FORMER CISCO YOUTH DIES IN PLANE CRASH

Funeral To Be Held Here at 10 Wednesday

Funeral services will be held at the First Christian church at 10 a. m. Wednesday for Tom Bryan Coker, Jr., who was fatally injured in an airplane crash near Clovis, New Mexico, Monday. The Rev. J. R. Wright of the Christian church will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Joe I. Patterson of the First Methodist church.

The body is to arrive at 5 p. m. today and with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements, it will be taken to the home of an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Elkins, to lie in state until time for the funeral.

The son of Tom B. Coker, Sr., of Colorado City, and Mrs. S. A. Jackson of Dallas, former Ciscoans, Tom Bryan was born here on June 4, 1919. He moved away from Cisco for several years, returning in 1935 to complete his high school work, and making his home with Mr. and Mrs. Elkins. He graduated in 1936.

Young Coker attended Texas Tech in Lubbock for three years, and early in the fall of 1939 joined the army air corps, training in Dallas and San Antonio. At the time of his death he was employed at the Clovis flying field.

Other survivors include his maternal grandmother, Mrs. J. A. Tume of Cisco, his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Coker of west Texas, and several uncles and aunts.

Cadets Power Dive Model Planes at Randolph Field

RUMANIANS RESIST DRIVE OF HUNGARY

German Motorized Troops Arrive in Border City

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 3 (AP).—Definite military plans are being made for armed resistance to Hungarian occupation of Transylvania, it was learned Monday night.

At the same time this was learned on high authority, unconfirmed reports circulated in government quarters that two units of German motorized troops had arrived at the border town of Sighet.

Sunday's riotous anti-axis demonstrations in Bucharest and Brasov brought two stiff notes from Berlin, demanding explanation of attacks on Germans and lack of internal order in Rumania.

Already, a semi-official German threat to occupy all of Rumania with nazi troops unless the anti-axis agitation is curbed had spurred Rumanian authorities to hustle hundreds of demonstrators into concentration camps.

Wilhelm Fabicius, German minister to Rumania, conferred Sunday with the new soviet Russian minister, Arkedy I. Lavrentieff. It was reported unofficially that they discussed a secret note which Russia is said to have sent to Berlin, asking "clarification" of a German guarantee to protect Rumania militarily.

This pledge was made last week when Germany and Italy ordered Rumania to agree to yield half of Transylvania to Hungary.

Russia on the first of July took over Bessarabia and the northern Bucovina from Rumania.

At Sighet and Satu Mare and many other towns in Transylvania, hastily-formed Hungarian armed forces—residents of Transylvania—took over communications, transportation services, military posts and other strategic points, although a mixed commission on the territorial transfer has ordered the occupation to begin on Thursday.

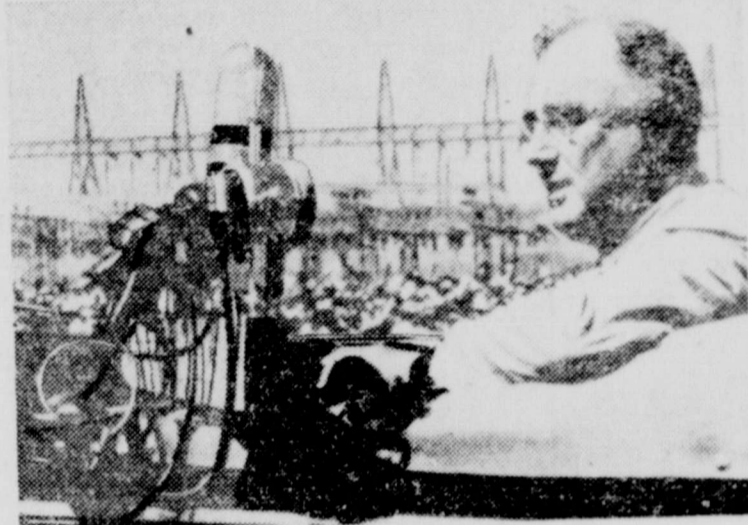

The Rumanian peasant leader, Julius Maniu and his close friends are reported now in Cluj, ancient capital of Transylvania, organizing for military resistance of the Hungarian occupation.

Gen. Mihai Corniciu, former minister of war, informed the general staff that his men on the border were eager to fight and refused to leave their positions.

An important Rumanian official gave this explanation of the government's failure to try to crush Transylvanian resistance plans: "If Hungary is convinced she cannot occupy the territory peacefully, she will certainly call on the German army to effect the transfer. Rumanian troops would not attempt to fight the Germans, but the transfer then would go down in history as a military seizure. This would make a better case for Rumanians to argue at some future peace conference that they never voluntarily relinquished the territory."

Meanwhile, the government strove to prevent further agitation.

Roosevelt Dedicates Dam

President Roosevelt is shown as he spoke from his automobile at the celebration of the completion of the $36,000,000 Chickamauga dam across the Tennessee river which he dedicated to "the total defense of the United States of America." His address was broadcast by all radio networks.

CONGRESS IS NOTIFIED OF PACT TODAY

United States to Transfer 50 Destroyers to Britain

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP).—President Roosevelt notified congress today of an agreement between the United States and Great Britain under which the United States will lease naval and air bases in British possessions and transfer 50 over-age destroyers to Great Britain.

Bases the United States will acquire will be in Newfoundland, Bermuda, Jamaica, St. Lucia, Trinidad, Antigua, and British Guiana.

"The right to bases in Newfoundland and Bermuda are gifts," the president said. "Other bases mentioned have been acquired in exchange for 50 of our over-age destroyers."

Operating Cost Of Ambulance Corps Small

NEW YORK, Sept. 3 (Sp).—The British-American Ambulance corps, of 420 Lexington Ave., has raised the money for nearly 200 ambulances since it issued its first appeal June 17, and it has done it at a cost of less than 6 3-4 per cent, William V. C. Ruxton, president of the corps, announced today.

Fund-raising experts agree that this cost is extremely low," Mr. Ruxton said, "but we hope to keep it that low as we continue to raise the money for the hundreds of additional ambulances so badly needed in the seige which England is now undergoing."

"The most important single factor in enabling us to report such a low cost figure to the state department is the generous cooperation we have received from the press and radio throughout the United States. It is not too much to say that a majority of the money we have raised has come in directly as a result of the generous publicity we have received."

"Price, Waterhouse & Co. has kindly consented to set up our accounts, and to audit them, all without charge. Thomas J. Watson, president of International Business Machine Co., not only contributed tabulating machines, but also men and women to operate them. These give us daily reports of income and expenditures equal to those of the largest concerns."

"The efficiency of this system, together with the fact that the auditors are donating their services and Mr. Watson is lending us both machines and operators, has, of course, reduced our book-keeping expense to a minimum. Similarly, the Graybar building management is giving us quarters at a much reduced rental, as their contribution to the cause, and most of our key workers are donating their services."

They, and the few paid workers we have, know their business, and have been able to avoid most of the mistakes often made in charitable work. They also have known many short cuts which have saved money."

"But the most important factor remains the co-operation we have received from the press and radio. A number of checks have come in pinned to newspaper clippings, carrying our appeals, and many donors have inclosed with their checks letters mentioning that they are giving because of what

Five Injured In Smashup At Abilene Sunday

ABILENE, Sept. 3 (Sp).—Five persons were injured, one possibly fatally, in a head-on collision of two automobiles at South First and Mocking Bird lane about 9:45 last night.

Poor visibility in a drizzling rain and glare of other automobile headlights was the probable cause of the accident, investigating police officers said. Neither driver could give a coherent account of the accident.

Most seriously injured of the victims, Mrs. Bob Fowler of Breckenridge suffered a deep gash traversing her skull horizontally from forehead to the base of her neck, another gash on her forehead, a possible fractured jaw, and other cuts.

At 11:30 p. m. hospital attendants reported Mrs. Fowler's condition as "highly dangerous" and that she was being given a blood transfusion.

Her husband, a Breckenridge construction laborer, received a deep cut on the forehead. Bill Fowler, the couple's five-year-old son, suffered only a slight cut on his head.

Fowler said the family was en route to Big Spring. They were in a Ford V-8 pick-up truck. "One moment I was driving down the street, and the next thing I remember is waking up in the hospital," Fowler said. "I don't know what happened."

Occupants of the other car, a Model A Ford two-door coach, were only slightly injured. J. A. Barnett, of Merkel, route three, driver, received a deep gash in his upper lip. Bill Talbot, son of W. H. Talbot, 889 Santos, deputy internal revenue collector, had a slight cut on his forehead.

Edgar Ellis of Tye brought the boys who were riding in the Ford coach to the hospital for treatment.

Officers said apparently the two cars hit head-on—the pick-up headed west and the coach east. After the impact the two cars came to rest, still head-on, in opposite directions. Both machines were badly damaged.

SHEEP DAY EXPECTED TO ATTRACT 400

A varied program of interest to every sheep or goat raiser in Eastland county is in store for those who will attend the second annual Sheep and Goat day to be held in the parks just below Lake Cisco Friday, September 6.

County Agent Elmo V. Cook is in charge of arrangements and has estimated that 400 men and women will be present for the program and dinner.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 9:30 and to adjourn at 4 p. m., with a barbecued chevon dinner served at noon.

Such authorities as Dr. R. H. Hodges of Ranger, W. H. Dameron, superintendent of the ranching experiment station at Sonora, W. R. Nisbet, A. & M. extension sheep and goat specialist, and A. K. Mackey, secretary of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers' association, and others will speak.

Almazan Says Mexico Ready For Rebellion

NEW YORK, Sept. 3 (AP).—Gen. Andreu Almazan, independent candidate in the recent Mexican presidential election, said today that "the people of Mexico are sick of racketeer government—sick to the point of revolt with or without my leadership."

He declared in a formal statement that "at the heart of Mexican unrest lies the conviction, firmly held by every Mexican man and woman, that the recent presidential election was a farce and a fraud x x x"

The people, he said, "did not vote for the entire Almazan ticket, forcing the administration to announce Avila Camacho's victory without counting the ballots."

"Mexicans are not in doubt as to the reasons for this brazen fraud," he continued. "The gangsters surrounding Lazaro Cardenas did not dare run the risk of an honest president who would examine the books and institute prosecution for the return of stolen monies and punishment for the thieves."

"Further proof of desperation is furnished by a recent arrangement that will bring 250,000 Spanish refugees from France at Mexico."

HOT LUNCH PROJECT TO BE CONTINUED

The committee in charge of the school hot lunch project met in regular session this morning for the purpose of viewing the possibilities of continuing the project through the coming school year.

It was unanimously voted to continue the project, which has proven one of the most worthwhile activities of the city. However, it was pointed out, that in order to properly finance the project, it will be necessary to charge seven and one-half cents per meal this year instead of the usual five cents. In this way, the money will be used to purchase commodities supplementing those supplied by the government, providing well-balanced, rounded out meals every day of the school year.

Mrs. Ira Waters, district supervisor of the school lunch project, announced that 7,000 cans of fruits and vegetables had been put up this summer to be used during the coming session.

Chas. J. Kleiner is chairman of the committee, and among others present were Mmes. George P. Fee, Paul Woods, N. A. Brown, Sam Kimmel, R. B. Carswell, W. C. Hogue, all Parent-Teacher association presidents, and a good representation of the business men of Cisco.

Mrs. Latham Is Buried At Carbon Today

Funeral services were to be held at 3:30 this afternoon for Mrs. Mary Latham, 82, who died at her home on West Eighth street Monday. The services were to be conducted in the Church of Christ, with Mr. Grover C. Rass, former minister of the church, officiating.

With Neil Lane Funeral home in charge of arrangements, the body was to be taken to Carbon for interment in the cemetery there.

Mrs. Latham, who was preceded a death by her husband, is survived by two sons and two daughters, of which Mrs. J. Smith and Bob Latham, live here.

Baptist Revival Increases Daily

Sunday was a good day at the First Baptist church, where the fall revival is in progress, according to the Rev. Judson Prince, pastor. There were 17 additions to the church. It was estimated that 550 people heard the sermon Sunday night, which was brought on the vacant lot just east of the church.

Monday night the pastor-evangelist, Dr. W. W. Chancellor, brought a message on "The Christian Home." A Bible was given to the family with the largest number of children present.

There was one addition at the close of this service, making a total of 21 received during the meeting.

The public is cordially invited to hear these dynamic messages.

CoFC Board To Meet Tonight

There will be a regular meeting of the Cisco chamber of commerce board of directors at the offices tonight at 7:45. It was announced today. Every member is urged to be present.

Cotton Finding New Outlets On Building Program

NEW YORK, Sept. 3 (Sp).—A paneling wood so thin yet so strong that you can wrap it around a pencil without breaking it—glass as thick as your window pane that you can curve around a post—thin sheets of wood and steel so perfectly bonded as to be inseparable—these are dependent upon cotton in part for the qualities which are making them the talk of the building industry. And their rapidly expanding use lends further credence to the belief that the building industry will develop into the long-awaited new million-dollar-a-year outlet for cotton.

Newest of these three products, the flexible glass, is glass bonded to cotton fabric and then divided into a series of squares or rectangles. Made in 26 colors, it is rapidly being accepted by the American building industry for

Blitz-Year Ends; Heavy Burden on U. S.

CAN it be only a year ago that the world's peace machinery thudded to complete breakdown, and war spread like an ugly blot over the face of Europe? Can a single year have so changed the world?

Yes, only a year. On September 1, 1939, Hitler's legions crossed the border into Poland. On the 3rd Britain and France declared war, the effort to make Hitler draw back having proved useless. On the 10th Canada went in.

So short a time ago, and yet so long. We almost forget the spark that set it off. It was the argument over Danzig and the Polish corridor, a not insoluble problem which the slightest good will would have peaceably settled. The cause lay deeper, but the immediate spark was Danzig and the corridor.

WITHIN a month Poland lay prostrate. Within two months the United States had repealed the embargo on arms that had been designed to keep war aloof. Within three months Russia had attacked Finland, and within three more had overpowered her. The eighth month saw Norway and Denmark invaded and conquered. The ninth saw Belgium, Luxembourg, and the Netherlands invaded; the 10th saw the surrender of France and Italy's entrance into the war. The 11th month saw Russian seizure of the three Baltic states, and the final month of the year found England herself at death grips in defense of the island empire.

The same 12 months have seen the United States turn resolutely to arming itself and to building a water-tight dike of defense around the New World. Sparks of war economy and psychology have leaped the ocean and burn brightly in the United States despite its shaken resolution to keep clear of the European holocaust.

PERHAPS never in history have such tremendous changes come in a single year. The tempo of human affairs has speeded up almost beyond understanding or endurance.

We do not know what another year will bring. But we know it is no longer possible merely to float on these tremendous tides.

Defense against dynamic forces must be dynamic. We have liberty to preserve, and a free way of life and living; so we must be strong. We have a future to build, the gateways to a brave new world to open; so we must be wise.

Prisoners in federal reformatories receive aeronautical training, and no cracks about preparing them to fly the coop.

A trumpeter's wife complains that he lavishes his affection and means on another woman. Toot-timer, eh?

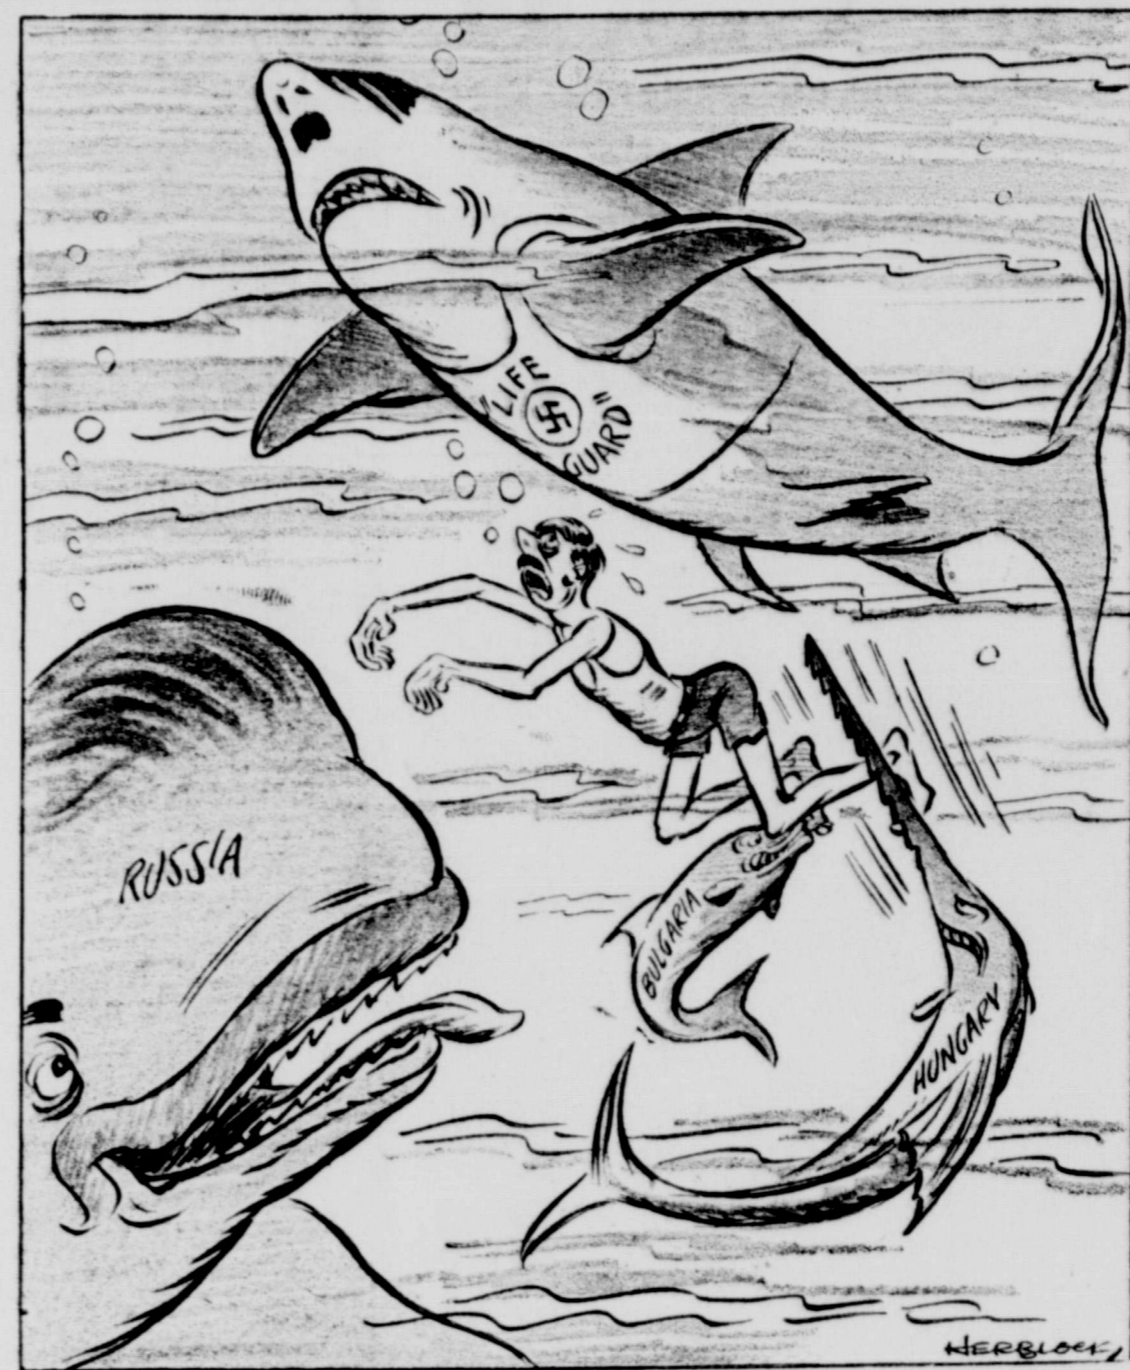

It's the careless motorist who finds it doesn't pay to learn safety by accident.

News dispatches hint shakeup in French cabinet, with Laval on his way out. More propoganda, or is it on the Laval this time?

Nazi hideouts are spotted all over the Caribbean sea. Unlike the leopard, the nazis should be made to change their spots.

Signs and trends of the times being what they are over there, we wonder what the market is for 99-year leases in England.

STAMP NEWS

THIRTY-THREE stamps commemorate Italy's first Overseas Exposition, heralding the spread of the empire. Libya, Italian East Africa and Italy's Aegean Islands have each issued sets of seven postage and four airmail values.

Manchukuo has announced the issue of two stamps, for release in November, marking the national census.

A portrait of Sir Rowland Hill will form the design of Portugal's issue of eight values honoring the centenary of the postage stamp.

The Louis May Alcott 5-cent stamp tops all others in the Famous Americans series in total covers handled in first-day sale. There were 213,820 Alcott covers dispatched from Concord, Mass., Feb. 5. The Horace Mann stamp has the second largest total of covers and the Ralph Waldo Emerson stamp is third.

Germany has released two semi-postals for the Red Cross.

With Our WILD LIFE

There are a few changes in the dove regulations this year compared to last year's regulations.

Don't shoot doves before September 15. Don't shoot doves after any day.

Don't shoot from any motor car or any sail boat. Don't shoot from any road (It does not have to be a state highway.)

Don't shoot doves with any except a shot gun not larger than 10 gauge and it must be loaded to a three shell capacity if it is a repeater or automatic shot gun.

Don't forget your hunting licenses if you leave the county your residence. Don't kill more than 12 per day and do not possess more than 12.

Don't shoot where you can see. There might be a hunter behind those trees. Don't leave gates open, and not hunt on places where you do not have permission to hunt.

Don't forget that quail does not open until December. Last but not least, Don't let a game warden might be watching you.

Don't forget to kill all wild cats while dove hunting. Icebergs have been sighted huge their surface has been matted at 1,000 square miles.

WASHINGTON—A new episode is due in the long-standing row over the National Labor Relations Board, and it's likely to start unfolding any day now.

Simple fact of the matter is that the whole labor board situation is just about where it was a year ago, despite the Smith committee investigation, passage by the House of a drastic Wagner act amendment, and appointment to the board of Dr. William N. Leiserson, the "moderate" who was to take some of the heat off by effecting divers reforms.

Helping to bring things to a climax is the fact that the administration let Chairman J. Warren Madden's term expire without naming a successor. Legally, this left the board with only two members—Dr. Leiserson and Edwin S. Smith, who have practically never agreed on anything.

This delay was due to the fact that while there was important pressure on the White House to give Madden another term, there was equal pressure against it. Madden couldn't be replaced without disturbing such people as Secretary Perkins and Senators Wagner and Thomas of Utah; at the same time, it became known that if Madden were re-appointed Dr. Leiserson would ask to be relieved.

Either a re-appointment or a new appointment would bring up the whole labor board issue in the Senate, which would have to confirm the appointment. The House amendment to the Wagner act has been sleeping quietly in a Senate committee; if it can be kept there until Congress adjourns it automatically vanishes, but if general labor board debate should center attention on it and it is to be brought out it might be passed—which the administration decidedly doesn't want.

MAY BREAK IN HOUSE
It probably will be in the House of Representatives that the next breaks forth.

The House succeeded in doing one thing to the labor board: abolished the appropriation for the board's economic research division, thus (as it thought) doing away with the job of Dr. David Sapos, who was branded being the Smith committee as one of the board's leading radicals. The board, however, nullified this by reorganizing its staff and confining Dr. Sapos and his staff to their old jobs under a new title.

Plan of the board's foes in the House now is to take another swipe at the same old target. Before the session ends a new deficiency bill will have to be voted. Strategy will probably be to attach to it a rider specifying that none of the labor board's appropriation may be used for the salaries of Dr. Sapos and his associates. Furthermore, that rider can be made to apply to the money voted to the board last June, so that the ouster would be effective at once.

COMMUNISM NEXT TARGET
LASTLY, it must be remembered that the Smith committee is still in existence—and it would not be surprising if it should swing into action again. If it does, look for a brand-new inquiry into the matter of Communists on the board's payroll.

Commonest item of gossip in Washington is that there is communism in the board's staff, not as much as the board's foes suspect, but still an appreciable quantity. For some reason the Smith committee never really dug into the question. Today's tip is that it is quite likely to do so before this session ends.

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP).—The scene is the capital barber shop. The characters are, of course, your correspondent's own, but the talk is something very much like what you hear where politicians meet these days.

Barber—How-de-do, Senator, how are you these nice cool days?
Senator—Hot under the collar, and don't take off too much. Been running my fingers through it so much lately, hardly got any hair left.

Representative (snickering through the suze)—Guess you got a sensitive Senator. It's an epidemic now, you know. Got every politician in the country jittery.

Sen.—Young man, if you mention defense again, I'll go right out in your backyard and campaign for your defeat. And besides, when a man has been in the senate as long as I have, he's no longer a politician.

Rep.—All right, Senator, I'll remember. But that reminds me. Don't you think this presidential political campaign is really beginning to take on a pattern?

Sen.—Certainly it is, young man. Any politician with half an eye can see that. Why, I've seen it for at least two weeks, now, practically ever since Mr. Wilkie made his acceptance speech and Jakes stepped up to answer him.

Rep.—You saw it then?
Sen.—Certainly. Why it was as plain as the nose on my face on your face. Wilkie's idea is to try to smoke "the Champ" as he calls him, into the open. And Roosevelt's... of the democratic party's strategy (have it your own way) is to keep beating Wilkie with the boys who can ask embarrassing questions without upsetting presidential dignity or taking the president away from his desk in a time of crisis.

Rep.—Then you, don't think there's going to be any debating?
Sen.—Certainly not. Unless you call Wilkie's rebuttals of the president's statements a debate.

Rep.—And this southern swing of the president... don't you think Wilkie's demands for debate sort of drove the president back in the open there?
Sen.—If you'll go back in the president's date book, I'll bet you'll find the TVA and Smokey mountain dates listed before Wilkie ever said a word about wanting to meet anybody. Of course, the president could have called them off, and the fact he didn't may be a hint of something—but you can't tell what it is yet. No sir, I figure the president is just going to continue his front-porch-and-defense-inspection campaign and for once let the other baggage of the party do a little political hoo-doo-carrying.

Rep.—But do you think that will be effective? Do you think Secretary Jakes' speech, for instance...

Sen.—Young man, if you mention defense again, I'll go right out in your backyard and campaign for your defeat. And besides, when a man has been in the senate as long as I have, he's no longer a politician.

Rep.—All right, Senator, I'll remember. But that reminds me. Don't you think this presidential political campaign is really beginning to take on a pattern?

SERIAL STORY LOVE ON THE LINE

BY PAUL FRIGGENS

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS CARRIE LANE-an eastern girl who came into the frontier west to find a home. MARK DEUEL-a homesteader who keeps his business to himself. ASHTON OAKS-a land agent, with town lots to sell.

YESTERDAY: Mark and Carrie go to a dance with the Taylors. They have a perfect evening until Oaks, drunk, tries to dance with Carrie, shouts that he spent the afternoon with her at Rock creek. Deuel, infuriated, slugs the agent and Oaks is hurled from the hall. Supper call breaks the tension, but Carrie is filled with fear for the future.

CHAPTER VII CARRIE was to move into her new soddy home on Monday. Late Sunday, after dinner with Mark, she had driven back to Rock creek with the Taylors so as to get an early start on the soddy next morning.

After breakfast, Ed Taylor hooked up his team, threw his plow in the wagon and pulled up in front of his soddy for his wife and Carrie. They were ready with a big lunch basket. Mrs. Taylor remarking that this day called for some sort of celebration in honor of their new neighbor.

Carrie would never forget that morning, the utter quietness of the prairie, its tremendous sweep, the grasshoppers stirring up before the wagon, the sun beating down so that it seemed to touch fire to the early morning breeze.

Big Ed was concerned about his small patch of corn, withering in the shimmering heat. He stopped the wagon once, got down and examined the browning tassels.

"Got to have rain soon," he observed, "if it's going to make it." He looked up at the wagon, winked at Carrie. "No corn, no mush this winter."

Carrie laughed but suddenly she was struck by the picture behind that thought. Winter and desolation and wilderness, and if there were no crops, if she couldn't reach town, no food. She shivered in the sunshine. "This is no place for a woman-alone," the words came back to her.

But, as usual, Carrie hid her thoughts. She took up the conversation where the Taylors left off. "No mush at Taylors?" said Carrie. "Then we'll have cake!"

It was still early when they pulled up on the knoll across Rock creek which Carrie had selected for her soddy. But already Mark was there to meet them, sitting cross-legged on the grass while his horse grazed nearby.

"Bout time you're getting here," Mark rose, greeted them. "Where you been all morning?" Carrie was overjoyed. "Why, we've eaten an enormous breakfast, and we rode into town to shop already-didn't you see us?" She stopped breathless, climbing down from the wagon as Mark stepped up to assist her.

"Well, I don't see why you couldn't have let me in on some of that breakfast," he grinned. "I'm about starved. I must have missed you in town this morning."

Ed Taylor unhitched his team, unloaded the plow and hooked the houses to it. "Now, Carrie," he said, "just tell me where you want your sitting room and I'll start right in plowing for it." He slapped the reins on his bays and set the plow for a shallow furrow along the knoll.

believably fast. In a little while Big Ed had plowed enough amazingly straight furrows for the whole thing and Mark got busy cutting the firm, brown sod into three-foot lengths. Then they began to lay the foundation, filling the cracks with soft earth. The joints were broken as in brick laying, and every third tier laid crosswise to bind the others together.

Space was left for one door and three windows, and by noon Mark was putting the frames in place and tamping sod around them. Mrs. Taylor and Carrie helped, carrying on a lively conversation all the while.

"This is the coolest kind of house in the summer," Mrs. Taylor told Carrie, "and warm in the winter." Carrie thought for a minute of Ed Taylor's winter picture again and wondered what good it would be to have a warm house and nothing to eat, but she kept her thoughts to herself.

THEY ate ravenously at noon. salt pork, canned tomatoes, cornbread and jelly. Carrie never remembered a better meal. Mark said as much and Carrie, sitting there opposite him, noting his fine bronzed face, his wavy dark hair blowing in the wind, toyed with the thought it would be even better were they eating here together-alone.

It was late afternoon when Mark and Ed began putting up the rafters for Carrie's roof, on which they were to lay tin, tarpaper, and a final thin layer of sod.

"Seems to me she's getting a little fancy," Taylor shouted from the rooftop. "Only soddy around here with a tin roof I know of. Most of us just got brush." He waved to Carrie, who remarked it didn't look very fancy to her.

"Now that's the kind of thanks we get for our work," said Ed, threatening to quit without finishing the job. But it was finished at sundown, and the four of them sat down for a celebration dinner cooked right on Carrie's sheet-iron stove, the first piece of furniture put in place.

Carrie, excited and flushed, insisted on cooking it herself, and Mark, watching her, had the thought she looked indescribably better in calico dress and apron than in her white satin gown. He wanted to say as much, but didn't, as they sat outside the soddy in the moonlight and talked, for hours, it seemed.

At last, Taylor hitched up his team, climbed up in his wagon and started home, leaving Mrs. Taylor to stay with Carrie for her first night in her new prairie home.

"Be over in the morning again," he said to Carrie, "and dig you a well down by the spring. Better have a real breakfast on that new store in there." He slapped his knee, winked at Mark. "You know, Mark, that was a pretty good feed Carrie put out tonight. Think you could get along on that regular?" Mark flushed. "Guess so," he admitted quietly, glad Carrie couldn't see his face too clearly in the moonlight. Why did people like Ed Taylor always have to hit right on your most inner thoughts?

As he was leaving, Ed called Mark aside. "I wouldn't tell her of course, but that well's a lot more important than just water. I don't like this long hot spell. Mark, everything's too dry. I knew a time once in Iowa when a well came in mighty handy in a pretty bad grass fire. Good place to crawl into, you know, till she's all over."

He said good night, the wagon rumbled off and Mark went back to the soddy. Farm Cash From Milk Shows Increase

NEW YORK, Sept. 3 (Sp)—Milk put $24,000,000 more in cash in farmers' pocketbooks in June and July this year compared with the same months of 1939, according to the Milk Industry foundation.

For July farm cash income from milk was up $12,000,000 over July, 1939. Total farm cash income for the seven months of 1940 totaled $885,000,000 compared with $791,000,000 in the 1939 period.

"This increase in farm cash income shows the importance of milk as a mainstay of farm purchasing power," according to the foundation, "and is particularly impressive because milk production has been larger than a year ago, with more cows on farms and better pastures.

"Cash income from milk is the largest source of farm cash income and is paid for monthly, not at the end of the season as in the case of other crops. This cash is also used for current purchases of merchandise and supplies.

"Milk cash farm income was 12 per cent ahead of last year for the first seven months, with indi-higher than in 1939 during the remainder of the year.

"Strenuous efforts have been made to encourage fluid milk consumption, as this milk sold for cooking and drinking brings farmers the best prices. The foundation's monthly milk sales reports indicate that efforts made by milk distributors to increase sales of fluid milk have met with some success as the first seven months of 1940 show firmer sales than the same period a year ago."

"Turkish" Bath, Navajo Version

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo., Sept. 3 (AP)—Miss Marie Wormington, leader of an archaeological expedition from the Colorado Museum of Natural history, reports the discovery of a "Turkish" bath room at a Navajo site near Cisco, Utah.

The room, 40 feet in diameter, contained 14 fire pits. Scattered around were bits of pottery "game pieces" with which Navajos were known to have gambled.

Miss Wormington theorized that the Indians built fires in the pits, poured water on heated stones, and sat around playing games in the room full of steam.

Pigs that are well fed and housed in clean surroundings usually have the vitality necessary to throw off disease that might be contracted by animals on a "maintenance diet" only, says Burch.

Raby Millers Have Rehearsal Supper Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Raby Miller are hosts Saturday evening in their home to members of the wedding party of their daughter, Zona, and Lieutenant David Gaston Alford of Kelly field, San Antonio.

After the supper, Miss Miller presented to her attendants neidropit purses; to her junior bridesmaids engraved lockets containing the pictures of the bride and groom; to her flower girls engraved bracelets, and to those who furnished the music, hand-made monogrammed linen handkerchiefs.

To each of his attendants, Lieutenant Alford presented sets of monogrammed crystal ash trays.

Guests for the supper included: The Rev. Thomas Lenox of Smithfield, Mrs. N. A. Smith, Dallas, Miss Cozette McDaniel, Austin, Miss Frances Mayfield, Baird, Miss Dick Alford, Rising Star, Misses Bobbie Lee Miller and Vivianjane Grantham, of Cisco; Miss Betty Sue Bettis, Houston; Miss Virginia Lee Hunter, Vernon; her attendants; and James P. Snodgrass, Olden, Hunter Miller, Austin, and Lieutenants J. J. Kraemer, Chas. Deen, C. H. Morgan, H. C. Allers and R. E. Evans, all of Kelly field, San Antonio, and Misses Cathryne Russell, Bilye Cole, Zone Surlis, Gwendolyn Tunnell of Ranger, Gloria Graham, Betty Slicker, Mrs. Mary Dohoney, and Misses Betty Lou and Jo Anne Smith of Dallas, and Mrs. J. J. Hunter, Jr., of Vernon.

The bride's attendants wore silk net dresses of the Victorian era, in pastel shades of Nile green, orchid, gray mist, peach and blue. Each carried a colonial nosegay and wore double ruffled poke bonnets matching their dresses.

Given in marriage by her brother, Hunter, Miller of Austin, the bride entered wearing the broad-corded ivory satin wedding gown of her paternal grandmother. Fashioned along the Victorian lines, the quaint gown had huge leg o'mutton sleeves, tight fitting basque and bouffant skirt edged in double ruffles. A Sir Walter Raleigh ruff and frill matched the lovely imported Brussels lace veil and train. The only jewelry worn by the bride was an heirloom moonstone brooch and mother-of-

Zona Miller Is Wed In Sunday Ceremonies

Miss Zona Kathryn Miller, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Raby Miller of Cisco, and Lieutenant David Gaston Alford, Kelly Field, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Alford of Rising Star, were married in an impressive military ceremony at the First Christian church at 8 o'clock Sunday evening.

The marriage vows were read by the Rev. Thomas Lenox, Smithfield, former pastor of the church here. Banked plumosa ferns, a profusion of tuberose and lighted cathedral fapers formed a beautiful setting for the bridal party.

A tradition was carried on when Miss Gwendolyn Tunnell of Ranger played the prenuptial music and marches, as Miss Miller was a flower girl in the wedding of Miss Tunnell's mother, the former Miss Veniat Daniel of this city.

Miss Bilye Cole sang "Because," accompanied by Miss Tunnell, and a girls' trio, Misses Cole, Zona Surlis and Cathryne Russell, sang "Always." During the ceremony, Miss Gloria Graham, violinist, played "Liebestraum," with piano accompaniment by Miss Betty Slicker.

Maid of honor was Miss Cozette McDaniel of Austin, a TCU classmate of the bride. Mrs. N. A. Smith of Dallas, a cousin of Miss Miller, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were: Miss Frances Mayfield of Baird, cousin of the groom, Miss Dick Alford of Rising Star, sister of the groom, Miss Bobbie Lee Miller, cousin of the bride, and Miss Vivianjane Grantham. Little Miss Virginia Lee Hunter of Vernon, cousin of the bride, and Miss Betty Sue Bettis of Houston, were flower girls.

The bride's attendants wore silk net dresses of the Victorian era, in pastel shades of Nile green, orchid, gray mist, peach and blue. Each carried a colonial nosegay and wore double ruffled poke bonnets matching their dresses.

A Sir Walter Raleigh ruff and frill matched the lovely imported Brussels lace veil and train. The only jewelry worn by the bride was an heirloom moonstone brooch and mother-of-pearl eardrops of her great grandmother. She also wore a flowered petticoat from the trousseau of her maternal grandmother. She carried a single white orchid with swansonia drops on the ivory satin streamers.

Lieutenant Alford was attended by Mr. James P. Snodgrass of Olden, as best man. His groomsmen were Lieutenants J. J. Kraemer, Charles Deen, H. C. Allers, R. E. Evans, C. H. Morgan, all of Kelly Field, San Antonio.

The bridal party left the church under the crossed sabers of the honor guard, to the song of the Army Air Corps.

Immediately following the ceremony a small reception for the families and bridal party was held in the lovely garden of the Miller home. The house party included only aunts of the couple: Mrs.

"When all is said and done, it is the volume that this publicity has brought in that has made it possible for our operations to be as efficient as they are. If the newspapers, news magazines and radio stations continue to co-operate as they have in the past, I have no doubt that we shall be able to keep our costs as low as they are now."

Mr. Ruxton said that after the corps has received the $1,350 needed for each ambulance it can have a machine in service in England. The corps is also trying to raise $12,000 to buy surgical instruments urgently requested by General Charles de Gaulle, commander of the Free French forces in England. Transportation to England of both ambulances and surgical instruments has been arranged free of charge.

Checks or money orders should be made out to Wilton Pierce, treasurer of the British-American Ambulance Corps, 420 Lexington Ave., New York city.

Like the flexible glass, the flexible wood is dependent upon cotton fabric as a base material. Not a synthetic, it is made up of extremely thin strips of flexed woods, fixed to the cotton backing by a special adhesive. The cement developed for affixing the flexible wood makes it suitable for application to dry plaster, steel, plywood, hard wallboards,
