SPECIAL CHURCH PROGRAMS MARK EASTER

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

The movement on foot to improve Highway 80 through west Texas to a degree commensurate with traffic demands is a worthy objective for the cities along the route. There is no doubt that the route has been neglected by the state, under pressure of demands from other sectors, and it and the service that transcontinental and trans-state traffic require of it have suffered. So great is the demand for highway building, improvement and maintenance from all over the state that human nature induces state highway officials to respond to the most pressing, leaving for future reference conditions which, although only partially taken care of, are not forced upon their attention by the alertness of citizens and communities served by such highways. Highway 80 is one of the most important routes in the United States. It has great importance, not only as an all-weather artery for the traffic of civil life, but as a potential military route. Yet its condition has been allowed to fall behind what is requisite for the demands being made upon it. This is due, in large measure, to the carelessness of the communities on the route. Their interest in the situation has been acutely stirred by the activity of competitive routes and the increasing demands of traffic upon the 80 route.

It is essential that the road be improved to a degree and in a measure commensurate not merely with present requirements but with the requirements of the future. To press this demand money will be required. This fund can be raised only through the contributions of citizens and business men on the route. They will contribute readily to the program, it is safe to say. And they should.

But there is another important fact regarding highway needs in this section, that must not be overlooked in the pressure for this improvement of an existing route. This fact is the need of a paved, state-designated route from Cross Plains to Cisco. Such a route is the

Livestock Team Candidates Practice

Boys taking part were Billy Fox, Gene Duncan, J. V. Heysler, Jr., Odell Plumlee, Harlan Donoway and Gerald Jensen.

Spring Plowing Scene--Somewhere in France

Better any day than the old hand-shoveling method of trench digging is this modern steam shovel technique, shown in use recently on the Western Front. Of course it hasn't completely replaced the pick and shovel, and the mud and water are the same as ever.

AFRICAN FILM WILL BE SHOWN HERE TONIGHT

"The Story of Bamba," a realistic motion picture filmed in a small native village in the Belgian Congo, with an almost complete native cast, will be shown at 7:30 this evening at the First Presbyterian church by the Rev. Roy F. Cleveland, returned missionary from Africa. The Rev. Cleveland, with Mrs. Cleveland, is here visiting his brother, Grover Cleveland.

The story, which will be narrated by the Rev. Cleveland during the showing of the film, is centered around the life of a native boy who, when left for dead by a village fetish doctor, is revived by a missionary doctor, and is converted into the ideals and beliefs of the Christian.

The show will take up the entire evening worship period and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Hearing on Spacing Rule at Abilene

A hearing on applications to modify the 20-acre spacing rule, newly invoked by the Texas Railroad commission, in cases of shallow drilling in the west central Texas district will take place at Abilene at 10 a. m. April 2, at the Hilton hotel, an order signed by Comm'r E. O. Thompson and Jerry Sadler directs. The hearing at first scheduled for Cisco, has been combined with one already slated for Abilene, it was explained. Operators in shallow districts have requested modification of the rule in these districts because of the restricted character of most pools.

IAS DIPHTHERIA

Walter King, former Cisco high school student, now first sergeant at the Cleburne CCC camp, is in a Cleburne hospital in serious condition with diphtheria, it was learned here Saturday.

Miss Zona Miller of Roby and Messrs. D. G. Alford and J. J. Kraemer of Dallas are spending the week-end here. They were entertained on the Crofts ranch Saturday.

Forrest Mobley of NTSTC, Denton, is spending the week-end here.

Commandery Easter Service This Morning

The annual Easter services of the Cisco commandery will take place at 7:30 this morning at the First Baptist church with the Rev. Judson Prince, pastor of the church, preaching the sermon. The Cecilia singers will sing at the choir and the Merry Quins, violin ensemble, will play special music.

The public is invited.

Word has been received here of the death early Saturday of Mrs. G. E. Snodgrass of Marietta, Ohio. Mrs. Snodgrass, 58, was the mother of Mrs. H. A. Dennis of Cisco. She had been in failing health for a number of years.

Cisco FFA Chapter Seeks High Rating

For the first time, the Cisco Future Farmer chapter is this year seeking designation by the state as a Lone Star chapter, the highest rating to which an FFA group can aspire, it was announced by T. G. Caudle, Cisco vocational agriculture teacher.

He attended school in a log school house, built on the Sandefer farm by the father and neighbors.

Attending this school about four months in each year, he completed what would now be called the fifth grade.

At 18 he went to a school at Whitt, known as Parker institute. Here he earned an A. B. degree six years later.

Young Sandefer taught his first school in the same log school room on his father's farm where he had started his school life, receiving a salary of $40 a month.

Promotion came soon, and at 26, in 1894, he was named president of Strawn college.

After six years there he went to Granbury as superintendent of schools. In 1902 he was named professor of Latin and history and vice president of John Tarleton college at Stephenville.

In 1907 he was named superintendent of schools at Stephenville and was elected president of John Tarleton in 1908.

Continuing his education, he attended the University of Texas summer sessions, and the University of Chicago, where he received his Ph. D. degree in 1907.

FUNERAL FOR DR. SANDEFER AT 2:30 TODAY

ABILENE, March 23 (AP).—Dr. J. D. Sandefer, who went from backwoods Arkansas to a place of leadership in American education, will be buried here Sunday in the city to which he made his greatest contribution.

The 72-year-old president of Hardin-Simmons university, ill for two years, died Friday.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the university chapel. Rev. Millard A. Jenkins, pastor of the Abilene First Baptist church, will conduct the services. The body will lie in state in the chapel until Sunday at 10 a. m.

Members of the university faculty will serve as pall bearers.

Dr. Sandefer described his birthplace as "Nubbin Ridge" on Peckwood creek, in Sharp county, Arkansas, where he was born to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Sandefer, March 13, 1868.

In 1876 the family moved to a quarter section farm, bought on credit, near Whitt, Texas, close to the line of Parker and Palo Pinto counties.

FARM BILL INCREASE IN HOUSE FAVOR

Part of Senate Hikes Are Due to Be Accepted There

WASHINGTON, March 23 (AP)—Even economy advocates predicted Saturday that the house would accept at least part of the increases made by the senate in the $1,000,000,000 farm bill which it approved late Friday.

There was widespread feeling in both chambers that the desire to win the farm vote would prove stronger than the fear of new taxes, which influenced the house to hold the farm appropriation to $714,000,000 earlier this session.

The expanded bill, which the senate passed without a record vote, now goes back to the house for action on the increases. Leaders expect that the measure will be sent early next week to a joint congressional committee for adjustment of the differences.

Representative Woodrum of Virginia, a leader of the economy bloc, observed that economy advocates in the house would "make the best fight we can but the economy spirit probably will not be as strong the next time the bill comes before us."

The senate-approved bill carries nearly $923,000,000 in appropriations—more than $200,000,000 in excess of President Roosevelt's budget recommendation—and an additional $90,000,000 in loans for agricultural purposes.

Until the farm bill reached the senate, Roosevelt's budget estimates for various purposes had been reduced approximately $303,000,000 in congress in an effort to avoid the $460,000,000 of additional taxes which the president advised to finance "emergency" defense outlays.

Although the increases in the farm measure offset most of the savings voted previously, Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the democratic leader, has expressed belief that additional taxes might still be avoided. The possibility of accomplishing this by trimming defense appropriations has been suggested in some quarters.

Instructions For Easter Hunt Given

The city-wide Easter Egg hunt to be sponsored by the Cisco Lions club organization and directed by the city recreation project will be held near Lake Cisco Sunday afternoon, March 24.

All children, twelve years of age and under, have been extended an invitation to participate in hunt.

For the benefit of those planning to attend it is explained that the entire group of children will be divided into three separate age levels. The first group, ages up to and including 6 years, will be directed to their hunt within the confines of the former deer pen.

The second group consisting of ages from six through nine will be directed to the Lions-Rotary park for their hunt. The last age group including all ten, eleven, and twelve year old children will hunt in the designated areas near the banks of the ravine.

Hunting areas will be roped off as designated, and all hunts are to begin at a designated time.

Early arrivals at the sight of the hunt are requested to refrain from entering "marked areas."

Through the cooperation of the Cisco Lobo band and its director a concert of selected band music will be presented for the enjoyment and entertainment of early arrivals at the lake. It has been announced that the concert will begin at 2:15 o'clock and the public is invited to attend.

All children not having a possible means of transportation are requested to assemble at the Cisco City Hall at two o'clock Sunday afternoon. In order to prevent confusion it is especially requested that the group not assemble before two o'clock. Through the efforts of the Lion's club, trucks have been secured to transport the children from the city hall. Trucks will begin loading passengers at 2:15 and will leave the city at 2:30. ### COMMANDERY SERVICE TO BE AT 7:30

Special Pre-Easter Services Concluded at Two Churches

Commemoration of Christ's resurrection will be observed today in the churches of Cisco by special music, choral anthems and Easter sermons. Today's services will mark the completion of a week of pre-Easter services, depicting the life of Christ during the week preceding his crucifixion, which have been conducted at the First Methodist and First Presbyterian churches.

At the Methodist church the morning sermon subject will be "Jesus Lives," and in the evening, "The Great Roll Call." Special music at the 11:00 hour will be a vocal solo by Stanley Webb, accompanied by Mrs. Webb, and a choir anthem, Thomas Hastings' "How Calm and Beautiful the Morn," directed by Miss Ella Andres. In the evening the church roll will be called.

The annual Knights Templar services will be conducted from the First Baptist church at 7:30 a. m., with preaching by the Rev. Judson Prince. At 11:00, the Rev. Prince will preach on the subject, "The Place Where the Lord Lay," and the girls' trio will sing "Tranquility." The church has been appropriately decorated for the occasion.

The final sermon in a series of pre-Easter services will be preached at the Presbyterian church at 11:00. Dr. Gary L. Smith will take as his sermon subject, "He Is Risen." Roy Cleveland, returned missionary from the Belgian Congo, will show a moving picture taken in Africa and entitled "The Story of Bamba."

Everyone is urged to attend Easter services today.

New Service Program By W. T. U. Co.

As part of its 1940 service improvement and maintenance program, the West Texas Utilities soon will begin installation of over two miles of primary electric lines in the west part of town, it was announced yesterday by H. H. Monk, district manager.

The new wires are expected to "improve voltage regulation and properly balance the load." They will be installed on present poles now included in the company's distribution system here.

Tree Grows Around Sheep's Skull

JACKSON, Wyo., March 23 (AP)—About 200 years ago—as Keith Stilson, a Jackson Hole guide, figures it—an Indian was lucky enough to bring home some mountain sheep steak for dinner.

After dressing the carcass the Indian hung the skull on a small tree and forgot about it.

Recently, Stilson saw a perulian growth on a big pine tree and examined it. Completely embedded in the trunk about five feet above ground, was a sheep's skull.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Christ is risen from the dead. Be glad, O ye righteous, and rejoice in the Lord! For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.— I Cor. XV. 20, 22. Ps. XXXII. 12.

Christ hath risen, and men shall rise:
Now at last,
Old things past,
Hope and joy and peace begin,
For Christ hath risen and men shall rise.
— J. M. NEALE.

We sinners do beseech Thee to hear us, O Lord Jesus—that we at the last day may behold Thy face with joy; that we may hear these words of joy: "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom, prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

States Proclaim Their Wares

THE states of the Union have learned not to hide their lights under any bushels. If they've got anything to offer either industry or the tourist trade, they want the rest of the country to know it. And the best medium they know of getting the word around is advertising.

Before 1935, only six states made any provisions in their fiscal budget for advertising. This year, 40 states have earmarked funds to be used for publicly extolling their merits, and 75 per cent of these states intend to use the newspapers of the nation liberally to get their messages across. A total of about $4,400,000 has been appropriated. Thirteen of the states have appropriated more than $100,000 each. The highest advertising allotment—$825,000—is that of Florida, which long ago became aware of the old axiom, "It pays to advertise."

It's pretty hard to tell definitely just how much it pays. Many of the benefits from advertising are too intangible to be measured. But some of the states, which started advertising in 1937, have already seen the results burst right out into indisputable statistics.

Arkansas picked up 92 new factories, representing a total investment of $2,600,000. New Jersey noted a $167,000,000 tourist business last year and a 28 per cent increase in the value of the state's branded advertising products. North Carolina opened its arms to 51 new factories during the first eight months of 1939. Wisconsin's gain in tourist trade was reflected by the jump in gasoline taxes from $6,500,000 in 1935 to $8,030,000 in 1939, and in non-resident fishing licenses from 65,157 to 112,185.

THE influx of tourists into any state projects its effect far beyond the hotel keepers, restaurant owners, resort landlords, and department stores, who are usually direct beneficiaries. The money taken in seeps through the entire community. It creates new jobs, makes possible greater spending, filters finally to the smallest business man, far removed from direct contact with tourists.

States' advertising this year should bring even greater dividends, with travel abroad cut off. In many cases, the advertising efforts will help vacationers plan their itineraries.

The reunion kiss of Harold Dahl, U. S. aviator recently released from prison by General Franco, and his wife was one of those don't-ruin-my-lipstick affairs. Just like the kind between a married couple who have been separated only 18 months instead of 32.

Joe Donaway Candidate for Commissioner

Joe Donaway, lifetime resident of the Dothan community and son of L. D. Donaway, one of the pioneers of that section, Saturday announced that he will be a candidate for county commissioner from Precinct 4, subject to the action of the democratic voters in primaries this summer.

Mr. Donaway is seeking the office of commissioner for the first time. He said he would appreciate the support of the citizens, and that if elected, he would devote his full time to the duties of the office. "I know the precinct and its needs as well as anyone, I believe, and I am confident that I am fully qualified to meet and discharge the responsibilities of its commissioner in a way that will do credit to the office and give the people the satisfaction they demand."

Mr. Donaway, who has followed the profession of farming, has always taken an active part in the affairs of his community and

What It Means:

Mussolini's Meeting With Hitler

By MORGAN M. BEATTY

AP Feature Service Writer—WASHINGTON, March 23.

While Mussolini-the-Benito swaps secrets with Adolf Hitler, Mussolini-the-Empire-Builders still has his eyes on Mediterranean empire.

American experts on world politics tell you to remember that in the weeks ahead.

Whichever way Mussolini seems to turn at the moment, no one doubts that his course will point in the long run toward coveted Corfu, Dalmatia, Malta, Tunisia, the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Djibouti, and the Suez canal.

And except for Dalmatia and Corfu, and their strategic bearing on control of the Balkans, the allies have a firm grip on most of the stepping stones to Mussolini's Mediterranean empire. The allies have most of what Il Duce wants—not Herr Hitler.

The allies also have the military drop on Italy. Close the Suez canal and Gibraltar, and Italy might soon be starved.

What If Hitler's Winning The War?

But this does not mean that Mussolini should rush to the side of the allies. That would be exactly the thing NOT to do, from his point of view.

Like the girl who goads her best bean into a proposal by flirting with his hated rival, Mussolini must continue to keep company with his axis partner of the north, if he is to persuade the allies to come to him ultimately with open arms.

Besides, what if the allies should make a blunder, and find themselves losing the war. All the more reason to stand in well with Hitler. The German dictator would then be in a position to give Mussolini what he wants.

No, Mussolini should be deliberate, unburied. Mussolini is deliberate, unburied.

Mussolini might be tempted to act as Hitler's peace broker. In that case, what about that Mediterranean empire?

Would the allies give Mussolini what he wants as a commission for acting as peace broker? Hardly.

He Could Get Along With Russia—For a While

Then there's that Balkan nightmare. For a while Mussolini could even afford to string along with Russia and Germany in a partition of Balkan influence. But if common sense doesn't tell Mussolini he'd be playing a losing game there in the long run, history should give him the clue.

History will tell him that Italy, Germany, and Russia have always been rivals for Balkan supremacy. Their interests are not identical. The Balkans supply raw materials for industrial nations. Russia, Germany, and Italy are all industrial nations, needing raw materials.

And there are not enough raw materials in the Balkans to supply one of those nations, let alone all three.

So a patchwork arrangement in the Balkans might interest Mussolini on a temporary basis, but not in the long run.

Far better for Mussolini to try to get a route to commerce around Suez, through Tunisia and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, and a fair share of the stock in the Suez canal.

Until the last whistle blows, Mussolini will be dreaming of empire, just as every important Italian has dreamed.

And Mussolini knows that a straight line is not necessarily the shortest distance between present-day Italy, bottled up in the Mediterranean, and a future Italy, master of the Mediterranean.

Install Wool Weaving Plant at Eldorado

AUSTIN, March 23.—Processing of wool in Texas, started on March 1 with the opening of a scouring plant in San Marcos, will be carried a step further on June 1, when a wool weaving plant begins operation at Eldorado.

Governor W. Lee O'Daniel today was in receipt of a report on the Eldorado plant, which is being constructed at a cost of from $15,000 to $20,000.

This new concern will buy its scoured wool from the Cen-Tex Wool and Mohair company's scouring plant at San Marcos, and will make woolen blankets, ties, and finished material in piece goods for men's suits and women's dresses, the governor was informed.

Joe M. Christian, textile engineering graduate from Texas Technological college, and his father, J. B. Christian, are owners of the new plant.

Texas produced 77,290,000 pounds of wool and mohair last year. It is estimated that 60 per cent of this weight is represented in dirt and grease, upon which Texas growers paid freight when sending the product to northern and eastern markets.

The scouring of wool in Texas is designed to eliminate that loss. The San Marcos plant, which marked the culmination of seven years' planning on the part of H. C. and L. B. Bea of that city, will probably be able to supply wool to six points of the size of the Eldorado concern, Governor O'Daniel said.

Eight of Arizona's 14 counties are named for Indian tribes.

His father, one of the patriarchs of the democratic party in this section, came to Dothan from Alabama 50 years ago and settled settled at Cisco. Joe Donaway is unmarried. He lives with his aged parents, and has taken care of them since they became aged.

Federation Pays Tribute To Mrs. Kelly

The City Federation of Women's clubs, in its regular monthly meeting Monday afternoon, paid tribute to the late Mrs. G. B. Kelly, a former president and active member of the federation.

Mrs. A. J. Olson, now president of the federation, spoke for the organization.

"In the passing of Mrs. G. B. Kelly," Mrs. Olson said, "a deep sense of loss is felt by each member of this organization. Her last club activity, I think, was to come here and give us a report of the state convention held in Wichita Falls.

"Her life was one of beautiful service, for she gave of herself generously to her home, her church, and to all organizations that stand for the better things of life. Especially do we recall how unselfishly and tirelessly she gave of her time and talent to our City Federation of Women's clubs.

"No mere words of mine can fittingly pay tribute to her useful and beautiful life, but her deeds will long live in the hearts of those who knew and loved her. We are grateful for her life lived here among us for so many years, and feel that our lives have been made richer by that contact.

"May we ever carry on, emulating her in unselfish service and devotion to our city federation. We shall continue to meet, but we shall miss her.

"There will be no vacant chair— We shall linger to caress her— When we breathe our evening prayer."

The federation also presented a resolution, prepared by the committee on resolutions, consisting of Mmes. A. J. Olson, Homer Bible and Phillip Pettit. The resolution read as follows:

"Whereas it has pleased Almighty God in his wisdom and love to take from our midst our friend and loved co-worker, Mrs. G. B. Kelly, we present these resolutions.

First: Be it resolved, We the City Federation of Women's clubs of Cisco, do earnestly appreciate Mrs. Kelly's faithful service to the organization. Her untiring effort to further its highest aims and her loyal support in every worthwhile undertaking.

Second: That we strive to emulate her devotion to church, friend and club association. That her courage and uncomplaining patience under physical affliction be a lesson to each of us, that her memory become a blessing throughout the coming years.

"Recognizing these things we ask that a copy of these resolutions be written into the minutes of this organization. A copy given to each of the Cisco papers, and a copy sent to her husband, Mr. G. B. Kelly."

SERIAL STORY

$15 A WEEK

BY LOUISE HOLMES

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, 1939.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
ANN BROWN—orphan daughter of a gambler, alone in an unfriendly city.

PAUL HAYDEN—stock room boy with ambition.

STEVE CLAYBOURNE—wealthy playboy.

CLARA BROOKS—dime store counter girl.

IRENE TEMPLE—society debutante.

YESTERDAY: Ann's watch and silver are found. For a moment Mr. Temple suspects her of stealing. Then Ann shows him the inscription her watch contains—"To Peter Temple." Mr. Temple questions Ann about her father, learns that Ann is his own brother's child.

CHAPTER XXVIII
Mr. Temple followed Ann to the door and put an affectionate arm about her. "This means a lot to me," he said. "You see, I loved Pete." He laughed blankly. "Did someone say it's a small world? It took two thieves and a suitcase full of jewels to bring home Pete's little girl."

There was a mist of tears in Ann's eyes as she said, "I'm so happy to be a relative." She smiled. "Just the same, I'm pulling this household out of the kinks. It's my job and I love it." "Do as you like, my dear. You're one of us. Call yourself Ann Temple, will you?"

"I will." She opened the door, turning back. "Mr. Temple—"

"Better make it Uncle John." "Uncle John—do you care if I fire the Plunket outfit?"

"Care?" he roared. "I'll help you kick them out." "Call on me if you get stuck." Blake offered.

Ann got rid of the servants without too much difficulty. A few significant hints that the police would like to know of their deeds turned the trick. Ann prepared and served the dinner that night. Irene tried to help, unsuccessfully. The next day Ann interviewed applicants and filled the positions, eliminating one of the maids. In a week's time the machinery of the household was moving without a hitch.

Irene returned the roll of silver to Ann's room. "These spoons are lovely," she said. "Aren't you glad they aren't engraved? Your initial is different now." She was delighted over the turn of events.

Ann was equally pleased. "Isn't it wonderful, Irene?" "I think so."

Steve was not at all impressed by the news. He merely said, "Wasn't I the first to notice a family resemblance?" "Well, not quite the first," Ann told him.

"Maybe you'll go out with me now," he suggested. "As hired help you were a bit too uppity. How about the Athens club spring formal? It's coming off next week. I was planning to drag you there by the hair of your head."

"Is that so?" "You bet that's so."

Ann was not at all sure that she wanted to attend the Athens club party. Since coming to the Temple house, the bruised feeling in her heart had lessened just enough to make it endurable. She was trying gallantly to put Paul Hayden from her mind and the party might bring all the old memories to life. Not that they showed any inclination to die, they lingered on, tormenting and embittered. Why hadn't Paul loved her? How could he have left her so casually? "I'll take your invitation under advisement."

"Did I say before that you are the strangest girl that ever passed my way?" he asked irritably. They were sitting on the Temple dock. The fresh spring breeze loosened the tendrils of Ann's hair. They were pure gold.

"Why am I strange?" she asked, gazing dreamily across the lake. "I'm accustomed to having my invitations accepted."

"All right," she said impulsively. "I won't be the one to break your otherwise perfect record. I'll go to the dance with you."

"Thanks. I suppose I should feel flattered." His tone was edged with sarcasm. "Not too much."

"That's what I thought. You're crazy about that Hayden guy, aren't you?" Her hand covered the silver bracelet. "A lady admits nothing," she said lightly. The little bell bit into her flesh. Oh, Paul—Paul!

The days slipped by on pleasant, easy tread. Ann managed the Temple house efficiently and well. Although never taking advantage of the relationship, she was made to feel one of the family. When Mr. Temple introduced her to his friends, he said, "You remember that scoundrel, Pete—this is his daughter. We'll have to give him credit for her if nothing else."

Irene made much of her. Ann found herself being gradually absorbed by Irene's crowd. She wore lovely clothes, she lunched and played contract and danced and swam, she learned to know the smart cocktail lounges and restaurants and night spots. She accepted Steve's attentions, with reluctance she allowed him to become part of her life.

One day Irene said to her, "You've ve sort of taken the wind out of my sails, Ann."

Ann was brushing her shining hair. She turned, brush in hand. "What do you mean, dear?"

"I mean Steve. I always thought I could fall back on him when I got ready, but now I'm not so sure."

"Do you want him, Irene?" "Well, for a long time I've considered him my inevitable future. She frowned a little. "I must marry someone. If you're in love with Steve, I'll start looking around."

"I'm not in love with him, Irene." Ann thoughtfully pushed the waves of her hair into place. "Maybe not, but he's wild about you. You'd be a fool not to marry him. Grand family, lots of money, social background—"

Ann said, "I won't get in your way, Irene. I'm not so eager to be married."

"What else is there for a girl to do?" "Oh, lots of things." Irene leaned to press her cheek to Ann's. They both smiled into the mirror. "Go as far as you like with Steve," Irene said. "I'm not without other possibilities. Maybe we can have a double wedding. It would be fun."

Ann felt that the conversation had been planned. And she suspected that Irene was more than mildly interested in Steve. However, the matter seemed to have been taken out of her hands. Steve was not to be juggled this way and that. He had a mind of his own and that mind had been definitely made up.

As the weeks passed, Ann had to admit that she was restless and unhappy. The Athens club party had been just another evening, nothing more. When she remembered the same event with Paul she wondered what had become of the stardust and glamour. She had everything for which she had longed, a family, social position, more clothes than she could wear, a sense of absolute security.

Recalling her old dreams, she laughed at them. Linen sheets, silk bed coverings, sterling silver and wedgewood china. Perhaps it was because they had come too easily that their importance had vanished. Perhaps the fun of having lovely things was working for them, striving, beating the budget.

One day in midsummer Irene gave a luncheon on the terrace. Ann observed the girls speculatively. They differed from her friends in the Follet's rooming house only in background and money. The types were identical.

There was Geneva Weston, a mysterious eyed, languorous girl with pale blond hair. She affected bizarre cigaret holders and moved with lazy grace. She had renounced family life and lived in her own apartment. The girls whispered that Geneva was most indiscreet—she hinted at a married man. She was another Flo-

Rate Equality Resolution to Go Before USCC

ABILENE, March 23.—A freight rate equality resolution has been presented by the West Texas chamber of commerce and the Freight Rate Equality federation for consideration by the United States chamber of commerce at its next convention.

The resolution as sent to W. Gibson Carey, Jr., president of the USCC, Washington, D. C., by D. A. Bundeen, WTCC general manager, and J. M. Willson, Floydada, FREF president, is as follows:

"Resolved that the national transportation system be revised to the end that transportation charges shall be required to preserve the inherent advantages of each form of transportation; to adequate operating and dividend returns, and to bring about equality and uniformity in rates as between the different sections of the United States in line with operating costs."

"We believe the first two provisions of the resolution are already a part of the policies of the USCC but that the organization has yet made no declaration relative to the third provision in which the Southwest is vitally interested," Bundeen said.

Hall Decision
WTCC officials hailed the March 14th decision of the Interstate Commerce commission refusing to reopen for reargument the long-fought South-to-North freight rate case, but warned that Texas and the southwest must secure reduction in their own rates or they will be at further disadvantage because of the lower rates in the Old South.

In its recent ruling the ICC refused to reconsider its previous decision to lower rates on 18 commodities from the South to North to approximate level of rates on

Items of Interest From Putnam

The Callahan county debate tournament was held at the Putnam high school auditorium, Thursday March 14th. Lenox Byrd and James Kennedy, Putnam, won first place in the boys division. The Putnam girls, Mary Lou Eubank and Dorothy Kelley won second place in the girls division. The judges were R. N. Chuck, superintendent of Cisco schools, C. C. Duff, Miss Collins, and Mrs. Henry Drumwright.

Miss Johnnie Mae Hughes.

North to South shipments. The new rates, which reduce the southern differentials by about 37 per cent, will become effective June 1.

This division is important to Texas and the Southwest because it sets a precedent for freight rate equality, for which the WTCC has been battling for a long time, officials said.

"The decision, however, in giving the Old South parity with the North on 18 commodities makes our Texas differentials even more harmful," Mr. Bundeen pointed out.

"The decision puts the lie to propaganda recently circulated to the effect that our commodity rates are lower than in the North. Along with the recent Texas Railroad commission ruling removing differential rates in far west Texas, the ICC decision establishes, for the first time in 50 years, a precedent for knocking out this nefarious zone system of making rates," the WTCC manager declared.

"It likewise emphasizes the need for action on the part of the state freight rate fact finding committee which was given funds by the legislature to prosecute a case before the ICC for freight rate equality in Texas. If the case for southern rates is right, then our case is even more just, since our rate not only is higher than those in the north, but also are higher than those in the Old South."

The Putnam Methodist church observed Holy Week by having services each evening during the week at 7:30. Rev. J. Morris Bailey has been doing the preaching. On Wednesday evening Sue Williams, Billy Louise Armstrong, Patsy Parrish, and David Park Clinton sang "Give Me Thy Heart;" they were accompanied at the piano by Anna Lou Williams.

Messes. and Mmes. Loren Everett, Warren Everett, Will Everett, Mark Burnam, Mabry Totam and Otis Totam attended the funeral services of Mrs. A. E. Ellis at the Cottonwood Methodist church Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Ellis is the mother of Mrs. Will Everett of Putnam.

The Putnam school lunch room opened Wednesday and 175 students were served.

Last Monday morning the Putnam graduates of 1938-39 sponsored a program in memory of their classmate, Doyle Gunn, who was killed in a car wreck during Christmas week. Dyle Lee Brown, president of the 39 class, read a poem that he had written in memory of Doyle; Edward King accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Stanley Webb, sang "My Buddy;" Doyle Lee presented a plaque and a picture of Doyle Gunn to the president of the present senior class, James Kennedy, asking that these two memorials be placed in the trophy case of the Putnam high school. Rev. Bailey pronounced the benediction.

The teachers and students of the Putnam schools attended the Callahan County Interscholastic league meeting at Bgird, Friday and Saturday.

The dinner will begin at 7:30 and is open to all who are interested in the work of the CoC and community development programs. A price of 35 cents per plate will be charged.

needed link in a direct highway from southwest Texas to the metropolitan centers of north and central Texas. It will give the sheep, goat, cattle and oil districts of the southwestern Texas area a quicker, more economical outlet to these centers, saving many hundreds of thousands of dollars annually in travelling costs to the public which moves between the two extremes.

Another project needed almost as badly is a paved highway to Carbon, joining to 23 and cutting off several miles between districts which have much in common, giving quicker access between this area and central Texas and providing local highway facilities for a district which is increasing rapidly in importance as a fruit and livestock producing area.

For a number of years now, we have been helping to build roads out of Cisco. That, to an extent, has been all right. We must have highways. Progress rides the pavements, and no community, content to sit in mud, isolated from other cities can reasonably expect to enjoy the benefits of prosperous development. But it is also essential that we gain for our territory and ourselves a sound and serviceable system of highways which will encourage the greatest use and best conservation of those natural and cultivated Sandefur was elected to the presidency of Simmons college, then in its eighteenth year. Offered Tech Presidency.

He was given an honorary LL. D. degree by Baylor university in 1917, and in the mid-twenties, when the legislature created Texas Technological college at Lubbock, he was offered its presidency by Governor Neff, now president of Baylor.

This and other opportunities for educational service elsewhere, Dr. Sandefur declined.

Active in lay work of the Baptist church, he was a former head of the Texas Baptist convention.

A forceful and compelling speaker, he was urged on several occasions to become a candidate for congress or governor, but he never sought a public office. He was, however, in 1928, a leader in the movement that swept Texas into the republican column for Hoover, and he attended Hoover's inauguration, as did Hardin-Simmons' celebrated Cowboy band.

A booster for the band and a loyal follower of all sports, particularly football, Dr. Sandefur accompanied the band to Europe [and the HSU football team on many travels. In 1938 he went with the team to Los Angeles for a game with Loyola university. It was his last trip away from home.

Last Appearance
His last public appearance was in June, 1939, when he awarded diplomas for the thirtieth time to a Hardin-Simmons graduating class, and addressed the alumni gathering, urging erection and completion of a new library, student center, field house and administration building "ready to be dedicated on our semi-centennial jubilee in 1941-42."

His ideals in school work are summed up in a significant quotation, one of his favorites:

"As president of Hardin-Simmons University, it has been my endeavor to try to lead in building, in the great Southwest, a liberal arts school of learning, adequately endowed and generously housed, with a scholarly faculty whose attitude toward the fundamentals of the Christian religion are unquestioned, to the end that the finished product of this institution be a man or woman of strongest possible body, keenest intellect, and soul trained in spirit-resources which give us economic reason to be and the support of the institutions we attempt to build. We need these roads and we can get them if we seek them intelligently and with organization.

 By Hendrik Willem van Loon
 Illustrated by the author

Cycle Begins Again--From Feudalism Democracy Comes to a Re-Birth

It is necessary to give the Devil his due and say a good word for Feudalism.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN
 The recuperative power of the human race seems to be unlimited. No sooner had the roads once more become safe for travel than we can observe a return of commercial activities which had been absent for some twenty generations.

This did not mean international trade in the modern sense of the word, for in an age when the emperor's family traveled in bullock carts, the exchange of goods was still so insignificant that peddlers with packs on their backs could easily take care of all the people's needs.

But after this long period of hibernation, any return to a normal form of existence meant an enormous step forward, and at this point it is necessary to give the devil his due and say a good word for an institution which in our modern America is usually regarded with profound disapproval. I refer to the government known as feudalism.

It is true that from the point of view of the year 1940, feudalism as an institution has very little to recommend it. But if we want to be fair, we should remember that it was something absolutely unavoidable.

Feudalism during the early middle ages was necessary as the system of the vigilantes which sprang up all over the far west during the earliest days of its development, and as self-appointed policemen there feudal lords performed a most valuable service.

Once more the merchant could move from place to place without the constant fear of losing not only his possessions, but also his life.

The feudal lord, of course, did nothing for nothing. But as the recognized man of violence, he promptly eradicated the smaller fry and no sooner had a modicum of safety returned to a much plagued world than behold! commerce and trade once more made their triumphant entry among the people of Europe.

Here and there such energetic individuals banded together, and amidst the ruins of ancient Roman towns they re-established themselves as citizens of a free community.

Soon their numbers were increased by those former serfs who by means of their extraordinary ability at some particular craft had been able to buy their personal liberty. And then came the twelfth century when a combination of circumstances suddenly rushed to their assistance in a most unexpected fashion.

The primitive agricultural methods of the dark ages had completely exhausted the soil. Soon there was not land enough to feed the multitudes. And at that precise moment, the victory in the east of the Mohammedans had placed the holy shrines of Christendom at the mercies of an unbelieving sultan.

The church began to preach those crusades which were to deliver the Holy Land from the yoke of the infidel and soon it was practically impossible for any self-respecting country squire not to take part in at least one of these great migrations.

He was, of course, obliged to travel in state and with a considerable retinue of soldiers and servants. For that purpose he needed ready money, for the shipping companies of Venice and Genoa did not believe in credit. This money he obtained by borrowing cash from the only people who had any—from the merchants.

The merchants, not being

TWO PATIENTS
 QUINCY, Calif., March 22 (AP).—An 81-year-old patient was admitted to the free county hospital on his declaration of destitution—then asked the doctor to put a wallet containing $710 in a safe place. He was transferred to a private hospital. The same day a 71-year-old prospector was found suffering from malnutrition in his cabin, too proud to ask charity. He was welcomed at the free institution.

under any particular obligation to do the fashionable thing, could stay peacefully at home. And when no interest was paid on their loans, they were able to insist upon certain substitutes in the form of all sorts of rights and prerogatives that were to increase the independence of their little cities. And as this process continued for almost three centuries, the same crusades were of the greatest importance in helping the growth of Europe's monied middle classes.

And since "city air meant free air," the spirit of independence among the inhabitants of the high-walled towns grew to a point where they felt themselves strong enough to act independently of any over-lord.

That was the beginning of those city-republics which originated in Italy during the thirteenth century (the Crusades had lasted from 1096 to 1270) and which were almost exact replicas of the old Greek democracies, in regard to their political structure and in their devotion to the arts.

But none of those ever became a democracy in our modern sense of the word. They were ruled by and for the well-to-do classes. The average man had no influence whatsoever upon the government. He worked, he paid taxes and obeyed.

His time was to come, but not until he had been able to gain strength through organization—until he had established those early unions which we know by the picturesque name of the guilds.

And the Campbell sisters—they skated expertly over the thin social ice, incredibly audacious, incredibly popular. Neddy and Teddy had held sway in the West Side taverns, the Campbell sisters led in the night clubs.

Ann noted another thing. As it had been on Murray street, these girls had but one aim and ambition, a suitable marriage. Their expensive clothes and coiffures, their mannerisms and clever patter, were but weapons with which they stalked their men. The luncheons and cocktail parties were merely time fillers in which to gather force for the evening's struggle. Love, as it had been to the 10-cent store girls, was a minor consideration. A husband was the thing.

Love. In spirit Ann left the luncheon on the terrace. Why had it been given to her? So strong, so cruel.

Our work has just begun

YOU think electric service is a wonderful thing—and it is. It lights our homes. It makes our streets safe at night. Turns wheels in factories. Lifts the burden of housework. Helps make the good things of life cost less.

Really, there doesn't seem much left for electricity to do, does there?

Yet we employees of your electric company believe that every service and comfort electricity now gives you is but a beginning of what's to come.

Why, today we don't even know what electricity is. We simply know and enjoy some of the things it is capable of doing every moment of the day and night. But we also know that there are still a great many undiscovered tasks for electric service.

Who will perform these miracles-to-come?

The men who serve you now—the same great army of skilled technicians, capable managers and loyal employees whose tireless efforts in your behalf have already vastly improved the service your electric company gives you, already drastically reduced its cost.

No, it isn't an accident that electricity has reached its greatest present development in the United States. The reason is that these thousands of men and women in the electrical industry have the American spirit of initiative—the good old-fashioned kind.

Their work, and theirs alone, makes your electric service the best in the world. It's an amazing service. It gets better and better, costs less and less.

Your electric company doesn't often think about the work it has done because it is too busy planning the work that lies ahead.

MORE FOR YOUR MONEY
 In the last 10 to 15 years, the engineering improvements and operating economies of your electric company have made it possible to cut the average price of household electricity just about in half. Many customers now using more household appliances, less light, a radio, and refrigerator pay very little more to operate all of those than they used to pay for light alone.
