$80,000 Road Project to Start Near Here Thursday

WILL EMPLOY 100 MEN FOR TEN MONTHS

An $80,000 lateral road construction project in the northeast section of Precinct No. 4 will be started Thursday, County Comm'r Arch Birt announced today. Work orders were received this morning. The project will employ a possible 100 men for a period of 10 months, Mr. Birt said. The project calls for surfacing with caliche and gravel a total of nine miles of lateral roads serving the territory between Highway 80 and Highway 80 and Highway 67. The project will tie into Highway 67 at three points and will connect with lateral roads in Precinct No. 1. The project has been "on order" for some time, Mr. Birt said, and has just now been approved by the San Antonio regional office. The county wide project has been approved at Washington and it is only necessary now to secure approval of various units out of the regional office before they are started. The project will complete reconstruction of the lateral road system in the northeast part of the precinct, Mr. Birt said.

Cisco Sponsor To Harvest Queen Revue

Miss Maxine Cearley left at noon today for Graham, where she will represent Cisco in the Harvest Queen Beauty revue of the North Central District fair being held there throughout this week. The revue will be held tonight.

550 Students Are Enrolled at Baird

BAIRD, Sept. 17 (Sp).—A record opening-of-school enrollment of 550 students was set last Monday in the Baird public schools. The 600 mark will probably be reached by Christmas. A teaching faculty of 24 is being used this year, which also is the largest number in history. The 12-year plan went into effect this fall. Quincy Lee of Austin is the guest of relatives here.

Opportunity to Enlist in Marines To Be Offered

Young men residing in northwest Texas will have an opportunity to enlist in the U. S. marines the week of September 23, when a recruiting party of the marines will be in Brownwood and Abilene September 23 and 24, and in San Angelo and Sweetwater September 25 and 26. An unlimited number of men will be accepted for enlistment in these places, and it is expected that this will be the last trip to that section of Texas before compulsory military training goes into effect. The recruiting officer will be at the post office in the above mentioned places from 8:30 to 4:30 p. m., daily.

If you are between the ages of 18 and 30 years, single, white, with no dependents and have completed grammar school, then you are eligible for enlistment. Only young men of good moral character are wanted. Many opportunities are offered by the Marine corps for ambitious young men, including travel... experience... education. Young men interested in the marines should go and see the recruiting officer and let him explain the Marine corps to them and the many advantages the Marine corps has to offer, especially by voluntarily enlisting now, instead of waiting to be drafted, perhaps into some other branch of the service. Let's go Texans! Enlist now!

First of US Fleet Leaves Hawaii

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 17 (P).—Col. Frank Knox, secretary of the navy, said that the first contingent of the U. S. fleet left Hawaii Monday for the Pacific coast. Two other contingents, numbering 30 vessels each, also will return to the mainland, Knox said. Each contingent will remain two weeks for overhaul of the ships and to provide the navy personnel with shore leave. The secretary said he believed about 100 navy vessels would return from Hawaii and that "30 or so" would constitute each of the three contingents. The second will leave Honolulu after the first returns from the mainland, and the third departs for the Pacific coast upon the return to the islands of the second group of ships.

W. E. SPENCER TO BE BURIED AT 4 TODAY

William Emmett Spencer, 61, well known west Texas oil man and real estate operator, died at his home here last night at 8:55 o'clock, after a long illness. Funeral services will be held at 4 this afternoon from the residence, 504 I avenue, conducted by the Rev. Judson Prince, pastor of the First Baptist church of this city. Green Funeral home is in charge of arrangements for burial in Oakwood cemetery.

Pall bearers will be L. H. McCrea, W. F. St. John, F. D. Wright, Dr. E. L. Graham, E. P. Crawford, Dr. Charles Jones and R. L. Shaw. All friends of the family will be honorary pall bearers. Mr. Spencer succumbed to a paralytic stroke which he suffered about 10 days ago. He had been unconscious since Saturday. For 10 years prior to his death he had been in ill health and six years ago he retired from active business. He returned here from Lubbock at that time, relinquishing management of large real estate holdings over which he had had supervision in the Lubbock area. Prior to going to Lubbock in 1927 to take charge of these properties he had been associated with his brother, J. E. Spencer of Cisco, in the oil and real estate business in the Cisco section.

Born in Mississippi

Born in Bellefontaine, Miss., on September 10, 1879, Mr. Spencer came to Texas with his parents in 1897. The family settled at DeLeon. He was first married to Miss Pearl Patterson, who died on March 22, 1912. He was married in August 1914 to Miss Margaret Smith, daughter of the late Dan J. Smith, who survives him. He came to Cisco in 1920 in association with his brother in the oil business, living here until he moved to Lubbock in 1927. He returned here in 1934 when the condition of his health became serious. Besides his wife, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth Hughes and Mrs. Margaret Robinson, both of Cisco; one grandchild, Ann Hughes, of Cisco; two brothers, J. E. of Cisco, and Jack Spencer of Dallas; and three sisters, Miss Vera Spencer of Fort Worth; Mrs. Lera Gregory of Fort Worth and Mrs. Callie Lightfoot of Snyder.

NAZI BOMBERS HIT FIERCEST RESISTANCE

Fog and Anti-Aircraft Barrage Met in 10th Assault

By the Associated Press
German bombers struck fog and the fiercest anti-aircraft barrage yet heard in London last night and early today in their tenth straight night assault upon the capital. An all-clear signal sounded at 2:41 a. m. but it was only a ruse, not a dismissal. At 3:49 a. m. a new alarm sounded, and some German planes came hurtling back, despite the weather. But after one hour and 35 minutes the Germans called it quits and the all-clear came at 5:24 a. m., rounding out the tenth night of air siege against the British capital. One of them blasted a number of firemen to their deaths as they perched on tall ladders to battle a blaze set in the earlier raid which had finally fizzled out. Others started fires in a fashionable residential area. Nazi Invasion Delayed
British sources said their bombers had so heavily damaged German-held continental "invasion bases" that Adolf Hitler's direct invasion attempt would have to be postponed. Low clouds hung over London, and a mist over the English channel rapidly turned into fog, and the sea became choppy. Police in one northern town were informed that two parachutists landed near there, but after a long hunt, it was decided the report was false. Continuing their assaults on "invasion ports," British bombers heavily attacked concentrations of war supplies, barges, and shipping at the dockyards of Hamburg, Wilhelmshaven, in Germany, and the German-occupied ports of Antwerp, Flushing, Ostend, Dunquerque, Calais and Boulogne.

Strike Warship

The British air ministry also said a direct hit was scored on an "enemy warship" off Terschelling, Holland. British sources admitted their raids on the German-held ports had not stopped the Germans from marshalling their forces for invasion, but they have inflicted severe losses, destroyed much equipment, and damaged harbor facilities.

London Began Monday under an Air Raid Alarm

London began Monday under an air raid alarm which lasted until dawn, spent most of the day on the alert as the nazis repeatedly swept against the empire capital, and got set for another night of raiding when the Germans returned at 8:08 p. m. German authorized quarters announced that Reichsmarschall Goering, personally entrusted by Hitler with the air war against Britain, had flown a German bomber over London Sunday night. Berlin had two air raid alarms Sunday night and early Monday—but the results of those attacks were disputed by the belligerents. Germany said the British were driven off, but the British declared the RAF "again bombed military objectives" in the nazi capital. Nazis Greet Spaniard
In Berlin Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop and his nazis greeted Ramon Serrano Sumer, brother-in-law of Spain's Generalissimo Franco on his arrival from Madrid. Many observers expressed belief that nationalist Spain is on the eve of a special understanding with the Rome-Berlin axis. He will see Hitler today. In the far east, well-informed quarters in Hanoi, French Indo-China expressed belief that France is in imminent peril of losing French Indo-China to Japan. It was said that Japan would be allowed to establish perhaps 25-30 troops on Indo-China soil, which would mean that China

'Draft Jar' to See Service Again?

Under a glass casing in Philadelphia's Independence Hall rests the historic glass jar used in the last World War to elect doughboys for the draft. Its bottom is lined with the capsules, each containing a number, which, when chosen in blindfold draw, determined the men called to active service. The uniformed guide, above, could tell tourists that this historic jar may see service in present conscription.

Committee on Fair Next Week Named

Edward Lee was named chairman of the Cisco fair committee at a meeting of the chamber of commerce directors last night following a dinner at which the raising of a $4,000 fund for Cisco junior college was celebrated.

ENROLLMENT AT COLLEGE REACHES 95

Members of the chamber board of directors and those who assisted them in the drive for the fund to equip the Cisco Junior college reviewed their successful campaign at a dinner at the Laguna hotel last night and made preparations to collect all pledges and check the campaign into the list of completed objects. Although there are yet a few prospects to be seen and reported upon, the drive was declared a distinct success which has been a real stimulant to community confidence.

Associated with the campaign for the fund with which to purchase library and laboratory equipment for the college has also been successful negotiations for the purchase of the property formerly used by Randolph college. This property has been acquired by the public school system and now houses the institution which the campaign made possible. Enrollment at the institution had reached 95 this afternoon, H. R. Garrett, vice president and registrar, said. This evening Reg Robbins, famous Texas flier, will meet prospective flying students for the college CAA aviation training program at the chamber of commerce. Mr. Robbins intended to be here Monday morning for this purpose, but was delayed on a trip to east Texas and compelled to postpone the meeting until tonight.

Abilene Team Beats Cisco In Goat Roping

ABILENE, Sept. 17 (Sp).—Making 12 catches to the visitors' four, a team of the Abilene Goat Roping club Sunday afternoon defeated Cisco in a match at the South 15th street grounds. Four lowest times recorded by the Abilene slingers were 25 seconds ahead of the four catches by the Ciscoans. Low time for the field was 16.7 seconds by Jesse Smith of Abilene.

HEADS OF 7 COLLEGES TO BE PRESENT

Open Air Program to Be Presented on Junior College Campus

Large delegations of interested citizens from Eastland, Moran, Putnam, Albany and other communities about Cisco will attend the formal opening program for Cisco junior college this evening at 8 o'clock on College Hill, according to reports from these communities. Widespread interest in the program was indicated. Dean J. Thomas Davis of John Tarleton college, Stephenville, a state supported junior college, will make the principal address inaugurating the newest addition to the ranks of Texas institutions of higher learning. Seated on the platform to be erected at the west entrance to the college main building will be the presidents of five colleges and one university. The university president will be Dr. W. R. White, new president of Hardin-Simmons at Abilene, and rated as one of the 10 outstanding preachers in the United States. Other college presidents will be Dr. Don Morris of Abilene Christian college; Dr. Frank Turner of McMurry college, Abilene; Dr. Thomas Taylor, president of Howard Payne at Brownwood; Dr. Hart of Daniel Baker, Brownwood, and Dr. W. T. Walton of Ranger Junior college. Dr. E. H. Hereford, chief college examiner for the state of Texas, will be an honor guest. 16 Superintendents
The superintendents of 16 public school systems in this area have also been invited as honor guests. L. A. Warren, member of the Cisco school board, will be the master of ceremonies for the evening. The program will begin at 8 o'clock, following a concert by the high school band under the direction of R. I. Collier. The college trio will sing. A large platform was being erected at the west entrance of the college building, from which the program will be presented. Seats for the crowd are being placed between the main building and the boys dormitory building. Parking space for cars was being arranged on the spacious campus of the college and a force of men will be on hand to direct parking. Unusual
This program is regarded as one of the most unusual and auspicious in recent Cisco history, marking as it does the inauguration of a new college under a program that is now receiving state wide emphasis. Leading state educators are urging the establishment of junior colleges at strategic points over the state, both to relieve pressure of first and second years student enrollment on the major institutions and as a part of a policy of "bringing the college to the student" in order to broaden education advantages at the lowest possible cost to students. "I cannot urge too strongly upon the people of Cisco the value of attending this program," said Supt. R. N. Cluck today. "It is a distinct honor that we are able to have so many educational leaders of this section here tonight. It is our earnest hope that the people of Cisco recognize this distinction with their presence

Commissioners Designate the Allotment Fund

Eastland county commissioners court, at the September meeting, formally adopted the county budget, which was prepared and submitted at the July meeting of that body. The budget, which is the basis of the tax levy for 1941, was adopted after a hearing September 9. The county tax rate was set at $1.30 on the $100 property valuation, the same as last year, which is plus the state tax.

The World We Face

THE United States is about to embark on a military program the like of which has never been even proposed, let alone achieved, in peace time.

At the moment, eyes are so riveted on London that one thinks of preparedness only in terms of the death-struggle between Britain and Germany. But the sober truth is that the whole world is today in such a state of turmoil that even regardless of the British-German war the United States would be forced to look to its armor. Look about the world and see what the United States confronts:

1. Germany has conquered the continent of Europe and now strikes at the heart of the centuries-old British empire.
2. Japan, after three years of undeclared war and conquest in China, now poises to spring southward through Indo-China. The whole balance of the Far East has been upset, with what upshot no man yet knows.
3. Russia, having engulfed three countries and large parts of two others, licks its chops at the prospect of still greater spoils.
4. Italy now makes its bid for widespread conquest in Africa, and at a Mediterranean dominance that may change the whole of southern Europe and the Near East.

5. Mexico may be plunged once more into civil disorder.

6. The Western Hemisphere tries to rally itself to united defense, but it is clear that any United States weakness will undermine close and friendly relationships that are vital to security.

IN the face of such a prospect it means a threat to no particular country or people that the United States resolves to cultivate its strength. The young men who go to camp with the National Guard or with the new selective service draftees go in no mood of menace to anyone. They go with a quiet determination to defend their own against any menace.

We muster our strength. They march under the Stars and Stripes. But behind the national banner might march also that banner of Revolutionary days, the banner with the coiled serpent and the motto, "Don't Tread on Me!"

Three Washington Senator pitchers are finger-printed under the alien act but there was nothing foreign about their delivery to opposing batters this year.

Liquor war brings prices to new low in New York, making it possible for even the tightest to get tighter.

Those beauty contest winners insist on beaming smack into the camera. After all, a miss is as good as her smile.

Millions of youths of military age are said to have bad teeth. These are the lads who will get more drilling than they bargained for.

It begins to appear that the Cleveland Indians would have more push if they had less putsch.

Germany forbids small boys to fly kites in Holland, Nazi propagandists needing all the wind that can be mustered.

Nazi flyers drink champagne on way to raid Britain. Probably half shot even before they get there.

Nazis don't like the idea of the R. A. F. bombing the reichstag building. They thought they held exclusive arson rights to it.

Move is on in Germany to abolish regular beer, and that may prove to be the Ersatz which will bring forth the REAL revolution.

The Man in the Street

tant piece of legislation? It is a matter of record that since the NLRB was declared constitutional industrial disputes have steadily declined.

It is important during the forthcoming election to bear in mind that the continuation of the National Labor Relations law is still in danger. As recently as last winter, there was a fight on it in congress and the fight is still going on.

It is impossible to forget that it was President Roosevelt and a democratic congress who gave America's poorest-paid workers a living wage by establishing a minimum wage under the Wage and Hour law. Under this legislation men and women workers, some of them receiving as little as $3.00 a week, will soon receive a $16 minimum for a 40-hour week. Most of the workers affected, more than 2,000,000 of them, were unorganized and a large majority were women.

When President Roosevelt was inaugurated in 1933, the United States was in a desperate situation because of domestic problems.

By the courage and wisdom with which they met that situation, I believe President Roosevelt and those under his guidance demonstrated their ability to lead this nation through danger. Today we face a situation in which the last great democracy on earth, except our own, is in desperate straits, fighting heroically for existence, needing our help, encouragement, and cooperation.

It is at any time to turn over the helm to a man whose greatest claim to fame is that he sold his utilities business to the government? I say, no.

Why Gov't Has Set Up Grades For Peanuts

By W. B. STARR

The government has affected standards of grades of practically all crops grown by farmers. Just why this has been done, is a matter not altogether understood by many farmers.

Many peanut growers feel that the matter of grading their peanut crops affects only the grower and those to whom they sell their crops, (the shellers). The government in setting up a standard of grades for "thresher-run" peanuts considered not only the interest of the farmer and the sheller, but also a third section of our population—the consumer, who eats the peanut crop, represents a much larger section of the public interested in our peanut grower, than do either the peanut grower or the peanut sheller. The government in setting up standard grades of all commodities (this holds true also in grades affecting "finished goods"—processed or manufactured articles) gives first consideration to the consumer, and it is proper that this should be so. In setting up a standard of grades for thresher run peanuts, the consumers were considered from two different angles.

First, the matter of sanitary conditions were considered as affecting the health of the consuming public, also the right of the public to clean food. Second, it was assumed that if sanitary conditions were recognized in grading peanuts, so that it was possible to process peanuts into products, which would be clean and wholesome, that there would be a greater demand for these peanuts, which would mean the consumption of a much larger crop than would otherwise be consumed, thus favorably affecting the farmer.

Not Desirable

In setting up the requirements for the different grades of thresher run peanuts, consideration among other things was given to the matter of shelled and cracked peanuts. Investigation showed that from a sanitary standpoint such peanuts were not desirable. It was shown that where the sheller held such peanuts in storage for any extended period of time, that they would be infected by weevils and become wormy. It was also shown that cracked and shelled peanuts in thresher run-peanuts have a tendency to become dirty. This tendency is made worse by the oily nature of the cracked peanuts. In most shelling plants, these dirty and oftentimes wormy peanuts are mixed with the clean peanuts as they are shelled, and often pass on into the finished candy and butter products. It is for these reasons that the government grades allow only a minimum amount of cracked and shelled peanuts in thresher run stock, and that the grower is penalized by lower grades and consequently lower prices if this minimum amount is exceeded.

Unless strict care is exercised by the thresher man in regulating his thresher, too many peanuts will be shelled and cracked. Farmers can cooperate with the thresher man in keeping down an excess of undesirable peanuts by having their peanuts on the vine in proper condition to thresh. Graders at the association warehouses have found that peanuts

New Outpost in SW Stephens County Started

BRECKENRIDGE, Sept. 17. (Sp)—Rotary rig has been moved in for a new outpost to the western Stephens county Loving field, 16 miles southwest of Breckenridge, while another outpost to the pool was slated to drill plug late yesterday.

The new test will be drilled by McCulloch & Ice for the Swadlow Oil company of Abilene as No. 1 Henry Compton, in the center of the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 10-OAL survey.

It is between production on the thrashed by certain thresher men seldom fall under grade No. 1 on account of an excess of shelled and cracked nuts. These threshers represent both cylinder and picker types. This shows what extreme care will do.

Most buyers for the shellers, when they are running grades, do not exclude shelled and cracked nuts from the samples. Just why they do this will be explained in an article next week. It would be less confusing and much better for the peanut industry if all parties buying thresher run peanuts graded their purchases by the same standards.

Loving lease and a gasser drilled by Pitzer & West and others at the Compton earlier this year. Will be carried deeper if commercial production is not obtained. Wittmer, Knight & Ewing No. 1 Loving, a south outpost to the Loving pool, was scheduled to drill plug on top of the Caddo lime either late yesterday or today. The Caddo was topped 3,479 feet, and operators cemented seven-inch casing at 3,480 feet. Location is 1320 feet south of the pool discovery well, and section 11-OAL survey.

In the Stribling field of northern Stephens county, Falcon company completed No. 2 Robertson for a railroad commission. It has a potential of 576 barrels daily, based on a gauged flow of 144 barrels of oil in six hours through a half inch choke. The test was treated with 20 gallons of acid in lime at 2,580. 3,612 1-2 feet total depth. Location is 467 feet from the north-west lines of the Peter No. 1 survey.

WHEELER RESOLUTION WILL TIP OFF REAL NEW DEAL FEELING ON ARMS PRICE POLICY

By BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—If you want to know whether the New Deal really wants to fight for peace in the rearmament drive, watch the fate of a little resolution just introduced by Senator Burton K. Wheeler.

Catton

Wheeler has moved for a Senate investigation of patent or price-fixing agreements between U. S. and German industrialists, which might hamper defense production. Whether he gets the investigation is strictly up to the administration. His resolution's fate depends on the Senate Audit and Control Committee, which is headed by one of the chief administration strategists, Senator James Byrnes of South Carolina. Obviously, if New Deal thumbs are turned down the resolution will be smothered in committee.

ANTI-TRUST DIVISION ACTED ALONE

THE situation which Wheeler wants looked into is one which the administration has never been willing to look at with more than half an eye.

Away last winter the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice notified the administration that various price and production controls had been set up in certain vital defense industries by agreements between certain German and American producers. Plain warning was served then that at least some of these agreements would have the effect of putting both government and private citizen at the mercy of sundry big business interests in connection with defense buying. No one outside of the anti-trust division took any action on this warning or betrayed any special interest in it. The anti-trust people have gone ahead and taken some of these cases to court, where a number of armament cases are now pending.

A great deal more investigation remains to be done, however, if the anti-trust division will present staff and funds can possibly handle. There is no chance that the division's staff will be enlarged in the near future; the contrary, growing opposition within the defense committee, the anti-trust division's work has recently restricted the division's activities sharply.

TWO TRENDS AT ODDS

WHEELER'S idea is that a state committee, remaining session and equipped with enough money to do a real job of investigating, could start where the anti-trust division has been forced to leave off.

It could study each of the cases originally cited by the anti-trust division, in turn, and establish whether the agreements complained of do operate to raise prices of essential defense materials. Probability is that a simple publicity which would result would be enough to remedy any unjustified price increases for that matter, the mere fact that a committee was on the job would tend to prevent gouging.

All of which brings once more into collision the two opposite trends which have been in evidence within the New Deal since the defense program was started. On the one hand there is a trend to fight for lower prices and more fluid markets, as exemplified by the various campaigns of Assistant Attorney General Sherman Arnold. On the other, there is the tendency to lean toward price-fixing and stabilization markets, a la the NRA, which appearing more and more in various quarters close to the defense commission.

The administration has not made up its mind which of the trends to follow in connection with defense spending.

THE DEMOCRATIC VIEW
By SUSAN BRANDEIS

Daughter of Louis D. Brandeis, retired justice, Supreme Court of the United States

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—I believe Franklin D. Roosevelt to be the right man for the tremendous responsibility that rests on the shoulders of the president of the United States, because he has shown in almost eight years of performance how effectively he can steer the ship of state.

With problems of unemployment such as we never had before, President Roosevelt and his administration conceived and have effectively operated a relief and work program which has literally saved the lives of thousands of men, women and children in this country, and have at the same time created great and useful public improvements which we could not have had in any other way.

President Roosevelt and his administration worked out and put into effect such remarkable achievements as the social security board, the National Youth administration, and other parts of a great program to extend the service given by the government of the people of the United States.

I could enumerate many other measures which will make President Roosevelt stand out in history as one of our greatest presidents, but I shall mention only one—the National Labor Relations act. How many people realize that strikes were 45 per cent lower in 1939 than they were in 1937 and 1938 as a result of this impor-

CAST OF CHARACTERS
SUE MARY JEFFERSON—stenographer in a law firm, alone in city, seeking new friends.

JOE STEFANSKI—ambitious college educated worker, in love with Sue Mary.

NICK ALEXANDER—leader of the Youth Progress group.

VERA OLIVER—active worker, who combines social and political duties.

CHAPTER VIII
It had been a week since she and Nick had had an actual date. To be sure, Sue Mary had seen him at the hall when he dashed in to check on plans for the rally; had answered questions, given orders, held hurried conferences with Natalie and Vera, and had flashed Sue Mary that quizzical smile that always made her feel that they shared a secret understanding.

Now, after having been with Joe, she had lost that feeling of a hidden bond between herself and Nick. Knowing that he would call for her in a short time failed to give her that sense of anticipation—of something exciting just ahead. Joe's arm about her last night, his calmness, his solidness, his slow, cautious reasoning seemed to have cleared the rainbows away.

Perhaps she and the others were only children playing a silly but exciting game. Maybe all this political ballyhoo was just so much smoke, and maybe the country wouldn't go to run without the message Youth Progress was trying to send forth.

But then Nick came and they were off to the hall and his enthusiasm, his fire, his words carried her along. Up to now the rally had been office talk; plans on paper, programs and handbills. In the hall there was reality; reality in the presence of crowds of people; blue haze from cigarettes, music from a chorus on the stage singing party songs.

Nick was here, there and everywhere, but Sue Mary was content to sit quietly in the back near the door where he could slip in the seat beside her when the talks started.

Much of it was already familiar because of listening to Nick and Vera. The pattern was the same. Help the worker live a decent life; take the power away from the capitalists. Stop the munition patrons on Wall street. Don't let them send us to war.

It was when Fred King, the candidate for governor at the primaries, got up to speak that the excitement started.

Hecklers somewhere in the hall began yelling questions. "Who's paying your way?" "What kind of a government do you want?" "The labor unions are doing all right without your help!" "Come out from behind that Moscow front!" "Where's your swastika?"

The meeting was a seething mass of confusion. Nick had disappeared and Vera was struggling up the aisle toward the exit. Sue Mary cringed back against the wall, afraid to try for the door lest she be trampled by the crowd. She saw police pushing their way in, and then she felt Nick's arms about her.

She couldn't remember much about getting out. Nick had shoved her through a side door, into an ally and through the blackness of the summer night to a quiet street where his car was parked.

"How did you get the car here?" she asked after they were safely driving into the still, peaceful residential section. "We were parked right in front of the hall." He looked at her quickly and there was a moment's silence before he parked the car and took her in his arms. "Maybe I was just lucky. I didn't want anything to happen to you."

It wasn't an answer to her question, but the suddenness of his emotion frightened her. She tried hard to push him away and laugh at his intensity.

"The meeting upset you," she said. "Why did those men make that trouble?"

"Don't bother your pretty head about it," Nick told her. "That's for me to worry about. And it wasn't really trouble. We'll get more space in the papers tomorrow than if nothing had happened. We can show there are forces at work that don't want the people to know the truth; forces trying to stop us in our work."

HALF-FORMED doubts were in her mind and it was as though Nick sensed that uncertainty. Joe's words stayed with her; crackpots always waving a flag for some cause or other. She tried to free herself from Nick's arms, but he held her closer, murmuring her name over and over.

"Poor little frightened Sue Mary. No, the place for you is in a home. You're not like the others."

"I guess I'm not like Vera," she admitted. She's always so sure of what she's doing."

"I've been thinking about Vera, though," Nick said. "She's working too hard and the party can't afford to pay her much. Next week, after the primaries, there will be less to do for a while."

"I wish Vera could get a job like yours. Maybe you could help her get work. Something in your office, perhaps. Don't some of the girls go on vacations soon? Maybe Vera could fill in for a few months."

"Well—I don't know, Nick. I hadn't thought about it, but perhaps she could. She's very efficient. I could tell them about her."

"You will then?" His voice was eager and she felt herself helpless to refuse.

AT the office next morning she wished she hadn't committed herself. Vera was unlike the other girls.

It wasn't that she was unattractive, or untrained. Sue Mary could honestly say that she would work as well and longer than many. Yet she wondered just how Babs, Kitty, and Miss Grant would react to Vera's own individual philosophy. But she had promised Nick, and she knew she would never have the courage to see him at the hall Friday unless she carried out his wish.

It wasn't as difficult as she had anticipated. Babs gave her the opening by announcing that she was going to take her two weeks' vacation starting the first of the month.

"I'll try to clean up everything before I leave," she told Kitty and Sue Mary, "but the way the work has been coming in from the plane and auto factories, I just never seem to get caught up."

That gave Sue Mary a reason for approaching Miss Grant later that day. "If Babs is going on her vacation and the work is increasing, I thought you might put on an extra girl for a while. And Miss Oliver is very capable. She's a friend of mine and very efficient."

"I guess I'm a better saleswoman than I think," she told Nick when she phoned him that evening. "Anyway, tell Vera to come in within a day or so and see Miss Grant. I'm sure she can finish convincing her that she'll do very well."

Nick's voice was able to do something to her even over the phone: that heady intoxication, that feeling of a whole new world unknown.

"You've done a good job," he said. "You've helped Vera, who needs help, and as for me—well, tomorrow—tomorrow night I'll tell you how I feel about it."

Draft Measure Is Signed By Roosevelt Today

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (AP)—President Roosevelt signed the draft act Monday, fixed Oct. 16 as registration day for 16,500,000 young Americans now subject to compulsory military training, and asserted the United States was marshalling its strength to avert "the terrible fate of nations whose weakness invited attack."

In addition, the chief executive called upon the governors of the states to provide suitable places for the registration, urged local election officials "and other patriotic citizens" to man the registration boards and asked employers to give their affected employees "sufficient time off" to present themselves and fill out the forms.

Mr. Roosevelt, moreover, emphasized a section of the act and a phase of the building up of the army which received much discussion in congress — the voluntary enlistment system. All between 18 and 35 inclusive, he said in a formal statement, will be offered an opportunity to volunteer for a one-year period of service and training and those who offer themselves — provided they are suitable — are to be accepted before any others are selected.

Thus an influx of volunteers from any particular area would reduce the quota of men conscripted from that area.

The new law itself requires that all who on Oct. 17 have attained the 21st anniversary of their birth and have not passed the thirty-sixth year must register.

A national drawing by lot will determine the order in which questionnaires, local boards will place the men in various classifications — those available for immediate service, those deferred because of dependents, etc.

Although wrens have their headquarters in tropical America, they are found as far north as Greenland.

Tony may look blank when you mention "media - emotional copy-layout," but ask him how to sell Fruit, and man!—you're talking to an expert: He's been doing it for years, and what he knows about selling has been learned from experience.

Ask Tony where he sells his fruit, and he'll answer, "I just follow the crowds!" There you have Tony's secret of success. He doesn't park his cart on a quiet street. Not Tony! You'll find him where you find the crowds. Maybe you don't sell Fruit, like Tony does. STORIES IN STAMPS

Republic of Liberia Is American "Protectorate" POSSIBILITY that Europe's war may bring changes in Africa's colonial map draws attention to Liberia, America's "protectorate" republic, sandwiched between Britain's Sierra Leone and France's Ivory Coast, in western Africa. Philatelically, Liberia is getting attention with a new issue of three stamps, commemorating the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Negro republic, last independent sovereignty on the Dark Continent. The great seal of the Commonwealth is pictured on the stamp above, with flags of the early settlements. Other stamps of the issue picture Thomas Buchanan, first governor under the constitution adopted in 1839, and the coastline of the republic. Liberia has been called "the garden spot of west Africa." It possesses healthful climate, rich soil, dense tropical forests and rich mineral deposits. It is important as a source of rubber. With the exception of rubber, however, most of Liberia's wealth is unexploited.

area about the community. It demands encouragement of good practices in farming and marketing. Farming cannot be made to pay without good farmers. But good farmers do not bring their industry to communities where they have less opportunity to profit than elsewhere. Another requirement enters into the picture. It is the factor of human nature. There is a soil to be tilled with fruitful results. But it is a slow and often discouraging process. And any community which sets out to accomplish success in such a field speedily is laboring under the certainty of failure. Long range plans, carefully laid and faithfully and constantly prosecuted, offer the only chance of success. We have here a sound basis for restoring this community to its former prestige as an agricultural marketing center. We have the roads, the soil, the central location. If we lack the vision and the energy to do it, we have only ourselves to blame.
