Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Now that the election is over and the people of the country are settling back to normal it is encouraging to note the number of appeals for unity and the good grace with which both sides appear to have accepted the result. These expressions reflect the American sense of sportsmanship which can be counted upon to keep the country sound as a nation despite the internal diversity of opinion and political affiliation. President Roosevelt undoubtedly contributed to this movement toward harmony and cooperation with a statement and an example which, coming from him, would have far greater influence than from any other source.

There are, of course, a few political hotheads who try to keep the animosities of the campaign alive after the issues have been settled, and we have our share of that breed in Texas. Nineteenths of them are concerned, not with the good of the country, but with the advantages which they might gain from promoting division and impairing the unity that we all hope for and for which the leadership of the two great political parties is seeking. You may not agree with the column, but it chooses to believe that Comm'r of Agriculture McDonald was honestly trying to serve the principles that he has consistently advocated, when he endorsed Willkie and McNary because of the Wallace farm program, which he has bitterly fought. You must admit that it took a high type of political courage to endorse principle rather than party in the face of the overwhelmingly democratic complexion of Texas politics. Whether or not you agree, it is a fact that the people of the state have spoken, Mr. McDonald has been elected and it comes with ill grace for a group of professional politicians to refuse to accept that result in Texas while expecting the losers in the national campaign to accept that outcome with sportsmanship.

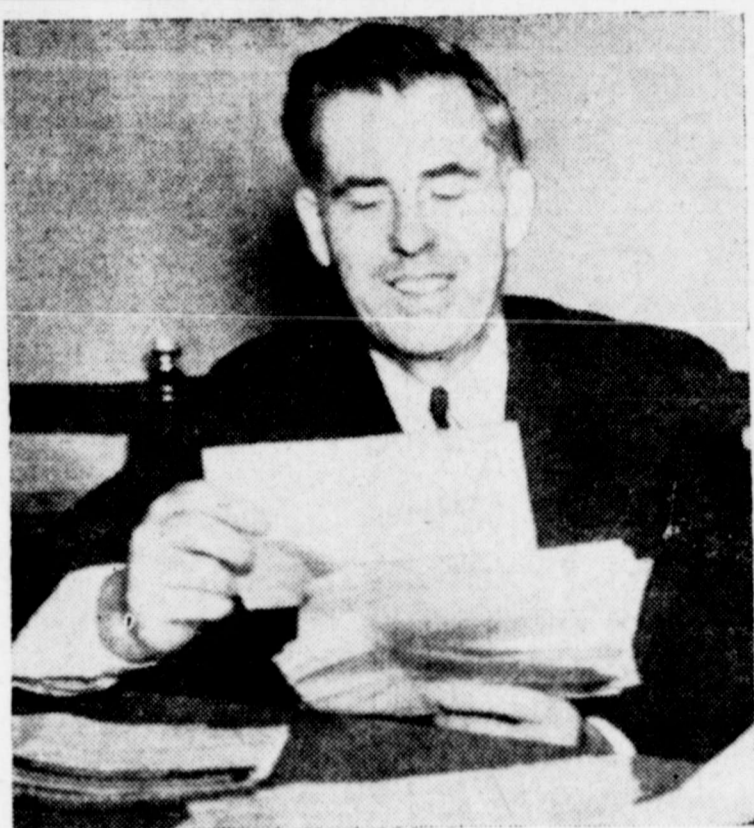

If the democrats of Texas want to spank Mr. McDonald—and the column holds brief for him—they will have that opportunity properly in the next democratic primary. There they may spank him as soundly as they wish. But they, the democratic voters, and not the political stirrers-up, are the ones to do it. The temper

Auxiliary to Sponsor Poppy Sale Saturday

American Legion auxiliary members are making plans for the annual Poppy sale on Saturday, November 9. It was announced by officials today. Poppies are made each year by disabled veterans in Legion hospital, and, proceeds from the sale of the flowers go back to the veterans. Ciscoans were urged to cooperate with the auxiliary in making the sale this year a success. The poem "The Other Side of War," emphasizes this idea.

"I walked through the aisles of a ward today,
And saw strong men at children's play,
Cutting silk hose into strips and bands;
Holding their scissors in nerve-shattered hands;
"Threading their needles with colorful thread;
Making bright poppies to honor our dead.
I saw a great army of disabled men,
Lost to their loved ones, grieving for them.
"Lost to a nation, for which they once fought;
Blind to the joys their sacrifice bought.
Our disabled army, growing larger each year,
No enlistment needed, no bugle they hear.
"Let the hopes of these men bloom ever anew,
With the Legion and Auxiliary seeing them through,
Until God in His mercy calls each to his rest,
True soldiers of Honor, our noblest and best!"

Wreck Delays Mails From West Today

A 25-car pile-up at the Latan section station near Big Spring delayed eastbound traffic on the Texas and Pacific railroad several hours today. The wreck occurred when a car near the engine of a fruit train derailed and twisted sidewise across the track. Mails to Cisco from the west were delayed until near noon. There were no casualties reported.

Father of Cisco Woman Succumbs

A. L. Fondren of Houston, father of Mrs. Joe Gallagher of Cisco, died at his home Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher left immediately for Houston, where funeral services were held Sunday. It was learned. Mr. Fondren was a brother of the late W. W. Fondren, philanthropist, who endowed Southern Methodist university with a magnificent new library.

CISCO-RANGER IS ARMISTICE DAY FEATURE

Business Houses and Schools Here to Have Holiday

Cisco will observe a quiet Armistice Monday to judge from preparations which have been made for this observance. The principal event of the day, so far as Cisco is concerned, will be the annual Cisco-Ranger Armistice day football game which will be played at Ranger. Time for the game will be 2:30.

Most Cisco stores will be closed for the holiday, an annual custom. There will be no issue of the Cisco Daily Press, also an annual custom with the newspaper. The football game between the Cisco and Ranger teams, in times past an important sectional gridiron event, will have no significance so far as the district league race is concerned. Ranger has lost all its conference games and Cisco has lost two, sufficient to rule out any chance of the Lobos capturing the title. The outcome of the contest, therefore, will have only local interest. But that interest has always been high, and because the game will give the Cisco team another measure of its strength in comparison with the Breckenridge Buckaroos, traditional Cisco football enemies, the contest will assume added importance to home fans.

Hour for the game, as noted, has been fixed for 2:30 in the afternoon. The Cisco public schools will have a holiday, so that a large body of students and the band and pep squad will be at the game.

Registration of Aliens Is Rapidly Done

The department of justice has announced that the alien registration division had received 1,386,679 completed registration forms through noon of Friday, September 27. This total represents receipts from 27 registration days and an average of 51,300 registrations per day.

Earl G. Harrison, director of registration, expressed satisfaction at the way the completed blanks continue to pour in. The directors also took occasion to point out that the postal officials in the field were doing a careful and accurate job in conducting the actual registration.

"Our daily average of completed forms received," said Mr. Harrison, "is now 51,300. This is 15,300 forms above the 36,000 average per day which we estimated should be maintained in order to complete registration of the estimated total number of aliens in this country at present."

"As the forms come in and are counted, they are immediately checked to make certain that they conform in each instance with the law. We were unable to give the local postmasters and their assistants much time in which to study the regulations before registration started. It is therefore a source of satisfaction to us that comparatively few of the forms received by us need to be returned to the local post offices for correction or further information."

Mr. Harrison also announced that this week the first batch of receipt cards were mailed to registered aliens as evidence of their compliance with the alien registration act of 1940. He estimates that by the middle of October at least 50,000 receipt cards will be mailed daily to registered aliens.

"Although the receipt card carries a special warning of the necessity for the registered alien reporting within five days any change in his permanent residence address," said Mr. Harrison, "the fact that he does not receive his receipt card for some weeks after he has registered does not relieve him of the obligation to re-register."

Reading the Record

(NEA Telephoto)

CISCOANS GO TO PUTNAM THIS EVENING

In a goodwill community visit sponsored by the Cisco Lions and Rotary clubs this evening, Ciscoans will go to Putnam at 7 o'clock for a dinner and program at the Putnam school building. This will be the second annual trip of this character made to Putnam. Last year more than 100 went from here for an enjoyable evening.

Each of the two service clubs will present one number on the program, the remainder to be presented by the Putnam hosts.

The clubs through their joint committee invited all Ciscoans who wish to join in the visit. The event will be similar to that which more than 100 people from here went to Scranton for a dinner in the new Scranton gymnasium a few weeks ago.

Blast and Fire in Bathroom Injure Ciscoan

A. E. Snowden, Cisco cafe owner, who suffered serious burns about the face and on the hands when an explosion of free gas occurred in the bathroom of his home yesterday morning, was reported today to be resting well.

The explosion occurred between 9:30 and 10 o'clock shortly after Mr. Snowden entered the bathroom. Little fire damage was done. The force of the explosion pushed the bathroom door through the steps in the frame. Curtains and linen in the room caught fire and the linoleum floor covering was scorched.

Cause of the explosion was not determined. All gas connections and the gas heater in the room were found to be in order. Possibility that seepage of sewer gas caused the blast was considered. Fire department inspectors pointed out, however, that the malodorous natural gas should have caused quantities of it sufficient to produce an explosion to have been detected, and that there was probability that some other form of gas was present. All sewer connections were found to be in order.

Mr. Snowden was burned when he fought the blaze which caught the window curtains and the linen in the explosion. Only slight fire damage was done. The home is at 705 West Eighth street.

Mrs. Wilda Thompson of Glendale, California, and Mrs. F. P. Shackelford of Putnam were guests of friends here Wednesday.

Mother of Cisco Woman Succumbs In Abilene Home

Mrs. Nettie Broughton of Abilene, mother of Mrs. Paul Poe of Cisco, died at her home Wednesday evening, climaxing a lengthy illness, it was reported here today.

Funeral services were to be held in Abilene this morning, followed by funeral services at the First Baptist church in Gorman this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Rev. Judson Prince, pastor of the Cisco church, was to officiate.

Mrs. Broughton is survived by a number of sons and daughters, her husband having preceded her in death several years ago.

GREEKS WAGE FIERCE DRIVE ON INVADERS

(By Associated Press)
Greek soldiers waging a vigorous offensive against the Italian invaders have within their grasp the important fascist base of Koritza, in southern Albania, and are shelling it constantly, reports said Wednesday night.

Advices from the mountainous front told of the capture of heights dominating the city and the Greek high command said confused Italian shells shelled their own retreating troops.

Italy's air force bombed the Greek city of Philorina several times and destroyed substantially half of the city, reports from the Yugoslav frontier said. Casualties were reported here.

Troubled Turkey still kept watch on the Greek-Italian war instead of actively entering on the side of her ally and neighbor, Greece, and unofficial reports in Ankara, Turkey, said soviet Russia was withdrawing some soldiers from the Turkish-soviet Caucasian frontier as a gesture of friendship.

Turkey's moves depend greatly on Russia's attitude as well as on her relations with Greece and Great Britain. And a Russian statement in Moscow reaffirmed the soviet policy of neutrality and armed vigilance.

The British and German aerial exchanges continued without letup and British bombers raided Naples for the third time in less than a week.

Welfare Board Opens For Season's Activity

The Cisco Charity and Welfare office is now open in the building just back of the Cisco Banking building, on Sixth street.

The annual drive for funds has begun, it was pointed out, and any contributions of clothing, shoes or money, to carry on the work of this worthwhile organization will be appreciated, it was said.

UNITY APPEAL FOLLOWS VOTE OF TUESDAY

Nearly 50 Million Ballots Counted in Election

By the Associated Press
A will for national unity manifested itself Wednesday as the aftermath of the bitter, turbulent campaign which resulted in President Roosevelt's election to serve a tradition-smashing third term as the nation's chief executive.

It was evident in the editorials of newspapers which had strongly supported Wendell L. Willkie, the defeated republican nominee, in the statements of many of the country's leading men, in the usual exchange of messages between victor and vanquished and in a radio address made by Willkie early in the day.

Mr. Roosevelt, the winner and still "the champ," was in by another sweep of the electoral college. Nine states remained in the Willkie column. The president was credited tentatively with 468 of 531 electoral votes, with the issue settled in all but a few states.

Republican leaders drew much gratification from the fact that the president's popular plurality was running far below his 10,000,000 margin of 1936. In this a number

MORE THAN 50 MILLION VOTES
At noon today more than 50 million ballots had been counted in the presidential election of Tuesday. Of these Roosevelt had 27,500,000 and Willkie 23,350,000 in round numbers.

ber of them, including Senator Charles McNary, the republican vice-presidential nominee, saw prospects of a republican victory in 1944. The statistics indicated that the party's popular vote this year would be the largest in its history.

Demos Gain in House
But the broad geographical sweep of the president's victory carried with it a democratic gain of a dozen or so seats in the house. Of the 35 senate seats at stake, 21 democrats and nine republicans had been elected, which—against the trend—gave the republicans a net gain of two. Sixteen democrats and 13 republicans were elected to gubernatorial posts, with the democrats using four republicans and the republicans capturing four seats from democrats.

Willkie, defeated after a campaign which gained him stature as a determined, unquitting political fighter, conceded Roosevelt's victory after most of his supporters had given up. He sent the president a telegram this morning expressing his congratulations, gratification that so many had voted, and wishing him "all personal health and happiness."

Then he went on the radio with a brief address, accepted the result, and said: "I extend my thanks to the thousands who so zealously and wholeheartedly worked for my election in various organizations and supported me personally.

"I know that they will continue, as I shall, to work for the unity of our people in the completion of our defense effort, in sending aid to Britain and in insisting upon removal of antagonisms in America—all to the end that government of free men may continue and may spread again upon the earth."

McNary, who, unlike Willkie, conceded the election before retiring, sent the president this telegram: "Heartiest congratulations. Wishing you all grace and administration all prosperity."

Mr. Roosevelt answered: "Many thanks for your generous and therefore characteristic message, and I know you and I will work together in the national interest. I heartily reciprocate all your good wishes."

The president's reply to Willkie was: "Please accept my sincere thanks for your message of congratulation. I greatly appreciate the assurance of your good wishes for my health and happiness, which I heartily reciprocate."

Home Guard—Proceed With Caution

IN the heat of the election, few people noticed that Congress on Oct. 21 passed an act authorizing the setting up of "home guard" units in the states.

The idea, of course, is to provide some sort of a force which could be used as a substitute for the national guard as the guard's units go into the federal service and, in many cases, leave the state. It has been Congress' thought, evidently, that it would be unwise to leave states without some force which could be called out in case of fire, flood, or natural disaster, or riot or internal disturbance, or of concerted sabotage of manufacturing or producing facilities.

THE basic idea is probably all right. But any activities of this kind ought to be carried out only in a completely responsible manner. The country wants no amateur vigilantes trooping up and down the land, acting on whatever sort of wild hunch seems to them a good idea at the time. We are not at war, and there is so much the less excuse for any of the acts of terrorism that were perpetrated in 1917-18 in the name of "home guarding."

Private organizations, no matter how patriotic, should not be allowed to organize or support any such forces. They should be public forces, completely organized, trained, and controlled by the army, subject as the army is, to proper civilian authority.

IN fact, it would not be a bad idea to raise any such force by the draft, just as the regular army is raised. That would insure that home defense, as well as national defense, be entrusted to a cross section of the nation's people, and not over-weighted by any single economic or political group. It would insure that the burden of such service would be evenly distributed.

Only completely responsible and properly trained officers should be placed in charge, and all activities should be subject to control and review by public civilian authority. Only thus will any home guard activity be properly geared to accomplish what it is meant to accomplish, and nothing else.

W. F. Hyer, guardian of John Knox III et al, minors, petition to settle execution in favor of his wards who recovered a judgment against Simpson & White for damages of $5,500 by reason of the death of their father. This judgment was appealed but a compromise settlement was pending, whereby the defendants in the litigation proposed to withdraw the appeal and settle the judgment by paying the sum of $4,500. Petitioner prayed the court to authorize the settlement on these terms. The petition was approved by the court and the settlement authorized. The court was shown that the plaintiff was represented in the litigation on a contingent fee by Turrer, Seaberry & Springer, who agreed to accept a fee of $1,350, which was approved by the court.

Mrs. Lela Brown, petition for letters of guardianship of the estate of her father, Edward L. Tuttle, incompetent, and prayed the court that he be adjudged a person of unsound mind. Approved, and citation issued for hearing Nov. 11, after waiver from the veterans administration.

SERIAL STORY

GOAL TO GO

BY W. H. PEARS

COPYRIGHT, 1940, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Buck talks the team out of their strike, sends Bill to practice. Bill tries one of his father's plays and the scrub team clicks. Landis challenges him to teach the scrubs all he wants to. That night Bullethead Peskin brings Dot Skelton to the drug store, bosses Bill around. Dot likes Bill. Drowsy Peters suggests Bill is overlooking a bet. Landis won't last, and if Bill is in solid with the Skeltons . . .

CHAPTER IV

BILL MENTOR, in football togs, moved slowly toward the football field. Deep in thought, he was for once in his life deaf to the seductive pung of toe against leather.

Ten days had passed since Drowsy dropped the hint about Dot Skelton, but it clung to his mind like a burr on a piece of wool.

"Wait up, Bill."

He started guiltily at the sound of Helen's voice. He felt somehow that even thinking of Dot made him disloyal to Helen. Besides, she had a darn queer habit of guessing what was on his mind.

"Am I in on this?"

"Heck no, Helen," Bill said, a little gruffly. "I've been putting in overtime, so Old Man Peskin'll let me off for the dance."

"Oh, Bill, I'm so glad!" Helen's eyes glowed. "This will be the first time I've even gone to dance with someone that I . . . well, kind of like."

"It makes a difference," Bill agreed. "I never cared much for dancing, but . . ."

"What made you change?" Helen asked shyly.

"Why, you did—" Bill broke off, flushing.

"That's nice, Bill," she laughed. "I may have a surprise for you the night of the dance."

"Oh, swell," Bill said, and changed the subject abruptly to football. "Well, we finally won a game Saturday."

"Westerburg?" Helen scoffed. "And just by a field goal. If that's the best we can do against a little, weak team, what'll happen when we meet Clayton?"

"Slaughter," Bill said gloomily. "I'll bet Landis is fit to be tied."

LANDIS was. They could hear his voice as he stomped along the sidelines bellowing at the boys. Catching sight of Bill, he scowled.

"Well, Mentor, still teaching the scrubs to be All-Americans?"

"No, sir, but we've got some new plays ready to roll. You said you'd like a chance to have the varsity stop them."

Bill spoke quietly, without challenge, but his words sent a rush of crimson to Landis' face. For the first time he appeared to realize that his taunt had been taken sincerely, and that now it was too late to back out.

"I meant what I said, Mentor," he snapped. Then, turning to the varsity squad: "Get in there and smear this play wide open!"

In the huddle Bill said earnestly. "Let's make these good, fellows. We know the plays will work, but we've got to prove it to Coach. If we do, he may let the varsity use 'em. Let's go!"

The play was simple, yet employed a brand of deception suitable to young tears. The ball came to a big scrub back. Bill cut behind him, faked a grab at the ball. Then, running together, the two sliced off tackle. Good work by the other faking back had made it appear that the play was going in another direction. Only the defensive halfback stayed with the play. Bill roll-blocked him as he dived for the ball carried. Landis blew his whistle sharply.

He started toward the sidelines, shoulders erect. Passing the varsity squad he said, "I didn't mean to show off, fellows. I'm sorry."

Eleven husky boys grinned at Bill. "Forget it, guy," Don Hart said. "We're not sore." Then, in a whisper, "It was a darn good play; tell Buck we said so."

BILL changed clothes slowly. He wrapped Buck's uniform in a big bundle. Where his heart should have been, there was a sick, empty feeling. No more football ever. In another year he'd be through school and looking for a steady job. Bill Mentor realized just how much these sandwiched-in practice sessions had meant to him.

That night, Bill tried to get the bundle in without letting Buck see it, but the older man's keen eyes noted the shape of the package.

"That looks suspiciously like a football uniform, Bill. Anything wrong?"

Lying to Buck was out of the question. Bill said dully, "Landis booted me off the field today."

"Why?"

Bill told him.

Buck nodded, thumbed his pipe; but he uttered no condemnation of Landis. He said simply, "That's tough, fellow."

"But he asked me to teach the scrubs—"

"Bluff, Bill. He never intended for you to do it."

"Maybe he was right," Bill said. "I guess I did want to show off your plays, Buck."

Buck Mentor smiled. "Keep punching, Bill. If things go as I've planned, you've got five years of football ahead."

"Five years! Say—"

"Here, take a look at this, fellow."

ON the table Bill saw a movie camera and projector. "Buck, for Pete's sake, where did you get that?"

Avoiding Bill's gaze, Buck said, "A friend of mine left it here."

"A present?" Bill gasped.

"Not exactly. You've heard me mention Jim Kirk?"

"The fellow you said could drive a hole in a concrete wall?"

"That's Jim. He was my sidekick in college. Recently he heard about my accident and looked me up. He's a district sales manager for the company that makes these outfits."

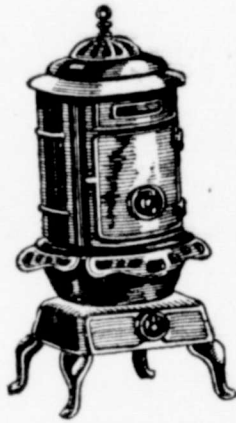

"I still don't get it, Buck."

The older man fumbled with his pipe. "These machines are designed especially for coaches. Jim thinks my football background would make me a good bet to sell them."

Health Officer Warns Against Carbon Monoxide

AUSTIN, Nov. 7 (Spc).—To minimize the danger of carbon monoxide poisoning during winter weather, motorists are urged by Dr. W. Cox, state health officer, to check up now on the exhaust systems of their automobiles for defective connections and leaks.

drive in closed cars. Carbon monoxide may seep inside from leaky connections and overwhelm occupants of the car," Doctor Cox warned. He said that "warming up" a car in a closed garage is the greatest cause of carbon monoxide deaths. Leaks from manifold connections, cracked manifolds, defective mufflers, leaks from loose muffler connections, and leaks from hot air heaters or connections are potential sources for release of carbon monoxide and should be checked, Doctor Cox pointed out. "Pay particular attention to those items and remember that proper carburetor adjustment causes minimum production of carbon monoxide and that the highest proportion of this gas is produced by an idling motor." The state health officer said that headaches which occur during long drives may be an indication that carbon monoxide is leaking into the car. "Sleepiness, dizziness, fatigue and in extreme cases, paralysis, are other symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning. Truck drivers on long drives are particularly vulnerable," Doctor Cox stated. Carbon monoxide is colorless, odorless, and tasteless. When it is in the air it gives no sign of its presence and is taken into the blood instead of oxygen. Suffering or collapse result from lack of oxygen.

of Texas people concerning the activities of politicians in Texas has been clearly and appropriately expressed in the last two governorship campaigns and those who are now active in another after-election strife-making may well consider the fact that Texas, as much as the nation, needs harmony and cooperation a great deal more than it needs dissension right now. Texas has some momentous problems to be solved. The effectiveness of the state government is at question. Its ability to seize opportunities presented for fostering agricultural, industrial and commercial expansion is at test. If the time of elected representatives of all the people is consumed in dealing with what is purely a party matter, these representatives will certainly prove traitor to their true responsibilities.

Texas may not need a department of agriculture. In this column's opinion it doesn't. But there are some other departments and bureaus which it does not need, and others that ought to get a thorough overhauling. Those who now advocate abolition of the agriculture department would be nearer the ideal of statesmanship, rather than political opportunism, if they would present a comprehensive program for general reform of the state government set up. But it takes pretty good-sized men to serve a principle, particularly when certain state departments have formidable political machines.

Allen, practicing dentist and an old-time resident of Billings, Montana, owner of several medals issued by the U. S. Government for bravery during service, who reside at 44 Yellowstone Ave., Billings. He states: "I have suffered for many years with a bad case of indigestion, sour stomach and gas bloating. Most any food would cause untold suffering. I had trouble with my kidneys and it was necessary for me to get up several times during the night, which made it impossible for me to get sufficient rest. I was troubled with constipation and had been compelled to use strong laxatives for years. I had pains in my shoulders and my head ached, I suffered with dizzy spells and was considerably underweight. I went to the drug store and asked to see a stock bottle of Hoyt's Compound. After reading the analysis, I said: 'This is the result of a thousand years of scientific study.'

"After taking Hoyt's Compound I slept through until breakfast. This is the first night's sleep I had in years. This is the first public statement in my life, but I am anxious for others to know about Hoyt's Compound. It has been a great relief to me, as I now am free of headaches and my stomach and kidneys are in fine shape. I am also thoroughly enjoying my meals. I would be very glad to discuss this medicine with anyone who cares to write to me or you, may phone Dr. W. A. Allen, 44 Yellowstone Ave., Billings, Montana."
