PLAN DRILLING CAMPAIGN NEAR MCELREATH

British Bombs, Camera Find Nazi Ship

SEVERAL NEW WELLS ARE PROJECTED

Groover and Rose to Drill First for Dancier Company

Dormant for several months, while operators waited on several conditions to be adjusted—including establishment of a higher allowable—activity about the Groover and Rose and Jones and Stasney McElreath wildcat south of Cisco was due to pick up considerably during the next week or 10 days.

Unofficially, drilling of at least four new wells was reported ready to get under way within the next few weeks.

The first of these will be drilled by Groover and Rose and the Dancier Oil company of Fort Worth. Exact location details were not announced, but the well will be about half a mile south and east of the McElreath and it will be started as soon as one of six rigs which the contractors have busy is released from a present job.

If the well finds production Dancier will drill three others, it was indicated.

The Gilcrease Oil company of San Antonio was reported preparing to move on a location and the Enson Oil company is contemplating a well. One or two other locations were in prospect.

Allowable for the McElreath, originally fixed at 20 barrels per day, has been increased to 60. The well, a little below 3,000 feet in depth, is producing from the Caddo lime, the same formation from which the A. S. Jackson No. 1, South Carbon field producer which established a potential in excess of 750 barrels per day through a three-fourths inch choke, is producing. Operators see a connection between the two wells in a broad sweep of Caddo structure which extends through south and southwestern Eastland county.

Cisco Youth Takes Pilot Training

Jack Stephenson of Cisco is among the thirty young men at John Tarleton college who are taking advantage of the pilot training course being offered at that institution. Sponsored by the Civil Aeronautics authority, the successful completion of the course leads to a private pilot's license.

Stephenson is taking this course in addition to his regular college work. In addition to approximately forty hours of flying time, he attends ground school every night. The ground school work includes such subjects as theory of flight, navigation, meteorology, air-plane engines, instruments, and civil air regulations. Examinations given by the Civil Aeronautics authority must be passed in all of these subjects before a license is granted.

Railroad Men Have Quarterly Meeting Here

The Brotherhood of the Maintenance of Way, employees of local union No. 1512 of Waco, held regular quarterly meeting Sunday in the W. O. W. hall here. Approximately 30 members were present from along the Waco-Cisco line, and as far west as Hamlin. The afternoon was spent in a business session.

The guests had lunch at Edwards cafe at noon. The 'odge voted to convene here in April, 1941, at which time a better attendance will be the goal.

Hugh Miller of Granbury was the guest of friends here Sunday.

RAF CARRYING OUT BOMBINGS METHODICALLY

New Chains of Fires Are Reported By British Fliers

LONDON, Oct. 7 (AP)—Royal Air force bombers, waging a methodical campaign of destruction in Germany, were reported Sunday to have lighted new chains of fires in widespread night raids, chiefly on the Krupp munition works at Essen.

Two tons of high explosives were dropped on the famous plant, the air ministry said, while other heavy caliber bombs dumped on docks at Flushing, the Netherlands, Saturday night started a train of explosions which lasted ten minutes and fires which were visible far away at sea. Other fires set at Amsterdam could be seen 20 miles.

The raids were carried out, the ministry said, in spite of extremely bad weather—severe icing conditions, violent electrical storms and low clouds which necessitated blind flying through a great part of the operations.

That these recurring blows fit into an RAF master plan for a sweeping air offensive from the Baltic to Germany's Swiss frontier and eastward past Berlin was disclosed in an air ministry statement reporting attacks thus far on more than 300 Nazi military targets.

Obilitation of German industry was indicated as the British goal in a statement by Lord Croft, undersecretary of war, which spoke of a British counteroffensive on the European continent after the RAF had wiped out Germany's air force and razed all her factories to the ground.

NAZIS RETURN AFTER QUIET NIGHT

LONDON, Oct. 7 (AP)—Britain's anti-aircraft barrage opened with a roar over London just before dawn Monday as Nazi airmen returned to assault the capital after the first bombless night in 30 days of steady pounding. Only one short alarm was sounded early Sunday night. Thereafter an unfamiliar quiet settled over the besieged city.

slenkirehen, freight yards at Hamm, Osnabruck and Cologne; shipping at Rotterdam, shipping and warehouses at Brest and barge and motor transport concentrations at Gravelines.

How these fit in the British plan was indicated by the air ministry survey of more than 700 aerial blows on German, including more than 60 on the important German railroad center at Hamm, 29 on Cologne, 16 on Essen, 36 on vital railroad junctions at Hamburg, 31 on Bremen and 15 on Berlin.

In Saturday night's raids, an air ministry report said, coastal command bombers concentrated on the invasion ports of Brest and Gravelines, on France's channel coast.

"The raiders arrived at Brest just as night was falling," it said. "In spite of haze, they were able to see outlines of the docks. Their salvos of heavy bombs smashed the quays and damaged drydocks. Good bonfire.

"We started a good bonfire with our incendiaries," said one pilot. "An other reported that his bombs, which struck on a road by the side of one of the quays, caused a series of heavy explosions as if a munition shed had been hit. "Another squadron left a crescent of fires at Gravelines after a visit in which they interspersed heavy bombs with large quantities of incendiaries."

Communications and vital production already have been ham-

NAVY'S CALL IS 'STAND BY' ORDER SAYS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 (AP)—The Navy's mobilization order to nearly 28,000 reservists was described officially Sunday as a "stand-by" warning to be followed shortly by specific assignments to active duty posts afloat and ashore.

Officials said that within a few days the dates would be announced when naval and marine corps reservists must don uniforms, swelling the nation's seagoing forces by some 240,000.

The "stand-by" order went out Saturday to commanders of the 15 naval districts in the continental United States and offshore areas.

From the district commanders it will be relayed to individual members of the organized reserve and fleet reserve, and the organized and fleet marine corps reserves.

The mobilization applied to approximately 1,208 officers and 11,010 men of the navy's organized reserve force, about 6,500 fleet reservists, 2,000 enlisted members of the fleet marine corps reserve, and 400 officers and 6,500 men of the organized marine corps reserve.

It did not apply to some 39,192 members of the navy volunteer reserves, who are mostly specialists of various kinds, the volunteer marine corps reserve or the merchant marine reserve.

The fleet reserve of both the navy and marine corps is made up of men who have served in the regular forces.

Correspond to Guard
The organized reserve forces correspond roughly to the National guard, being members of local units which undergo periodic drills and other training.

A barbecue supper, calcutta pool and dance will be held at the Breckenridge Country club Tuesday night, and admission will be one dollar.

Ciscoans who expect to compete in the tournament are Mmes. Chas. Sandler, K. N. Greer, L. A. Brunkenhoefer, L. S. Jenkins, Reggie Henderson and Cecil Shaw.

Coy's Run for 68 Yards --- Not 32

In Sunday's account of the Cisco-Childress football game, Coy Warren's run for the initial Cisco touchdown was given as only 32 yards. In reality Coy's run originated on the Cisco "32" and was for 68 yards. He started to the right of the Lobo line, reversed and cut back through tackle, eluded two Childress linebackers by again cutting to the right and then outran the entire Childress secondary to score in a sensational dash.

How About New Rules For 'London Bridge'?

BERLIN, Oct. 7 (AP)—It isn't cricket to use English words in German tennis. A tennis journal has called on players to "eliminate the last English word."

Loeb should be "hochball," smash should be "schmatteredball," mixed doubles should be "gemischtes doppel."

90-Cent Search by Social Security Nets Woman Thousands in Benefits

By BRUCE CATTON
Cisco Daily Press Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Because the social security board kept 20 clerks and accountants busy for two months hunting a missing 90 cents, a Maryland widow stands to gain several thousand dollars.

The widow is Mrs. Thomas Bruce Holland, of Riverside, Md., and her story is a striking example of the importance a little bookkeeping can have.

Her husband died last January and she applied for social security benefits for herself and her four small children.

The law says that a woman in such a position may draw benefits for herself and her children if her husband has paid social security taxes on as much as $50 in each of six calendar quarters spread over the preceding three years.

SEARCH BEGINS FOR 90 CENTS

When the records were checked it was found that Holland had paid properly on the minimum sum for five quarters—but that for the sixth quarter he had paid taxes only on $49.10.

Mrs. Holland remembered that he had worked briefly in that quarter for two firms not listed in the record. The social security board went on a hunt for them.

One firm had gone broke and was out of business. The other had changed hands and moved its offices. Accountants traced it from Washington back to Baltimore—through New Haven, Ansonia, Seymour and Waterbury—after which the trail jumped to New Jersey. They finally dug up the original owner, and he said he could not recall ever having employed a man named Holland.

SMALLEST AMOUNTS SHOULD BE RECORDED

The board's workers found a former fellow employe who recalled that Holland had worked for this man. His testimony refreshed the ex-employer's memory and he creaked back through his books—and found that he had paid Holland $5 in wages. He said he thought the sum was so small it just wasn't worth reporting.

When that went on the social security board's books it put Holland over the minimum. As a result, Mrs. Holland will draw benefits until her youngest child, now five, is 18. It will mean several thousand dollars to her.

Moral, says the social security board, is just this: the tiniest payment made to a worker should go down on the books in Washington. If it isn't it may make all the difference to the man's family, years later.

Mrs. Thomas Bruce Holland and son, Bruce. . . . From a search for 90 cents, she gains several thousand dollars.

COOPERATION IN PREVENTING FIRES URGED

Calling attention to the designation of the current week as "Fire Prevention Week," City Fire Marshal O. Gustafson echoed the appeals of state fire prevention officials that the public devote earnest attention to elimination of fire hazards as a patriotic duty as well as a means of keeping the community as free as possible of fires from the standpoint of the saving in property and insurance rates that a low loss means.

It is particularly important that attention be directed to preventive measures now, Gustafson said, since the beginning of cooler weather means the heating equipment and the great use of fire.

He urged every resident to make a careful inspection of his living quarters and his place of business, if he is a merchant, and to see that the premises are freed of any hazard that is not properly controlled.

Cisco, he said, has enjoyed a good record for a number of years, the result of which is a low key rate. This rate can be maintained only by preventing loss from fires, and since it is a financial asset not only to those who would be losers from a fire but to those who pay insurance, he urged the cooperation of the whole community.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

The senate's refusal to accept the house bill providing for development of hundreds of civil airports over the United States does not mean, reports indicate, that there will be no such development. On the contrary, the senate action indicates that airports will be developed over the United States with the military angle first in view. It is planned to develop hundreds of such ports of a civil character in positions having military importance. Taking his policy into consideration, the community which receives approval of a government airport project will have to convince the authorities that its port is of military value.

This does not mean that the government will not consider the proposal from the standpoint of its later civil value. On the contrary, it means that considerations of emergency character come first. It is not difficult to foresee the trend of air transportation in the future, and it should not be difficult, therefore, to evaluate the importance of taking immediate action to obtain the required facilities now in order that the community will be in line for the development as it occurs. To wait on the definition of program for the provision of airports before taking steps to obtain the land for making an airport will place the lagging community so far behind the procession that it will lose the advantages that such a port will eventually mean in the future and find itself outstripped by more far-sighted and aggressive neighbors.

Cisco, if it keeps abreast of the times, must have a port. It must have a port commensurate not with present requirements, but with the needs and the opportunities that arise in the future. To meet this condition must obtain the right kind of land and enough of it. It would severely handicap the city in securing ultimate port development if the present effort could be confined to getting by on ground to provide a third or fourth-rate field. A tract large enough can be obtained almost as

Lessening the Economic Hangover

AFTER more than year of war, indications are that basic American economy has been only slightly disturbed.

The stock market has not behaved hysterically. Food prices, rents, clothing and other commodity costs have not shot up to unhealthy boom peaks. There is no general profiteering.

The billions of dollars of defense appropriations have not yet shown up in the economic picture. They are, of course, certain to have their effects. It is impossible to spend that much money without having something to show for it besides boats and guns and armies. The money is bound to trickle down through to the average man. But there will also be a larger national debt and higher taxes.

But all of this is necessary. None of it is produced artificially. There is no panic—no rush to get in on the ground floor of "something good."

A RECENT survey of food prices generally throughout the United States reflected an increase of less than 5 per cent after the first year of war. Prices were about the same as they were a year ago, but were about 7 per cent higher than just before the beginning of World War II. The small increase reflects a normal fluctuation, caused by greater demand, rather than any speculative activity as a result of the war.

At the same time, wages have gone up. The Investors' Syndicate of Minneapolis has reported that wage earners are receiving about 15 per cent more than they were two months ago and salary workers about 7 per cent more.

Not all of the payroll increase can be ascribed to defense. Most of the defense program, after all, has not even been put into operation. Many economists believe that much of the industrial gain can be chalked up to normal changes, unrelated to the war.

THE sane and orderly manner in which business has so far met and balanced the inevitable effects of a major war are encouraging. It's a pretty large order to keep an economic system running smoothly in one country when the rest of the world has forgotten all the rules.

As long as American business can continue to do the things that must be done without losing its head and basking in bloody profits, this country has less to fear from a post-war depression. The job is to build—build as fast as possible but on solid rock.

With ersatz food now being made of wood in Germany, the good hausfrau is really in danger of week-end guests eating her out of house and home.

There are more than 2000 cows in metropolitan New York, all of which probably subscribe to the old axiom that the grass grows greener in other pastures.

Adolf boasts of Germany's small crime rate, but naturally, that's where murder, arson and blackmail are government monopolies.

AID-TO-BRITAIN PRESSURE GROUPS ADVOCATE SALE OF ONLY UNUSED "FLYING FORTRESSES"

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Contrary to what you may have heard, nobody in particular is trying to get the U. S. government to give Great Britain the 50-odd "flying fortresses" now in the service of the army air corps.

What is being attempted—especially by the William Allen White committee—is to make available to Britain planes that are now under construction for the U. S. army. The understanding is that about a dozen of these giant bombers are now ready for delivery, with approximately 70 more due to be finished by Jan. 1. The White committee hopes that the administration can be persuaded to release the manufacturers so that these planes may be sent to Britain; it isn't agitating for delivery of planes now in service, nor is it asking that the famous bomb sight be turned over.

Importance of these huge bombers to Britain is that they would make intensive bombing of Berlin and other German cities much easier, because of their long range and great carrying capacity.

Memo: Look for a concerted drive this winter to modify the neutrality law and repeal the Johnson act banning loans to foreign governments which haven't paid their World War debts. Understanding is that before so terribly long the British will run out of ready cash. A big push to make credit available will then be in order.

Carol Loses Throne; Still Rules Stamps

CAROL of Rumania has ordered his crown, flag and country, but he remains king on stamps. The former king, who is above on a semi-postal issue, is celebrating the 10th anniversary of his accession, has had his portrait on some 50-odd Rumanian stamps more than any other ruler. A single, independent nation, issues of colonial possessions, counted, George VI of the Empire is philately's No. 1.

Carol's successor, King Michael, crown prince and former regent, no newcomer to stamp duty. Michael's portrait appears on Rumanian issues in his first year during Carol's first exile. Carol surrendered his throne in 1926, to flee to western Europe with his family. Michael ruled under a regency from 1927 to 1930. He engineered a coup, regained the throne. The Balkan crisis during the partition of Rumania ended his 10-year rule.

Uncle Sam's Selective Service

GENERAL PROVISIONS

1. Q—I now have a job. If I am called for training and give up my job, can I get it back after my training is completed?

A—Congress in the selective service law, seeks to insure that men called for training will retain their jobs. If the job is with the federal government, its return is guaranteed. If the job is with a private employer, it must be returned unless the employer's circumstances have changed so as to make it impractical or unreasonable to do so. If the job is with a state or local government, congress advises that it be restored.

2. Q—What must I do to get my job back?

A—If you have completed your year's training and are still capable of holding the job which you gave up to enter training, you must make application for re-employment within 40 days after the training period is completed.

3. Q—If the employer will not rehire me, what can I do?

A—You can take your case to the U. S. district attorney who, if he believes you are entitled to re-employment, will file suit in federal district court against your former employer to force him to rehire you and compensate you for any losses due to his failure to comply with the re-employment provisions of the law. The district attorney will act as your attorney and no court costs can be assessed against you.

4. Q—Will I lose my seniority and benefits such as insurance, by giving up my job to go into training?

A—The law provides that all persons who give up a job to enter training shall be re-employed in the same position, or in a position of like seniority, status and pay, without any loss of seniority or benefits, such as insurance.

5. Q—I have already enrolled in college for the school year 1940-41. Will I have to drop out of school to report for training?

A—You can be called for training, but you will not have to report before July 1, 1941, giving you a chance to finish the school year.

7. Q—What will the men called for training be paid?

A—The base pay for those called under the selective service program will be $21 a month for the first four months, and $30 per month thereafter.

SERIAL STORY

THIS COULD BE YOUR STORY

BY MARGUERITE GAHAGAN

COPYRIGHT, 1940. NEA SERVICE, INC.

All characters, organizations and incidents of this serial are entirely fictitious.

CAST OF CHARACTERS SUE MARY JEFFERSON—stenographer in a law firm, alone in city, seeking new friends.

JOE STEFANSKI—ambitious college educated worker, in love with Sue Mary.

NICK ALEXANDER—leader of the Youth Progress group.

VERA OLIVER—active worker, who combines social and political duties.

YESTERDAY: Joe is still in a critical condition, may have to undergo an operation. Worried and weary after her visit to the hospital, Sue Mary reads of federal agents hunting down subversive elements. She hurries to the federal building, tells her story to the department chief. He tells her not to worry, to go through with plans to meet Nick.

CHAPTER XXV THE door to the law office was partly open. Sue Mary pushed it wide, stepping in to the dim quiet. She started back in surprise as Nick rose from a chair and came toward her.

"We can always talk," he said, kissing her again. She wanted to run: to run anywhere; get away from Nick, from his lips, his arms. She was terrified, but she had to stay. He took her hand and led her to the office. "We shouldn't be here," she repeated, but he only smiled. It was then that Vera came out of old Ross Clark's office.

"So—she did come," she said, looking at Sue Mary in her usual calm, poised, assured manner. "Well, now we can call it a night." Sue Mary sat down suddenly. Her legs refused to hold her up and again she felt panic taking control of her. She wasn't alone. Mr. Flanagan and his men should be here. But were they? She wondered if they were here now. How much had they seen and heard?

She felt enough confidence in Flanagan and his men to believe they controlled the situation. Yet being with Nick was nerve-wracking enough.

VERA was stuffing some papers into her bag. "Let's go. She knows—that is unless she's a complete half-wit." Sue Mary felt feminine indignation rising within her. "Half-wit?" she repeated angrily.

"You can't do anything about it now," Vera told her calmly. "I knew you saw too much the other night when I was here. The only way to keep you from talking—just in case you did understand what was going on—was to make you a partner. That's why you're here tonight."

"Take the two of them along," Flanagan ordered. "And get those papers away from her. There won't be any airport site announcement tomorrow. I've settled that deal already after talking to young Clark.

"Now, maybe good citizen Nicky can tell us about the labor trouble at Smithson—as well as a lot of other things we've been wondering about."

They were finally gone, Vera berating Nick and Nick trying desperately to hush her angry flow of words.

"Nice people," Flanagan said to Sue Mary. "I'm sorry you had to go through this, but it seemed the safest way. Get them here as though nothing was going to happen and then nab them."

"You've helped us plenty. Most people want to help these days, but too many of them let their imaginations run wild. But this—this was the real thing. You've done your part tonight."

She felt a glow of gratitude, but her eyes were on the clock. She wanted to get to the hospital. They might be operating on Joe even now.

"So you are in: in on whatever goes on here, and you hadn't better talk unless you want to blow yourself right out of a job and into plenty of trouble. You just do as we say and everything will be all right. Won't it, Nick?"

But Nick wasn't looking at Vera. His gaze was on Sue Mary. "We can talk later," he said to Vera without turning toward her. "If you've got the stuff you'd better get along. Someone might come. We've been lucky so far."

"All right, let's go, then." "I'll come down in a minute," he said.

"What's stopping you from coming now?" He turned to her abruptly. "Maybe I want to say something to Sue Mary."

"Well, you can say it at the apartment. If it isn't safe for me to stay here, then it isn't safe for either of you." Vera's briskness wasn't so emphatic.

"I said I'd be along in a minute. Start down, I'll meet you in the lobby."

Vera walked out and Nick waited a moment. Then he turned to Sue Mary and drew her to him. "Kiss me," he told her. "Nothing's going to happen to you. Stop trembling. You're in this, but you belong to me and we're going to come out ahead. Right on the top—"

"No, Nick. Let me go." His lips were on hers again for an endless eternity. Vera's voice, furious and cold, broke them apart.

"So—that's it. You had to talk to her, Natalie was right. You're in love with the little fool." Her voice rose to a high key. "You've used me—just as you used her. Maybe she isn't the only fool. But you won't get away with it this time, Nick. Not as far as I'm concerned anyway. I'll talk—I'll talk—"

"That's right, lady, you're going to talk. And soon."

NICK whirled around at the sound of the strange voice. Sue Mary saw Flanagan in the doorway, smiling. Other men were crowding through, behind him. One came out of Ross Clark's office. Several had guns.

"What the—" Nick muttered. Vera started for the door, but an agent stopped her, motioned her back into the center of the room.

SUE MARY didn't remember much about the ride. She walked down the corridor to Joe's room. Suppose it was empty! Suppose he had gone to the operating room never to return. She met the nurse at the door.

"Tell me—is he—?" "He's fine. They won't have to operate. It will be a tough struggle back, but he's out of danger. And you can go in—just a second, though."

A second—it was a whole lifetime. The beginning of a new life, she thought, standing by Joe's bed watching his regular breathing, touching his helpless hand. It was a new life and no matter what happened around them, no matter what problems arose in this strange, confused world, they would face them together.

The curtains moved gently in the breeze and a faint sound of music came from a radio in another wing of the building. It was midnight and a station was signing off.

"God bless America—" She leaned over and kissed Joe's lips.

RAF Carrying--

pered seriously throughout the reich, the ministry's master plan report said, adding that "Germany's aircraft production and its power to replace machines brought down in this country have already been reduced appreciably."

"While Nazi raiders are dropping their bombs indiscriminately on British beauty spots, lonely villages, and residential districts," the statement said, "our raids have been based on carefully conceived, long-prepared plans of attack on targets of economic as well as military importance."

German reports consistently have presented a contrary picture of RAF operations.

Saying every target selected has its place in the master plan, it took as an example aluminum production, of which Germany is admitted to have plenty.

"But we will bomb her aluminum plants," the air ministry said, "to stop Hitler from using that metal as a substitute for copper, which he needs badly."

Splash in the Pan for Somebody

Evidently figuring that some day he might be required to do the same thing under like conditions, Ralph Kercheval, Brooklyn grid Dodgers' ace kicker, practiced booting field goals from a water-logged turf. (Ed. note: this attempt was good for just four feet, as Ace Parker, holding, acts the worst.)

'Work or Resign,' Britons Tell M. P.

Britons think Capt. A. S. Cunningham-Reid, above, Conservative M. P. of Marylebone district, ought to be home on the job. The former husband of one of England's richest heiresses and friend of Doris Duke Cromwell left Parliament over three months ago to aid evacuation of children from war zone. Recently his constituents demanded he come home from Honolulu or resign.

LAWRENCE ENTERTAIN

Miss Bessie Lee Lawrence of Sweetwater spent the week-end here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Lawrence. Other visitors in the Lawrence home were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lawrence, Misses Christine and Lucille Lawrence of Breckenridge, Misses Lawrence Hampton, Nadine Huestis, Gladys French and Mrs. Lamb.

Navy's Call--

be announced at this time whether all the reservists would be ordered into uniform on the same date or would be mobilized in groups as needed to man new craft or fill other posts.

Men are to be mobilized in their own vicinity and then probably transferred to naval and marine corps stations for preliminary training.

From these stations, they will be transferred to ships and shore establishments as needed.

The period of active duty will depend upon individual ages, terms of enlistment and other considerations.

All but about 3,000 of the organized naval reservists signed up for four years, before the enlistment term was lengthened recently to six years. In the event of war they would serve for the duration, but otherwise would be subject to discharge upon expiration of their enlistments.

Important for Women

A weak, run-down condition often gives a foothold to functional dysmenorrhea, causing much periodical distress from headaches, nervousness, cramp-like pain for women. CARDUI so often helps in such cases, for it sharpens appetite, boosts flow of gastric juices; so improves resistance. CARDUI, if taken a few days before and during "the time," also helps to relieve peritidic distress. Used 50 years.

WTU Will Push
Industrialization of West Texas

Better times for west Texans are foreseen by the West Texas Utilities, which this month changed its advertising slogan from "Invite a friend to west Texas" to "Invite a new business to west Texas — the Land of Opportunity."

The company, according to H. H. Monk, district manager, anticipates a shifting of industry and business and believes that the southwest will capture a good-sized portion of the flow from eastern commercial centers.

"We in west Texas have many advantages to offer most types of industry," he declared, "and it is up to all of us to help publicize the fact and secure new concerns which will bring new money to our community as well as consume more of our own agricultural products."

He mentioned west Texas' mild climate, "good, clean air and plenty of space," cheap, ample supply of fuel and power, and superior living conditions as being among assets which would prove attractive to business once "we build up the reputation of welcoming private initiative and enterprise."

The tendency toward widespread distribution of industry, he added, gives west Texas an unusual opportunity to secure self-supporting and community-building business institutions.

The utilities company maintains an industrial department, headed by T. J. McCarty and R. M. Fielder, that devotes full time to work with business concerns either already here or seeking desirable locations. The department has just completed a detailed survey of the region's mineral resources and now has available much valuable information on the location of numerous minerals, for which there is a wartime demand, such as magnesium and iron ore.

Information also includes data on the quality and quantity of the minerals, the possibilities for processing, cheap fuel and power sources, ample water, labor, housing, and transportation facilities.

Local groups were invited to call upon them "if they have any help."

The slogan, "Invite a business to west Texas—the Land of Opportunity," will be the company's institutional investments in over 80 cities this fall and winter.

The Story of Your Newspaper

I AM YOUR EDITOR . . .

This is the last of a series telling the story of your newspaper. The Cisco Daily Press has presented the articles in connection with National Newspaper Week, Oct. 1-8.

I'm your newspaper editor. I am the man who is compelled every day to perform the impossible. Mine is the final responsibility for giving the people a clear and truthful picture every day of their activities.

I presume to offer such affairs. Thoughtfully, prayerfully, I make it counsel my mind and offer.

I serve truth. I know well that one man's truth is another man's falsehood, absolute and final truth given to man. If I cannot, that, I hope to assemble materials in which man may own truth.
