FRENCH BATTLE BITTERLY TO HOLD NAZIS

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

The news says that one of the latest planes is being delivered to the Ford company so that Ford may make a study to determine whether the company can produce it in mass quantities. This action means that the administration has taken Ford at his word, and has further reversed its belated-war-scare attitude toward the big industrialists. How circumstances do alter cases. The Corcorans and the rest of the milk-fed youngsters of the New Deal get precious little attention in the news. In an emergency their patron has turned to the experience, the wisdom and the resources of the industrialists whom they were going to discipline and perhaps reduce in a new order of "mature" economy.

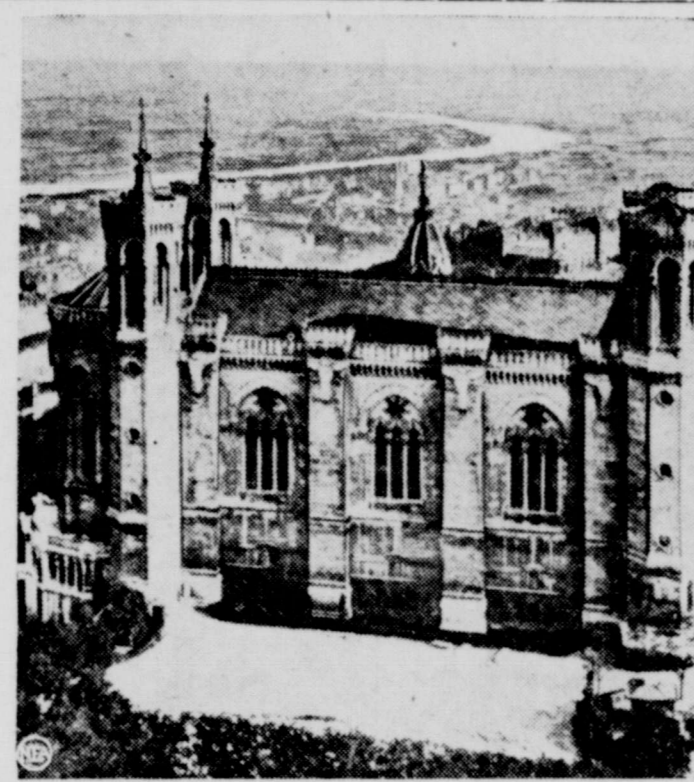

And it looks as if President Roosevelt were sincere in his purpose to give the nation the best of both worlds. He has summoned to discuss important phases of the defense program—Stettinius, Knudson and others—the real authority. It is true that it is appropriate to suggest any uncertainty concerning the presidential intentions, but one must remember the baiting which "big business" received in the past. On the other hand, if, as appears, Mr. Roosevelt is sincere in his purpose to mobilize the industrial leadership upon which he has called to help develop national defense, we must give the president credit for the ability to do the very thing which he promised at the outset of his administration he would abandon an experiment course without reluctance and apology if such proves inadequate or a better one found. If in this emergency he passes by a Corcoran or a Stettinius who is target of the New Deal lawyers and reformers with the tacit approval, he is credited with interest in getting one and less in saving his way in everything to the column ventures, if the president is tough with such a will find America fully and efficiently with the aid in getting the men he has read the industrial rearmament know their jobs and in which they will Ford can build 1,000

Bill West and Hightower Oil company are making a hole on their No. 1 Bill Evans at 250 feet on a 900 foot test in the northeast corner of the Mary Anthony survey, two miles southwest of Cottonwood, it was announced Saturday.

Bill McDonald Opens Campaign at Eastland

EASTLAND, June 8.—William H. McDonald opened his campaign for railroad commissioner here in his home town Saturday night with a driving speech that reviewed his record as a public official, fixed his stand on gas rates, outlined his views on the oil situation and placed him specifically in favor of an increase of the Texas truck load limit.

Mr. McDonald was invited to make his opening address at Eastland by the mayor of this city, C. W. Hoffman, who acted as master of ceremonies for a program on which appeared Milburn McCarty, attorney and president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, who introduced the speaker.

Declaring that his policy as land commissioner made it possible for the small independent operator to develop state oil properties, Mr. McDonald said that, during his administration "broke up the virtual monopoly that the big boys had been enjoying."

Gas Rate Promise
McDonald said he would do everything in his power to lower gas rates when they can be justified under the law and the facts.

FORD TO STUDY PLAN FOR MASS PRODUCTION

Will Attempt to Turn Out 1,000 Planes Daily

WASHINGTON, June 8 (AP).—The army put one of its fastest pursuit planes at Henry Ford's disposal Saturday to let him determine whether his mass production genius can get aerial fighters rolling off assembly lines at the amazing rate of 1,000 a day.

The sudden completion of arrangements to have the pursuit ship delivered to Ford engineers in Detroit Monday momentarily distracted defense program attention from the sharp cleavage of congressional opinion on President Roosevelt's applause for a newspaper editorial urging compulsory military training for the nation.

The unofficial debate on compulsory training, however, was off to a heated start, and there were indications of additional legislative dissension over administration plans which would, in effect, make a large amount of World War equipment available for allied purchase by turning it back to the manufacturers.

Roosevelt told his press conference Friday that the arms and munitions stores were deteriorating, but they still had an immediate value. Although he did not specify the size of the stores, unofficial military estimates were that enough rifles to supply an army of almost 2,000,000 might be turned in.

The announcement that a pursuit plane would be sent to Detroit was made by the war department Friday night. Assistant Secretary Louis Johnson said that Henry Ford had telegraphed a request to see the ship "as soon as possible."

Ford, pioneer in automotive mass production, asserted two weeks ago that, given certain conditions, his plant in six months could turn out 1,000 standard-type daily.

The statement immediately aroused interest both here and in London, and there was evidence that Britain, anxious to

300 GERMAN TANKS BREAK THROUGH LINE

Entrapment by French Forces Seems to Be Probable

PARIS, June 8 (AP).—The French fought the invading Germans bitterly tonight on both banks of the Oise river, the struggle centering in Ourscamp forest south of Noyon, 48 miles north of Paris.

Action was in the center of the Weygand line, where the Nazis struck hard after between 200 and 300 of their tanks broke the French left flank, crossing the Oise river, and raced south nearly 20 miles to Forges-les-Eaux, midway between the river and Rouen.

The Somme front, in general, the French declared, was holding on a line roughly seven to 12 miles south of its starting point. German armored units which broke the left flank went around the French support points without an infantry follow-up, and their entrapment seemed probable.

Polish Artillery Aids
It was disclosed that Polish artillery now is pounding away at the Nazi side by side with the French.

The admiralty announced that the air raid on Berlin was in reprisal for the recent bombing of Paris.

Forges-Les-Eaux is nearly 40 miles from Abbeville on the Somme river, where the right wing action of the German offensive started three days ago.

The French war ministry admitted that the Nazi push, aimed at the center of the French defenses guarding the broad Oise valley which leads to Paris, had reached Carpefont, only 53 miles northeast of Paris, Friday.

(The French government radio estimated that 400 German tanks were destroyed Friday. This would make 800 of Germany's original force of 2,000 reported destroyed since the battle of the Somme began.)

The results of the drive against Forges-Les-Eaux were still undisclosed here, but military commentators said the allies were engaged in a "tank hunt," aimed at annihilation of machines and crews.

EXPECT ITALY TO ENTER WAR WITHIN WEEK

ROME, June 8 (AP).—Italy's entrance into the war against Great Britain and France within a week was foreseen Saturday in usually well-informed sources.

These informants said Italian action probably would start on the night of June 13 or June 14—next Thursday or Friday—with an announcement by Premier Mussolini after Italy has moved.

This seemed to preclude the possibility of a speech by Il Duce Monday as rumored in Switzerland.

"The Italian people are on the eve of a solemn event," declared Relazioni Internazionale, authoritative fascist weekly, which, it said, will be a "war of supreme independence."

It echoed Mussolini's motto: "Better to live today as a lion than 100 years as a sheep."

Six Reasons
For the sake of foreigners, the weekly said, it listed six reasons why Italy is going to war:

1. Italy has followed a peace policy for 18 years seeking to "balance positions, shorten distances and impose a new, more humane political formulas.
2. France and England have always opposed Mussolini's policies.
3. When the "Italian people asked for land to work they were offered deserts."
4. Everything Italian, in domestic policy as well as in the international field, has been ostentatiously under-valued by the French and English.
5. "Democratic Europe, which has deprecated the Italian people, can only be fought. The Italian people have reached the limit of their patience. . . . This war must solve territorial questions for the Italian people, which are Nice, Corsica, Tunisia and Jibuti."
6. "The life of the Italian people is subject to French and English control. Italy must insure her independence on the sea."

A report that former Premier Pierre Laval of France is in Rome trying to reach an Italo-French settlement persisted Saturday, but, as always for the last month, it was denied in French circles.

Evangelist and Singer

East Baptist Revival Will Begin Today

A revival of two weeks will begin at the East Cisco Baptist church today, it was announced by the Rev. Russell Dennis, pastor of the church. Services will be held twice daily, the Rev. Dennis stated, with preaching hours at 10 a. m. and 8 p. m.

The Rev. Graves Darby, noted evangelist from Waco, will bring the messages. The Cisco church was very fortunate in securing such a well-known evangelist for the revival, the Rev. Dennis said. Musical selections and singing will be under the direction of the Rev. A. V. Bradley of Fort Worth, an accomplished accordionist, who Cisco to be with Mrs. Rice.

White Declines Presidency Of Hardin-Simmons

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 8 (AP).—Dr. W. R. White, pastor of the First Baptist church here, Saturday declined the presidency of Hardin-Simmons university in Abilene, Texas.

Dr. White, in a telegram refusing the post, indicated "facts and factors" had arisen subsequent to his election two weeks ago to influence his decision. At the church, spokesmen made it clear a demonstration by representatives of the 6,000-member congregation played an important part.

Dr. White admitted he at first was "strongly inclined" toward the position in Texas, where many years of his ministry have been spent. He conferred with representatives of the school as late as Friday, but did not announce his decision until Saturday afternoon.

Employees at the church indicated virtually all of Dr. White's time had been required to receive delegations and discuss his decision with church members since the post had been proffered. Several leaders from Texas, where for several years he was executive secretary of the state convention, flooded the church office with telegrams and telephone calls urging him to accept.

Dr. White has been here since 1935, and, as chairman of the united drays, has taken an active part in anti-liquor fight in Oklahoma.

Sister of Cisco Woman Seriously Ill

Mrs. F. E. Rice of Bridgeport, Illinois, is reported seriously ill at the home of her sister, Mrs. B. E. Morehart, with whom she has been staying for the past several months.

Mr. Rice and their children, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Rice, and daughter, Constance, also of Bridgeport, were summoned to Cisco to be with Mrs. Rice.

ALLIED FLIERS BOMB BERLIN FIRST TIME

PARIS, June 8 (AP).—The French admiralty announced Saturday that a squadron of naval bombers raided factories in the suburbs of Berlin Friday night.

It was the first time allied fliers had dropped bombs on Berlin, although the German capital has been scouted and showered with propaganda leaflets since the start of the war.

Funeral of Oscar Reich Held Friday At Christ Church

A large number of sorrowing relatives and friends paid tribute Friday at 2:30 p. m., to the memory of Oscar G. Reich, 51, native of Eastland county. Impressive funeral services were held at Christ Lutheran church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. E. E. Steyer.

A brief service was held at the grave, with the Neil Lane Funeral home in charge of arrangements. The pall bearers were Karl Wenge, Karl Weiser, Theodore Eifert, William Ziehr, Lee Leiske and Henry Stroebel.

Oscar Reich was born in what is now the Reich community, January 16, 1889, a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Reich, pioneer family of the Cisco country. He had resided in that community all his life.

In 1913 he was married to Miss Anna Steffen, to whom five children were born, two daughters and three sons, Minnie, Bertha, Ernest, Martin and Karl. These, with his mother and several sisters and brothers, survive, besides a host of other relatives.

Many from Cisco attended the obsequies.

Interest in Church Revival Continues

The revival meeting at the Church of Christ is to continue through Wednesday night of this week, it was announced Saturday by church officials. The preaching is being done by Evangelist Claude McClung of Fort Worth, and inspirational messages have featured every service.

A large crowd is anticipated for today's services, many out-of-town people having indicated that they would be present. Church members and visitors plan to bring a basket lunch and go in a body after the services to Lake Cisco for a picnic spread. The public was cordially invited to attend.

Let Congress Stay and Saw Wood

JUST at the time when everybody else is being urged to work harder and to slug away all the more earnestly at important business, Congress proposes to pack up and go home.

Month after month of work is tiresome for congressmen, it is said. So it is for all of us. Congressmen have campaigning to do this fall, they protest. The country isn't interested in that.

The country is interested in getting its work done.

The country is interested in seeing that the armament program is actually followed through and results shown.

The country is interested in seeing that arrangements are made to pay for armament. It is ready to be taxed for security.

For congress merely to appropriate any requested number of billions of dollars and then go gaily home is not good enough.

CONGRESS may have its faults. But they are the faults of the people. Congress IS the people in action. To argue that its presence in Washington would somehow hamper and handicap the preparedness effort seems foolish. We have not yet reached the point which England reached when it turned everything over to Churchill.

Congress is highly valuable in times like these as a sort of national listening-post and broadcasting station in Washington. Its presence should have a steadying influence on the president, a constant reminder that he is responsible to the people, a constant source of strength in the thought that the "other half of the defense team" is still pulling.

A TAX bill to take care of increased military expenditures should be passed before congress adjourns. The old political belief always was that to levy taxes in an election year was unpopular. This year things are different. The nation is aroused. It may be more unpopular not to levy taxes than to levy them.

The European situation cannot be predicted 24 hours in advance. The rise of any morning's sun may look upon some completely unforeseen situation. Congress, direct representative of the people, should be on hand, not at the discretion of the president to recall it, but because, like everybody else these days, it is sticking to its job.

Up Moscow way, the chemists have perfected a silk made from tar. Now when the Russian maid gets a run in her stocking, she need only rub a piece of the black top highway on her leg to patch it.

In Germany, it is a crime to call a man an "Englishman." And also, over there, to be one.

Different Worlds

the day when his land will be free again.

The same undoubtedly could be said for all these other men without countries, but the fact that some still owe allegiance to nations who openly welcomed the nazis with outstretched arms makes it impossible for them officially to admit anything but that their governments acted wisely and well.

Veteran of these struggles to free little lands from vassalage is Mr. Potocki, who started working for Polish independence 35 years ago when he was 16 years old and now takes up where he left off when the World War struck the shackles from his country.

The social status of these ambassadors without countries is unchanged. Washington still recognizes them as representatives of the nations that appointed them. They still call almost daily at the state department and report or confer on the affairs of the world. But behind the scenes, they are rapidly becoming the state department's problem children. Refusing to recognize a conquest is one thing, but when you have to straighten out the affairs of Americans and the United States government in a conquered land, that's another.

McMurry To Sponsor June Band Tryouts

Invitation to graduating high school band musicians of the west Texas area to participate in tryouts for the McMurry college Indian band in Abilene June 14 was extended Saturday by Dean R. G. Boger.

At the same time, Boger announced plans for a materially enlarged program of band work to be inaugurated at the Methodist school with the opening of the 1940 long session in September. Thirty scholarships, each with a value of $65, have been apportioned to the band for 1940-41, most of which will be awarded at the June 14 tryouts. They will be held in Radford Memorial auditorium, on the McMurry campus.

"The college will be host to these contestants for the day," Boger explained. "Lunch and dinner will be served complimentary in the college dining hall. The hour for each student's appearance will be assigned, and the student will be notified as his application is received."

Each person will play one selection of his own choice, and will be given one selection to play by sight. Accompanists may be brought along, or will be provided if requested. Boger urged that all interested high school graduates immediately ly make application to Prof. Clarence James, band director, for a place in the tryouts. Applicants should state what instrument they play, describe their experience, give two references as to character and musical ability, and give names and addresses.

Youths can participate in the tryouts without having made application, though the college prefers to have advance notice, the dean said.

For the first time in McMurry's history, a full course of band instruction leading to a major in that field will be offered in 1940-41.

The band staff has been enlarged to include three men. They are Director James Ray Olivadotti, who during the past year has been band director at Eldorado, Ark., high school; and Harold L. Thomas, who has been on the McMurry faculty since 1935.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The nation's capital rapidly is becoming a city of embassies without a country.

In embassy lane — Massachusetts avenue—marble villa after brick chateau is pointed out to visiting firemen as the embassy of a land that is no more and in many of them live men who really are men without countries.

There are six embassies here of lands which have been absorbed by Germany or captured by the nazis and subjected to a government domination that leaves their ambassadors not knowing for whom they speak, nor to whom they owe allegiance.

The Czechoslovakian flag still flies over the residence of Vladimir Hurban and Mr. Hurban still comes and goes on the business of his state, but where is that state today?

Court Jerzy Potocki still is "His Excellency" when he enters a Washington drawing room and his 15th street palace still is the recognized center of Polish activity in the United States, but where is Poland? At last report, it was in Angers, France — a strange place for Poland to be as any geography pupil could tell you.

Court Robert van der Straten-Ponthoz, who also lives on the great avenue of nations, represents a nation torn asunder—Belgium. His cabinet and council is in Paris and has not given up; his king, who appointed him, has; and the United States, which recognizes his credentials, refuses to recognize the conquest of the nation that sent him here.

Ministers in Doubt

Mr. Henrik de Kauffmann's status theoretically has not changed for he is Washington's minister from Denmark—but the status of his country has. When the minister receives an order from Copenhagen today, how can he know whether it comes from the government that appointed him or from some nazi overlord?

Dr. A. Loudon is another man whose daily problems must cause sleepless nights. Queen Wilhelmina, to whom by oath he owes his all, and her government are in London; and, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, the Austrian nazi leader, is in supreme command of all the civil functions of the Netherlands.

In a similar plight is Wilhelm Muntzie de Morgenstierne, the minister from Norway. The great lobe of the country that he represents and by far the most important section of it from a standpoint of population and industry, is in German hands. At some place which he may know, but which the world at large doesn't, is King Haakon and the Norwegian government. Report has it that Mr. Morgenstierne himself doesn't know where they are and is in contact with his king only through the embassy in London.

These are the ambassadors and ministers still active in Washington in behalf of their saddled or conquered countries. There is another one whose official status has been turned inside out by recent European upheavals.

He Teaches and Dreams

FDR Approves Compulsory Military Call

WASHINGTON, June 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt applauded a newspaper editorial demanding compulsory military training for the United States Saturday, while his aides joined with Henry Ford in a preliminary move toward possible mass production of warplanes on a gigantic scale.

In addition, Roosevelt asked congress for specific authority to turn old United States army guns back to manufacturers, a procedure expected to place them quickly in the hands of beleaguered French and British soldiers.

Fifty navy planes are already following such a route to the allies.

Highly placed persons said Friday night that the administration plans to release, all told, more than 500 army and navy planes. These would include army attack bombers and other models, and the 50 navy planes already disposed of.

The present plans, it was said, call for turning back to the manufacturers a large amount of ordinance material, including 600,000 Lee-Enfield rifles, ammunition, and 500 or more 75-millimeter guns of British and French models. The government, it was said, would receive from the manufacturers a $30,000,000 credit on later purchases of new material.

ROSSY took the bus to Mountain

City. From there he got the mail hack out to Mint's Creek postoffice. From Pappy Mint he rented the loan of a mule that knew the stony roads and trails. He left the campus at 6 o'clock Friday and at 4 o'clock that afternoon he was jogging up a valley toward his mountain home.

Where the shadowy bridal trail came out on top of a mountain, he came to the picnic grounds and open land which formed the diamond next to Ebenezer church and school house. "Whoa!" Rossy said, and slipped from his mule.

There was a crude grandstand covered with dry brush, and Rossy went there and sat down, dropping into reverie. All at once that day flooded back upon him—the grounds there were filled with folks; the McAfees and Tollivers were out in force. Although Ebenezer was playing Cardover school, over the mountain, actually it was the game between the families. The Tollivers against the McAfees.

The feud was dozing but not sleeping. The past fall there had been a great camp meeting at Ebenezer, and all the parsons and exhorters were out in force to get the old heads of the clans to bury the hatchet. And so successfully had they labored in the vineyard that actually peace had been declared between the families.

It was a jocular peace, where bitter hate seemed to have been swallowed in athletic rivalry. Actually, of course, hate and distrust and grudge smothered just beneath the surface of all this high fun and carryings on. Rossy remembered it all. He remembered it as only a child of seven can remember with vivid eyes. Young as he was, he sensed the excitement and undercurrent of family bad feeling.

The young pitcher on the mount was a Tolliver. "Sock" Tolliver, they called him. A handsome, dark fellow. Not much was known about him except that he had a mighty pitching arm, and when he was wild he couldn't hit a flock of barns with a long rifle.

Today he started out wild. Amidst the yelling of "Play Ball!" and the hubbub of the occasion, plus the Fourth of July spirit, and plenty of prime moonshine, he walked the first two men to face him, and even now Rossy could recollect the ferocious joy of his folks as his own father walked to the plate with the solid hickory bat that Jay McAfee had made with his own hands.

At the first pitched ball Jay McAfee stepped forward a pace to connect with a wild pitch, and he hit the ball with a crack like a rifle shot.

"Foul!" yelled the umpire. Jay grinned and returned to the plate. "Just one little strike, Sock," he pleaded. "And don't crack my skull with a bean ball!" The ball came over. Rossy saw his father try to dodge it. It must have been a deep and confusing curve, for he couldn't avoid getting hit.

The bystanders, almost suffocating the squirming man on the ground, were pushed back by a deputy sheriff who was present. "Stand back!" he yelled. "Give him air! Here—you two," he pointed out two men. "Tote him back to the grandstand, you."

Rossy's mother was screaming. A shout went up for blood. While the two men carried the unconscious man into the sheltered shade back of the stand, faction leaders diverted attention from Jay McAfee by crying,

"Grab him before he hulls out!" A MOB started toward the stunned pitcher, still standing in the box. Rossy, hardly realizing all that was happening had his Cousin Steve in the stand a moment before, but when he looked

STORIES IN STAMPS

Politics Forced Joffre Out of French Command

Joffre was designated commander-in-chief of the French in 1911. He had been an engineer on colonial duty, was junior to Gallieni and Pau. Joffre strengthened his artillery, planned his defense. But plans were swept away by the crushing German offensive.

As early as Aug. 25, Joffre announced his intention to attack the German flank at the Marne, and full credit for the victory is his. Gallieni timed the offensive. But his subordinate officers gave Joffre more trouble than the Germans. In the first month of war Joffre removed two army commanders, 10 corps commanders, and 38 division commanders.

Joffre hoped to push the Somme offensive, smash the German retreat to the Hindenburg line. Politics intervened and he was "promoted" to marshal, made technical adviser to the government, removed from active command. His successor abandoned the Somme plans.

again Steve seemed to have slid through a loose plank in the grandstand and disappeared. The two men came out to see what was happening to the pitcher, leaving the unconscious man alone.

The pitcher gave one wild look at the advancing partisans, and as if it were his legs and not his wishes that moved him, he fled in the direction of a growth of trees and bushes at the far edge of the grounds. The men yelled and shouted, following at a run. There were two or three shots fired.

The last they saw of Sock Tolliver was his hat, lying where it fell when he dived under cover and was gone. There was a steep cliff at this point, and a man said he saw Sock jump off and sink among the tree-tops below.

As the baffled mob returned, there were those who said they saw another Sock Tolliver go tearing off in a somewhat different direction and disappear in the same way. Later they figured that was reported by some one who had laved his thirst with too much mountain dew.

For almost all this while Jay McAfee had been just lying there in the green brush that had fallen off the roof of the grandstand. Now they brought water and poured on his face, found that the skull was actually cracked. A horse doctor said the ball had hit and bounced for there were plain marks indicating a kind of double liek that could never be wholly accounted for. But the game, instead of settling the clans into good feelings, reopened the war and it was not to close for another ten years.

Three days later McAfee died. ROSSY waked as from a dream and returned home. He came to a solid square log cabin in old trees and vines, where a bent mother waited for him. "That you, son?"

"It's me," Rossy said, and let the mule in the lot. He came and kissed his mother.

Supper was waiting, and they went in to the table of hot smoked sausage, honey, salt-rising bread, and coffee with cream as thick as yellow paint. Rossy said the grace, and for once he was consciously thankful for these gifts.

"I got your letter saying you'd come, son, if you could get off. Your Cousin Steve fetched it from the postoffice, and he said he wanted to see you and apt as not he'll be here pretty soon."

Steve Hogg appeared shortly after Rossy had finished supper and lighted a cigaret. He was a thick-bodied man, all of ten years Rossy's senior. His mother and Rossy's father were half-brother and sister, so Hogg was not really all McAfee. In a way he was not McAfee at all, although always he professed to espouse the hates and prejudices and loves and blood-bonds of the McAfee tribe. Now he was living on lands that once had been thought to belong to Rossy's father. But he was generous with his substance; it was Steve Hogg who encouraged Rossy to finish high school, to play ball, and even go away to college. Now he mentioned that,

"Well, I told you you'd like it, bub, didn't I? How you come on?"

"Okay," Rossy said, watching his cousin, and thinking of what Hannah had said about Hogg asking her to marry him. The man was a bachelor.

"Whilst you was up here, Rossy," Steve Hogg said, sinking his voice low so the gaunt woman in the kitchen could not overhear, "I thought I'd better name a thing or two to you. Things maybe you'd better know. It's about this here man who heads up that there college down there."

"You mean Lincoln college?"

"That's right. Tollivar. Well, he's up in the world. A high and mighty, you mout say. Just the same he's still just one of these here Hell'n-Damnation Tollivers, even though he spells hit with a holster he's the feller that bean-balled your paw the day of the game, and here's how I know it for a fact."

He began to tell as strange a story as Rossy had ever heard about the whole strange mess.

bolster her air force, intended to explore the possibility. Discuss Mass Production

A day or two after his father spoke, Edsel Ford came to Washington to confer with Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, co-ordinator of domestic and allied purchases of military aircraft.

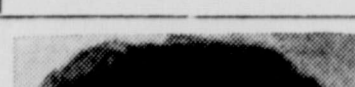

At that time, Morgenthau said, they discussed the possibility of putting Ford plants into mass production on engines. No mention was made of complete planes.

In the course of the conference, Morgenthau revealed, Edsel Ford said that "if he can find the engine or if we can find one for him that he can produce on a mass production basis, he'd be very glad to do it for patriotic reasons."

The elder Ford, in asserting that he could build 1,000 planes every 24 hours, stipulated these conditions:

That his company be left to its own supervision; that there be no "meddling by government agencies," and that he have the control of such aviation authorities as Charles A. Lindbergh and Edward Rickenbacker.

Crutches Don't Keep Him From Graduating

MILWAUKEE, June 8 (AP)—Edward Ramsey, 24, crippled by infantile paralysis since the age of 2, receives his law degree with the June class at Marquette university—and he paid his own way.

Ramsey wears braces and uses crutches, but in his senior year he worked 45 hours a week at a hotel switchboard. Other school activities were: Tenor singer in a choir; university bandsman; master of rolls for Sigma Nu Phi, legal fraternity, and president of his class while a senior in liberal arts. On top of all that, he is an ardent hitchhiker, having made trips to California and the Gulf of Mexico. In 1936 he made it to San Diego in eight days and returned in six.

ONLY ONE LOW PRICE CAR GIVES YOU THIS. FORD V-8 INSTRUCTION BOOK. You Don't Have to "Break-In" the Ford V-8. You can forget the tedious 500 or 1,000 mile breaking-in period with your new Ford. It is ready for normal driving immediately. It can drive it up to 60 miles an hour right from the start. After the first hundred miles you can drive it as fast as you desire. This means that you can enjoy your Ford V-8 from the start—which is important particularly if you are thinking of taking a long trip—or if you use your car for business. You do not have to drag along at slow speeds. The Ford V-8 needs no "breaking-in" because of unusual accuracy in the manufacture of moving parts and the smoothness of bearing surfaces. Clearances were correct when the car was delivered to you. The car does not need to depend on a long wearing-in period to eliminate tightness and insure smooth running. Such precision methods are bound to result in longer life, greater economy and better performance. They are further proof of the care and quality that have gone into the making of your Ford V-8. When FORD says they're ready—they are! You don't have to baby your new Ford V-8 for 500 miles or so. The great engine in this car reports to you ready and rarin' to GO! You can "give it the gun" the minute it arrives... head for the open road... feel the smooth sweep of power from those eight cylinders. No other car in the low-price field promises you such instant action! No other car in the low-price field gives you eight-cylinder action! LEGAL NOTICE
Jesse Penn and Nina Penn had their will drawn and written by J. R. Burnett almost one year ago, before Nina Penn died, for the absolute protection of themselves and their daughter, Sally Bell. The notary put his seal on the will, which was later placed in the First National Bank of Cisco for safe keeping.

No man or court has any right to tamper with or alter this will. Jesse Penn willed his interest to Nina Penn should he die before she. Nina Penn will her interest to Jesse Penn should she die before he. Should we both die before Sally Bell Penn, all of our property will belong to her. The will shall stay this way as long as one of us is alive.

Our property is free from debt, and no man has any claim on it. My good wife and I worked for what we own. Mr. Burnett is our lawyer and witness. Now since my good wife, Nina, has died, the property belongs to me and no one else.

AUSTIN, June 8 (Spc)—Home fires could be reduced to a minimum if Texas housewives would refrain from the use of gasoline, especially for cleaning purposes.

Marvin Hall, state fire commissioner, warned today.

The commissioner reported that the explosive power of gasoline has been ascertained as 83 times that of dynamite, and that the flash point of gasoline may be as low as zero.

The Oil Belt Safety Council of avoided in handling gasoline," he said, "and people whose jobs involve its use should be thoroughly conversant with its dangers. Of course, its use is a commonplace as well as a necessity, but there's no need to ignore its power."

fers this advice:
During a thunderstorm, seek shelter in a building, the larger the better. Stay in the center of the room and as far as possible from electric light circuits, screened doors and windows, chimneys and telephones.

If it is necessary to be out of doors, stay away from the isolated trees, wire fences, hill tops and wide open spaces. It is better to take refuge in thick timber, a cave, a deep valley or at the foot of a cliff.

Pivot Club Closes Season With Luncheon

The Pivot Bridge club closed season Tuesday with a delightful luncheon in the red room at the Laguna hotel, followed by a game in the adjoining blue room. The luncheon table was attractive, with a Spanish motif emphasizing the colors blue and yellow. The centerpiece a large yellow day lilies and blue flowers placed on a blue runner, was flanked by tall blue vases in yellow holders. The place cards, emphasizing the chosen theme, were placed on blue squares. Tiny red baskets containing red and white were placed at each plate. The games that follow prizes went to Mrs. R. A. man for high score and Mrs. n. cut.

Those attending were Meses. Armstrong, R. L. Ponsler, A. reen, T. F. O'Brien, Edward Will St. John, James Moore, ey McCrear, R. N. Cluck, R. earman, John Brice, Oscar t, Sam Kimmell, K. H. Pitt and Jim Lanning of Rockdale.

Texas believed, and I wholeheartedly agree, that the cities and towns of Texas ought to have the original power to fix rates," Mr. McDonald contended, adding that mayors and city commissioners are in a better position than anyone else to deal with utility companies serving them.

"When I go on the commission," he added, "I am going to do a good job of tending my own business. If and when the cities of Texas need our help they are going to get it, but it is going to be practical and sensible help that will get the results the people deserve."

Federal Control

Warning that certain big oil companies and unscrupulous politicians will campaign for federal control of the Texas oil industry when it suits their pocketbooks and will blanket the state with propaganda to carry their point, Mr. McDonald said:

"In other words, they will educate us, and we be unto the commissioner who refuses to be educated."

"My friends, I am not trying to brag when I tell you I am hard headed. * * * But you can take it from me that I am definitely sold on the idea of conservation of our natural resources, and I think Texas and Texans can and will do a better job of it than some hireling in Washington. Let me add that you can rest assured that I will feel and act that way about it from here on out."

Calling the 7,000 pound truck load limit an "economic crime," the speaker said the first thing the legislature should do is abolish it. "You and I," he declared, "are simply being forced against our own interests and welfare to subsidize railway transportation."

It does not make sense, he reasoned, to compel the rancher to make two or three trips to the stockyards when he could do the job safely and without damaging the highways in one trip. Neither is it justifiable, he contended to force the people in the Rio Grande Valley and other sections of the state to let their fruits and vegetables rot in the orchards and fields because of an unnecessary truck load limit.

"Unjust Levy"

"The levy of this unjust and uneconomic transportation toll on business and the consumers of Texas and the nation should be stopped and stopped without delay," Mr. McDonald urged. "Here stands Texas with fine highways and the longest transportation hauls in this nation, cutting its

Know Your Bones To Avoid Boners

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP)—A man's own bones are the most interesting scientific topic he can think about for a radio quiz, according to Bob Hawk, who conducts a radio quiz period.

The most frequent question on the bones is: Name the three smallest in the human body. These are the hammer, anvil and stirrup in the ear.

There are numerous questions like this: "Name three parts of the body suited for a map." Answer: (1) the alimentary canal; (2) the island of Reil, in the brain; (3) the thousand islands, in the pancreas.

MM Club Meets With Alene Ely Saturday

Girls of the MM club met Saturday afternoon in the home of Miss Alene Ely for the regular weekly business session. Miss Patty Boyd tendered her resignation as treasurer of the club, and Miss Peggy Gallagher was elected to take her place. Miss Boyd expects to leave soon with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Boyd, to make their home in Odessa.

Another item of particular interest to the club was the discussion of plans for a club encampment at Lake Cisco in July.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting to Misses Peggy Gallagher, Dorothy Jenn Anderson, Jacqueline Ruppert, Wanda June Bond, Patty Boyd, Betty Slicker, Cathryn Shepard, Gloria Graham, Rose Ann Woods, Alene Ely and the sponsor, Miss Wynema Bond.

Japs Still Pour Yen Into Manchukuo

HSINKING, Manchukuo, June 8 (AP)—After nine years of intensive development, Japan is still pouring money into Manchukuo, which used to be called "Japan's lifeline."

During 1940 Japan will advance yen 1,200,000,000 ($283,000,000) for continued development here, official reports said. Japan will provide further yen 100,000,000 ($24,000,000) in foreign exchange credits for purchases to be made abroad (outside the Japanese empire) during the year.

English and Germans Exchange Air Blows

LONDON, June 8 (AP)—Aerial blows, struck and received, form Britain's share of warfare while new land divisions are being organized and equipped for the battle in France.

For the third successive night, German air raiders carried the war into the south and east coast counties of England Friday night in a series of attacks marked by machine-gunning of houses at a southeast port town.

The daily Mail described these latest assaults as "terror raids."

and naval planning and organization, enlistment and training of personnel, financing and so forth. If the industrial machine is loosed, it is going to take some fast stepping on the part of the government to keep up. This isn't any boondoggling job. It's got to be done, and the president has called on the men who can do it, if they are given the chance to do it. But they certainly can't do it under a flank attack.

airplanes a day. The General Motors corporation, the Studebaker company, the United States Steel corporation and its sister corporations and all the other units of the great industrial machine which the brains and industry and savings of the people of the country have built can turn out the mechanical mans for defense at a rate staggering to imagination, once they are turned to the job.

But there is one thing that is certain. This is no time for another of those flabbergasting right-about-face statements which in earlier periods of apparent harmonizing of administration and business, shattered hopes of cooperation toward economic recovery and plunged the country into gloom. If such a presidential caprice is indulged now, the situation is likely to be disastrous. For more than one, too. Government will have its hands full with problems of military

Little Luxembourg Is Victim of Blitzkrieg

HISTORY repeats for Luxembourg. Overrun by German forces in 1914, the tiny duchy is again caught in the advance of warring armies, occupied by Hitler's invaders. Luxembourg's army of 250 could offer no resistance. German military dominate the municipal palace, pictured on the duchy's 1915 stamp above, commemorating the 11th Congress of the International Federation of Philately.

Guarantees of Luxembourg's neutrality and independence, given first by the treaty of London in 1867, and again by the peace treaty of 1919, became "scraps of paper" situated between Belgium on the west, France on the south and Germany on the east, it is Luxembourg's fate to be caught in the middle of Europe's conflicts.

Luxembourg is smaller than Rhode Island, has 261,000 inhabitants. Although most of the people are farmers, the duchy's mineral output is enormous.

WHAT A SOFT JOB YOU'VE GOT - READIN' METERS FROM A PARK BENCH!

BET HE READS THEM IN HIS SLEEP

ELECTRIC SPARKS

IT'S A CINCH MY BILLS AREN'T GETTING ANY SMALLER!

"They thought they had me on the spot!"

"YOU see, I work for the electric company, and the boys were joshin' me about their bills. When I tell 'em rates have gone down, they say, 'Well then, why don't our bills go down?'"

"Now all those fellas the other night had paid money to bowl and some of 'em paid for extra games. Yet they didn't give it a second thought. I suppose because they could see what they were gettin'. It would be the same if they bought an extra pack of cigarettes or an extra tank of gas. But electric service, that's different. When they want to do somethin' nice for their wives they go out and buy some kind of electric appliance to make the housework lighter. Or they buy an electric razor for themselves. They and their folks get plenty of comfort and pleasure out of those gadgets. But when the bills come in they sometimes forget how much service they had for that money."

"The reason that some bills don't go down is that a good many families use a lot more electricity than they used to."

There isn't one of the boys who doesn't have electric light, a radio, a washing machine and a toaster in his home. Most of 'em have electric ice-boxes and vacuum cleaners too. Yet it doesn't cost 'em much more, if any, to operate those things than it used to cost for 'em alone, because rates have been cut about in half during the last twelve fifteen years.

"If we could sell electric service by the pound or by the quart, people couldn't say what they were gettin'. They'd really know how much electric service they use and how many jobs it does. And they'd appreciate how much less electricity costs now than it used to."

"It gives me a lot of satisfaction to be in a job where I'm helpin' people get more of the good things of life. All the other boys at the plant feel that way. We know people depend on us to give them better service for less money, and that's just what we aim to do."
