CISCO BIGGEST COUNTY TOWN, CENSUS SHOWS

Persons Not Counted Urged to Contact Cisco CofC

Cisco took official rating as the largest town in Eastland county this week as U. S. 1940 census officials announced population figures for the larger communities in the county.

At that, however, the local figure declined considerably from the 1930 census return, although this decline was less than was expected.

The reports are preliminary and subject to correction, it was explained.

Cisco's population was given as 4,887. This compares with 4,563 for Ranger and 3,859 for Eastland.

These figures include only those residents in the city limits and do not embrace a considerable population in the district suburban to Cisco or communities within a few-mile radius.

Census reports on Rising Star showed a gain in population there. Upwards of 1,200 residents were counted.

RURAL AREAS SHOW POPULATION DROP ABILENE, June 28.—Rural areas are bearing the brunt of a population decline in the 12-county census division conforming to the 17th congressional district.

Shipman announced the Nolan, Fisher and Stephens totals late yesterday.

Previously announced were these totals: Comanche, 19,194, as compared with 18,430 in 1930; Callahan, 11,555, as compared with 12,785, and Shackleford, 6,235, as compared with 6,695.

Total 1940 population for these six counties is 79,495, as compared with 87,356 a decade ago—a net reduction of 7,861.

OREGONIAN TO TEAM WITH 'DARK HORSE'

Boom For Utilities Executive Stampedes Convention

CONVENTION H A L L, PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 28 (AP).—The republican national convention this morning wound up the business of a riotous session, stamped by the sensational dark horse boom of Wendell Willkie yesterday.

The Indiana born utilities executive, who has fought the new deal up hill and down dale for years, surged into the convention with 105 votes on the first ballot, gained by big leaps on each succeeding roll call until the nomination was his.

Enthusiasm For Rodeo Increases

Spirit and enthusiasm in the forthcoming Junior chamber of commerce second annual rodeo are rapidly gaining momentum here and in adjoining towns, indications show.

14 ENTRANTS IN BATHING REVUE JULY 3

With 14 entrants already registered in the local bathing revue here the night of July 3, and others anticipated, prospects are bright for a successful show at Lake Cisco.

At the local revue, a girl will be chosen to represent the city of Cisco in the 10th annual Oil Belt Revue the following night.

Other features of the two-day celebration will be political speeches by Harry Hines and George A. Davison, Jr., entertainment by the Borderland shows, a midway attraction, two gigantic fireworks displays, and diving exhibitions.

Widow of Conan Doyle Is Dead

LONDON, June 28 (AP).—Lady Conan Doyle, widow of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, the creator of Sherlock Holmes, died in London Thursday.

Ciscoans Asked to Decorate Buildings

Cisco business men were urged to decorate their buildings with patriotic symbols which they possess.

Mrs. Elmer Hughes and J. L. Tuggle of Woodson are visiting relatives and friends here today.

Goodfellows to Host Men's Bible Class

The Goodfellows' class of the First Methodist church will be host to the Men's Bible class of the First Christian church Sunday morning at 9:50.

Lady Doyle had claimed to be in frequent communication with the spirit of Sir Arthur since his death July 6, 1930.

Gov. Bricker of Ohio, perspiring in the heat of the powerful photo and television lights which beamed down upon the delegates, strode to the platform with a motion that the nomination be made unanimous.

That clinched it, and the crowd went into a frenzy.

Gov. Bricker of Ohio, perspiring in the heat of the powerful photo and television lights which beamed down upon the delegates, strode to the platform with a motion that the nomination be made unanimous.

That set the crowd to roaring its approval, too, but Chairman Joseph W. Martin announced he could not recognize Bricker for that purpose until the roll call had been completed.

The Texas delegation stayed with Taft to the end, voting as a unit.

Willkie's drive for the presidency began only a few weeks ago. His record as a battler against the new deal, his bluff homespun manner, and his way of dealing

What of the Indies Now?

THE murk which overhangs Europe today is thick and impenetrable. It is impossible to know just what is going on. Events move with such lightning rapidity that it is hard to know where we've been, let alone where we are now.

The French island possessions in the western hemisphere are a good example.

Technically, France still exists. There is some kind of a French government in Bordeaux which has signed an armistice ending France's part in the war. There is some kind of a French government in exile, like those of Holland and Belgium and Norway.

WHICH now controls the French islands in America? Does either control them in any practical way? Does either government, one under German domination, the other under the wing of the British, really represent the France that owned Martinique, Guadalupe, French Guiana, St. Pierre and Miquelon?

These are questions that are undoubtedly costing the U. S. state department, as well as the corresponding offices in 20 other American governments, a lot of lost sleep. This is a situation which did not occur to Monroe. Of course it cannot really be considered in any final way until peace is made between France and Germany on what passes in today's world for a permanent basis. What has been signed is merely a military armistice. What kind of a French government will emerge from that peace, whether it will have genuine independence, we do not know.

BUT if it should be a Fascist French government, set up by the Germans as the Russians have set up theirs in the Baltic states, and as Japan has set up hers in China, it would be hard for the United States to think of the French islands in America as still belonging to the same France. Such a change might constitute a transfer from one European power to another in as real a sense as if the islands had passed to Germany.

This need not be decided now, for the permanent relationships as set up by a definite peace treaty have not yet been set forth. But they will require the closest attention, and every effort to catch glimpses of the true situation through the murk which now beclouds European events.

As if war didn't hold enough terror, it is now reported that women engaged in war work for the English government are taking on weight.

It would take 2,000,000 years for all the water in the seven seas to flow over Niagara Falls, but would the British Admiralty stand for it?

Only one man has been killed by an earthquake in all the history of England, which goes to show Mother Nature can't step in the same ring with Kid Blitzkrieg.

It might be said that King Carol joining the ranks of the dictators takes a bad pattern for his newest royal robes.

Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON, June 28.—From three widely divergent sources—none of them reliable—comes the conclusion that the democratic ticket will consist of Cordell Hull, of the Pickett county, Tenn., Halls, and James A. Farley, the wizard of Grassy Point (N. Y.). The sources are: (1) A southerner who has for two generations been an outstanding leader in the democratic party outside of Washington. (2) A prominent New England republican politician. (3) A mid-western political observer without an axe to grind either way.

None of these three could possibly have any contact. I can't figure how they could have arrived at the same conclusion. But they did... and that's the point. If there is any...

What They Say
A synthesis of their reasoning was something like this: (1) President Roosevelt, no matter what his political convictions, is primarily interested in the unification of America in the present crisis. (2) He is convinced that he could not obtain this by running for a third term and diverting public attention to the business of shattering a precedent. (3) His greatest interest is in promulgating the foreign policies that his administration has set up and the only definite assurance of that would be the selection of a man in sympathy with those policies and yet one in whom the politicians and the voters could have confidence. (4) Since the only such man on the horizon is Hull and, from a practical political standpoint, Hull would have to have the strongest democratic party running mate if he is to win, the only possible person is Farley. (5) Farley not only would have great strength at the polls but would have the confidence and support of all the old-line politicians in the party.

These men also argue: That there very likely is something to the rumor that President Roosevelt offered cabinet posts to republicans with the assurance that he would not run for a third term. That the president is too good a politician not to be aware that no matter what the attitude of the voting public is at convention time, he would have to play every card right in the greatest international poker game in history to keep that spirit the same from July until November. That intimate friends and members of his family are opposed to the president's taking on four more years of the physical drain of White House occupancy. That he cannot afford to give the republicans a trump (in arguments against a third term, no matter

STORIES IN STAMPS

Panama Was Site of First Pan American Conference

THE first Pan American Congress, summoned by Simon Bolivar in 1826, convened in Panama. This Central American republic now honors the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Pan American Union with the stamp above, picturing the flags of 21 American republics.

United States speedy recognition of Panama in 1904 after Panama had seceded from Colombia, has been criticized as a move to insure construction of the Panama Canal. But Panama's history shows that the secession was not without earlier cause.

In 1718 Panama was made a province of Nueva Granada, later was regarded as part of the Colombian federation. In 1841 Panama revolted, set up an independent state. Colombia put down the revolt, but in 1853 Panama again withdrew, then returned. During the French period of canal construction, Panama suffered at the hands of officials appointed at Bogota. There was a revolt in 1895 and from 1896 to 1903 the province was in a continual state of rebellion, climaxed in final independence.

No Time for Moaning

Russia Puts Sickle Deep Into Balkans

By the Associated Press
BUDAPEST, June 28.—Soviet Russia reached across the Danube and thrust the hammer and sickle deep toward the Balkan spheres.

he could carry on the Roosevelt-foreign policies and virtually direct the affairs of the nation as a whole... without making new enemies by upsetting the third-term apple-cart.

As I said in the first place, I'm just passing this along for its two cents worth. The sources are not members of the inner circle. The southerner is a publisher. The easterner is a man high in the ranks of the G. O. P. The westerner is a writer of renown who hasn't had sufficient courage to circulate his theory in writing.

The only reason it's worth mentioning is that the "third term" ground-swell which swept Washington immediately after the Nazi break-through of the French lines and persisted in the days when French resistance was collapsing seems to have died down and almost every observer here who's worth his salt is beginning again to talk about the possibilities of a democratic ticket, exclusive of F. D. R.

of Germany and Italy Thursday in a new map-shuffle which set southeastern Europe a quiver.

Against a background of mobilizing armies and centuries of racial and national rivalry the question tonight was whether Hungary and Bulgaria would accept the Russian coup as a signal for a complete Rumanian break-up.

The reliable report that Hungary's Count Pal Teleki, had received a letter from Adolf Hitler promising him that Hungary's territorial aspirations "will be met" was one straw in the wind.

But reports that Rumania was secretly mobilizing reserves to reinforce 1,500,000 or more men already under arms and rushing them to her western frontier may restrain Hungary at this time.

Rumania tonight cut off all telephone communication with her neighbors veiling her moves. These reports suggested that King Carol had made his peace with Joseph Stalin at great sacrifice in the hope of saving the big province of Transylvania from Hungary and southern Dobruja from Bulgaria.

There was no sign of exceptional military activity in Budapest but Hungary was known to have large forces gathered near the frontier of Transylvania which she lost in the World war.

The Hungarian cabinet met and it was assumed it discussed the situation.

Call on Premier
The German and Italian ministters called upon the Hungarian premier and foreign minister but whether to give assurance of support of her claims on Rumania or to counsel restraint was not known.

The Hungarian government radio announcement of Carol's acceptance of the soviet demand commented:

"Thus the integrity of the Rumanian territory, about which so many debates have been heard in the last 20 years, exists no more."

King Boris of Bulgaria presided over an extraordinary crown council meeting at his country place outside Sofia after repeated conferences on the Balkan situation.

Officials in Bulgaria expressed doubt that any move toward Dobruja would be made until results of the soviet action became known. Bulgaria also has called up reservists.

Lige Learned Fast, But He's Not Through

—Lige Tatone, who came to this country with his father from Italy in 1933, has received nothing but straight A's for six years of school work. He was valedictorian of his high school class, and played football and basketball. He plans to work his way through a Kentucky college next.

tan, with 2,027 residents, as compared with 1,632 in 1930, and Roby with 905, as compared with 801, increased, the county lost 738 in the 10-year census period.

The trend was similar—but not as definite—in Nolan. Both principal centers of population, Sweetwater and Roscoe, lost residents, but their combined 1933 totals only 572—against 1,972 for the county. Likewise, Breckenridge's decline of 1,739 accounted for less than half of Stephen's drop of 4,225.

Shipman is required by law to report to census headquarters reasons to the best of his knowledge and belief why any city or county declined or increased more than 10 per cent in population. Yesterday, he released the following explanation of Fisher's loss, with the comment it applies to most of the other counties in his district except those in which oil development has declined in the past 10 years (Eastland and Stephens):

"First: This county has been in the area over which a severe drought has prevailed for several years past, therefore, quite a few tenant farmers have been forced to leave the farm and get other work upon which to said dry years.

"Second: The advance of mechanized methods has also been reducing the number of section. With the implements now used for man can easily cultivate acreage that one man only a few years ago, stances where a farmer tenant five or ten said owner now cult his land.

"Third: Again the program has influenced farm owners to man and cultivate all of where they formerly more tenants.

"The effect of the reasons above mention reduction of the number just as has happened in named county."

BRUCE CATTON'S AMERICAN ROUNDUP

RAYMOND MOLEY, FORMER BRAIN TRUST TURNS UP AS HOOVER AIDE AT CONVENTION

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA—Strangest thing about this Republican convention is the important behind-the-scenes part played by Raymond Moley, first and most famous of the 1933 Roosevelt brain trust.

Moley came here the day before the convention opened. His job was to help write Herbert Hoover's high-powered speech on foreign affairs.

Catton

On that speech, hung two things—Hoover's own hope of getting back into the White House, and the determination of the thick-and-thin peace group that the Republican party should swing sharply away from anything resembling the Roosevelt foreign policy.

It was all planned on the definite belief that there would be a deadlock which would leave the principal contenders hog-tied and open the way for nomination of a dark horse. And it was Raymond Moley who quietly slipped over from New York to help put the speech in shape.

Nobody in Position of "Boss"

ANOTHER extremely important angle to the plans which were hung on this speech is the fact that this particular Republican convention has been unbosomed to the point of confusion.

On the surface, the set-up was ideal for one of those famous "smoke-filled room" propositions—a little group of bosses sitting back and deciding who was to be the nominee.

But there hasn't been any boss in the position to deliver a really decisive bloc of votes to anybody

WILLKIE'S STRENGTH AND WEAKNESS

THIS fact has been the strength and the Wendell Willkie. A word or two about the campaign, most adroit, smooth, of political promotion. It was ideally designed problem the Willkie because it was a prime job aimed at the rank and a selling job. But at the same as a candidate undergo more sales resistance of the rank and file candidate. It is probably say that when the opened a very large the delegates did not

CAST OF CHARACTERS
FRANCIE WINSTON—a girl with a voice and ambition to crash the movies.
GUSTY GAIR—garage mechanic who can give out on a trumpet.
JERRY FINNEY—Movieland's youngest glamor man.

YESTERDAY: Jerry Finney gives Francie a "rush," takes her to luncheon and for a drive in the evening. When Jerry kisses her, Francie is thrilled, but something is lacking. In the studio, the next day, Francie meets Gusty, trying to get in the see Koon. She snubs Gusty, as he watches her leave, amazed by her failure to recognize him.

CHAPTER XI
FRANCIE danced lightly over the rest of the day, her head in the clouds. Gusty Gair, after a few hours of remorse, had become a shadowy figure outside the shimmering fringe of her dream world. At times he tried to push through and tantalize her conscience, but Francie fought off these intrusions.

Jerry Finney brought her back to the hotel late Saturday afternoon. As she walked to her room, Francie caught herself thinking that Jerry hadn't been wishing her good luck. He had been too busy talking about his own part in the broadcast.

Aunt Hat bounced up to meet Francie. "I don't know what's got into your father. An hour ago he received a telephone call. He went out in a rush and I haven't seen him since. Now who in the world would call him here?"

Francie had a cold feeling in the pit of her stomach. "I-I don't know, Aunt Hat, unless . . ."

"You're thinking of Gusty again," Aunt Hat accused.

"No, I'm not!" Francie denied, with far more emphasis than was necessary.

At 7 o'clock Aunt Hat said, "Whatever shall we do, Francie? Do you think anything might have happened to your father?"

Francie had bought some theatrical make-up and was making her fresh young face rather grotesque with it. "Of course not, Aunt Hat!"

But as it drew near 7:30 Francie began to share her aunt's nervousness. It wasn't like Pops to be mysterious. But what could she do? She couldn't miss the big moment of her life . . . Aunt Hat settled the matter by calling a cab.

The drive let them off at a door marked "Artist's Entrance." Battered people joining the long line of people who held audience tickets, Aunt Hat walked as far as she was permitted with Francie. "Darling, this is the proudest moment of my life."

A page boy examined Francie's ticket, then gave it back. "Hold your ticket," he intoned. "Mr. Rhinegold and Mr. Klump will Rhinegold and Mr. Klump will interview after the broadcast."

A second boy said, "Come this way, miss," and led her to the stage where nearly 50 wide-eyed youngsters fidgeted. The curtain hadn't gone up yet. Francie seated herself and tried to appear self-possessed. She wasn't "green" like the others, she told herself. She was a personal friend of Jerry Finney.

ABOVE and on either side of the stage was a glass-fronted booth. In one of these sat a group of people in evening clothes. In the other, four men hovered around an instrument panel. One of them wore headphones; another leafed through typewritten pages.

On stage there was a bustle as the orchestra seated itself and tuned up. The announcer frowned over his script.

The curtain rose, revealing a mass of upturned faces. Francie's heart leaped. To be singing before all these people! It was her dream come true. Her throat felt tight and her knees shook.

The announcer stepped forward and introduced himself. He joked with the audience and told them when to applaud. He glanced at the big electric clock, then back at the sign that said "STAND BY."

In the control booth the man with the headphones brought his finger down in an arc. The microphone spoke into the microphone in low pleasant tones. ". . . and now, ladies and gentlemen, I'd like to introduce that brilliant young actor and comedian who tonight will be our master of ceremonies—Jerry Finney!"

Jerry ran on stage, smiling and bowing. He read his lines with the assurance of a veteran. He introduced the first participant in the "Parade of American Youth."

He stepped away from the microphone and a lank-haired young man began to sing "Roses of Picardy" in a shaky voice.

Jerry stood only a few feet from Francie. Eagerly she waited for him to pick her out of the crowd, to smile encouragement at her; but he had eyes only for the audience. He did a few dance steps, mimicked the young ambieur, mugged. A ripple of laughter broke in on the song.

Francie plucked at Jerry's coat. With her lips she formed, "Hello, Jerry."

He turned with a frown, nodded briefly, then moved away from her.

Francie clenched her hands. She felt as if Jerry had stabbed her in the heart. And then, remembering the starched shirts in the glass booth, she understood. With Mr. Rhinegold and Mr.

Klump watching, Jerry didn't dare pick her out for special attention. That was it! And yet . . . he could have smiled.

Youngsters continued to parade before the microphone. Each time a new name was called, Francie grew tense. The stage seemed a mile wide. Could she ever cross it before all these people? It was her big chance. She mustn't fail now.

"Francie Weston?" She nodded, heart pounding. "Your father's back here and wants to see you." The boy shrugged. "He says it's a matter of life and death."

HER father stood just off-stage, his face set and grave. "Pops," Francie cried. "What's happened?"

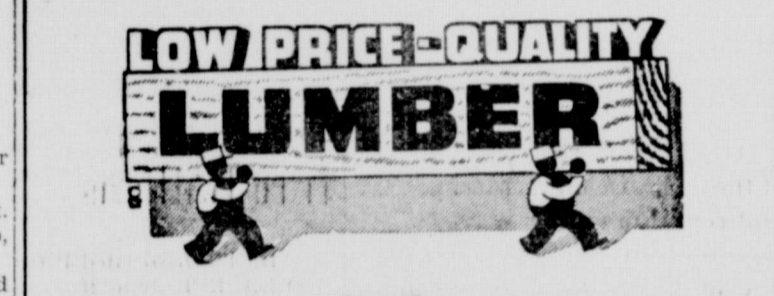

"I've news of Gusty," he said
