'BRITAIN WILL WIN,' CHURCHILL DECLARES

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

Although the fact has not been in for much attention, the current defense program, the construction of speed-making highways is an important part of national military scheme of defense. The building of these was one of the primary aspects of the Nazi armament program. Broad, straight concrete ribbons moving toward every probable theater of war were constructed, not to the benefit of German domestic business or tourists, but to make it possible to move German forces and motorized equipment swiftly from point to point. Without a system of highways in Germany the startling blitzkriegs which subdued Poland, Denmark, southern Norway and the Low Countries would not have been possible.

In our own country the construction of good, straight highways is just as essential to any satisfactory scheme of defense. Perhaps it is more so, considering the comparative smallness of our armed forces, the widely separated locations where attacks must be met, and the necessity, therefore, of moving troops and materials quickly and in force.

Particularly it is true that the Mexican border and the northern California area are regarded as potential theaters of attack of extreme significance. Already there is much talk of fifth column activities among the people of our southern neighbor and it is not altogether out of reason that some startling coup would, in the case of any trouble with a foreign power, place this country at the necessity of meeting an enemy there. Swift transport of columns across the western coast would be necessary in such an event.

The importance of the so-called Bankhead highway as a military route is well recognized. Its improvement as such, however, has not been commensurate with the vital part it would play in the nation's defenses and in an offensive campaign in the event of war. In the vicinity of Fort Worth and other cities where traffic congestion has compelled attention to the need, considerable improvement has been done. But from the Strawn junction westward the highly important route has been left to patch-working and even make-shift, while the resources of the highway department, even the federal aid which is extended on such routes, have been employed more politically significant projects.

It is high time that political considerations were abandoned in favor of common sense preparations, and one such is a complete reconstruction of this vital route, if necessary in two lanes.

STRONGER US ATTITUDE IS IN EVIDENCE

Strengthening of Monroe Doctrine Indicated Now

WASHINGTON, June 4 (AP)—A strengthening of the Monroe doctrine to forestall any attempt by a victorious Germany to claim title to British, French or Dutch possessions in the western hemisphere appeared in the making with administration backing.

Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee and Chairman Bloom (D-NY) of the house foreign affairs committee introduced resolutions in congress toward this end. Bloom said the measure had the support of Secretary Hull.

The resolution declared the United States "would not recognize any transfer and would not acquiesce in any attempt to transfer any geographical region in the western hemisphere from one non-American power to another non-American power."

Other developments bearing on the war and national defense were many.

(1) The government asked five great automobile manufacturers to begin or expand their production of engines to power the armada of fighting planes contemplated under the defense program.

(2) The CAA announced that it would expand its training program so that the nation would have 45,000 new plane pilots by July 1.

(3) A bill authorizing an 11 percent increase in the U. S. navy's combat fleet was passed by the senate and sent along to the house for action on minor senate amendments. This measure also raises the maximum legal limit on the naval air force to 4,500 planes and clears the path for a $35,000,000 appropriation to hasten ship building.

(4) From Senator Connally (D-Tex) came a suggestion that if there is a "fifth column" initiation in South America, the United States should send warships there.

(5) Senator Clark (D-Mo) asserted that he believed the British ambassador to the United States, Lord Lothian, was disseminating propaganda that "unless we enter the war the British might have to surrender their navy. 'If there is any danger that the navy will be surrendered, Clark added, "that is all the more reason for keeping our own navy as close to our shores as possible."

(6) A bill was presented to congress to carry out President Roosevelt's controversial request for authority to call out the national guard and other reserves in case of emergency.

(7) Stephen Early, White House secretary, said the president intended to "impound" certain money appropriated for non-defense purposes, with the idea of having almost $200,000,000 returned from various agencies to the treasury in the next fiscal year.

Informed persons believed the Pittman and Bloom resolutions were offered at this time as notice to Germany, since both their main points are already a part of the American government's practice.

Home---For a While

Happy to be home this English soldier and his kitten mascot, safe for a time from Hitler's onslaught. The man and his pet were saved from death with other members of the BEF in the red fields of Flanders. They were removed from the Nazi trap by transport while the war's greatest air battle took place over their heads in Dunkirk.

335,000 Saved From Flanders, 30,000 Lost Commons Told

LONDON, June 4 (AP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill, speaking in the house of commons today, said that Great Britain will carry this war to victory, "if necessary, for years—if necessary, alone," despite "the colossal" defeat in Flanders.

The French army has been weakened and Belgium lost, he recounted.

The deliverance of troops from Dunkerque, he said, was largely due to the work of the royal air force.

He said that 30,000 men of the BEF had been killed, wounded and missing, but added, 335,000 allied troops have been saved.

He told a cheering house that Great Britain "shall not be content with a defensive war."

"We will reconstitute and build up the BEF once again under its gallant commander in chief, Lord Gort," Churchill said.

ITALIAN CABINET APPROVES WAR MEASURES

ROME, June 4 (AP)—Premier Mussolini's cabinet approved today the series of measures to prepare the nation for war, but left unanswered the question of when Italy would enter the conflict.

Ministers moved to extend war preparations to Italy's African empire, to strengthen her navy and tighten discipline in war industries.

Presbyterian School Begins On Monday

The Presbyterian daily vacation Bible school began Monday morning with an attendance of 61. It was announced today. The school is composed of three departments, with the following leaders: Beginners, Mrs. P. R. Warwick; primary, Mrs. N. H. Bizard; and junior, Mrs. Leith Morris.

Wednesday will be the final day for enrollment, it was pointed out, and those who wish to take the course were urged to be present tomorrow. Anyone who does not have a way to the church is asked to call Mrs. W. F. Watson, who will provide transportation.

Cox Expects Cisco Rodeo to Be Main Event of Season

BEST STRING OF STOCK TO BE SUPPLIED

"The Cisco rodeo will be our big show this year," said Ollie Cox, boss of the Double Heart ranch and premier Texas rodeo impresario, who was here today with his wife and two children, Billy, 11, and Andrea Lynne, 7, en route from Paris, Texas, to their home near Sweetwater. "It will come on a holiday and we are bringing to it the best line of stock that we can pick from the Double Heart ranch. It will be tough, I can promise you that."

The Cisco rodeo will be held July 3 and 4.

Cox has more than 150 Brahmas and 65 ponies from which to choose. Incidentally, he brought ten head of Brahma calves to Cisco last night and turned them over to the Cisco Goat Roping club. The club will rope the calves tonight.

Before playing Paris, Cox held a rodeo at Floydada, Texas, and one at Matador. Both towns acknowledged that they entertained the biggest crowds in their histories for these events.

Since showing here last year Cox has added more stock to his string. Several new bulls have been added, including "New York Herald," an all white animal which has never been ridden this year.

A rodeo at Spur on June 15 is the last one Cox will hold before coming to Cisco. He will spend the intervening time in

New Minister Accepts Call to Church Here

The Rev. J. R. Wright of Stuttgart, Ark., has accepted a call to the pastorate of the First Christian church and will assume his duties here about July 1, it was announced today. The Rev. Mr. Wright was called by the congregation Sunday evening. He will follow the Rev. Clark W. Lambert, who recently accepted a call to Hillsboro.

A graduate of Texas Christian university, the Rev. Mr. Wright has been in the ministry for about 35 years. His acceptance of the Cisco call was done in order to move his family to a higher altitude, especially for the benefit of his wife and daughter.

Stuttgart is in the rice growing section of Arkansas.

Rev. and Mrs. Wright have two children, their daughter, 18, and a son, 15. The boy is a high school student. The daughter has completed high school.

Chamber of Commerce Board Meets Tonight

The board of directors of the Cisco chamber of commerce will meet in regular session this evening at 7:30 at the chamber of commerce offices. All members of the board were urged to attend.

Election of a secretary, postponed from the previous meeting, is an important matter of business to be considered.

M'ELREATH IS DRILLING AT 1,000 FEET

The McElreath No. 1 of Groover & Rose and Jones & Stansley, McCleskey sand test four miles south of Cisco, was drilling at around 1,000 feet today. Operations were progressing smoothly.

This well is about one mile northeast of the old Leverage well. It is located on 2,000-acre block.

Hour For Lions Club Box Supper Changed

The hour for the Lions club box supper tonight, previously scheduled for 8 o'clock, has been changed to 7 o'clock, it was announced today by Lion Pres. A. G. Tuttle.

Members and their families were urged to be in the parks at Lake Cisco promptly at 7 o'clock, when the basket lunches will be auctioned off.

P. R. Warwick transacted business in Abilene Monday.

Anchors and Charts

In this shifting and shifty world it is hard to know what a man can cling to, and what new ideas he may be compelled to accept overnight.

We know that policies grounded in wishful thinking about the dead past are no good. We know that the world is changing, and that we must almost daily adapt ourselves to new conditions. "Adapt or die," the old biology motto, is as true of today's political world as it is of the world of living things.

Yet there must be some things on which we will not yield, change, or compromise. What is permanent and good, to be held fast as an anchor holds a ship at rest? What is changing and new, to be reappraised with every new development as a ship captain charts his course anew with changing weather, his eye always on the port of destination? These things we must think of, consciously and clearly.

The one thing which America will never abandon, on which we must base everything else—a tall building is raised on foundations of bed-rock, is this: never surrender freedom.

That does not mean that the people may not themselves impose on themselves disciplines made necessary by the times. But it must be their own disciplines, prescribed by themselves in an orderly manner.

We will not allow a foreign soldier to set foot in the United States. We will not allow one to set foot in a place where he would have an undue advantage in a later effort to invade the United States. We will not allow foreign governments or systems to exercise decisive influences on our own conduct of our own affairs. We will not allow native leaders to fasten tyranny on us, a free people.

THE means to these ends will vary, as the captain's course varies according to wind and weather. It is unwise to hold to traditional views, traditional means, traditional techniques. These will change, and must change in the new world that is shaping itself.

But our eyes must never for one moment leave the goal—a free people conducting its own affairs unshaken and undaunted, secure in the faith that government of the people, by the people, and for the people is right and good, and will stand when military tyrannies are fallen and forgotten.

Politics is defined as the science of government, but it takes a seance to figure out the next moves of the game.

Think twice before you speak, caution our elders, unawared that such action is what brought on the epidemic of doubletalk.

With the nazis in control of the air, and the British of the sea, it would seem the meek neutrals were about to come into their inheritance.

Now that the allies are through juggling prime ministers and generals, maybe they can buckle down to this business of waging war.

The kiss, say the psychologists, is not a natural caress. Can it be man has at last found a way to improve upon nature?

Into retirement at the ripe age of 11 goes Shirley Temple. And can those be circles we see forming under Baby Sandy's eyes?

Agriculture's new starchless potato can never go far. The nervous gourmet would always fear it was about to collapse, like one of those shirts finished by the wife.

Englishmen are said to use coal dust for fattening pigs, this being a short cut toward eventual smoked hams.

The ukulele is revealed as having originated in Portugal. At last a strain removed from the fair name of Hawaii.

Use Caution in Getting Suntan Warns Doctor

AUSTIN, June 4 (Spe).—"Use caution in getting your suntan this season," is the advice of Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer.

"Under a misconception as to the amount of sun they can take without ill effect, many persons thoughtlessly submit their unprotected faces, backs and legs to over-exposure to sun and suffer painfully, sometimes seriously, as a result," Dr. Cox pointed out. "Restraint in acquiring a suntan is advised. Exposure of ten minutes the first day should be ample, and the amount of time spent in the sun can be increased on a day-to-day basis as the skin becomes accustomed to sunlight."

Advising sun-bathers to "learn their limits" Dr. Cox further pointed out that individual differences may determine the length of time that a person can stay in the sun without being burned. Before becoming too ardent over prolonged sunbathing, one would do well to remember that many a vacation has been ruined because the blistering and illness-producing power of the sun's rays on tender skin was insufficiently appreciated.

Some persons are susceptible to sunburn, but don't tan; other individuals tan over a longer period, but the same general rule applies to all—"don't overdo."

Most sunburns, according to Dr. Cox, are similar to first-degree burns, but some, as the result of overexposure, reach the blistering stage characteristic of a second-degree burn.

Sadler Will Recommend 7-Day Order

AUSTIN, June 4 (P).—Railroad Commissioner Jerry Sadler said Monday that he would recommend increased production and a return to seven-day operation for the east Texas oil field.

To balance an approximate 50,000-barrel daily increase in east Texas flow, Sadler asserted he would recommend that Gulf coast fields producing crude which is converted into low octane gasoline be cut about that amount.

His announcement followed a ruling by the supreme court of the United States, which sustained an old commission order prorating production in the big field, which Sadler interpreted as giving the commission authority to write another production order. The suit was brought by Rowan & Nichols of Fort Worth.

Currently the east Texas pool is closed 14 days monthly and its net daily average allowable is 368,000 barrels. Sadler said the formula he would apply to the field would contain a "per well minimum," but declined to elaborate.

The order the court sustained included a per well minimum and potential factor. The court also agreed to review a suit brought by Humble Oil and Refining company on the current order, which in addition to a 20-barrel per well minimum distributes the remaining field allowable or proratable oil on the basis of potential, but

SERIAL STORY AN EYE FOR A GAL

BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

CHAPTER I

ROSSY McAfee laid his bag of baseball bats and ancient telescope grip on the ground and gawped at the wrought-iron arch posts. The iron letters, "Lincoln College," were two feet high.

Rossy stared hungrily at the bronze figure of the Rail Splitter in the drive oval. He had had two ambitions in his gaunt soul—one to make the big time as a ball pitcher; the other, to find the man who had killed his father and exact an eye for an eye.

Now he was overwhelmed with a third, to become an educated man. Standing there, a Lincolnian figure himself, he seemed to be stepping across the threshold of a new life.

The campus seemed deserted. He had expected to see hundreds, maybe thousands, of gay students chasing hither and yon. Instead, all the life he found was a professor's cow chewing some dead grass.

"Well, I do declare!" Rossy muttered. "Ain't I at the right place?" He had come at the opening of the spring quarter because he had not got his pigs sold until after the opening in the fall. But there was that legend, Lincoln College. This must be the right place, but there was something wrong with the time.

HE heard a chattering clattering roar behind him, faintly at first, then increasingly louder. Before he could collect his wits, it was upon him. He whirled around, saw a girl speeding along the sidewalk toward him. The noise came from wheels on her feet. She must have been going 200 miles an hour.

The girl yelled, tried to turn. Steel grated on concrete. Rossy jumped this way and that trying to decide which way she was going. She plunged on toward him, shouting for him to get out of the way. She turned again, grasping at the air, and Rossy jumped the same way.

Rossy jumped this way and that, trying to decide where she was going to hit. In an instant they were all piled up—legs, skates, arms, and grip. Rossy was yelling.

He seemed to have helped break the girl's fall. They tumbled together and he helped her to her feet. She rubbed her bruise on her forehead.

man's look. He moved a slow hand across his eyes and stared again, remembered himself, and smiled. "I see. You're the ball pitcher from Hell'n-Damnation Holler. Coach Hurd told me about you. Come this way. Here—let me help you with your grips."

He took the bag of bats and led the way to the rear of the gym. "The athletes were not expected for registration until Monday, but Coach will take care of you all right." They entered by a back door and went through a labyrinth of showers and lockers. At a door the man knocked. "This is Rossy McAfee, Coach," he said when a sleepy head appeared in the door.

Patrol Escort Assured For Legion Head

EASTLAND, June 4 (Spe).—Capt. Hutchinson of the State Highway patrol of Abilene has assured H. J. Tanner, manager of the Eastland chamber of commerce, that motorcycle police would be available Thursday, June 6, to escort National Commander Raymond Kelly from Cisco to Eastland, where he is to speak at a banquet that evening.

Tanner and Henry Pullman, post commander of the Dulin-Daniels post, said that securing the escort completed arrangements for one of the biggest events of its kind, and that everything is in readiness for the commander's visit.

A number of towns in this part of the country are cooperating to make the visit and the banquet a success. Ranger, Breckenridge, Cisco and Eastland will have out their high school bands to parade as Kelly reaches town. The Ranger national guard unit will also be on hand to form an escort.

Many Abilene legionnaires have planned to attend the meeting. T. E. Brownlee, Parramore post commander, has announced that those already making reservations to attend include himself, M. Shaw, T. N. Carswell, W. F. Pennington, O. R. Rodden, John R. Smith, James W. Mayfield, W. A. R. Monger and C. E. Peake. It is likely that many more will also attend from Abilene-it was indicated.

Germans Are Shifting Weight of Military

PARIS, June 4 (P).—The Germans shifted their military weight last night from northwestern France, overriden in the battles of the Meuse and Flanders, to new theaters of action.

Except for the Nazi raid on Paris and continued fierce attacks on Allied forces at Dunkerque, there was comparative calm in the war zones for the first time since the invasion of Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg, May 10.

Semi-official reports said 280,000 Allied troops, including 120,000 French, had been moved from Dunkerque, which the Germans penetrated momentarily.

The French high command said the Germans were adding reinforcements on the right bank of the Aisne river and at the same time "tightening contact with outposts" west of the Saar river.

He added dourly, "And a lot of other things too. But she shore is ambitious for a feller! Plenty of temper and color. She'll shore make a go-getter for some feller about my size."

"So it's all arranged, eh? You're going to get book-larning and make the big leagues and then the wedding bells will ring, eh?"

"Well, if Hannah has her say-so, it'll come to that. Er, Coach, who was that that gal that almost run over me with her foot wagons out at the gate just now?"

"Foot wagons! Ah!" Then he understood and laughed. "Those are skates. Why, that's Dr. Tollivar's daughter, Judy."

"Doctor—what kind of doctor air he—hoss, tooth-denist, man doctor, or what?"

"Doc Tollivar is a doctor of philosophy."

"Never heard of that ailment. It ain't catching, air it?"

high in these parts. You'll live off the fat of the land, you bet. Know where you're going to live?"

Pleased at all this sudden evidence of hospitality, Rossy shook his head. "Where?"

"Why, son, at Dr. Tollivar's live?"

Yes, sir, right with Doc and his daughter! And boy is Judy Tollivar

LANE BURIAL ASSOCIATION

Wanted: A few more members for the burial association.

We need 500 members—We lack just a few having this number which is necessary to get our charter. If you would like to be one of the members of this association call LANE BURIAL ASSOCIATION (Phone 167) or see Mrs. Leon McPherson—1300 Ave. L, our local agent.

We sincerely believe when you have investigated this association and find what it offers you and at a rate so reasonable that practically everyone can afford to carry the protection you will not hesitate to join. Ages 1 month to 80 years. Operating under approval of the board of insurance commissioners of Texas.
