finnish planes bombed Russian troops on the march, and, assisted by field artillery, destroyed a column of enemy tanks and armored cars.

Misses Blackburn and Milner debated two teams from Brownwood during the morning.

Plans are being made to attend the annual state debating institute in Austin Friday and Saturday of this week.

Hickok Well Northwest of Cisco Testing

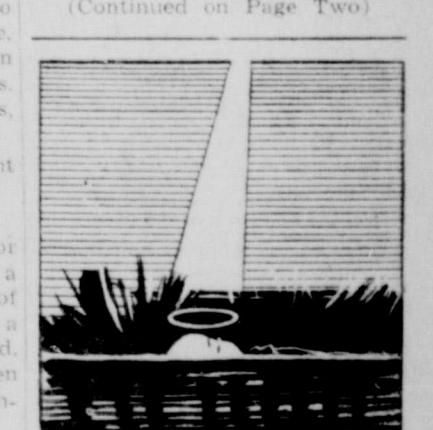

Hickok Producing and Development company is preparing to test its No. 5 Grover Cleveland, seven miles northwest of Cisco, which had a showing of oil in time from 2,894 to 3,876 feet.

Operators were putting the well, location of which is in section 477 and in the SPRR survey, on pump. In the northwestern part of Eastland county, J. O. Fox and associates No. 1 R. B. Weddington "B" lease, section 2054, TE&L survey, at 3,200 feet, was drilling.

Also in Eastland county, Dobbs Oil corporation has abandoned No. 1 B. Pierce, Hiram Walker survey, two and one-half miles southeast of Carbon, at total depth of 2,702 feet. Though unconfirmed, it is understood another well will be sunk by the firm in the same area.

T. S. Holder and others No. 1 J. F. Nichols, S. H. Hines survey, Eastland county, was drilling below 2,700 feet.

AWAY IN A MANGER

'Away in a manger, no crib for his bed,

The little Lord Jesus laid down his sweet head...

Singing of Christmas hymns around a manger, begun in the parish church of St. Francis of Assisi in the 13th century, was a custom carried down through the years. For such a ceremony, Martin Luther, 16th century German minister, wrote this Christmas song, now long popular as a manger carol.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God.—Matt. v. 9.

A sacred burden is the life ye bear.
Look on it, lift it, bear it solemnly;
Stand up and walk beneath it steadfastly;
Fall not for sorrow, falter not for sin,
But onward, upward, till the goal ye win.
—MRS. KEMBLE.

Let us look well to our mental state. Let us try to protect and preserve the precious thoughts which are liable to be driven away by the world's din; gather up the sweetness of these thoughts, let us beg of God to help us. Such thoughts will gain for us the peace that no man taketh away.

Refugees Wait for Their Day

In every nation whose people have opened their gates, refugees from Europe's war zones are scattered. Some are depressed and fatalistic about the fates of their nations. A few are indifferent. But most of the political refugees are fortified by an almost sublime faith in the ancient axiom that right will prevail.

It has been a long time since the prospects of Europe's freedom and progress have been quite so black. Some folks say not since the medieval era. But it's not quite as bad as that. The whole world looked pretty bedraggled back in 1914-18. This has not been the first time in recent history that blood flowed freely and butchery was rife.

The tragedy is not that civilization is being annihilated. It isn't. The disaster is rather that all the advancement that has been made in Europe is being suddenly halted. It takes a long time to achieve small gains; it takes only the time necessary to sign a decree to smash everything.

BUT the people who have been driven from their homelands, forced to accept the hospitality of friendlier nations, will not soon forget the ideals for which they once struggled. The folks who have been left behind under the domination of greedy, stronger powers will harbor in their hearts a deep resentment that will grow as the days and years roll by.

Nations are pretty much like business companies. They must operate under the same set of ethics. They must be just as honest with their neighbors and their peoples as a business man must be with his customers if he wants to remain in business.

Occasionally the system of ethics cracks up. A few nations may decide that competition must be crushed, monopolies established, the people given whatever the state wants to give them in the way of freedom and civil liberties. That happens in business sometimes, too. It happened to a certain Chicagoan by the name of Samuel Insull, whose commercial empire had become so vast that it seemed impossible that anything could undermine it. But the Insull network collapsed with a mighty thud.

A NATION can't forever remain dishonest and get away with it. As the victims of its atrocities increase in numbers, as their resentment and rage against oppression rises, the rumblings of mass opposition will become more distinct, will finally end in a victorious push for freedom.

It may be a long time before international virtue asserts itself. Like a dishonest business man, a dictator can hold a people under his thumb for years before he is driven out. But eventually, he will be unseated, just as the crook in business is finally caught, because the other business men around him are not dishonest and because the people with whom he deals can stand only so much of corruption before they balk.

The gun battle near Morton resulted Friday afternoon when Deputy Sheriff Tom B. Sandefor ran down Lackey, David Cox and Mann in a light truck questioning in the theft of a Roby physician's automobile.

According to Sheriff Sandefor, Lackey started shooting as he was being placed in the sheriff's car. Smith was mortally wounded, but managed to draw his gun and return the fire, as did the sheriff. Lackey was shot four times and died Saturday in the Morton hospital.

Davis, unarmed, offered a resistance. Mann escaped, shooting as he ran. Sheriff Sandefor exchanged shots with Mann, and he was thought to have been hit. His captors reported Sunday night, however, that he was not wounded.

Davis told Cochran county authorities that he had been forced to accompany Lackey and Mann against his will, driving them from Levelland to the spot where they were over taken by the sheriff and his deputy.

The car stolen from the Roby physician earlier was wrecked near Smyer.

found itself after the war. Other nations, formerly our greatest customers, found their industries to a large extent lost to the United States or other manufacturing countries because of the war. They had little money to purchase either raw materials or finished products here. They could not hurdle high tariff walls and sell finished goods in this country or in other consuming countries to get the exchange with which to purchase the raw materials to supply their own industries. They produced little raw materials at home. The chain of trade, so vital to international prosperity, was broken. They retaliated by erecting tariff walls of their own. A stymie developed.

ed in the portions of Mr. Molyneaux' paragraph above which we have capitalized. To restore prosperity at home we must restore the purchasing power of foreign producers and find new markets abroad. We must, in other words, raise the standards of living in those countries to which we sell and thus broaden the markets in which we sell. We can do that, just as it was possible to develop our great domestic market by increasing the standards of living at home. COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
ARNOLD BENTHORNE—Five persons wished him dead.
HELEN BENTHORNE—His charming young wife.
WILLIAM ALSTON—Benthorne's father-in-law and business associate.
JOEY DI TORIO—Night club owner and gangster.
JOHN DOUGLAS—A young mining engineer, in love with Ara.
CAPTAIN DAWSON—A detective who likes to listen.

YESTERDAY: While Dawson searches her bedroom a second time, Helen Benthorne goes to the garage with a bottle of milk. Flynn catches her there, takes her to Dawson. When the cat is brought in, it runs to her, tawns upon her.

CHAPTER XXIII

"There's your answer, Captain," Flynn offered from the doorway. Dawson smiled at the success of his scheme.

"Mrs. Benthorne, this cat is yours!" Dawson asked pleasantly. "What if it is? It's not against the law to own a cat, is it?" she challenged.

"No . . . But in this instance it may be almost that," Dawson watched her carefully. The cat, catching sight of the milk, meowed loudly. "This cat, I believe, may have an important bearing upon your husband's murder. It is quite possible that it was used with the idea of creating the impression that your husband's death was suicide—and then something slipped up. At any rate it was sufficiently important to be mentioned in Mr. Benthorne's note—"

"Note?" she asked incredulously.

"Yes, your husband left a note. It has been most helpful to us. You may read it, if you wish."

When she handed it back to him, her face was ashen. "So he knew . . . he knew," she murmured.

"Your efforts to hide this cat, to steal out, unobserved, to feed it—in the light of this note—all look most suspicious," Dawson continued evenly. "Even you will admit that."

"I can readily see why you would suspect—how you would reach certain conclusions," she amended hastily, as some of her poise returned. "But I can easily explain. I just remembered, ness also. It would have left Dad nothing.

"I told Arnold I would divorce him, that I would tell my father everything. And he laughed at me. And then—he slapped me."

"I ran to my room, locked the doors and called my father. I begged him to come for me. I told him everything. I was waiting for him when Arnold was shot."

"You were waiting for your father—but you were already undressed and in bed. How do you explain that?" Dawson parried.

"I had undressed before going to the garage to hide the cat. After my quarrel with Arnold I was too angry, too hysterical to even notice that I wasn't dressed, I would have gone with Dad just as I was . . ."

Dawson paused momentarily as he weighed his next question.

"Did you, Mrs. Benthorne, during your quarrel with your husband tell him that you would kill him?"

"For an instant she could not answer. "How did you know that?"

"It is not unusual in the heat of a bitter argument to make such a threat," Dawson said. "But in this case it was more than just a threat. You finally intended to kill your husband and to make it look like suicide."

Helen Benthorne's fingers gripped the arms of the chair as Dawson's condemning words pounded in her ears.

"You told your father what you intended to do, but you decided to wait until he arrived to bear out your story. Perhaps you had noticed that Ara had lost a button off her sleeve. You thought you might blame the murder on her."

"Or you may have watched di Torio enter the house and thought he would be captured by the police at the entrance of the passageway. But as you waited behind the dining room door the

There was much yet to be told, and Dawson's silence indicated that he expected her to continue. At last she went on.

"It was during that quarrel that Arnold said those terrible things. . . I can never forget that the girl was his daughter; that he had abandoned her mother 20 years ago in Salt Lake City. He told me, too, that he never loved me, but that he wanted to be somebody in society and he needed a rich wife to attain that ambition."

She covered her face with her hands, as if to shut out the memory.

"But you told me you loved your husband," Dawson was surprised when she looked at him again, dry-eyed.

"I lied, just as I've lied all my married life. I hated Arnold Benthorne from the moment I saw him. I married him to save my father's business."

"But Arnold wouldn't even permit me that victory. As he raved on in his anger, he told me he had been buying Alston motors secretly, that he intended squeezing my father completely out of the company Dad's genius had created. Arnold not only wanted to take his daughter, but his busi-

A NOTED EDUCATOR

Speaks...

Dr. Homer P. Rainey, President of the University of Texas, has analyzed Texas' future possibilities in repeated public address. These statements express his thought:

"The next stage in the progress of Texas lies in the development of our great industrial and commercial possibilities."

"A program of industrial development centers around the manufacture of raw materials into finished products."

"American industry is moving closer to its raw material sources. We in Texas can capitalize on this movement if the opportunity is grasped."

"Our great highway development, coupled with industrial progress, will greatly aid the Texas farmer in his marketing problem."

"The best measure of the importance of an enterprise is the employment it creates and the income it produces."

"Our need for increased employment requires the keenest intelligence in solving the problem. Our boys and girls must be trained in highly efficient schools to meet the growing needs of farm and business."

"Our universities are dedicated to a program of scientific training and research which will create employment and build industry to use our raw materials at home."

"Repeated failures did not stop our hardy pioneers in the building of our present empire. The same spirit must prevail for a successful future."

The Texas oil industry recognizes the soundness of these broad principles. They underlie present employment and provide for expanded future employment for our Texas people.

The vital part oil plays today in putting these principles into actual practice will be portrayed in a series of advertisements to follow in this publication.
