SEVEN INCHES OF RAIN IS RECORDED HERE

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

The value of insurance to the people of Texas is quite clearly illustrated in the announcement of the Institute of Life Insurance that families and other beneficiaries of Texas policyholders received $17,533,000 from life insurance companies in settlement of death claims during the first nine months of 1940. Such a sum of money released to bereaved families during three-fourths of a year represents a sizeable contribution to the economic welfare of the state, and since a great portion of it undoubtedly went to the families in straitened financial circumstances, it brought the opportunity to pay debts and to achieve a greater measure of security.

Insurance is a proven means of protecting the future, developed by private enterprise and based upon the principles of saving and social cooperation. A person may choose to what extent he or she wishes to save and to share in the common fund for insurance against the contingencies of the years. For although one buys insurance, what one does is to contribute toward the building of a fund that will spread the risks of life over a multitude of participants. Out of the premiums which the policyholder pays is built the reserve from which the benefits go to the beneficiaries.

But the fund that is built up exceeds the amount of premiums that are paid. And in the explanation of this lies the second great contribution of insurance to the national economy, a contribution that is financially sound and self-supporting. For insurance companies are not simply in the business of taking in premiums and paying out benefits. If they were, there would be no insurance companies. The business would be a failure. Or it would become nothing more than a savings institution out of which the savers took less than they paid in.

Insurance assets are built up by the business of lending the funds paid in to industry, business or other sound institutions and activities. The lending is done

Last Elder Statesman of Japan Succumbs

OKITSU, Japan, Nov. 25 (AP)—The last of Japan's Genro or elder statesmen, Prince Kimmochi Saionji, whose 91 years of life spanned the whole period of Japan's emergence from medieval insularity to rank among the great economic and military states of the modern world, died Sunday. He had been ill at his home, a few hours' train journey from Tokyo, since Nov. 13. A child barely beyond the toddling age when Commodore Matthew C. Perry made his historic visit to Japan in 1853, a young man when feudalism was abolished in Japan, Saionji's career, embracing military and diplomatic service, was inextricably woven into Japanese history. He was twice Premier himself and had advised the Emperor in the appointment of at least a score of other Premiers from 1916 on when as a Marquis he became a sort of junior member of the Genro in selecting Field Marshal Count Saeki Teruichi for the high post.

$50.00 to Be Paid For Suitable Name

The Southwestern Peanut Growers association is offering a prize of $50 to the person who suggests what, in the opinion of the judges, is the most suitable name for a new fertilizer which the association will shortly place on the market. Following are the rules of the contest: No person connected in any administrative position of the Southwestern Peanut Growers' association is eligible to compete in this contest. Competent judges will be secured to select the name chosen and the winner will be announced within five days after the close of the contest on November 30, 1940. All entries must be postmarked before midnight, November 30, 1940, to be given consideration in the contest. All names submitted become the property of the Southwestern Peanut Growers' association to be used as they see fit. The decision of the judges will be final. A short explanation as to why

Former Cisco Man Dies At Dallas Home on Sunday

DALLAS, Nov. 25 (Sp)—Louis Edward Brannin, 92, a pioneer west Texas rancher and land agent and a former representative of the Peters Colony Lands company at Cisco, died late Sunday at his home, 5011 Junius, following a short illness. A small, spare man who never weighed more than 125 pounds in his life, Mr. Brannin constantly amazed his children in his late years by his rugged health. None of his family could recall a day he had been sick, and attributed his fortitude to his simple tastes and habits, and a generous nature that was free from worry. Buffalo roamed the prairie at Graham when young Louis Brannin, lately of Newcastle, Ky., established himself in the town as a young land agent of 27. The Cisco Land & Collecting agency was formed in Cisco a few years later, and in 1880 he went to the town to work with that agency and represent the Peter Colony interests.

As a rancher in the Cisco community Mr. Brannin at first was viewed with contempt by veteran ranchers when they learned he was inoculating his cattle. He was an early advocate of inoculation and helped prove its worth to his neighboring ranchers. In 1885 he married Miss Katy Bacon of Paducah, Ky., and brought her back with him to Cisco. Mr. Brannin came to Dallas in 1908, partially retired, and spent his time looking after his interests and clients in the west Texas area. He became a student of the Peters Colony movement and collected maps, deeds and other data on the subject which recently were turned over to the Dallas Historical society. At the East Dallas Christian church Mr. Brannin kept up a

BRITISH GET NEW FOOTHOLD ON CONTINENT

Undisclosed Number of Soldiers Aiding Greeks

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 25 (AP)—British soldiers, forced from Europe last summer on the fall of France, have regained a continental foothold on the Greek mainland, it was disclosed Sunday night as Greek troops pushed on into Albania. British warships transported an undisclosed number of soldiers across the Mediterranean without interference from Italian planes or warships, it was reported, and landed them at Greek ports some time ago. They were welcomed enthusiastically by the populace, and since have been aiding the Royal Air force in its battle against the Italians.

In the Greek-Italian fighting, a Greek spokesman said, advance units of the Greek army have reached Pogadetz, twenty-five miles north of Koritza, the base which was captured last week from the Italians.

He also confirmed reports that the Greeks have occupied Maschopolis, eleven miles northwest of Koritza.

Other reports said the Greeks have occupied the rocky heights above Agirocasto, main Italian base in southern Albania, in the general drive which has carried some units nineteen miles forward. The Italians were reported try-

GREEKS ENTER MAIN ITALIAN BASE

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Nov. 24 (AP)—Greek advance forces entered the outskirts of Agirocasto, main Italian base in southern Albania, Sunday, according to reports reaching Reuters, British news agency, in Belgrade.

They reorganized their retreating forces to form a second line of defense, but the exact position of the line was not known here.

Inspects Squadrons

Royal Air force headquarters disclosed that Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Longmore, commander of all British air forces in the Mediterranean, made a quick visit to Greece and inspected RAF squadrons. The RAF said he expressed satisfaction at the speed and efficiency with which the units went into action and with their successes. During the visit he was received by King George II and had an interview with Premier General Metaxas and Generalissimo Papagos. (A Reuters dispatch from Athens to London said numbers of British and New Zealand airmen landed at a Greek harbor a few days ago from warships.)

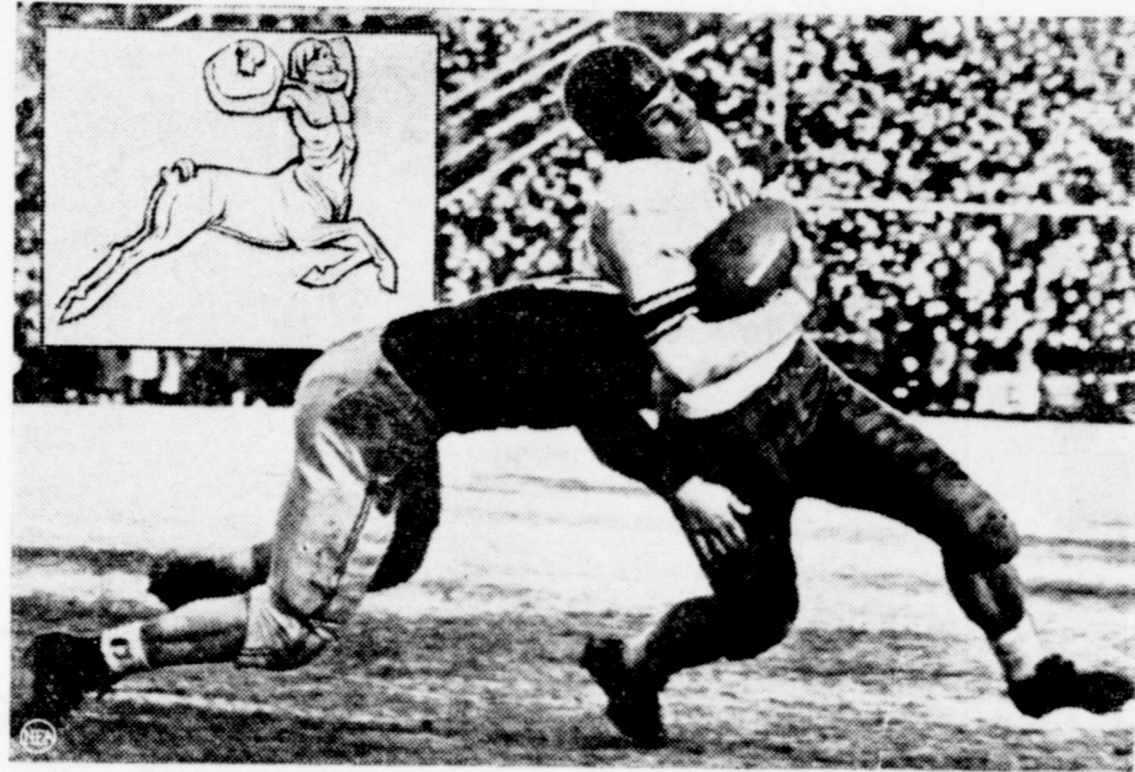

The entire operation of landing the Tommies was carried out in daylight under a clear sky, it was said. One officer in one of the warships said no Italian planes were sighted while crossing the Mediterranean.

The British warships steamed into one port in Indian style. They docketed quickly and within fifteen minutes after the vessels threw out lines to Greek dockhands the gangplanks were lowered and British troops with packs and full equipment were disembarking on Greek soil.

As they landed, cranes hauled equipment from the ships. A crowd on the pier at this port cheered as the troops landed and piled into buses which took them to their quarters. Groups of people had gathered along the route. When the buses were halted by traffic, many people rushed out to shake hands with the Tommies and gave a great demonstration of enthusiasm.

A Nomination for All-America Centaur

College gridirons have long been populated with Wildcats, Tigers, Bears, Panthers and so on through the whole gamut of the animal kingdom, but this the first football centaur. Resemblance to the Greek mythological figure, shown in inset, came when Sid Sadoff, North Carolina fullback, tackled Dinky Darnell from behind as the Duke end took a short pass from Wes McAfee.

RAF SLASHES BOTH ENDS OF AXIS POWERS

LONDON, Nov. 25 (AP)—In one of the mightiest attacks yet in its ever-broadening offensive, the RAF drove home slashing overnight blows at both ends of the Rome-Berlin axis from Turin, Italy, to the Nazi-held continental coast by way of Berlin, the air ministry announced Sunday. Another heavy attack opened on the coast Sunday night in the Boulogne area. As the attack spread, the coast line was lit up for miles by antiaircraft fire and by flares dropped by the RAF as they searched out their targets.

From Saturday's dusk to Sunday's dawn British bombers kept at it and returned home with accounts of blazing destruction left in such vital objectives as Berlin's Pultitzstrasse and Lek for freight yards, Essen's sprawling Krupp works and the Royal Italian arsenal and the Fiat works as Turin, Leipzig is Target.

Other targets included Leipzig and Duisberg-Ruhrort in Germany, and German-occupied France. All got incendiary and heavy demolition bombs and returning pilots said at least one huge fire was observed at each place.

Describing the Berlin raid, the air ministry news service said the attacking planes reached the German capital before 8 p. m. and started at least ten big fires in the Pultitzstrasse and the Lehrter freight yards.

"One of the fires burned so fiercely that aircraft flying high above were illuminated by the flames," it said.

Another formation bombed the rail yards between Berlin's Potsdamer and Anhalter stations with 1,000 incendiaries and numerous explosives, it related. One pilot said one direct hit was scored on the Potsdamer station, causing fires followed by three explosions.

"The interior of my bomber was lit up as though we had an electric torch," said another pilot. "Visibility was good and we could see Unter den Linden and the Tiergarten easily."

"There was an uncanny silence when we came over Berlin. Then their ack ack (antiaircraft) began firing and German fighters by this time were about."

"While one of our bombers was held in the searchlights two Messerschmidts attacked, firing red and green tracer bullets. The pilot turned his machine towards them to avoid their fire and the fighters broke away."

Greece Warned Of Impending War With Nazis

BERLIN, Nov. 25 (AP)—The first chilly warning to Greece from Germany came Sunday in a statement by the semi-official Deutsche Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz asserting that Premier Gen. John Metaxas of Greece has "made himself openly a tool of the British policy of spreading war."

The statement came shortly after Slovakia, a tiny nation made up of the remnant of Czechoslovakia, had signed the Axis military and economic pact and promised to rush to the aid of Germany, Italy and Japan if they are attacked by some outside power not already at war.

The semi-official publication declared that General Metaxas' statement that he was fighting for all the Balkans was "extraordinarily risky and dangerous." "But such a statement," Korrespondenz said, "Metaxas has made himself openly a tool of the British policy of spreading war."

"Europe today stands against England," Korrespondenz said, "Whoever in the face of consequences wishes to stand outside the German sphere and sacrifice the welfare of his own people should not be surprised if the changing of the order of the day brings ruin to the one at fault."

The statement was the first notable instance where any semi-official German mouthpiece has warned Greece of the full possibilities of its refusal to capitulate before the demands of Italy, Germany's original Axis partner.

Korrespondenz quoted Metaxas as saying he was the herald not only of his own land but at the same time for other Southeast peoples and further quoted the Greek premier as saying the Greeks were fighting "not only for their own land but also for other Balkan states and for the freedom of Albania."

Since Germany itself has taken over the job of protecting the Southeast peoples, this approached the nearest thus far to bring a German suggestion that the Greeks were fighting not only against Italy but against German interests in the Balkans.

Korrespondenz, which often is the mouthpiece of the foreign office, said London seemingly has found a new exponent.

Throughout the course of the Greek-Italian affair, Germany has maintained diplomatic relations with Greece.

Mr. Roy A. Langston is reported recovering from a recent illness.

Cisco Pastor Dies At Home Early Today

The Rev. George Morton Meglasson, Cisco grocer and pastor of the Bethel Methodist church for four years, died at his home this morning about 4 o'clock. Death came as a result of an illness of about 10 days, climaxing a year of failing health. Funeral services will be conducted from the First Methodist church Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Neil Lane Funeral home is in charge of arrangements, and burial will be in Oakwood cemetery.

Mr. Meglasson was born near Mayfield, Kentucky, May 1, 1875, and came to Texas with his parents at the age of 18. On May 15, 1898, he married Miss Cora Hobgood, and to this union were born 14 children, three of whom died in infancy.

The family came to Cisco from Walnut Springs in October, 1925, and since that time, Mr. Meglasson has been a successful grocer. At the time of his death he was proprietor of the C. O. D. grocery. Associated with him in the business was a son-in-law, Thomas Lee.

Mr. Meglasson had been an ordained minister for about six years, during which time he served the Bethel church and part of the time the East Cisco Baptist church.

Surviving him are his wife and 11 children: T. H. Meglasson of Meridian; C. E. Meglasson of Waco; Mrs. Downey Simpson of Ballinger; Mrs. V. V. Burns of Chilton; Mrs. M. L. Louder and Mrs. E. R. Clark of Winslow, Arizona; Mrs. Thomas Lee, Mrs. C. S. Tomlinson, Roscoe, George and Wilson Meglasson, all of Cisco.

LAKE CISCO LEVEL RISES THREE FEET

Weatherman Promises Clearing Skies on Tuesday

One of the biggest rains in recent years flooded the Cisco country over the weekend.

Seven inches fell to 6 a. m. today, the heaviest period of downpour occurred during Sunday and Sunday night, when the gauge at the city hall accounted for more than two inches.

With fair weather in prospect for Tuesday, residents of Cisco saw the level of their big lake rise three feet by mid-morning with the flow from the watershed undiminished and the prospect that the reservoir would lift further above the 72-foot gauge mark where it stood at that time. Highest that the lake has ever been is 82 feet. Lowest is 62 feet. Despite evaporation, the heavy drain of the state fish hatchery, the use of millions of gallons of water by the swimming pool during the summer and the consumption of water by the city, the big reservoir has held its own well, although there have been few rains during the last three or four years sufficient to restore very much of the loss.

Are's Flooded. A large portion of Cisco lay under shallow lakes of water Sunday during the heaviest part of the downpours. Streets in many instances were flooded and traffic on highways leading into the city was impeded by volumes of water that spread out of the barrow pits and drainage ditches in numerous places. Reports of high waters were received from numerous other communities.

The weather man promised clearing skies for Tuesday and with it the prospect of a Thanksgiving holiday Thursday unmarred by rain. Although the schools, government offices, including the post office, and many families observed the Thanksgiving holiday last week, most of the business hours in Cisco will observe next Thursday. The feature event of the day will be the game between the Breckenridge Buckaroos and the Cisco Lobos at Breckenridge, and a clear day should draw a capacity crowd to witness the clash both because of the long period of intense rivalry between the teams and because there is no crucial game in the district, Stephenville having already won the title by defeating Brownwood.

Tickets for the game, which will start at 2:30 Thursday afternoon will be sold at 50 cents. It was planned to reserve seats on tickets sold here at that price so that Ciscoans who wish may insure themselves of a seat by purchasing their ducaats here.

FROM RANDOLPH FIELD. Bobby Russell of Randolph field spent the week-end here. Russell was recently named an instructor in the mechanics department. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Russell of Cisco.

Red Termites Seek Shelter

ON the statute books of the United States there is a certain Voodoo act which requires registration with the secretary of state for every organization subject to foreign control, or which is engaged in political activities, or civilian-military activities, or whose purpose is to overthrow the government by force, violence, or threat. Negligence so to register is punishable by heavy fine and imprisonment.

THAT, of course, makes the whole proceeding smack of subterfuge. The communists evidently do not fancy United States authorities looking into their books, seeing how their organization works and whose money makes the mare go.

The finances of any party are important. Money is always necessary for the building up of a framework which the believers and converts can gather. It is needed for the spread of literature. It is the thing which makes possible a party press. Small parties need such a press more than the big political organizations.

The new situation suggests various questions. Is a real American communist party, without European ties and backing, possible in the United States? At present numerically small, can the party finance its own activities or will it dry up for lack of funds? Or will it still get money from abroad?

SMALL, communist parties, which might grow into bigger and more dangerous ones, have existed before. In spite of the war and the position of Russia toward the belligerents, there is still a communist party in Great Britain and it still has one member of the house of commons who makes himself vocal on any and all occasions.

So far, the American communist party has never elected a congressman, but it can always try to cash in on momentary discontents and disappointments of the people. The great safeguard is that the American voters are pretty well on to the curves of the red termites.

The careless people season is open again—when ducks, pheasants, rabbits, etc., are supposed to be shot.

by a variety of means—by direct loans, the purchase of bonds or similar securities, etc. Thus the development of insurance companies has made possible a vast reservoir of credit which in turn makes possible expanded economic activity, the building of industries, the growth of commerce, the provisions of public works and the financing of institutions which increase both the spiritual and practical standards of our civilization.

America owes a great deal today to the man who buys a few thousands of dollars of life insurance, and to the people who have been able and wise enough to take the premiums he pays and build strong reservoirs out of which to feed credit to hungry enterprise. The stake which America has in life insurance is tremendous, and the small policyholder ought to appreciate very carefully the vital resource which he and his beneficiaries have in the free working of the system of private enterprise which we have in America, and resist strongly those "isms" and peculiar theories that some would substitute for what we have.

STAMP NEWS

IMPORTANT stamps in the news are those of Greece, Turkey, Yugoslavia and Rumania, commemorating the Balkan Entente. Greek and Yugoslav issues are pictured here.

Each of the four nations issued stamps showing the coat-of-arms of each country. Designs are similar.

Directed particularly against Balkan aggressors, the Entente does not commit either Turkey or Yugoslavia to aid Greece except against a Balkan army. Rumania, of course, as a Nazi puppet, is out of the Entente.

Austin Site of Southwest Grid Classic Thursday

FORTH WORTH, Nov. 23—Austin, Texas, will come close to being the gridiron headquarters of the nation next Thursday. There on Thanksgiving afternoon (old style) the terrific Texas Aggies will battle two jinxes—one that A. & M. can't win from Texas in Austin; the other that Southwest conference champions don't repeat.

No follower of football gives either jinx much of a chance to hex the Aggies, yet stranger things have happened and the improbable chance that the Longhorns admittedly do have to upset things is what will fill Texas Memorial stadium and cause countless millions to stick close to the radio Thursday afternoon.

Incidentally, the University of Arkansas meets the University of Tulsa in Tulsa the same afternoon. But no one except those immediately concerned seems to care particularly.

Saturday's schedule, as an aftermath, calls for conference bowls. T. C. U. and S. M. U. play in Dallas, the game carrying with it an inter-city rivalry that always makes for a colorful contest, no matter what. At the same time, Rice and Baylor battle it out in Houston in what probably will be a whale of a football game.

But even though the schedule says there are four Southwest games this week, the football world knows of only one. Those Aggies play Texas in Austin Thursday!

Foresees U. S. Trends in Europe Rebuilding

AUSTIN, Nov. 25.—When Europe begins reconstruction of war-devastated cities, it will probably be along American architectural trends, a University of Texas architect predicted today.

This belief was advanced by W. T. Rolfe, chairman of the university architecture department, who declared that perhaps the World War II's one real contribution to civilization would be a newer, better architecture.

Bracketing the current war along with history's other major catastrophes as "a cause of sudden architectural change," Rolfe predicted that community centers, cities will emerge from wreckage, now leveled by bombs.

BRUCE CATTON'S AMERICAN ROUNDUP

FLEMING ASSERTS: 40-HOUR WEEK IS ADEQUATE TO MEET NEEDS OF NATIONAL DEFENSE PROGRAM

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Alfred P. Sloan's recent suggestion that the six-day week should supplant the five-day week in American industry as soon as "the slack of an employment has been taken up" scarcely caused the raising of an eyebrow in Washington. And though the General Motors chairman was advancing his idea as a measure to speed up defense production, Col. Philip B. Fleming, head of the government wage hour division, declares flatly that neither the National Defense Commission nor the American business man has given any indication that the 40-hour week is showing up the defense program.

"I'm a soldier and I'm primarily interested in national defense," says Col. Fleming. "If I saw any reason to suspect that this law was a handicap to our defense efforts I'd be the first one to go to Congress and ask for a change. But I don't."

Last July Col. Fleming wrote President Roosevelt that he wanted to be informed at once if the 40-hour week was slowing up defense production anywhere. The President gave the letter wide publicity, but only one complaint has come in—from a small concern which complained that it couldn't get enough machine tool men.

CO-OPERATION FROM EMPLOYERS
In general, Col. Fleming believes the wage-hour law is coming to be accepted as a permanent feature of the American industrial landscape.

"I think in the last year or so we've developed a consciousness among both employers and labor that the law is being enforced," he says. "Because that is true, business is helping, to enforce the law. We've had a lot of help from trade associations. Many of them are going right to bat, reprinting our publications and sending them out to their members to help them comply with the law."

"Our industry-wide drives are doing a great deal of good. At first we were only able to handle complaints, and we weren't doing a very good job even of that. Now with an increased staff we're clearing up the complaints and are also putting on these drives in which we take one industry at a time and inspect every single plant in it, all across the country."

"What I'm striving for now—and I think I can see the goal ahead of us—is to make a routine periodic inspection of every employer covered by the act."

SHOULD TRAIN UNSKILLED
[FAR more important than lengthening the work week, the colonel thinks, is training the unskilled unemployed for skilled jobs. He points out that the wage-hour law is amply flexible to make his case.

Locker Plants Seen As Boon to Farmer

AUSTIN, Nov. 25 (Spc).—Invention of low-cost freezing apparatus—like that now being patented by University of Texas engineers—has brought the advantages of quick-freezing within the small farmer's grasp, a university engineering specialist believes.

W. R. Woolrich, University dean of engineering, sees in the locker storage plant not only a revival of yesterday's ice-house but the answer as well to the farmer's chronic problem of preserving perishable foods for an all-year market.

Mr. Wilson Davis and Mrs. W. A. McCall were expected to return today from a visit with relatives and friends in Beaumont and Corpus Christi.

Many girls know where to turn for help from headaches, nervousness, cramp-like pain of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition. For CARDUI has helped them by stimulating appetite, increasing flow of gastric juices and so improving digestion. Thus many are assisted to build physical resistance to periodic distress. Or, CARDUI may help you if taken a few days before and during "the time." Used and popular for more than 50 years.

SERIAL STORY DUDE COLLEGE

BY OREN ARNOLD

YESTERDAY, Ronnie's shirt-shooting helps Officer Starr capture the men who had shot at her plane. Later, telling the story to Ronnie's father, Starr explains that the men were not aliens, but American citizens. Bailey believes they may have some interest in the bombing tests to be held soon. Starr agrees.

WES IS UP IN THE AIR

"I HAVE asked you to come in," Dr. Woodrow Wesley York was saying, "because it is a faculty rule that we make a first-week check of our students, Miss Bailey. Pueblo university always maintains close touch with its registrants, to assist them in every way. Have you found your courses satisfactory? What you hoped they might be?"

"Oh yes, Dr. York!" Ronnie Bailey had a way of saying "Oh yes." She emphasized the eyes, made it a sound of enthusiasm and gratitude so that it was distinctly complimentary. Dr. York looked up from his record book at her.

"Ah—quite so," he murmured then, inadequately. Miss Bailey always distracted him.

"And Dr. York, I'm sorry I got myself talked about. Am I to be punished? Daddy said I ought to be skinned for—"

"Miss Bailey, you are regarded as an adult here, which, of course, you are. Pueblo does not 'punish.' Of course, certain disciplinary measures have to be invoked from time to time, but you—ah—episode with the airplane and the Border Patrol was distinctly your own affair, and not reprehensible in the slightest, so far as I can see."

"Mr. Starr says that it demonstrates the need for additional autogiro planes in the border service. With only three autogiros now, more should be added as rapidly as—"

"Do you like to fly, Dr. York?" "I beg pardon?" He looked astonished. "I, myself?"

"Yes! Do you?" "Why, ah—no. That is, I have never once been in—"

"Goodness, Dr. York, you ought to be ashamed! This isn't the covered wagon era. This is 1940!"

"Quite so, Miss Bailey. But my scholastic pursuits—"

"Oh, ps-s-s-s-s-s-s!" She hissed at the idea, wrinkling her nose, then winked impersonally before she talked on. "Listen here, Dr. York, the kids all say you are very human, really."

"They—they—how was that?" He put down his record book and Sliding, loafing along up high motor idling, enabling them to talk more easily. Ronica noted that his somewhat pale, indoorish skin had taken on a pink glow of exhilaration. Also, he had taken his glasses off.

"It's surprising how much different you look," she said.

"I beg pardon?" "Without your glasses, I mean. You look so much nicer. No, I don't mean that, Dr. York. I mean younger. Of course you look nice with them."

"I—ah thank you. I—"

"What I mean is, you should get smaller frames. I think. These are too heavy. Do you have to wear them?"

"Only when I read, but one gets into a habit, and—"

"That's all of that, then. You start leaving them off."

He looked at her with raised eyebrows. Here was a girl, a student, actually ordering him! Giving him personal commands. It wasn't done in a university, he felt, but—oddly, he liked it. It was distinctly pleasant, and it made sense.

Dr. Woodrow Wesley York blinked. He glanced at Ronica Bailey again and decided that yes, she was undoubtedly the prettiest of all the girls who had ever matriculated at Pueblo university. It made one wish that fate had not—

"THERE'S a dance Saturday night," she suddenly announced.

"Quite so."

"Stop it," she commanded gaily. "Quite so" is something to say after you turn 50 years, Dr. York. Can't you be yourself?"

He was shocked again, and looked it.

"I—I—you—"

"Oh, quite!"

"Good! We'll coast some."

"Not over 4000 feet," she answered his thoughts, shouting in his ear. "Like it?" Her grin was impish.

"Oh, quite!"

"Good! We'll coast some."

any too happy. Have you?"

"I—yes. That is—"

"Will you take me to the dance Saturday, Dr. York?"

She might have shot a gun. Or power dived or looped the loop or, say, slapped him. No matter, it couldn't have astonished him as much as what she had said. His own voice, though, was paralyzed now.

"The kids say you have been girl shy," she went on, eyes dancing. "but the truth is, you're awfully good-looking and you're not as old as you think you are. I told some of the girls I bet I could break you out of your shell. Still he could say nothing."

"Mind if I drop the 'doctor?' I mean outside the classroom of course. How about 'Wesley?' What do your intimate friends call you?"

"W-Wes." He finally croaked that.

"Wes. It's okay—Wes! It's human. Here, you want to handle the controls some? Seriously, I'm not trying to flirt with you. I never flirt. I despise flirts. Wes, I'm just trying to stir you awake and I hope you don't get mad at me. Now grasp this lever first, and—"

"Wesley?" He finally croaked that.

GET mad at her! Get mad at Ronica Bailey.

Poor Wes York, at once miserable and exalted, had no words despite his broad vocabulary. Get mad at her! Never! The girl spoke truth! He knew it, and in him was an almost frantic crying out of gladness, a welcoming of her frank comradeship; this vivacious, impulsive girl had suddenly brought life to him.

He swallowed hard, thrust his shoulders back determinedly and turned to her. Pink though he was, he spoke with conviction now.

"The kids say you have been girl shy," she went on, eyes dancing. "but the truth is, you're awfully good-looking and you're not as old as you think you are. I told some of the girls I bet I could break you out of your shell. Still he could say nothing."

GET mad at her! Get mad at Ronica Bailey.

"Miss Bailey—that is, Ronica—I am both literally and figuratively up in the clouds, but I certainly shall take you to the dance!—in fact, I was about to ask you myself!"

He wondered what gave him the temerity to utter that last falsehood. But no matter; he felt a powerful new stimulant streaming through his veins.

Don't buy this-- it's NOT advertised!

It's a doubtful product. It bears no trade name. It might be any one of the many things you buy or use every day. A refrigerator, perhaps... or a radio... nail polish... chewing gum... kitchen soap... a correspondence course.

But the promoter knows its claims couldn't stand the intense scrutiny of the American buying public. And so he prefers to dispose of it as an unbranded article. That's why you won't find his advertisement here.

How different from the other advertisers in this newspaper! Proudly they tell you of their latest product or service. Eagerly they announce special values, improvements, new features.

These manufacturers and merchants have confidence in what they offer. They realize that while advertising may make the first sale—it's the quality and value of the product that makes the second, third and fourth. And that's what they're after!

It's worth while, reading the advertisements! You can believe in them!

Bill McMahon
Is Married
In Longview

(Longview Morning Journal)
A wedding of distinctive charm and characterized by elegant simplicity, was solemnized by early twilight Wednesday evening in the spacious candlelit auditorium of the First Baptist church when Miss Janie Lynn Baucum, attractive daughter of Mrs. J. D. Baucum and the late Dr. J. D. Baucum, became the bride of Mr. William David McMahon, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. McMahon of this city.

and ceremonial sanctity were impressively maintained throughout the service performed by candlelight. An impressive feature was the lighting of the candles by Austin Barrow and Quay Nicklow. Miss Adelia Baucum, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She was becomingly attired in a pale blue wool dress with which she wore copper shoes, a becoming brown hat and carried a brown purse. The dress was trimmed with jeweled buttons. Her corsage was fashioned of Peruvian lilies. Miss Doris Baucum, the youngest sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. She was attired in a smart frock of gold wool trimmed with jeweled buttons. Her accessories were of copper and brown and her flowers Peruvian lilies.

was gowned in a smart dress of rose crepe with which she wore black accessories and a corsage of camellias.
Both the bride and groom were members of well known Longview families. Mrs. McMahon is a graduate of the Longview high school and attended Baylor university and Texas State College for Women. Mr. McMahon attended Schriener institute in Kerrville and received his degree in petroleum engineering from Texas A. & M. college.

Immediately after the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bride on Young street. The bride's table was spread with an imported table cloth and centered with a beautifully embossed wedding cake. The confection was in the shape of wedding bells caught together with white gardenias and blue satin ribbon. A crystal bowl held frosted punch and silver containers held blue and white mints and salted nuts.

After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home on Covington drive. Out-of-town guests for the wedding were:
Mrs. R. E. Hood and daughter, Joyce, Breckenridge; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Cleet and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wallace, Cisco; Mr. and Mrs. L. M. McGannon, Mexia; Dr. and Mrs. Rex A. Barrow and sons, Austin and Donald, El Dorado, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Brown, Mrs. Mae Parker and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Brown, Shreveport, La.; Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Nicklow and Patricia and Quay, Houston; Mr. and Mrs. Hazan McMahon, Houston; Mr. and Mrs. D. V. Loftin and sons, D. V. Jr., and Johnny, Gladewater; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Grafton and son, James, Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Raborn and Mr. and Mrs. Arlyn Beaver, Kilgore; Bayard McMahon and Jack McMahon, Austin.

Yule Seals on Mansion Mail

If you receive a letter from the governor's mansion between now and Christmas it will likely carry a Christmas seal which helps finance the nationwide battle against tuberculosis. Here in Texas' first lady, Mrs. W. Lee O'Daniel, and Molly O'Daniel already using the colorful Christmas seal on early mail. Millions of seals will go on mail from American homes and business offices from the White House in Washington to the humblest cottage as America takes part in the 34th annual seal sale beginning Nov. 25. The picture was taken in the drawing room of the mansion.

34th Christmas Seal Sale Is Launched Today

AUSTIN, Nov. 25 (Sp.)—Today with the launching of the 34th annual Christmas Seal sale sponsored by the national, state and county tuberculosis associations, America presents a solid front against the dread disease, with every constructive factor in the country lending assistance, Dr. Z. T. Scott of the Texas association declared.

"Led by President Roosevelt, his cabinet members, a congress, and state governors, including W. Lee O'Daniel and his family, the sale of the stamp seals for Yule season mail and packages will be a tremendous success," Dr. Scott predicted.

the bond of human interest and a real humanitarian need," Dr. Scott, volunteer managing director of the Texas Tuberculosis association, added.

The seal, which has become a widely sought and in some instances a valuable collectors item—this year depicts three small children lifting their voices in song and is designed in traditional holiday color. Several of the stamps on the sheet have only one figure with the caption: "Protect us from tuberculosis." The remainder have the Yuletide wish, "Merry Christmas, 1940."

Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel will devote part of his December 1 program to the Christmas Seal sale and the work of the national and state tuberculosis program, his office has announced. Newspapers throughout Texas have each year given thousands of dollars in free space to the Christmas seal campaign, and radio stations, outdoor advertising companies and other agencies have, without cost, given time and facilities to the program. Most of the work of the nation-wide sale is done by volunteer workers, some of whom have served since the beginning of the Christmas seal plan 34 years ago with compensation, state headquarters here declared.

Dr. Scott explained that every citizen possible is reached, but that many cannot be reached. He urged that those who do not get seals through the mails this week, write to state headquarters here or to county tuberculosis associations for a supply. The stamps are $1 a sheet of one hundred, or one cent each.

Harmon and Kimbrough Lead NEA All-America

Gallarneau and O'Rourke Listed in Backfield

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

Out of the tremendous struggle that was the 1940 football season emerges another All-America team for all the land to hail. Picked with the aid and advice of coaches, scouts, officials and football writers of the nation, the team is composed of men who fought to the last ditch in the line and of backs who didn't stop when their blockers were through.

Seniors all, the fitness that comes with the final year of college football failed to check their enthusiasm. Because of their brilliance, they were marked men—prisoners of prestige. Coaches sat up nights scheming how to stop or get away from them. They were double and triple-teamed, yet they continued to storm and scale the heights until they reached the pinnacle.

Grand competitors, rugged individualists who unhesitatingly wrapped themselves in the blanket of smooth team play are the young men composing NEA's All-America team of 1940.

The ends: Paul Severin of North Carolina and Jay McDowell of Washington.

The tackles: Forrest Behm of Nebraska and Nick Drahos of Cornell.

The guards: Bob Suftridge of Tennessee and Helge Pukema of Minnesota.

The center: Lon Gajecki of Penn State.

The backs: Charley O'Rourke of Boston college, Tom Harmon of Michigan, Hugh Gallarneau of Stanford and John Kimbrough of Texas A. & M.

The six-foot, 194-pound Harmon, the most publicized player of the year, has been compared favorably with Red Harold Grange.

Jarrin' John Kimbrough, the force of the Texas Aggies, hits so hard he injures teammates.

Although he stands six feet two and weighs 222 pounds, Kimbrough beat a crack sprinter when both wore full football equipment.

Callarneau—six feet, 190 pounds—was the fastest and cleverest back in Stanford's Cinderella combination.

Little Man Among Giants
Skinny and loose-jointed Capt. Charley O'Rourke climaxed an illustrious varsity career at Boston College in his titanic match with Georgetown, when he had a hand in 18 of the 19 points scored by the Eagles.

O'Rourke, who weighs no more than 158, strikingly illustrates that a boy does not necessarily have to be of generous physical dimensions to play football well among giants.

Paul Severin—six feet, 187 pounds—did in superlative fashion for North Carolina everything a splendid end is supposed to do.

Rugged, red-headed Jay McDowell stands six feet two, comes in at 197, and used his weight and height to full advantage at end for Washington.

Towering six feet four and scaling 200 pounds, and with aggressiveness to match his bulk, Forrest Behm at tackle was a bul-
