Today's War Map

PLANES, SHIPS HELP BITTER COVER ACTION

German Victory Conceded in Flanders After Surrender

LONDON, May 30 (P)—Thousands of the first arrivals from the Flanders battle fields reached England tonight in warships, transports and hospital ships, with their uniforms torn and ragged, their faces grimy and powder-burned.

The ships were conveyed across the English channel through a tempest of bombs and machine gun fire.

By the Associated Press

Hard-pressed Allied forces flooded the canals surrounding Dunkerque, their sole remaining port of escape from Flanders, last night in a final desperate effort to block Adolf Hitler's victorious forces dogging their retreat to the sea.

German victory was conceded in the bitterly contested battle of Flanders, lost by the Allies as an immediate result of the Belgian army's surrender yesterday.

Near Centenarian Putnam Holds Father of Ciscoan Top Standing Succumbs at Clyde In League

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Ely and children left today for Clyde, following a message announcing the death of Mr. Ely's father, the Rev. George B. Ely, venerable Baptist minister, who died Tuesday, May 28, at the age of 99 years and 9 months.

George B. Ely was born August, 1840, in Arkansas, and came to Texas when 17 years of age. However, he returned to his native state, where he was married to Miss Letta Browne Eathery, to which union was born five children, two of whom being our fellow-townsmen, J. B. Ely, and Mrs. A. E. Baten, former pastor of the Cisco First Baptist church, who has made her home with her father since the death of her husband.

He was ordained a minister of the Baptist church early in life, and preached the gospel of Christ for 79 years. In connection with his pastoral duties, Mr. Ely did pioneer work in the organization of churches in this section of Texas, which included the churches at Clyde and Stephenville.

His trade was that of a gunsmith, whose services were in demand when he first came to west Texas. He also served as an Indian scout, and was a member of the Texas Rangers.

Many of his descendants survive him, including those of the fifth generation.

Funeral and burial will be at Clyde this afternoon.

An interesting discussion of the state game, fish and oyster commission program to improve fishing conditions in Lake Cisco and of the operation of the state fish hatchery here was presented at the Cisco Rotary club's noon luncheon today by Walton Baum, superintendent of the hatchery.

Roy Tuggle of the Cisco Daily Press, sang an Irish tenor solo, "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," which the club appreciated very much, insistently demanding an encore.

Vice President Edward Lee presided in the absence of President Sutton Crofts who, Mr. Lee said, will be away for about a month.

Boy's Skull Is Fractured When Car-Cycle Collide

Elton Ivie, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Ivie, was reported doing well at Graham sanitarium today following an operation on a fractured skull which he sustained when thrown from his bicycle in collision with an automobile on Highway 80 just west of Cisco yesterday afternoon.

Young Ivie and some companions were returning from a trip to a tank west of the city when, near the Cactus Garden on the highway just outside the city limits, his bicycle was struck by a car driven by a man from the Rio Grande valley who was en route to Gorman to visit relatives. He was thrown from the vehicle and struck the pavement head-first, fracturing the top of his skull. The driver of the car rushed him to Graham sanitarium where he underwent treatment.

15,000 MORE BASS PLACED IN LAKE CISCO

15,000 fingerling black bass were placed in Lake Cisco this morning by Fish Hatchery Supt. Walton Baum and Ass't Supt. L. A. Proctor.

The fish were transported from the fish hatchery to the lake in the new aerated cans, with which a special truck is equipped. The 43 five-gallon cans will carry four times as many fish as a former truck equipped with 10-gallon cans would transport. The cans are kept agitated with compressed air from a pump on the truck motor or, if the truck is standing, from a special auxiliary pump on the side.

Mr. Baum said that the Cisco hatchery, one of the medium-sized plants in the state, already has distributed upwards of half a million fish. It and the Kerrville hatchery, which is larger, have produced about the same amount, out-ranking other state hatcheries this year.

General Conference At Baptist Church

Departmental superintendents will hold a 30-minute conference with their workers. A. I. Skiles, general superintendent, has urged a large attendance for tonight's meeting.

Baccalaureate

THIS is the season of the baccalaureate sermon. Thousands of graduating classes all over the country, dressed in their Sunday best, are sitting in uncomfortable chairs and listening to the words of admonition and advice that launch them in the world.

Young people are pretty smart these days. There is probably little of what the paunchy gentlemen are telling them before the diplomas are passed that they don't know already.

They know that it is a pretty foul world. The daily reports from Europe are enough to assure them of that. They grew up during 10 years of depression before that, and they know that even without a war the world is no bed of roses.

WELL, who ever said it was?

There was a time, 40 or 50 years ago, when graduates could be spooned a little verbal sugar-and-water concoction at graduation time without too much harm being done.

It was a sugar-and-water world. Graduates were fairly sure that if they were diligent and reliable, they would get along. The life that stretched before them might get a little dull, but it was safe.

That is all over. For sugar and water, the world has substituted blood and tears. It is going to be hard going in the years ahead, and we think the young folks know it.

But if any of them are whimpering, we haven't heard that, either. They come into a world that just isn't good enough. They have the task of making it better.

WHAT at least is a challenge. Is it a world where force and brutality reign? Very well. It is also a world to be brought to order and justice.

Is it a world whose goods and whose opportunities are unfairly distributed? Very well. It is also a world where social justice remains to be achieved.

The United States this year does not offer its school graduates a soft snap. But the United States is still free. It does offer them the finest opportunity in the world to struggle, to build for tomorrow a better society than the world has yet seen.

The World's Fair abandons its "World of Tomorrow" title for the current season. Tomorrow having arrived, and turning out as it has, the fair is sorry it brought the whole thing up.

Now that it's all happened. Sumner Welles might tell us just what it was, if anything, that Europe's bigwigs confided to him about the future of the war.

It looks as if we can go on trusting ourselves for that 45 billion debt we owe us. With things the way they are abroad, there's no danger of us skipping the country.

In darkest Africa, a native inquires about how Roosevelt is getting along. It is not related which of the great travelers, Theodore or Eleanor, was meant.

One hears a great deal about the fifth columnist these days, and begins to wonder if he's syndicated.

Discovered in South Dakota is a county without a postoffice. Can it be our far-seeing politicians are getting short-sighted?

THE DEPARTMENT OF THE COUNTY CLERK

(W. S. Adamson, Judge; R. V. Galloway, Clerk)
Last week was jury week in the county court when two convictions for sale of illicit beverages of alcoholic content capable of producing intoxication. The usual fines were assessed of $100.
State vs. J. G. Webb, charged with aggravated assault, was given to the jury late Monday afternoon.
Marriage Licenses Issued
There was a slight improvement evident in the demand for marriage licenses in the county clerk's office during last week, probably occasioned by the continued boom of artillery of beligerents across the ocean, or perhaps, as the ideas of June approach.
Three of the seven brides of those issued marriage permits were widows, and one of whom was the result of a marital reconciliation. In this case it appears that a divorce was non-effective, as the groom confided to the license clerk that both realized within three days that they had made a mistake, but he said, "she had instituted divorce proceedings, and we thought the only method by which we could be reunited was after the decree had been issued, when we could re-narrary." Neither was informed that all that was necessary was to withdraw the application for divorce, dismiss the case, and resume their disrupted conjugal bliss.

Those issued marriage licenses were:
Thomas W. Hanyan and Genevieve Blondbi, Strawn.
Leo Smith, Gorman and Alene Kitchens, Eastland.
J. W. Winston and Stella Kitchens, Eastland.
Howard W. Taylor and Frankie Joe Kent, Rising Star.
J. F. Carter and Mrs. Reba O. Grimshaw, DeLeon.
Edward W. Keithley and Mrs. Josie Woodmansee, Lamesa.
Howard Lewallen and Mrs. Cleo Lewallen, Mings.

Matters in Probate

The following business was had in the probate court last week:
Mrs. Jettie Anita Dishroon, guardian of Lewis Stephens Word, minor, petition to sell lands of her ward, approved and order of sale issued. Guardian's report of sale of undivided interest in real estate specified in her original petition to H. H. Vaughn for $900 cash, approved by the court.
W. M. McMillan, petition for letters of guardianship of the estate of R. A. McMillan, incompetent. Waiver of Mrs. M. J. McMillan, wife, to serve as guardian of the community estate.
Mrs. Rebecca Sublett, guardian of Paul R. Sublett, incompetent, annual report.
Media Paulot, petition for letters of guardianship of Mrs. E. A. Guest, incompetent, approved, as it appeared to the court that Mrs. Guest was eligible for old age assistance, and was incompetent to make an application for this assistance, in which she was in need. Letters ordered issued when petitioner filed the required bond and subscribed to the oath. Bond filed and approved with M. P. Henning and Earl Conner as sureties.

"WE STORED 100 TONS OF ENSILAGE PER DAY"

"We ran four trucks and in three ten hour days filled our 300 ton trench silo," says Letz owner, J. E. Richardson, Texarkana, Texas.
"With seven teams hauling our No. 230X was not busy at times," reports E. G. Sims, Rockdale, Texas.
Big capacity? Yes—but equally important a Letz makes better, more uniform, more profitable ensilage. Stores 20 to 30% added tonnage in the same size silo.
"It turns out a quality of ensilage better than I have ever seen," says J. C. Harvey, Abilene, Texas.

ONLY a Letz with grain separator prepares cured sorghums or other bundle feeds correctly. It chops the roughage, at the same time takes out, grinds and regulates the use of grain in the feed mixture.

A Letz really doesn't cost—IT PAYS. Come in and let us show you more about this wonderful machine.

DANGER ROMANCE AHEAD

• SERIAL STORY
BY TOM HORNER COPYRIGHT, 1934, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
MONNIE MILES — her mania for fast driving almost wrecked her romance.
LARRY COLLINS — newspaper reporter, hunting for the murderer of his brothers.
MIKE BENTLEY — wealthy rancher, knew too much about auto accidents.

YESTERDAY, Larry hurries to the landing field, sees the plane taxi inside the hangar. He gets inside the building, when Bentley and the pilot go into the house. Larry hides in Bentley's plane. After the other ship takes off, Larry's horse is discovered. Bentley searches the hangar, orders Larry to come out of the plane.

CHAPTER XII
Larry backed out of the cabin of Bentley's plane, raised his hands, and turned slowly to face his captors.

"Collins!" Bentley shouted as he recognized Larry. "What are you doing in my plane?" His automobile was aimed at Larry's chest. Back of him, Bill stood, his arms cradling a sub-machine gun.

"I been hearing about your airplane, so I came up to take a look at it," Larry answered, playing his cowboy role to the last. "You and I haven't been friendly, so I didn't wait for an invitation. When Pete sent me out to watch the calves tonight I came on up here and took a look around. I never was in a plane before, so I crawled into yours. Mighty nice. Mighty comfortable." He laughed embarrassedly. "Guess I must have dropped off to sleep."

"You've been asleep? That's a good one!" Bentley's laugh echoed through the hangar. "How long you been here, Collins? When did you wake up?"

"I must have come in here about 10 o'clock. Tied my horse to a bush about half a mile or so down toward the canyon. First thing I knew this guy was yelling about something he'd found; then you said you were going to shoot up the plane, so I came on out when you said so."

"I didn't mean to hurt anything Mr. Bentley," Larry apologized. "I'm sorry if I caused any trouble."

"You've been sound asleep all the time?" Bentley demanded. "You haven't seen anyone, heard anything—"

"Wait a minute, Mike," Bill broke in. "This guy's no dumb cowpoke. I seen him someplace before. . . I got it! He's the guy we borrowed a car from after that bank job. . . the roadster, with New York plates. I told you about it, remember?"

The jig was up. No use pretending any longer. Larry grinned at Bill. "If your conscience was as good as your memory, Bill, you'd have a lot less to worry about."

"A cowboy from New York, huh?" Bentley eyed him coldly. "Just what is your racket, Collins?"

"Keeping a jump ahead of you, Bentley."

"Okay, wise guy, Bill, take care of him and dump him into the canyon." The gunman raised the tommy-gun. Larry waited. "I'm glad Monnie knows everything," he told himself, confident that she would carry on for Hugh and himself.

"Wait, Bill!" Bentley shouted. "Got a better idea. If a Hayhook hand were found dead, old Miles would raise nine kinds of trouble. We'd have to close up here."

He returned his attention to Larry, smiling self-confidently. "So you were riding night herd on calves tonight. Barnes must be worried about cattle thieves. He'll lose some tonight. And when we're finished with you, Collins, you'll be a dead cattle thief. The Colonel and Barnes and everyone else will thank me for getting rid of you. . . Yeah, much better that way."

"Take our truck, Bill—we'll say she stole it—cut through the canyon and pick off a dozen or so of the Hayhook's best. Knock a few more in the head, just to make old you're getting ready for a war."

"There'll be war—and plenty of it," the Colonel roared black of him. "You lost a truck. I lost 16 head of my best calves." He spun the cylinder of his antique .45, jammed it into the holster. "Bring some rope, Barnes."

"I'm way ahead of you, Colonel," Bentley laughed easily. "Figured the fellows who stole my truck might cut your herd. I sent my men up the river at dawn to cut them off. Usually these cattle thieves head right for the brakes. . . I'm driving up that way. Want to go along, Monnie?"

Monnie shook her head. "No, thanks, Mike. If I go, I'll ride with Dad."

"You'll stay right here," the Colonel ordered. "There's going to be a hanging, and you don't need to see it. Come on, Pete."

The telephone jingled. Barnes answered. "For you, Bentley."

Bentley took the receiver. "Listen. 'Good work, Bill. Keep him there. I'll tell the Colonel.' He turned from the telephone."

"Got your rustlers for you already, Colonel. The boys picked up the truck tracks, followed them into Lost canyon. One of the thieves is up there with the truck. . . dead. Bill brought the other back to my place?"

Monnie gasped. "Who? Which?" she whispered.

"The dead man's a fellow named Morrows, had him working for me. The other—the one up at my place—is Collins, your top Hayhook hand, Barnes."

"I'll still hear what Collins has to say," Barnes answered. "Boys took him of fthe truck, begging for his life." Bentley went on, enjoying Barnes' increasing resentment. "Morrow's put up a fight. Evidently they had it pretty well planned."

"We'll take the sheriff up to Lost canyon, identify the calves," the Colonel broke in. "Then come by and talk to Collins. Don't say anything about having Collins. I don't want the sheriff to know it yet. We'll let on like Collins escaped, help the sheriff hunt around the river for him."

"We'll be over at midnight to get him. There are trees on the Hayhook that have been decorated before. Guess they grew there just for hanging cow thieves." The old rancher stalked out, followed by his foreman. Bentley hesitated, as if he intended to speak to Monnie, then walked through the door.

A hundred thoughts raced through the girl's mind. She ran after Bentley.

"Wait, Mike! I'll go with you." Her face was grim, her lips set in a determined line as she came up to him. "I want to tell that low-down calf stealer just what I think of him."

WPA Employees

In the past several months (both pro and con) have come to my attention the possible value of the WPA and what it is meant to do.

In the past several months I have seen the value of the WPA in this district, in regard to the employees. I have a few things to make.

In addition the adult education project gives teachers of various courses the opportunity to make a living while following their chosen field and getting experience in this field.

Of course the fact that we get paid for this work is one of the most important and essential phases of this program, for after all we must live. But the opportunity to broaden my knowledge and experience in these many and various activities is not to be taken lightly. My sincere thanks to Uncle Sam for the chance!

every refugee concentration point.

"The French provinces from the Swiss-Italian border to the Atlantic are rapidly filling to the saturation point with homeless persons, arriving without food and clothing, seeking the likely possibility of adequate shelters. Unfortunately, because the influx of strangers began without warning, the village officials are unable to cope with the problem. 'I was told days ago to prepare for three hundred,' one village mayor told me today, 'now look at them. There are three thousand and more coming by the hour. What am I to do?'"

"Renewed confidence in the future of France is given when one sees the whole nation rallied seeking to solve the gigantic refugee problem. Hundreds of thousands of women, young girls, Boy Scouts, men too old for trenches, are laboring long, unrested hours in the first-aid stations, feeding stations and resthouses, carrying baggage to the exhausted evacuees. The French and Belgian Red Cross pooled the resources of manpower, regardless of the territorial limits of their nationalities. French peasants and aristocrats work side by side in the best democratic tradition. The American Red Cross is doing its full share.

"I repeat that a cable is inadequate in picturing the mass terror and suffering which results from the greatest battle of history raging for hours when this was written. I have seen cruel wars in China, Finland and Norway, but I have never seen suffering such as this. I witnessed the misery following the floods in the Mississippi valley and hurricanes of America's coast. There is no comparison between suffering in their wakes and the human misery which exists as the result of the unlimited warfare now blasting into bits the homes, towns and villages in what was one of the most beautiful regions on earth. Americans should be thankful for the existence of the Atlantic ocean."

A number of ladies of the town witnessed the demonstration.

Japan To "Honor" Chinese War Dead

PEIPING, North China, May 30 (AP)—At the suggestion of Prince Chichibu, brother of the Japanese emperor, war monuments for Chinese war dead will be created side by side with those for Japanese soldiers killed in China, Japanese officials said.

Such monuments will be raised in 25 cities throughout the occupied areas, where Japanese-sponsored Chinese regimes have been asked to "cooperate" in financing the project.

Successful Marriage Rules Are Suggested

AUSTIN, May 20.—If you want your marriage to last, Dr. C. W. Hall, Bible instructor at the University of Texas, advises:

Choose a wife or husband who has ideals and interests similar to your own.

Set up and abide by sound standards of courtship.

Don't ignore the economic factor, but minimize it by making other factors sound.

Don't marry until you have reached a degree of mental, physical and emotional maturity.

Fifteen years' experience teaching college students facts of "marriage and home-making"—first at S. M. U. and then at the University of Texas—together with pre-doctoral study of 300 happily married couples and 300 divorced couples qualifies Dr. Hall to speak authoritatively on such problems.

He urges sound standards of courtship, for "too much pre-marital petting tends to cause married couples to lose respect for each other later, and creates a liking for variety which may be disastrous for married life."

Don't marry too young, he recommends, but on the other hand, don't wait too long, for personality adjustments are easier for persons in their twenties than for those in the thirties, and fairly young marriages give couples a chance to be young with their children.

Dr. Hall's first class at the Wesley Bible chair, Methodist student center at the university here, was one of the earliest courses of the kind in the country, though more than 200 are now offered in the nation's higher education institutions.

Only three university students enrolled under him in 1933-34. This year the class numbers 304.

bringing the total number of his students for the six years to 1,247.

Basic topics which he considers with his students are contributions of marriage to personality development, the most advantageous time for marriage, factors to be considered in choosing a mate, standards of courtship, post-marital adjustments, and the far-reaching influences of home life.

In addition to helping students prepare for happy marriages, he believes the real problem is "to teach them to create homes where their children will acquire the foundation they in turn will need for happy marriage."

Allies Flood...

freighter Uruguay. The other victims were the 7,400-ton British tanker Telena and the 5,000-ton French freighter Marie Jose.

King George VI sent this message to the commander-in-chief of the British Expeditionary force:

"The hearts of everyone of us at home are with you and your magnificent troops in this hour of peril."

A 35-mile stretch between the flaming French port of Dunkerque, still reported in Allied hands, and narrow "back door" for the Allies' escape—either across the channel to England or south along the coast to join the main French armies entrenched on the 200-mile Somme river front.

Fighting at Lille

While the German high command reported the capture of Lille, a French war ministry spokesman said the French rear guard was fighting German troops in the streets there as the main northern forces retreated to the west. Presumably these Frenchmen fighting at Lille were the forces which the Germans claim to have cut off from the main Allied northern armies.

It was definitely apparent that the encircled Allies had abandoned hope of smashing through the German corridor to the sea—and their only remaining avenue of escape, via the channel, was imperiled by the fall of Ostend, left defenseless by the sudden capitulation of between 300,000 and 500,000 Belgian troops at the command of King Leopold III.

Berlin predicted that the Allied army in Flanders would be "wiped out or behind German barbed wire" within two days.

"On to Paris!" was the cry heard there—not an invasion of England as the next goal—as the German press unleashed bitter tirades against French "torture of nazi prisoners."

The Allied retreat to the channel, culminating a great battle, was described in London as being carried out "in complete order," with the morale of the troops "quite unshaken" despite a terrific, continuous strafing by bombing and machine-gunning German planes.

Casualties

The true story of casualties is yet to come. Enormous losses in men and machines, possibly surpassing anything in World War, have been indicated in dispatches as by the French report that the Germans have lost at least 2,000 tanks and over 2,000 planes, or half of the nazi first-line aviation.

The German high command's recital of cities captured, stormed or encircled in yesterday's whirlwind sweep includes:

CAPTURED—Lille, France, (normal pop. 200,000) which changed hands three times in the first three months of the World War and then was held by Kaiser Wilhelm's imperial army for the next four years. (Paris reported the Allies' rear guard was fighting German troops in the streets of Lille).

Ostend, Belgium—Strategic Belgian channel port, one of the trapped Allies' main bases of supplies.

Armentieres, France—Famed in the American army song of "Madelmoiselle from..." in the world war.

REACHED—Dixmude, Belgium—15 miles east of Ostend.

ENVELOPED—Bruges and Langemark, Belgium.

STORMED—Ypres, France—20 miles from the coast, known to British Tommies in the world war as "Wipers," scene of bloody see-saw fighting.

Kemmel—Southwest of Ypres. Dunkerque, France—Key channel port, scene of street fighting. The Allies said the port of Calais, claimed by the Germans, was still uncaptured.

Veterinary Here Wednesday to Immunize Dogs

Dr. Ross Hodges, veterinary of Ranger, will be in Cisco Wednesday afternoon to vaccinate dogs against rabies. Chief of Police Purdue said today. Dr. Hodges will be here at 1:30 o'clock. Chief Purdue urged all dog owners in the city to cooperate.
