as government? Churchill is speaking American language here, language that might have come from Tom Paine, or Andy Jackson, or William Jennings Bryan, or Abe Lincoln.

There have been many questionings about the British war aims. British leaders have been remarkably reticent about just what they are fighting for. What about the class-bound society of England, people ask; what about a free India? British statesmanship answers not, intent only on the battle.

Thus it is like a ray of the rising sun to hear Churchill thunder a pledge to the forward march of the common people.

THAT is what the world fears might be halted by new philosophies which stripped the common people of their manhood and eft them mere senseless cogs in a state machine rolling relentlessly onward to national glory and the aggrandizement of an elite few daring to call themselves alone fit to rule. The world fears that this long forward march might be nullified and halted after all the bloody centuries.

Every country is democratic while engaged in an overwhelming military effort. England is democratic today in the bomb

Don't buy thisit's NOT advertised:

It's a doubtful product. It bears no trade name. It might be any one of the many things you buy or use every day. A refrigerator, perhaps . . . or a radio . . . nail polish . . . chewing gum . . . kitchen soap . . . a correspondence course.

But the promoter knows its claims couldn't stand the intense scrutiny of the American buying public. And so he prefers to dispose of it as an unbranded article. That's why you won't find his advertisement here.

How different from the other advertisers in this newspaper! Proudly they tell you of their latest product or service. Eagerly they announce special values, improvements, new features.

These manufacturers and merchants have confidence in what they offer. They realize that while advertising may make the first sale—it's the quality and value of the product that makes the second, third and fourth. And that's what they're after!

It's worth while, reading the advertisements! You can believe in them!
