NAZI BOMBS ECHO BRITISH 'NO' TO PEACE

Lord Halifax Tells World Britain Will Never Accept Terms

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—In a thunderous echo to Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax's emphatic "no" to Adolf Hitler's "last chance" offer of peace, German planes scattered incendiary and high explosive bombs on England, Scotland and Wales this morning.

One Scottish town was struck for the second time in 24 hours. There incendiary bombs set fire to houses and plummeted into streets and open spaces.

About 100 incendiary bombs were dropped on this town in today's raid, but officials said damage was comparatively slight. One bomb plunged through a tenement from roof to ground floor, setting a fire which was extinguished. A woman on the top floor was partly overcome and fell out a window, suffering serious injuries.

No great material damage was reported from bombs in Wales, Northeast England and elsewhere in Southeast and Northeast Scotland. British anti-aircraft guns maintained a hot fire, and British fighter planes engaged the enemy aloft.

Explosions were heard in Southeast Scotland shortly after enemy planes passed over, indicating the possibility they were time bombs. The sounds indicated, however, that the bombs had exploded some distance from a town.

The barrage of anti-aircraft fire over one southwest of England was terrific. Bursting shells, tracer bullets and searchlights illuminated the scene.

Lord Halifax's broadcast reply to Hitler last night was couched in words that left no room for doubt of the negative British response to the German "ultimatum."

Britain already has reported striking heavy blows at two great German factories at Wismar and Kassel.

"The people of the British Commonwealth, along with all those who love truth and justice and freedom, will never accept this new world of Hitler's," the tall, gaunt foreign secretary declared in a radio address to the world.

No Let-up

Even as Halifax spoke, German bombers, concentrating on the core of British power—industry and shipping—allowed the island kingdom no let-up in their aerial preparations for invasion.

Renewing Prime Minister Churchill's pledge that Britain is in the fight to the finish, Lord Halifax spurned Hitler's peace ultimatum as unacceptable no matter what the sacrifice.

He declared that Hitler's speech to the reichstag last Friday, offering Britain peace on the axis terms, made clear that "his picture of Europe is one of Germany lordling it over these people whom he has one, by one, deprived of freedom."

This he compared with Britain's picture of a "free association of independent states" and proclaimed that, "because of that contrast, we remain unmoved by threats unaccompanied by any appeal to our sense of right or justice."

"Will Not Stop"

Britain, he declared resolutely, "will not stop fighting until freedom for ourselves and others is secure."

"We realize the struggle may cost us everything, but just because the things we are defending are worth any sacrifice, it is a noble privilege to be the defender of things so precious."

Halifax declared that Britain takes heart for the ordeal ahead from the "spirit of indomitable resolution" in every part of the nation and the prayers of the United States for a "British victory" over Hitler.

"Across the wide Atlantic," he

CROWD CHEERS ATTACKS UPON 'POLITICIANS'

Size of Crowd Takes Governor by Surprise This Morning

"By the exercise of the only power that has been left to me I was able to save the taxpayers of the state five millions of dollars last year," Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel told a cheering crowd of more than 6,000 people gathered here this morning.

The governor, who made a blistering attack upon the "professional" politicians who, he said, had robbed the office of governor of power to perform its constitutional duties, asserted that he had scratched that much from the biennial appropriation bill laid before him by the legislature.

This money, the governor declared, was "pie" for the professional politicians. "It made them so mad they started running around in circles and they haven't stopped running around in circles yet, just like they had ants in their pants."

Surprised By Crowd

The governor, openly surprised by the size of the crowd at which he had scheduled as a brief stop-over between major speaking engagements, took several minutes to get into the "meat" of his address.

The governor was met at the southern outskirts of Cisco on Highway 23 by a group which included State Senator Wilbourne B. Collier and State Rep. Omar Burkett. The governor's children, "Pat," "Mike" and "Mollie" preceded him in the bus in which the Hillbilly band travels. The governor and Mrs. O'Daniel arrived late from Brownwood, and were greeted by Sen. Collier who was invited to ride into Cisco with the party by O'Daniel.

The Lobo band, directed by R. I. Collier played a concert preceding the governor's address at the Laguna hotel. A crowd that packed the streets there for blocks heard and cheered the state's chief executive.

Authority But No Power

"The constitution charges the governor of the state with the enforcement of the law," O'Daniel told his audience, many of whom listened from the windows of the hotel. "But although I have that duty the authority is vested in a board down at Austin known as the state department of public safety, whose members I did not appoint and whom I cannot fire. They owe their appointments to a man who is governor no longer and has no responsibility to the people."

"I have my constitutional duty but no power to do it. The professional politicians of the state have taken away from us the power to discharge our constitutional duties through a process of setting up a system of boards and bureaus that has been going on for 25 or 30 years."

The governor compared the "organized gang of professional politicians who have set out to run the governor of Texas" to the Al Capone gang, declaring it was worse.

What happens when one of these boards or bureaus comes under the control of the people or the governor through an election or appointment of the majority of its membership is shown in the experience with the board of control, O'Daniel told the crowd. This board, he explained, budgets all the money spent by the state and lays the budget before the legislature. It directs the expenditure of a larger part of the state appropriations.

With one appointment of the three on the board normally com-

U. S. OFFERS LEADERSHIP AND DOLLARS

HAVANA, July 23 (AP).—The United States offered Latin America its leadership and dollars Monday in a bold fight against the totalitarian system of self-sufficient economy, and called for joint trusteeship over any European colonies in the western hemisphere threatened with transfer to any other European powers.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, defining the program of his country before the second conference of American foreign ministers, put the plan on a cooperative basis but clearly indicated the United States was ready to throw its full resources behind its execution.

In his speech, expected to assume the status of a policy-guiding declaration for the conference, Hull sharply condemned "forces of ruthless conquest which shrink from no means of attaining their ends."

Pointedly, he served notice that the United States would not countenance any effort to "modify the existing status" of European possessions in the western world, "whether by cession, by transfer, or by any impairment whatsoever in the control heretofore exercised."

It would be "suicidal," he said for the American republics to fail to "recognize in time and not to prepare to meet fully and decisively" the dangers confronting them.

"Decisive remedial action" is imperative, the tall, grey secretary declared, to combat subversive activities he termed "an attempt to acquire domination of the American republics by foreign governments in their own interests."

He gave the United States endorsement for a protectorate by all the Americas over any threatened European holdings on this side of the Atlantic and pledged its cooperation "should the occasion arise, its execution."

Hull counseled that such a trusteeship interest by any idea of "special interests" by any American republic, and that "as soon as conditions permit, the region should be restored to its original sovereign or be declared independent when able to establish and maintain stable self-government."

Garner Goes To Uvalde, May Not Return

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—Vice-President John Nance Garner, emerging from the seclusion into which he withdrew at the start of the democratic convention that nominated President Roosevelt for a third term, disclosed Monday before he embarked that he was going home to Uvalde, Texas, for an indefinite stay.

Although he said the purpose of his journey was to vote in the primary election there Saturday, some senators said they did not expect him to return here to serve out the remainder of his term. Only national emergency or a strong personal plea from President Roosevelt would bring him back, they said.

Others, however, asserted the vice-president had not decided whether to come back. They predicted that after a few days of rest he would return.

Asked about that, Garner snapped:

"I'll reserve my decision on that. I have a leader who waits until the last minute to make up his mind."

Thrust at Delay

This apparently was directed at President Roosevelt's delay in announcing his attitude on the third term issue.

Reporters, who had been trying to see Garner ever since the beginning of the Democratic convention, found him in a jovial mood at first but he became ir-

4-H CAMP AT LAKE CISCO SEPTEMBER

The 4-H club encampment committee met Saturday, July 20 to make plans for the annual Eastland county 4-H club encampment. The committee has made arrangements to have the encampment at the Presbyterian camp at Lake Cisco on September 4 and 5. A very interesting and worthwhile program has been planned. A tour of the fish hatchery to see how fish are fed and cared for will be a highlight of the encampment.

4-H club boys and girls will attend the encampment. By the interest shown this should be one of the most outstanding encampments ever held in Eastland county.

The club members planning the encampment are:

Dorothy Verna Daniel, Flatwood; Ima Louise Little, Flatwood; Mrs. Velma Neal, Rising Star; Ethel Gales, Rising Star; Nettie Lou Neal, Rising Star; Dorothy Jean Spurlen, Olden; F. L. Spurlen, Olden; Pete Foster, Flatwood; Billy Johnson, Eastland; Mrs. J. H. Nix, Morton Valley; Veda Ramsower, Morton Valley; Mr. A. C. Pratt, Assistant County Agent; Miss Margaret Blount, assistant county home demonstration agent.

Anonymous Attacks Scored by Collier

Senator Wilbourne B. Collier, candidate for re-election to the state senate, here today said, when asked regarding distribution of an anonymous circular attacking him, that he did not believe the people would credit such eleventh hour attacks.

"People are fair-minded and they like fairness," said the senator. "Whenever disparaging influences are at work they want to know the authority for them. In other words they like for critics to come out in the open where they are answerable for what they say."

"Whenever they hide behind anonymity, where they cannot be subjected to suit for criminal or civil libel, the suggestion is that they are afraid of their horses. In other words they are stabbers in the back—not honest front-to-front fighters like good American citizens are, and therefore, entitled neither to respect nor to credit. Usually, the source of such attacks is a disgruntled individual or someone who wants a piece of the 'political pie' the governor talked about today and doesn't know how to get it otherwise."

Fair Queen Will Have Picture Test

DALLAS, July 23.—The Queen of Queens who will be selected at the Coronation Ceremony and Pageant which will be held on opening day of the 1940 State Fair of Texas, Saturday, October 5, will be given a trip to Hollywood and a screen test, it was announced here by the Pageant Committee, of which R. J. O'Donnell is chairman and Alphonso Ragland, Jr. is vice chairman.

Every queen selected in Texas during the year will be invited to participate in the Queens' Pageant. A competent jury of artists will select one of the visiting queens as the Queen of Queens. More than fifty visiting queens were present at the coronation ceremonies in 1939.

Miss Ruth Evelyn Foote of Abilene was crowned Queen of Queens at the 1939 celebration and was given a M-G-M screen test. While in Hollywood, Miss Foote was entertained by Hollywood royalty, among them being Clark Gable, Edward Arnold, Miss June Pringle and countless others.

Precautions in Dealing With Anthrax Urged

Warning to cattlemen concerning treatment of carcasses of animals dead of this disease was issued here today by veterinarians after inspection of some areas north-west of Cisco where cases of infection have been found.

Dr. Ross Hodges of Ranger, following an inspection with a representative of the state veterinary board yesterday told the Cisco Daily Press, that the following precautions should be observed by cattlemen:

Do not vaccinate except herds in which infection has been found in adjoining herds.

Intradermal type vaccine is recommended by the U. S. bureau of animal husbandry and state veterinary department as the most effective and safest. Old type live virus vaccine was warned against as very dangerous and likely to spread anthrax.

Only qualified veterinarian should administer vaccine. Anthrax is highly contagious both to man and to beast.

Burn all dead carcasses where found. Do not remove or cut open carcass. An area of ground around the dead carcass should be limed after burning carcass.

Any excretion or secretion coming from an infected carcass should be considered highly infected and contagious.

Judges For Election On Saturday Named

The election judges for the democratic primaries will not be those officials chosen by the commissioners court to hold the general and special elections, clothed with the powers of finality, the primaries are only nominating elections, where the voters of the democratic party selects the nominees, who must be ratified by the general election to be held in November.

Those who will be judges of the July and August primaries are chairmen of the various precincts, and are as follows:

Eastland: Precinct 1, P. L. Parker; precinct 2, Oscar Wilson; Ranger: Precinct 3, C. E. May; precinct 4, A. H. Howell.

Miss Fox to Be Cisco Duchess

Miss Jeanne Fox will be the Duchess of Cisco at the Peach and Melon Festival at DeLeon tomorrow evening. The court will be held at 7 o'clock following a parade at 4 p. m. in which the Lobo band will participate.

Miss Fox won the title of "Miss Cisco" at the local revue at Lake Cisco early this month and represented Cisco at the Mineral Wells Health Festival.

HISTORY REPEATS

LONDON, July 23 (AP).—Preference is being given to wives of service men at Queen Charlotte's Maternity hospital here. The hospital reported that in the first World war more than 5,000 babies were born to service men's wives. Many of those babies are in war service today.

Miss Jeanne Jamison has returned from a visit with Marian Jacobs in Abilene.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

There will be no argument about the fact that Lee O'Daniel came today. It is also of general agreement that the fact that he came to Cisco today is a triumph for the governor. The piece has lived and travelled about more than a decade and he is of the conceit that he knows by sight most inhabitants of these faces today that he knows nothing of the population of this people came from long distances to Daniel speak.

Brooks Home Club Hostess

H. W. Brooks was hostess of the Sandy home demonstration on Monday of this week. She met on Sandy creek for a picnic. Swimming was enjoyed by the group and John caught one large cat fish and several small ones. ### MY STARS!

LOS ANGELES, July 23 (AP).—Some mystery is attached to an old American flag with only 13 stars in the field which a friend gave to Mrs. Winifred Jones 20 years ago. The stars are scattered over the field instead of being arranged in a circle as decreed by the Continental Congress.

These Childish Thieveryies

MONA LISA, thickly cased in a wooden crate, may soon be on her way back to Italy.

There is a childish irrelevance about this performance that freezes the blood. Are wars and the bloody death of thousands for no better purpose than this?

More than 400 years ago a man named Leonardo lived in Florence. He was a great man, one who was intensely aware of all aspects of life, one whose talents ranged the whole gamut of human capability. He was painter, engineer, politician, writer, inventor, builder, poet—the sort of all-round man which the world doesn't produce any more.

Leonardo painted a picture of a nobleman's wife. It is a small picture, not too impressive at first glance. But on the lips of Mona Lisa and in her eyes there played the ghost of a strange inscrutable half-smile which fascinated those who looked.

King Francis I of France bought the painting from Leonardo when the painter came to France to serve him.

Years passed, and ever the hold of this small painting on its beholders grew and grew and grew. Not only the Florentines, not only the Parisians, but people of all the world grew to know Leonardo's Mona Lisa.

NAPOLION, flushed with his military triumphs, installed her in a parison gallery at a time when his legions returned from Italy and Egypt staggering under the weight of stolen works of art.

Later, in the Louvre Gallery, Mona Lisa smiled down from the walls. Artists copied her. Introspective men wrote her love letters. One stole her, and for two years she was in Italy. Then she was recovered and returned.

Now Mussolini is being urged to steal her back, and to take with her other works by Leonardo and Titian stolen by that other conqueror, Napoleon.

IT is all pretty childish. What does the world care whether Mona Lisa hangs in a Paris gallery or an Italian palace? Blind in the darkness of her crate, Mona Lisa's mocking eyes will smile still at those who steal her away.

And Leonardo? He, too, would laugh at the strange spectacle, and say, "Yes, it is true that I painted, and I am glad that my work is still found good after 400 years. But what are your artists painting today? Have you, picture-grabbers, managed to produce a climate in which man is free to create as I was free to create?"

Nations continue to arm to the teeth. Hardly the wisdom teeth, however.

Thirty-seven of the most injurious pests in America are imported, not including fifth columnists and other foreign agents.

An Australian sportsman landed a 1324-pound tiger shark. At first he figured he had hooked New Zealand.

"You Too Can Be a Success!"

changes will come before November.

Therefore, as a result of the strategy of democracy, any serious campaign contention on the most vital question of the day (whether we should take an aggressive or defensive attitude toward the forces which seem to be becoming dominant in the world) will not be, cannot be, importantly debated.

Apparently the active, letter-writing, telegram-sending, telephone-calling portion of the American people don't want any part of any foreign war—and both parties and both candidates have heeded that demand and laid their lines accordingly.

LaGRANGE, July 23 (AP)—LaGrange's population has increased—and the town is upset. Reason: the state highway department will not build or improve highways within the corporate limits of a town of 2,500 or more. And LaGrange climbed from 2,354 to 2,538.

NEGRO SAINT PROPOSED

LOS ANGELES, July 23 (AP)—A Negro would be added to the book of saints if prayers of the Interracial Council of Los Angeles are answered. The council hopes for canonization of Martin de Forres, a Dominican lay brother often called "the apostle of charity in the new world."

Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON, July 22—The ways of democracy, like the ways of the heathen Chinee, are often strange—but somehow they are mighty effective—or should I just say potent.

It was the methods of democracy that made it possible for Wendell L. Wilkie, with his short-term campaign, to be nominated at Philadelphia. It was those same methods which formed the foreign policy plank in the Democratic platform.

Convention delegates and even politicians in office cannot stand the pressure from back home. The most effective lobby or pressure group in the country today is that which bores from within a congressman's own district with a flood of telegrams, letters and phone calls to urge or demand some particular piece of legislation or the nomination of some particular candidate.

Know What They Want

Twice in the last few weeks, I have seen this thing at work. In Philadelphia, delegates were stunned by the overwhelming verbal and written demand for the nomination of Wilkie. His opponents insist that it was a fictitious thing—that it existed only because of a planned campaign to snow the delegates under with cries from the hinterlands. I wouldn't know. I'm no detective. But whatever its source, its effect was immensely successful.

In Chicago the same thing happened. Let me say right now that I am not even hinting that the Democratic party was committed to fighting on any front but our own. But if there WERE any so-called "war-mongers" with any influence when the Chicago convention assembled they were beaten down and out by the very same thing that picked Wilkie: a demand from the hinterlands that we stay out of any foreign wars.

It isn't within my province of passing along the inside facts to say whether I think this good or bad. Like a whole lot of readers, I don't know. But I do know that an active portion of the vociferous public demanded a stay-out-of-war declaration from the Democrats and that they got it in no uncertain terms.

No Argument

Taking their cue from the President's statement a few days before they went into action, the Democratic platform committee wrote into their commitments that we would never send any of our boys abroad to fight in foreign wars; that we, as a people, would consecrate ourselves to principles of peace and the pursuit of friendly relations among all peoples.

There are two amazing and, I think, interesting things about this plank in the platform. In the first place, put there by popular demand as democracy understands it, it commits the party to the very same thing that Republicans wrote into their platform: "The Republican party is firmly opposed to involving this nation

STAMP NEWS

THE proposed joint issue of an Anglo-French allied stamp, symbolizing the unity of England and France, has been cancelled following the French armistice with Germany.

Latest French issues include two Red Cross semi-postals, one picture of a wounded soldier being cared for by nurse and physician while a woman and child look on; the other shows a wounded soldier and a nurse.

American-built airplanes, recently purchased by Argentina, will be pictured on a new series of five airmails.

Stamps of the Netherlands have been suppressed by Nazis and German issues, overprinted "Army of Occupation," have been substituted.

Mexico has announced a commemorative issue of two stamps marking the 400th anniversary of the settlement of Campeche, by the Spanish in 1540. The postage item will show the city's coat-of-arms and the arrival of a portrait of Francisco de Montejo, the Spanish founder.

FLYING CO-ED

BY MARY KINNAVEY MOORE

Copyright, 1940, NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
ANNE NORRIS—wealthy college student, looking for thrills, enrolls in CAA flying course.
GEORGETTE PARKER—Anne's friend. Learning to fly is a serious business with her.
TONY SCOTT—college playboy, son of a gangster, envies Anne's social position.
CAPTAIN DICK DOUGLAS—instructor of the student flying course at Midland University.

YESTERDAY: Submitting to her guardian's wishes, Anne tells Tony she cannot see him until after school closes. On their last date, Tony takes her to a roadhouse, banned by school authorities. There is a shooting. A diegame girl helps Anne escape before police arrive.

CHAPTER VII
 IN a back room of the Villa Aloha, one of the gunmen grabbed Clarice by the arm. "That red-haired girl, who was she? Where is she?" "I don't know. Let me go—" "We've got to find her." The other man swore angrily. "If she's picked up, she'll talk." Clarice shook her head frantically. "I tell you I don't know what happened to her!" "She must have beat it out the back way," the man said, freeing Clarice. "If she's on foot, she can't get far." With a half-sneered oath, his companion followed him out through a back doorway as the police entered at the front. Meanwhile, a short distance down a side road, Anne was hurrying as best she could. Her light evening wrap was little protection against the storm, and her filmy dress clung to her like a rag. But Anne was long past caring about how she looked. Her one thought was to get away, as far away as she could.

She had no doubt of what would happen if she were publicly involved in the shooting at the Villa Aloha. She would be held for questioning, she was a witness. Headlines would tell the story. That she had been at the Villa Aloha, in spite of the college ruling, would mean instant expulsion from Midland. It would mean the end of her flying course. Curious, she thought that she should think about that now.

In the next instant, a revulsion at the thought of running away brought her to a stop. Running away from things was not in Anne Norris' tradition. It was true, she reminded herself, that her presence at the Villa Aloha had been entirely innocent. She was not really to blame. Yet, the fact was that she had been there. The fact remained that she had broken the college ruling. The reasons for her having been at the tavern would make no difference to college authorities. In spite of that, she could not run away. There was only one thing to do, and that was to go back to take her medicine.

Where was Tony? Why had he deserted her? She could only assume that he had suddenly realized that he might have been seized on the shooting as an unexpected opportunity for letting Anne become involved in scandal never occurred to her.

The police were at the Villa Aloha now. Whatever came of it, she must retrace her steps, go back and tell them that she had been there. They would want her testimony, she knew. Of all the people in the room, she probably had had the best look at the two gunmen. She could identify them. Then once more, as she stood in the rain, she had that terrible feeling of being pursued. Instinctively, she drew away from the edge of the road. She saw that she was right.

Two men were hurrying down the road, obviously looking for someone. Instinct and quick thought told her they were the two who had done the shooting, and that they were looking for her. At almost the same instance, she heard one of them call out. "There she is!"

ANNE NORRIS turned and ran blindly down the road through the rain. This time she was not running from disgrace, from the fear of expulsion from college. She was running in sheer terror, from what she instinctively recognized as real and immediate danger. Her chiffon formal, drenched with rain, clung to her ankles, slowing her, occasionally almost tripping her. Ready to drop from exhaustion, fear kept her going.

She didn't dare look back, yet she realized that her pursuers must be very close. In another minute they would catch up with her.

The headlights of a car coming from behind her illuminated the highway. The car skidded to an abrupt stop beside Anne. The door of the car fell open, a hand reached out to Anne, and a voice called, "In here—quick—"

It was the voice of Dick Douglas! With one swift motion he pulled Anne into the car and slammed the door. He jammed the car into gear, sent it roaring down the highway in a burst of speed. Behind them a shot rang out, and another. At the first shot the car was well ahead, and in another moment it was out of range of the pursuers.

DICK slowed to normal speed. He glanced curiously at Anne, huddled, white-faced, in a corner. "I thought those two looked bad as I passed them. You have some very odd friends, Miss Norris."

At the sound of his voice, Anne felt her strength returning. "I'd hardly say their manner was very friendly!" She tried to be casual.

In spite of himself, he gave her a glance of admiration. But in the next instant his resentment of her returned.

"Well, what has the beautiful Miss Norris been doing for excitement? Looks as if it might have been more than a rotogravure picture in the Sunday supplements this time."

Embarrassed, half-angry at herself for doing so, Anne told him the whole story. As she finished it, she added, "I don't know why on earth I should tell all of this to you."

"I will say you showed even less judgment than I'd have expected." He looked at her as he spoke, and all at once began to laugh. "That's right, laugh," Anne snapped, her temper rising.

"If you could only see yourself," he gasped. "Wait—" He stopped the car, took out his flashlight. "Take a look at yourself in your vanity. Take a look."

"Anne Norris, the glamorous," Dick Douglas' voice was amused but kind.

PIERCE BROOKS for Railroad Commissioner. A business man. Not a Lawyer. Pol. Adv.

For a few minutes they sat laughing. Then with a flash of sympathetic concern he pulled off his coat and wrapped it around her, then started the car.

"Got to get you home, youngster, before you catch pneumonia."

"No. I've got to go back. Don't you see? I was—a witness. The police—"

He looked at her curiously. "You mean you're going back?"

guilty. Now let me take you home." In her heart she knew that he was right. A FEW minutes later he turned down the street to her sorority house. "Captain Douglas, I can't go in looking like this—" "No, you're right. Where's Georgette? Any other way you can get in?" "Georgette is home for the week-end. There's the fire escape—I hate to do it, but—" Without a word he swung his roadster into the driveway, stopped in the shadows and helped her from the car. Under the fire escape he stopped. "Take a hot bath and get right into bed." She nodded. "Don't worry! I will." "Okay. Up you go." He boosted her up to the fire escape, his muscular hands hard against her arms. "And—good luck. If you get into any trouble because of this—let me help, if I can." In the security of her room at last, Anne had only one thought. She would never see Tony Scott again, never. (To Be Continued)

GOD'S ACRES

WENONA, Ill., July 23, (AP)—Improvements on the Bethany Lutheran church are being made from the returns of "God's Acres." Each farmer member of the church has set aside an acre of his land, revenue from which he gives the church. Some apartment and house owners have donated rentals. As a result, it is hoped the church will be in tiptop shape for its 50th anniversary in 1942.

Baird Girl Becomes Bride Wednesday

Of interest to many Ciscoans is the wedding of Miss Cleve Wilson of Baird to John W. Maddox of Holtville, California, which took place in Baird at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Dyer, Wednesday evening. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Carrie Wilson of Baird, and the late John R. Wilson. Marriage vows were said before a beautiful arch banked with ferns and tall baskets of white gladioli. Prenuptial music, "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" was played by Mrs. V. E. Hill as Marian Dyer and Mrs. Burnel Osborn of Holtville, California, lighted the candles. Mrs. Hill played Wagner's Lohengrin wedding march as the couple entered the room and softly played Humoresque during the ceremony. The bride wore a white embroidered silk jersey dress with white accessories and a corsage of white rosebuds. After the reception which followed, Mr. and Mrs. Maddox left for Mineral Wells where they will spend a few days before going to their new home in California. The bride's going away dress was black sheer with white accessories. Those attending the wedding

WEST TEXAS UTILITIES CO. WHAT WAS THAT NOISE? Quiet! PING!

Ever hear a pin drop? IF A NOISE annoys, then you can fully appreciate the silent workings of Reddy Kilowatt whose labor is marked only by the flick of a switch. So quiet is he that the dropping of a pin goes p-i-n-g! This modern age, of course, is filled with sounds that make nerve-racking noise just as it is filled with activity prompted by nervous energy. There is a constant jarring on the nerves... tooting of horns and screaming of brakes along street and highway... outmoded machinery in shop and industry screeching from the weight of inefficiency... and there are everyday noises such as the joyful shrieks of children at play and the barking of dogs--which probably are a never-ending part of this everlasting world. Much noise can be eliminated with Reddy Kilowatt (the symbol of Electric Service) doing the work. Electric Power is produced far away from your home or business. There are no noises or vibrations from it to cause annoyance in your neighborhood or to affect your efficiency. There is no chug-chug or bang-bang of a local power plant. Reddy leaves all the noise behind, reaches your home or business as quietly as a mouse. He travels along the wires so silently you never know he's there. Williamson Would Make Able Legislator

The candidacy of J. M. Williamson to represent district No. 106 in the Texas legislature affords Eastland county opportunity to claiming one of the ablest members of the new legislative body.

Williamson is a man of constructive ideas that will benefit the entire state. A diplomat by nature and training, courteous, affable, he can see and understand the other fellow's problems as well as his own.

Williamson believes in and will support fundamental policies that people hold dear, and it is the candid opinion of the Cisco Daily Press that other legislators will be conscious of his presence at an early stage of the session, if he proves to be the choice of Eastland county democrats in the primary elections July 27, or in the August primaries, should there be a run-off.

While this seems to be a young man's day, it is safe to have older experienced men to ballast the ship of state, and to guide its course with caution.

His ideas on taxation would be a safe guide to the faith and practices of every member. Realizing that it requires funds to operate the state government, he would favor levying this tax on those interests most able to bear the burden, without confiscation or curtailing industries on which the major levies would fall.

Williamson is an organizer, and never in a hurry to rush his measures through to final passage, but his policy is always to make those who may oppose him see the merits of his position, and once seen, believes he will gain support from those who would accomplish something worth while, not only for his own district, but that which will redound to the weal of the entire state.

There are 13 synonyms for the word "intoxicated," but many folks find the hang-over the same.

Double Header Produces Two Best Games

(By Soft Ball Reporter)
The double header last night turned out to be two of the best games we have had. Putnam nosed out Scranton 5 to 4 while Red Front barely eked out Miller-Penney 7 to 6.

In the first game, Scranton led most of the way 4 to 1, but Putnam scored 3 in the 4th to tie the game up. In the 7th Crowell, a new man from Dallas, delivered a line single down the first base line to score Hughes who had walked. This was the ball game. Putnam led in hits 9 to 4 for Scranton.

In the second game, Miller-Penney, with many of their old players back and with lots of fire and bustle, almost took the ball game. It seems swell to see those fellows come back and play the kind of ball they're capable of. Mofett was back in left, Jones was in short field, Howsley played 2nd, and all of them talked it up. Warfield only allowed three hits which is good in anybody's league. White tripled to deep center, Robinson had a line double, and Garrett a single back of third for the only hits for Miller-Penney. Meanwhile Red Front collected 8 hits and should have sewed the game up. Walks hurt the Red Front pitchers and they were in a good many tight spots.

These games do not count in the batting or team averages as do the regular games. One more game will be necessary to determine the 3rd place winner of the 2nd division. This will be between Red Front and Putnam next week. It should prove to be very interesting.

● SERIAL STORY

FLYING CO-ED BY MARY KINNAVEY MOORE

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
ANNE NORRIS—wealthy college student, looking for thrills, enrolls in CAA flying course.
GEORGETTE PARKER—Anne's friend. Learning to fly is a serious business with her.
TONY SCOTT—college playboy, son of a gangster, envies Anne's social position.
CAPTAIN DICK DOUGLAS—instructor of the student flying course at Midland University.

these operations, Anne could feel her own stick move and she saw the effect of these movements on the plane.
"Now on the rudder bar." His voice was quiet and business like. "Press on the left and the rudder will swing to the same side, thus changing the direction of the plane toward the left. And pressure on the right will turn the rudder in that direction."
Anne was alert to response of stick and rudder to the light almost imperceptible pressure put upon them.
"When we are in the air," Captain Douglas went on, "I will show you again how even a slight movement of the rudder and the stick controls the plane."
Her instructor signaled the attendant mechanic to start the engine, and seconds later the prop was whirling and the chocks were away from the wheels.
"Look forward, watch the horizon and the nose of the ship as I take off," Dick told her as the ship went into the wind and he "gave it the gun."
The ship rose in a long, slow climb, above the trees in the pasture beyond the airport, over the clubhouse of the nearby golf club, and then it leveled off, its nose pointed directly at the horizon.
"There are four basic fundamentals of flying," Dick explained, "straight and level flight, the climb, the glide and the turn. You have seen all of these demonstrated in the past couple of minutes, and you'll see, as your instructions continue, that all flying technique consists of the use of combinations of these."
Once again, Anne was told to follow her companion's motions as he used stick and rudder. At each change in pressure, she was conscious of the response of the ship. Her hand was holding the stick and her feet were upon the bar, the nose of the ship on the horizon, when she glanced at her instructor, and saw that his hands were resting on his knees, and that his feet were not on the rudder bars.

The realization that she was flying the plane herself terrified her momentarily and she clutched firmly upon the stick, pressing heavily to the right on the rudder bar. The ship turned to the right, but Captain Douglas shook his head.
"Not so hard," he warned, as he took over the controls himself.
Anne relaxed at once and her touch again was light and easy as she followed his actions.
Before long, the handling of controls was given to her again, and this time, she used her hands and feet in an attempt to coordinate the controls properly.

After a few brief explanations of the simpler maneuvers of the plane, Dick turned the ship toward the airport, circled it once and coming into the wind, landed on the long runway.
Anne was smiling as he helped her from the ship, Tony and the shooting, at least for the time, had been forgotten. Dick's terse "Nice going!" made everything right.
But at that moment Tony was stepping from a phone booth at the Villa Aloha, his face white with rage. He had just made his eighth attempt to reach Anne by telephone, and been told, for the eighth time, that she was not in.
He had to admit that his carefully laid plan had backfired. He had hoped and planned that Anne's visit to the roadhouse would be discovered. He had reasoned that if she were expelled from Midland University, and involved in scandal, he could induce her to marry him immediately.
When the shooting had taken place, his first thought had been to get away before the police arrived. His second thought had been that this was a marvelous chance to involve Anne in a nasty mess. He had known that she would resent his desertion of her but he had thought that it would be balanced later by her gratitude to him for standing by her when other friends deserted her.

But, by some miracle, she had gotten safely away. Now she refused to have anything more to do with him. He had to admit that he had lost. Tony Scott was not a good loser.
He slumped down at the bar, his chin on his hand, and growled, "Harry, I'd give a lot to know how that girl got away from here."
The bartender stopped polishing glasses long enough to say, "If you mean your red-haired friend the other night, I can tell you."
"How?" Tony stared at him in amazement.

The bartender looked around before he spoke. "She beat it out the back way and scrambled up the road. Those two guys—you know who I mean—went after her. They wanted to scare her into keeping her mouth shut. They just about caught her a ways up the road when she was picked up by a guy in a little car. He was just driving down the road."

Tony scowled. "I'd like to lay my hands on the guy. He sure

Group Four Meets With Mrs. Shockley

Group Four of the First Christian church met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Lonnie Shockley. The business meeting was conducted by the chairman, Mrs. David Duncan. Mrs. Troy Powell brought the devotional on the subject "Faith." The circle decided to have an ice cream supper Monday night at 8 o'clock on the lawn at the home of Mrs. Guy Ward.

Mrs. Mobley Is Group Two Hostess

Group Two of the First Christian church opened its meeting with the song, "Wonderful Words of Life," Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. James Mobley. Prayer was led by Mrs. J. R. Wright, after which Mrs. C. R. West brought the devotional on "Prayer" from Luke 18. During the business meeting which followed plans were made for the fifth Tuesday meeting of the women's societies of all of the churches.

A social hour followed and refreshments were served to Misses C. R. West, H. J. Woodridge, J. R. Wright, W. L. Harrell, W. J. Armstrong, John Bailey, L. D. Wilson, J. T. Scott, Jim Flornoy, Misses Alice Bacon, Joe Gray, and the hostess, Mrs. Mobley.

Flying Co-Ed--

upset my apple cart.
"Joe recognized his car," the bartender said casually, resuming his polishing. "Yellow roadster with wire wheels. Goes by here a lot. Belongs to that government flying instructor out to the airport."
"Douglas?" Tony asked, an ugly light in his eyes.
"Don't know his name," the bartender said.
Tony thought for a moment. Dick Douglas drove a yellow roadster with wire wheels.
"That's the second time that guy messed things up for me!"
FOR a long moment he sat lost in thought. At last he spoke again to the bartender, leaning across the bar and speaking in a confidential tone.
"Harry, get hold of Jumps Daley for me. Know where he might be?"
"I could find out."
"Find him, and have him meet me here. It's important."
Tony's expression wasn't pleasant as he added, "I'm going to get that guy Douglas if it's the last thing I do!"

Value Increases With Price of Gold

DENVER, July 24 (AP)—Officials who spent $4,000 to cover the dome of Colorado's state capitol building with gold leaf 32 years ago were criticized for "extravagance" but—
The gold, approximately 200 ounces of it, was worth $20 an ounce when placed on the dome, or a total of about $4,000. Now gold is $35 an ounce and so the dome's market value is about $7,000.

It's a book profit, however, for much of the gold leaf has "eroded" or been scratched away by boots of workmen. But the gold never tarnished and seems as bright today as when it was put in place.

Collie Speaks to Home County Folks

WILBOURNE B. COLLIE

My Friends of Eastland County:
I am trying this week to see as many of you as possible, although I have two engagements which will take me to the extreme Western end of my district Wednesday. During the past few weeks I have been campaigning with the 50,000 voters in the other eleven counties of the Senatorial district. It has been a difficult task, but I want all of you to know of my sincerest appreciation and thanks for the exceptionally large vote you gave me when I first ran for the Senate and again when you re-elected me. It has been a source of great personal pride to have had the support of my home people, and I hope none regret having done so. I was unknown when I first ran and you made it possible by your expressions of regard and confidence for me to achieve my ambition for public service.

If I have so conducted myself as to merit your continued support, and if my representation of you in the State Senate has been such as to gain for this district and our section of Texas that degree of recognition and distinction you reasonably could expect, I should like to continue serving you in this day of great suspense. Victory would be an empty honor to me if I did not have the support of my home people.

WILBOURNE B. COLLIE For Re-Election State Senator.

the right number is called.

His Presidency has in eight years become ill of that common disease of rulership by which so many good men and women of history's past—and present—have been "yes-namanned" or "yes-womaned" into horrible disillusionment when an inexorable destiny with a stuffed club finally caught up with their inefficiency. The Kaiser strutted it. "Me und Gott," cried he. The liquid eyes of a Hitler glows with the fanatical fervor of a self-exaltation. "I am the instrument of the divine." Napoleon brooded over God's final terrible mistake at St. Helena. And all over the world from generation to generation, countless little and larger dictators have arisen and fallen, each convinced of a divine mission of salvation, each determined to seize, and hold the power to perform it.

And now, God bless the old boy can poke fun at the democrats who bolted New Deal to vote for a republican who was a dem until 1936. What a man Presidency is!
The United States has adopted 3,500,000 aliens.

CAREFUL SHOPPER type tells you:

"I'm driving the car all day while my husband's at work, so I really buy most of the family gasoline out of my own budget. If I can get even 2 or 3 miles more to a gallon I want to know it. That's why I went to a Conoco station for my Mile-Dial—not just because it's free, but because it really lets you know your true mileage, exactly as a woman wants to really know about anything she pays for. I like buying tested things—the same as any up-to-date consumer—and this certified Mile-Dial is like giving us consumers our own easy way of testing Conoco Bronz-z-z for mileage.

"Anyway, it's almost like a game, dialing your correct mileage on the Mile-Dial—awfully clever. My husband says so, too. By the way, my driving is just as economical as his, the way it proves out on our Mile-Dial. Isn't that interesting? And we're keeping on dialing to make sure of our average in all different driving. Right now, after 61 gallons of Bronz-z-z in all, we're a good 200 miles ahead of what we used to expect from that much gasoline."

"DIDN'T CARE" type of driver says:

"I didn't much care what gasoline I bought as I went along. But this Mile-Dial being free, and really daring you to keep your own close tabs on Conoco Bronz-z-z gasoline, I went for it. And now I know why they've got the gimp to let the Mile-Dial tell all. For you can see by my Mile-Dial right on the dash that I've gone 633 miles on 37 gallons of Conoco Bronz-z-z.

"Now if you'll watch this smart Mile-Dial work—next to automatic—you'll see it giving the answer: . . . above 17 miles to the gallon of Bronz-z-z in this big eight, around town here. But I'm leaving for about a 700-mile trip—mostly open country. So don't be surprised if I even get better mileage. And don't say that's a brag, because you can't help believing the Mile-Dial. Besides settling the economy of Conoco Bronz-z-z it's sort of swell fun dialing your honest mileage. The Conoco boys must know what their gasoline's got, to give you a Mile-Dial free. I'll bet you would like one yourself and they're free as air, around a Conoco station. You ought to go quick and get yours."
