Mr. Henry Has The Floor

THE Lend-Lease bill is law. By democratic process, after two months of strenuous debate in which every opportunity has been given all sides to be heard over and over again, the people's representatives in congress have passed it, two to one. It is the nation's policy for good or ill.

The armament effort must now go into high gear. We have decided that the national safety and future now rest in our ability to arm, not only ourselves, but those other countries where the battle for their freedom is actually raging.

WE arm, and the mind turns back to another crisis. One hundred sixty-six years ago, there was also an appeal for preparedness. In the provincial assembly of Virginia a resolution had been introduced to free the colony in a state of defense, fit out and train militia. Delegates hesitated. Defense? Defense against the homeland of Britain? True, there had been shooting on Lexington Green and at the Concord bridge, but New England was far away from Virginia.

Patrick Henry, whose resolution was being debated, heard with mounting indignation the objections as the debate dragged on. Then, on March 23, 1775, he took the floor, and all his pent-up feeling rushed forth in a flood of oratory which, for a long time, every school child knew.

"There is no retreat but in submission and slavery," Henry cried. "Our chains are already forged. Their clanking may be heard on the plains of Boston. The next gale that sweeps from the north will bring the clash of resounding arms. Our brethren are already on the field. Why stand we here idle? What is it that gentlemen wish? What would they have? Is life so dear or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

TODAY the clanking of chains is heard in Norway, in Holland and Belgium, in Poland and in Czechoslovakia and the Balkans. Today our brethren are already in the field. It is not asked or suggested that we do more than put arms in their hands, meanwhile perfecting and strengthening our own.

We want no war. But today's world has given short shrift to other nations which also wanted no war and thought that to do nothing was the best way to keep aloof. We are at last convinced that the best way to keep war away is to create strength for ourselves, and to share it with like-minded nations and peoples. Though we hope it will not, this course may lead to war. So, we have learned, may any other course; so may mere drifting. We now muster our strength as the best available insurance against being drawn into war.

Here we stand, and we stand no longer idle.

YOU'D THINK BILLION-A-WEEK LEGISLATING WOULD BE A GOOD SHOW, BUT HOUSE LAYS EGG

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—If Madison Square Garden, the Hollywood Bowl or any intermediate arena, concert or palace of grunt were to sign up as an attraction, the current prospects of watching a bunch of guys spend one billion five hundred million dollars in one hour, admission could be charged and better crowds drawn than you could trumpet up from the bushes for the second coming of the Great I Am and Almee Semple McPherson.

But when they put on this act in Congress, where the admission is free, the show lays an egg and nobody cares. What's a lousy billion and a half? Chicken feed. Maybe that's why it lays the egg. The floor of the House is less than a fourth filled. Fifty Republicans, Sixty Democrats. Those are round numbers for the gentlemen of the House don't stay long enough to put the finger on. Coming and going. Talking to each other. Of those who do stay put, a dozen read newspapers and another dozen or more read the Congressional Record to see what they did yesterday.

ARGUE 3 HOURS ON 1 1/2 BILLION

ALMOST everything they did on this bill was done yesterday. That was the day of argument. This is the day of passage. They argued for all of three hours over this billion and a half, even though it covered 186 (p-3) sets including 49 million for chartering ships, other millions for naval yards from Boston to Samoa, submarine bases from the Virgin Islands to Alaska, naval hospitals, 10 million for the marine corps and 633 million for more barracks for the army. When you think how long it takes the average family to decide on what kind of a new car to buy, you wonder how even congressmen can spend 1500 million so nonchalantly.

they'll need. Then the women which the experts testify left the Congressional Committee appropriations, thrashing out various items and deciding if they're necessary. The committee have the grief, but the committee's name is George. Congress lets George do the work.

ALMOST any group could do for more than three hours how to spend a billion and a half and produce better cracks than the congressmen do at one of the shows of theirs.

5000 CCC Workers Are Needed For Full Texas Quota

J. S. Murchison, executive director of the department of public welfare, has advised the welfare workers in all counties of Texas that it will take approximately 5,000 boys to bring CCC camps to full authorized strength.

country, the vocational program of the CCC will be stepped up and members can be assured of being trained in many of the trades and skills, thereby being benefited to a greater extent than ever before. They will be able to secure employment in private industry and become self-supporting in less time than before.

Records show the fine physical condition of the boys are in when discharged, the greater majority have gained an average of over 15 pounds in weight and are strong and strapping fellows, eager to put to use their training. Each camp has a doctor, with visits every month from a dentist, and a chaplain, the physical, mental and spiritual well-being is assured. The food is carefully prepared in spotless kitchens by members who have attended the cooking schools that are maintained for training. Many former members of the CCC now have excellent jobs as cooks and chefs in hotels and restaurants all over the state, showing they know how to cook and are able to make cakes, pies, ribs and bread, as well as to properly prepare meats and vegetables.

SERIAL STORY

DOLLARS TO DOUGHNUTS

BY EDITH ELLINGTON

COPYRIGHT 1941, NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY: Beatrice is furious at the stranger who would chloroform her. But he has opened her eyes to the emptiness of her life. Her money, travel, parties bring her no real pleasure. She promises to see the stranger again, to make him eat his words. Clarence is little help. Marriage is the only solution he can offer. He promises they shall be married within a week.

BEATRICE RUNS AWAY

BEATRICE HUNTINGTON DAVENPORT sat up very straight in her car, and looked fixedly at the back of Jenkins' head as he drove through the slow-moving, heavy, late afternoon traffic. She had promised Clarence that she would marry him next week. Promised because, for a moment in his arms, with his lips on hers, she had believed that he was right.

"We shall be so happy; No other pair in history have ever been as happy as we shall be, darling," he had whispered. "No more discontent, my love. I promise you, our life will hold more than parties and social foolishness and wild running around. I love you, and you love me. We shall have a marriage the world will wonder at."

Beatrice made a quick decision. When her mink coat was hidden in the parcel locker, she could mingle unnoticed with these people, hurrying home from work.

Beatrice realized that Clarence was utterly serious, and with the realization came a rush of pride that she had not, after all, been fooled by a fortune hunter. Clarence loved her and wanted to make their marriage a real and solid bond.

But after he was gone—while she sat here in the car and the city streets darkened around her—uncertainty gripped her. Being engaged to Clarence was fun. Taking him away from Mimi Frothingham had been fun. At least, until this afternoon, it had all been enjoyable enough.

But she had never actually set the date of her wedding. She had never thought what marriage meant. Its permanence—the solemnity which Clarence was bringing to it—its nearness! Next week! Only a few days away.

She was frightened. "I can't marry Clarence next week!"

THE sense of awareness—the feeling of a door having opened for her, this afternoon when she heard that man's voice—and let her look on things that were the same and yet somehow different, came back to her. "Marrying Clarence isn't the answer. I was frightened, and I showed him I was frightened. He thought because he does love me, that getting married right away would help. But it won't. That is something else."

Unaccountably, she was trembling again. "I think a girl like that should be quietly and completely chloroformed," that unknown voice had said. Her lips twisted. He could be whimsical about it! "More in sadness than in anger."

She stared out of the window as the car turned into Fifth avenue. People thronged the sidewalks. Men and women, living lives far different from her own. Men and women who shouldn't be chloroformed. They were useful. She noticed that they bucked a strong wind she could not feel, sheltered here behind the glass of the limousine's windows. It was the sum of the difference between her and them.

The store she knew so little of, and yet the store that made all the difference between herself and these people. She leaned forward, "Turn down to Sixth avenue, Jenkins."

The sidewalks of Sixth avenue were thronged, too. Watching with her newly sharp eyes, with the clamoring questions in her mind she had never asked before. Beatrice saw that there was a difference between these people and those on Fifth. These were even more tired. Their faces unguarded, betrayed more. Their clothes were shabbier. Even her car was out of place on Sixth avenue, where it had been familiar and unnoticed on Fifth.

At Forty-second street, a policeman held up traffic though the light was green. Beatrice saw a broad wave of people—in or 12 abreast—in surging ranks that went far up the block—pushing their way from one side of the street to the other. She remembered, then, the subway station at Times square. That's where they were going. To the subway.

All at once, Beatrice opened the car door. "I'll get out and walk, Jenkins. This is too slow." A curious, baffled restlessness possessed her. "You take the car to the garage. And I won't need you any more tonight, Jenkins."

The chauffeur turned, surprise in his usually expressionless eyes. "But it's so crowded, Miss Davenport. And it's a long walk east to Park and then over..."

"I'm not going directly home, Jenkins."

SHE was out of the car. The door closed behind her, and she was stepping up on the sidewalk. Almost incredibly, a sea of humanity engulfed her. She found herself being carried along, slowly and bumpily, in that pressing, enveloping wave of people.

She could not remember ever having walked down Forty-second street at this hour before. Her wristwatch showed that it was a quarter to six. This crowd, then, was going home from work. Home on the subway.

She gazed at the kiosk in fascination, as she moved out of the stream into a little island of people waiting against a drug store window. Of course, she'd been

Education Class Meets At School On Thursday

The Parent Education class of the Cisco Normal school had a business meeting and program at the school at 1:30 Thursday. Mrs. Melvin Travis presided.
The program was opened with a song, "Beautiful Texas," sung by Mrs. Alpha Kiehn, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Luther Fryar.
Henry Schaefer was then presenter as principal speaker and he brought an enlightening and forceful talk on the subject "Making the Best of Your Surroundings." Mrs. Travis read two articles entitled "Rejuvenate Your New Lives," and "Schools for Sick Children."
Another interesting feature of the program was a summary of the life of Helen Keller, given by Mrs. Richard Hogan, who pointed out how we might apply like ex-

Mrs. Hill Hostess To Club Meeting

The Ladies Home Demonstration club met on Monday with Mrs. C. B. Hill, Mrs. L. N. Dungan, Mrs. M. C. Stivers, president, in charge of the business session, during which it was decided to have a party for husbands of the members in the near future.
At the close of the meeting the business served refreshments emphasizing the club colors, red, white and blue. Plate favors were tiny cups of gumdrops.

Those present were Meses, Paul M. Culp, C. K. Padgett, Paul Moore, H. J. Moore, M. C. Stivers, J. Y. Caldwell, Jack Norman and the hostess, Mrs. Dan Dillingham.

Mrs. Dillingham Is Hostess To Club Thursday

Members of the Friendly Twelve club met Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Mrs. Dan Dillingham. Mrs. M. C. Stivers, president, was in charge of the business session, during which it was decided to have a party for husbands of the members in the near future.
At the close of the meeting the business served refreshments emphasizing the club colors, red, white and blue. Plate favors were tiny cups of gumdrops.

Cisco Clubwomen Attend Program Of Moran Club

The Moran Study club entertained with a Texas day program and tea in the home of Mrs. Bob Elliott Thursday afternoon, and among guests present were members of the Cisco Twentieth Century club.
Special music for the occasion was furnished by the music department of McMurry college in Abilene, featuring works of Texas composers.
A highlight of the program was an interesting review of the book, "The Long Tide," by Laura Krey, also author of "All This and Heaven, Too." The review was given by Mrs. McGrew.

Music Club Has Texas Program Wednesday A. M.

Mrs. R. S. Cope, president, was hostess to the Cisco Music Study club when it met for a Texas day program in her home Wednesday morning.
Mrs. S. E. Hittson was in charge of the interesting program, and featured were works of two of Cisco's composers, Mrs. J. R. Burnett and Mrs. Lee Clark.
Mrs. Burnett gave a brief review of her experiences in composing songs and poems, and Mrs. A. E. Jamison sang her latest composition, "America is Singing." She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. S. E. Hittson. Mrs. Lee Clark then played three of her piano compositions, "Train Wheels," "Non Ending," and "Happy Fingers," concluding with a vocal solo of her own composition.
The meeting was closed with the singing of Mrs. Burnett's "Texas Star," after which the composer presented each member present with a copy of the song. The hostess served refreshments to Mmes. W. W. Fewell, Lee Clark, Alex Spears, Ben Krauskopf, John Walter, S. E. Hittson, J. R. Burnett, A. E. Jamison and Miss Ora Howell.

Keeping Up With The Boy Scouts

Scouts of Troop 39, Stephenville, with the help of their scoutmaster, Joseph King, have organized an emergency corps. We hope all troops will have an emergency corps in the near future. Requirements are given in the October and November issues of Scouting. Further information will be given from the scout office.
Scoutmaster C. L. Burns and his scouts have had a camping trip at Camp Billy Gibbons recently. The boys proved themselves good fishermen, catching 19 pounds of fish.
The dates for the annual summer camp at Camp Billy Gibbons are July 8-15, and July 15-22. The camp bulletin is being worked up at the present time, and a bulletin will be mailed to each registered scout during the next several weeks.
The office has a report that the Dublin troop enjoyed a trip to the Fat Stock show. Scoutmaster Robert Le Croix and other scouts went with the boys.
W. H. Murdoch is the new scoutmaster of Troop 41, Stephenville. He is busy getting the troop reorganized, and in good shape for the spring activities. The troop is sponsored by the First Baptist church. An executive board meeting will be held in the scout office, Brownwood, Sunday, March 30.
Scouts of the central district, comprising Rising Star, Brownwood, Zephyr, Bangs, Grosvenor and Cross Cut, are preparing for a court of honor that will be held the latter part of March. Moon achievement by a large per cent of the boys is expected.

on the subway. She could close her eyes and see the station at Fifth avenue and the Park—long and echoing and empty. She could see the way white columns flashed past as you sat in a car, and hear the noises of air rushing and the rumble of wheels.
Yes, she had ridden on the subway. Year ago. With girls from school, and with her governess before that. But she had never ridden the subway as an adult—never when she could see, hear and understand and somehow feel the difference between these people's lives and herself.

She remembered her grandfather, saying, "There's no fun if you never have any battles to fight." These people battled life, every day. They had worries and struggles and because they had, sometimes they must have fulfillment, too, and triumph.

All at once, her mind was made up. "I'm going to live their way, for a while. I'm going to see what it's like!"

Beatrice Huntington Davenport in the mink coat that was so dark and shining, stepped out into the stream and let it carry her down the littered steps to the huge, busy subway station below the sidewalk.

The first thing she noticed was a bank of parcel lockers. Quickly she slipped out of her coat, wadded it up and opening one of the lockers pushed the expensive, tell-tale bundle inside. She slammed the door, took the key and walked rapidly away.

Keeping Up With The Boy Scouts

Scouts of Troop 39, Stephenville, with the help of their scoutmaster, Joseph King, have organized an emergency corps. We hope all troops will have an emergency corps in the near future. Requirements are given in the October and November issues of Scouting. Further information will be given from the scout office.
Scoutmaster C. L. Burns and his scouts have had a camping trip at Camp Billy Gibbons recently. The boys proved themselves good fishermen, catching 19 pounds of fish.
The dates for the annual summer camp at Camp Billy Gibbons are July 8-15, and July 15-22. The camp bulletin is being worked up at the present time, and a bulletin will be mailed to each registered scout during the next several weeks.
The office has a report that the Dublin troop enjoyed a trip to the Fat Stock show. Scoutmaster Robert Le Croix and other scouts went with the boys.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Campbell of Abilene transacted business here Thursday.
George Drewery of Dallas has been visiting relatives and friends here.

North Dakota in 1939 led the nation as the healthiest state with a death rate of 8.4 per 1,000 population, according to the census bureau. Maine and New Hampshire, tied at 12.9, reported highest death rates that year.

Cigaretts are taxed by 26 states.

Aid-to-Britain Stars Reciprocate Flying Visit

In addition to netting approximately $25,000 profit, Dallas' Aid-to-Britain benefit show provided an opportunity for Hollywood's Errol Flynn, right, and Bruce Cabot, center, to reciprocate a flying visit from Harry Rolnick, Dallas hat manufacturer and long-time friend. Rolnick recently flew to Hollywood to design hats for Warner Bros. male stars. While in Texas, Flynn arranged for several "ten-gallon" Resital hats to be sent to friends in England as symbols of Texas friendship and hospitality.

some of these have solicited merchants for contributions and with the money obtained ordered goods out of the city, despite the fact that the same supplies or articles could have been purchased here. The governing thought was to save a dollar or so, rather than the more important ideal of supporting the community that supports the institutions. Isn't it far more practical, far more of value to the town that the organizations in mind exist to serve, to use home demand to support home industry? And isn't it always better to support those upon whom we depend for support?

If there is one way in which everybody can cooperate effectively in community programs, it is by being loyal to home enterprises. When demands cannot be met at home there is ample reason to go elsewhere, but when these demands can be met it is a process of community suicide to deprive local business men of the trade which makes them more prosperous, more able to compete, more able to support the institutions of their community. You may think it doesn't affect you, but if you are looking merely at the end of your nose, the only outstanding interest of every town that is prospering and acquiring a sphere of community interest away from Cisco is the degree to which the community carries with him an absence of contempt, ill-will, or disrespect for the town in which he lives. How can we expect new citizens to live in his town, to place their investments in it when he has seriously gone to the time of his disloyalty and enterprise? If we want all the citizens of our city must support the business and the institutions that we have. Failing to do so, we have a mighty power for new ones.

The census bureau reports the aircraft industry cost $14,053,913 in expenditures in 1939, more than double expenditures for 1937.
