WAR BRINGS BRITISH PLANES REPEL 80 NAZIS

War Brings 'Ghost' Fleet to Life

For 16 years, these ships, their anchors rusting, their bottoms covered with barnacles, have been tied up near New Orleans, a "ghost fleet" that no one thought would sail again. But the sinking of vessels by belligerents in the European war has caused such a demand for freighters that the "ghost" fleet, totaling 43 vessels, has been reconitioned, and will soon again carry the cargoes of commerce.

24 GERMANS REPORTED TO BE DOWNED

None of Six Attacking Hurricanes Said to Be Lost

LONDON, July 22 (AP)—German planes hurtled back to Britain Monday morning on their incessant raids after losing twenty-four of their number in two days of accelerated air warfare and the reported repulsion of one fleet of eighty Nazi planes by six reckless little British fighters.

SUB THAT SPARED LINER UNREPORTED

LONDON, July 22 (AP)—The British admiralty announced Sunday that the famous submarine Salmon is considerably overdue and must be presumed lost.

The 670-ton Salmon is the British submarine which sighted the German liner Bremen last Dec. 18 but did not attempt to torpedo it out of regard for international law, because sufficient warning could not have been given the Bremen crew.

The same submarine was reported on the same day to have hit the German cruiser Leipzig with a torpedo and to have damaged the German cruiser Blucher. The Blucher later was destroyed by Norwegian shore batteries in the German invasion of Norway April 9.

The Salmon's commander, E. O. Bickford, was promoted from lieutenant commander to commander and received the Distinguished Service Order for the December action. His crew received decorations.

The brief admiralty announcement of the submarine's loss did not give any hint concerning its assignment. Its normal crew was forty men.

Lewis Seeks NLRB Domination Of Defense Firms

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP)—John L. Lewis, CIO chief, began a new drive Sunday for federal blacklisting of firms failing to comply with rulings of the National Labor Relations board.

In a letter to members of the CIO executive board, Lewis reported he had turned over to Sidney Hillman, labor member of the defense commission, a proposed executive order which would: Require that contractors with the government agree to comply with all orders directed to them by the NLRB.

Permit the National Defense commission to terminate a contract in event of failure to comply with a labor board order.

Lewis' letter, urging CIO organizations to give precise and definite support to this policy, declared: "Under the urge of a declared emergency, the government is making patriotism profitable for American finance and industry. Surely it is not so much to expect of government that it will also protect the inherent and statutory rights of labor to organize and bargain collectively."

MORE STORAGE IS SET AT M'ELREATH

Operations were suspended in the Groover and Rose and Jones and Stasney No. 1 McElreath four miles south by west of Cisco last week as operators awaited setting of more storage before completing tests of the production of this important wildcat.

Estimated at better than 150 barrels per day the new Caddo lime producer is regarded as one of the most important new wells drilled in this section in years. It is believed to have opened up a structure as great or greater than the old Pioneer pool.

Special Care in Handling of Food Is Urged

AUSTIN, July 22. (Sp.) — "Sporadic outbreaks of food poisoning over the state in the past few weeks demonstrate the need for special care in handling and refrigerating any food that must be prepared some time in advance of serving," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer.

"Prevention of food poisoning requires clean food handled as little as possible and consumed while it is fresh. Food prepared hours before serving, and allowed to stand at warm temperatures becomes good culture media for bacteria. Cooked products of a perishable nature are readily subject to decomposition, and must be kept well refrigerated.

Defense Volunteer, Son Capture Plane

LONDON, July 22. (AP)—A local defense volunteer and his son, both unidentified, captured the crew of a German bomber in the southeast England Sunday, the British Broadcasting corporation reported.

The volunteer and his son saw the German machine twisting and diving just above the treetops in an effort to shake off British fighters. A final burst of machine-gun fire brought the bomber down.

Potatoes Produce At Rate 100 Bushel Acre

Mrs. J. W. Brawley, of Curtis community, while in Cisco recently, told of a splendid yield of potatoes she had produced this year.

"We had a small patch, about one quarter of an acre, and harvested 21 bushel of as nice and uniform potatoes as one ever saw," she said. "I culled the smaller ones and canned them. The others were of uniform size, without defects. I estimated this patch yielded at near 100 bushels per acre. It has been a splendid season for potatoes, but other crops on our farm are most promising."

Adobe Walls Best Proof Against Bombs

LONDON, July 22 (AP)—Centuries-old walls of cob—a mixture of mud and straw similar to the adobe of the American Southwest—withstood the heaviest blasts of high explosive German bombs hurled on West Britain, officials reported.

Attend Rites For W. H. Groves Today

Among those attending funeral services at Fort Worth today for W. H. Groves, 85, retired attorney who died Saturday, are Alex Spears president of the First National bank, and Mrs. Jack Cabanans.

Mr. Groves, whose large holdings included ranch lands near here and business properties in Cisco, died in a Fort Worth hospital after an illness of 18 months. He had been a resident of Fort Worth for 35 years and came to Texas 40 years ago from Kentucky.

Governor to Get Big Welcome Here

A greeting appropriate for the chief executive of the state is being prepared for Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel when he and his party visit Cisco tomorrow at 10:30 for an address at 10:30. Indications point to a big crowd to welcome him.

The governor, traveling in his new illuminated sound truck with his family, will speak from the platform of the truck alongside the Laguna hotel. The Lobo band, directed by R. L. Collie, will welcome the governor with a brief concert.

3 Baltic Nations Swallowed by Soviet

RIGA, Latvia, July 22.—Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania joined the ranks of swallowed-up small European nations Sunday by becoming a part of soviet Russia in all but name.

Already communist under Moscow's sway, the parliaments of the three small Baltic states voted to petition the Soviet Union for membership. Their action, final except for the formality of acceptance by Russia, was taken amid an air of festivity and in the presence of Russian functionaries at the three capitals, Tallinn, Riga and Kaunas.

Red Front and Putnam Start Final Division

By Soft Ball Reporter) Tonight Red Front and Putnam ushered in the third and final division of soft-ball play for the summer. Red Front issues warning that they're shooting for top place while Putnam is bringing the Green boys back so as to try to do the same. It promises to be the best division of them all.

The second division hasn't been completed. Conoco won first place with Recreation second. The 3rd place is in a four way tie. Red Front will play Miler-Pennay, and Seranton will play Putnam on Tuesday night in a double header. Both games will be 7 inning ones. One more game will then be necessary to determine 3rd place for 2nd division.

Two Delegations to Visit Here

Two large delegations of citizens from other cities in this area are due here today and tomorrow, each boosting an event in its community.

The air ministry said the Germans lost 21 planes Saturday and three more Sunday. But the proudest story the officials had to tell was of the six British Hurricane fighters which swooped out of the clouds above the English channel Sunday afternoon, destroying one of 80 German planes and drilling holes in many of the others.

The British got off scot-free, air ministry officials said in announcing the battle as described in their squadron leader's report. This claimed victory—at 15-to-1 odds—was the high spot of the fighting in day-long German aerial blows at England.

The squadron leader of the six British planes reported he and his men battled for more than an hour and a quarter against the 40 Dornier-17s and 40 Messerschmitt fighters, bringing down one of the Messerschmitts.

He said the British sighted the big German bomber fleet circling over a merchant ship convoy in squadrons of 10. "They stepped right into the sun," said the British leader. And with the sun in the Germans' eyes, three of the Hurricanes sped to the attack, striking the bombers just as they were loosing their eggs on the ships below.

Up above, the 40 German fighters, each guarding one of the bombers below, plunged screaming upon the three British planes which looked like such easy prey. The other three Hurricanes struck at these fighters. Germans Fled

Our Precious Pupils

It is hard even for Americans in this hard-boiled world of 1940 to realize how very soft-boiled we were in 1900.

Boy, did we have illusions! The war with Spain was just over, and the army was up to the hips in the unpleasant task of "pacifying" the Philippines. "Underneath the starry flag, civilize 'em with a Krag!" was a popular song among soldiers, who, waist-deep in Philippine jungles, had fewer illusions than the folks back home.

Today's cynicism attributes the American adventures in the Philippines and in Cuba to pure financial imperialism. Perhaps that entered into the picture, but there was much more to it than that.

People in general felt that in the American form of government and in the American social system they had something precious, the very last word in how to live. They wanted to share it, to evangelize. They wanted, sincerely wanted, to lift up the "little brown brothers" to our own exalted level.

BUT alas, nothing is more futile than to expect one people to put on and wear without alteration a suit of governmental clothes cut for somebody else. It never works, as Herr Hitler is apt to find out some of these days.

What do we have, 40 years later? We have President Manuel Quezon of the Philippine Commonwealth pointing out that he favors a new type of democracy wherein individual liberties are curtailed and the two-party system is abandoned. Old concepts of personal and property rights must yield to the demands of social justice, says Quezon.

And in Cuba we find a former army sergeant who rose to power by insurrection just becoming the legitimate president under a new constitution far more "socialized" than our own, and owing his elevation to a strange alliance of communists, assorted left-wingers, and the remainder of the notorious old Machado dictatorial machine. Nobody, even in Cuba, understands very exactly just what this means.

NONE of this is said critically. Perhaps both Quezon and Batista have adopted precisely the sort of government their countries need at the moment.

At this distance we can't be sure. Which is exactly the point.

France will still use a form of secret ballot, the secret being why they'll take the trouble to vote, in the first place.

Science says a snail's pace is about 15 feet per hour, if he keeps going that long, and the Sunday driver in front of you usually does.

The North Pole is moving south six inches a year. Number of years before the two poles meet is comorable only to the figures the boys in Washington are tossing around.

World's deepest hole is a 15,000-foot oil well in California, a fact refuted by the duffer who was caught in that trap near the seventh green.

Among the many surprises dished up by the census is that many a large city had fewer people than the local political machine had voters.

American road signs notwithstanding, the French will tell you there's no justice of the peace.

Some of those fifth columnists seem to have launched their own pan-America movement.

Texas League critics say Dizzy Dean is himself again, but there are those who contend that isn't a good sign, either.

SHARP DIFFERENCES OF OPINION INSIDE NEW DEAL GLOSSED OVER IN PLATFORM

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO.—Some of the sharpest differences of opinion inside the New Deal administration are being carefully smoothed over in the fabrication of the Democratic platform.

Two specific instances are the planks dealing with defense and new world relations and with agriculture.

In each case, the platform-makers' job was to work out some formula that would bypass the still unresolved conflicts within the administration. For no matter how confidently the platform may speak of these two matters, the plain fact is that the administration is far from united on either one.

The much-talked-of cartel plan for disposing of new world export surpluses is the first example. Authorship of this plan is generally credited to Assistant Secretary of State A. A. Berle. In any case, the President went for it enthusiastically at first, and a section of the New Deal began trumpeting it as the one and only way to prevent Nazi dominance of Latin America.

AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT REMAINS COOL
OTHER New Dealers, however, took a look at it and saw what they figured were life-sized flaws. The Agriculture Department, in particular, has remained cool. Some of the President's advisers, as a matter of fact, have bluntly warned him that as far as the farm belt goes it would be political suicide to advocate this plan while American farm prices are still far below parity and un-disposed-of crop surpluses are a still unsolved problem.

State Department people were especially anxious to get at least a big deal for Argentine corn on the books before the Havana conference. That ran into the objection that Uncle Sam already has some 600,000,000 bushels of his own corn on hand.

In general, administration opponents of the cartel plan call it a reflection of panic—some of them refer to it as the "Oh My God Plan"—and say that for the moment it is idle to do more than clear existing trade channels, encourage U. S. investments, stimulate tourist trade and nurse along friendly relations. Only in case the British fleet is sunk, they say, will the cartel plan become a pressing issue.

FARM PROGRAM NOT UNIVERSALLY POPULAR

IT is likewise no dark secret that the administration isn't unannouncedly happy over its present farm program.

Cotton is the best illustration. World carry-over of American cotton is today higher than 12,000,000 bales, nearly 9,000,000 of them held by the U. S. government. The United States will grow upward of 12,000,000 bales this year; the domestic market will take about 8,000,000, and some 2,000,000 can be exported—which means that on Aug. 1, 1941, after seven solid years of New Deal cotton control measures, the world supply of American cotton will be higher than ever before.

Even so, the U. S. has taken some 15,000,000 acres out of cotton production—and thereby has racked the south with a serious surplus-population problem.

To a lesser extent, the same sort of thing is true of wheat and of pork and lard.

All of which means that the whole New Deal farm program is called into serious question within the administration itself. But no hint of this, or of the disagreement over the cartel scheme, can find any reflection in the party's platform.

SERIAL STORY

FLYING CO-ED

BY MARY KINNAVEY MOORE

Copyright, 1940, NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
ANNE NORRIS—wealthy college student, looking for thrills, enrolls in CAA flying course.
GEORGETTE PARKER—Anne's friend, learning to fly is a serious business with her.
TONY SCOTT—college playboy, son of a gangster, envies Anne's social position.
CAPTAIN DICK DOUGLAS—instructor of the student flying course at Midland University.

CHAPTER VI
YESTERDAY: Anne takes her first training flight. Patiently and carefully, Dick explains fundamentals of piloting a ship, dangers to watch, certain precautions that must be observed. Meeting Georgette after the lesson, Anne promises: "I'll be a pilot or bust!"

THERE was laughter and the sound of gay voices in the softly lighted dining room of one of the city's exclusive clubs. The general air was one of secure and quiet dignity.

But it was not a comfortable atmosphere for Tony Scott, dining with Anne Norris. He reminded himself furiously this was just the type of place he hoped to enter through his marriage with her. He was here now, as her guest, but he didn't like it. He had an uncomfortable feeling that people were staring at him and whispering. He'd show them someday, he promised himself. Someday, when he was Anne's husband.

The lovely red-haired girl across the table from him was also conscious of the curious glances of the other diners. Throughout the meal, she had been trying to persuade herself that she was not embarrassed by them. A stubborn anger colored her cheeks.

"Tony, I just can't see you again for a while."
 "What do you mean—a while?" His voice was steady. After all he had been expecting something like this.
 "Well—until the end of the year, I've promised."
 He lifted an eyebrow. "I see. I'm sorry, Anne. I'd had an idea I was—important to you. I guess I was wrong."

"Of course, you're important to me. Don't you see, Tony? I've promised my uncle—my guardian—I wouldn't see you again until school closes in June. Having dinner with you tonight is the last date until then. I had to see you once more—to explain."
 "And—after school closes?"
 "Then—" She lifted her hands in a lovely gesture.
 He nodded. This was another of those times, he told himself, when seeming to agree would win him success later, later that very evening, in fact. When Anne had suggested they dine at her uncle's club, he had readily asserted—because he had his own plans for the remainder of the evening.

 "I wouldn't want you to go against your guardian's wishes," he told her. With a sudden smile, he added: "After all, it isn't long until June."

She flashed him a grateful glance. "I'd hoped you'd understand."
 "I'll miss you terribly," he said softly. "But I'd wait forever for you."

He looked appreciatively at her, his calculating glance taking in her creamy skin, and the way her coppery curls barely touched her smooth shoulders, admiring the perfection of her pale green chiffon dinner dress. But neither Anne Norris's beauty nor her charm were his only interests in her. He knew plenty of beautiful girls. Too many, in fact. Anne was the means of getting something else that he wanted.

He noticed a couple at a nearby table glancing at him curiously. Again he felt angry and uncomfortable.
 "Come on, Anne let's get out of here!" He started to say "Those high-hats think they're the only people on earth," and caught himself just in time. That wasn't the thing to say to Anne. He smiled and continued suavely. "I want you all to myself—on our last date for a long while."

She drew her white evening wrap around her and rose, feeling a sudden relief at going beyond the reach of staring, questioning eyes.
RAIN was beginning to fall as Tony's sleek, fast car drove away from the club.

 "Maybe we'd better go straight back to the college," Anne suggested. "It's going to storm."
 "Okay. I guess you're right." They drove a few miles in the direction of the Midland campus, then suddenly the car slowed.
 "Anne, let's go by the Post road. There's a fellow out there I want to see about a boat I'm buying—it won't take but a minute."
 "All right. It's early, anyway." They drove out the Post road, talking idly of the boat Tony meant to buy. At last he stopped the car before a low, brilliantly-lighted building. Staring out the car window, Anne recognized it as the Villa Aloha, one of the roadhouses forbidden to college students.

"Come on with me, Anne. It's too wet for you to wait in the car." She shook her head. "I don't want to break school rules, Tony."
 "Oh, come on—it isn't as if you were going in to spend the evening. Anyway, no one will recognize you. The manager won't let

 She hesitated a moment. It was true it was a little different to go in for a moment with Tony, who was here on business. It was, she hoped, just as true that no one would recognize her. And she had always been curious to see inside the place. Still—
 "No, Tony—I don't think I'd better."
 "Anne—don't be scared. No one will bite you!"
 That decided her. She wrapped her cape tightly about her, and ran the few steps through the rain to the door.

They would have to wait a few minutes, he explained, and, a little reluctantly, she sat down at one of the tables.
 "Hi, Tony!"
 Anne turned and saw a slender, pretty, blond girl, in a cheap taffeta evening dress standing by the table.
 "Hello, Clarice," Tony's cheeks had reddened a little. "Miss Norris—Miss Lane. Clarice runs the dice game here," he added, in explanation. The blond girl barely acknowledged the introduction, devoting her attention to Tony.
 "Where have you been, Anne? I thought you were going to call me up last week."
 "I was busy," Tony said curtly. "Never knew you to be that busy before." Clarice said, laughing shrilly. She laid her hand on Tony's arm, familiarly.

HIDE AND SIP

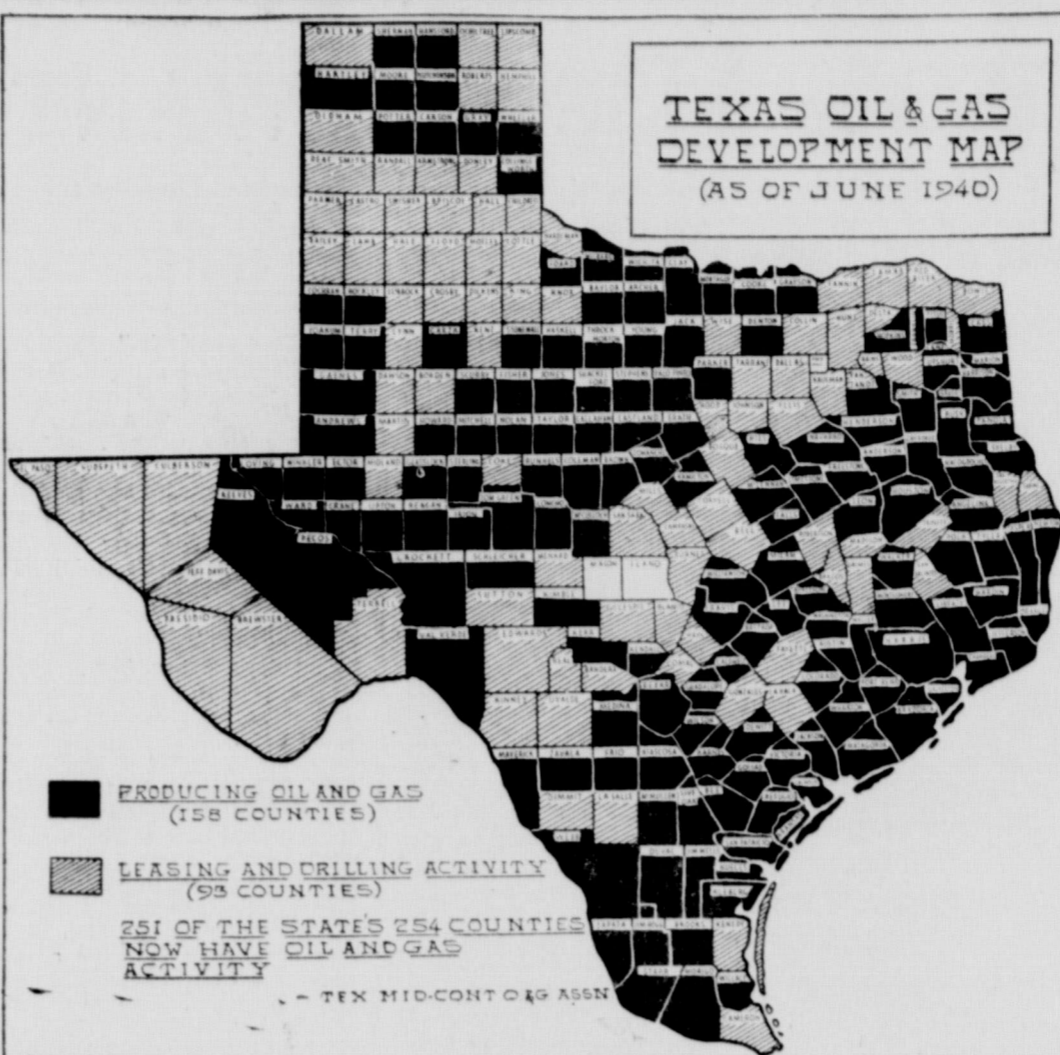

LYNCHBURG, Va., July 22 (AP). -A defendant denied vigorously that he hid half a gallon of liquor in the bushes off Withers street. Confronted with fingerprints, he admitted he had taken a few drinks of the moonshine. "Mighty expensive liquor," said Judge J. P. McCarron, "Four months."

All But Three Texas Counties Have Oil Play

DALLAS, July 22. - All but three of Texas' 254 counties now have oil or gas activity. E. L. Smith of Dallas, president of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, reported today after a Statewide survey just completed by association statisticians. Reflecting the readiness of the Texas petroleum industry to meet any demands of the U. S. armed forces, a total of 158 counties out of the State's 254 now produce oil or gas or both, Mr. Smith said. An additional 93 have land under lease for oil and gas exploration, making a total of 251 out of the 254 with oil or gas activity. Only Mason, Llano, and Rockwall counties are not included. "Twenty-four additional Texas counties were opened for oil or gas production within the past 18 months," Mr. Smith said. There are now over 900 separate oil and gas fields in Texas in contrast with around 20 in 1917-19 when

Texas oilmen were called upon to furnish fuel for the army and navy. "Although the number of wells then is not recorded, it certainly was not the 15,450 producing wells reported in 1922. Now Texas has 93,630 producing wells scattered over the State. Production of all Texas oil wells in 1917 was 90,000 barrels a day. Today the State is producing around 1,300,000 barrels a day under the most rigid restrictions and could be opened up to produce several times this amount if necessary arose." During World War days, Texas
