STUBBORN RESISTANCE CONFRONTS NAZIS

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

The bill, recently signed to a law by Gov. W. Lee Daniel, forbidding violence and interference with workers who wish to work in strike-bound plants, is a step toward industrial stability in Texas that should add further to the invitation which this state offers industry. The law, however, does not go far enough. Some means for enforcing a "waiting" period before a threatened strike or lockout and for setting up machinery for impartial, government-supervised mediation of industrial difficulties should be provided.

Much has been said during the last few days of the rights of labor in defense policies which have been anky paternal in behalf of labor organizations. But the issue is a great deal more involved than such statements would indicate. As a matter of fact, when you consider the functioning of institutions which have been developed and expanded during these years in their relationship to the individual who works and for whom unions are supposed to exist, you will come often to the conclusion that the rights of this individual worker are violated.

But there is a more fundamental significance. The rights of strikers and of capital are never paramount to the public welfare. These rights, of course, exist as part and parcel of the sum of the rights of the people, and they were never intended to be exercised in such a fashion as to interfere with the general good. The business man, small as well as large, has a right to operate his business peaceably and profitably and by its profitable operation to share in the rewards of national production. The professional man also is entitled to the right to earn a living for himself and his family, merely because one man works with his hands and another with his mind does not differentiate either from the human good and ill, stomachs hunger alike, the sin of each knows cold and armth, death and sorrow afflict both alike and pain and worry respect none more than the other.

In other areas of what we choose to call human rights, has been found necessary to govern the exercise of these rights to prevent their conflict with the general rights. A man may shoot a gun in this country. But he can't legally shoot it at another person. He can worship Whom or What he pleases, but his right to that worship is not permitted to infringe upon the right also to worship as his conscience dictates.

The same fundamental orderly process must increasingly come to be employed in the government of the rights of labor and capital

TWO BUSINESS BUILDINGS GET NEW FRONTS

Installation of a new front for the Groves building, occupied by Powell's Cleaning plant and Cecil's Barber shop was under way today. Plate glass windows for the Powell plant and folding front doors for the barber shop will be installed. Lage Burman is the contractor. The building is owned by the Groves estate.

Dean Drug company will also have a new front, work to start as soon as the weather becomes stable. Contract was understood to have been let to J. H. Latson for a tile and plate glass front, featuring the blue color scheme adopted by Rexall stores.

Work Begins on New Ice Cream Plant

G. R. Lay of Graham today announced beginning of work on a plant for ice cream manufacture and sale to be located on the corner lot at E avenue and Ninth street recently purchased from H. A. Bible. A drive-in service will be established, Mr. Lay said. A building is being moved here from Breckenridge and will be remodeled to accommodate a modern ice cream plant, meeting all sanitary requirements of state and federal governments. Cement floor will be run in the manufacturing department. All equipment will be electrically operated. The plant will make ice cream daily, producing all flavors of cream, sherbert, malts and frozen malts. The latter, Mr. Lay said, is in great demand.

"We hope to have our plant open by April 20," Mr. Lay said. He expects to move his family to Cisco shortly.

Improvement is Shown in City Clean-up Drive

Cooperating organizations and clubs have begun their part in the city's annual clean-up campaign, it was announced today by the committee in charge. The campaign, sponsored by the City Federation of Women's clubs, began last week and will continue through Thursday, April 10, at which time awards will be made for the two vacant lots and the two residences showing the most improvement in appearance and healthful condition.

Citizens were urged to take an active part in the campaign by making sure that there are no receptacles or low places containing water in which mosquitoes might breed. It was also requested that lawns be well mowed and cleaned up.

Residence and business districts have been divided into sections, each section assigned to some cooperating organization. Participating are: Twentieth Century club, Delphinian Arts club, Garden club, Delphian Study club, American Legion and auxiliary, Junior chamber of commerce, Rotary club, Lions club, and the Boy Scouts of the city.

WPA Project Is Approved for Carbon School

A WPA grant of $51,753 for the construction of a school building for the Carbon Independent school district has been approved. The school district has voted and sold $27,206 in bonds to pay the district's share of the project cost.

The project calls for the rehabilitation of the existing brick building, construction of additions to the present building, construction of pump houses and installation of water pump, septic tank, disposal field, play grounds, tennis courts, walks, drives, run-track and football field, installation of electric, gas, sewer and water lines, grading, sodding and landscaping grounds.

The plant is constructed for a 12-grade school system. The lower floor will accommodate the eight grammar grades to a maximum enrollment of 300 students. The third floor will contain an auditorium with a seating capacity of 1,000.

The firm of Wyatt C. Hedrick, of Fort Worth, has completed the plans for the new school building.

Mrs. W. I. Ghormley and children, Norma, Miriam and Wilburn, spent the week-end in Arlington with Mrs. Ghormley's sisters, Mrs. Vain R. Woodward and Mrs. Tom L. Craven, and attended the Gardens of the Americas show in Dallas.

PROGRAM FOR WTCC MEET WORKED OUT

MINERAL WELLS, April 7 (Sp.)—Preliminary program for the annual (23rd) West Texas chamber of commerce convention to be held in Mineral Wells, was worked out this week by a joint committee from the WTCC and host chamber of commerce. Convention dates are Thursday-Friday, May 15 and 16—a two-day convention as against three days in past years.

The Mineral Wells group gave fullest assurance that the convention city will be ready for the convention in every way. Boom town conditions incident to the building of Camp Wolters have passed, things are normal again, and the city's fine hotels will have ample accommodations at no price advances.

A large crowd is "in the bag," WTCC officers said. Each of the 171 west Texas affiliated towns have been asked to appoint and certify a delegation of not less than ten of its representative citizens picked for diversity of business interests, to come together at the convention for study of business problems and for a mass expression of the convention theme.

Convention Theme
"To Hell with Hitler." The convention will declare that west Texas is for strengthening and preserving the American democracy through invincible national defense and preparedness for whatever may come. Outstanding state and national figures, including commanding officers of west Texas defense projects, will speak on the theme.

The convention will open registration at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, May 15. First business session will be that of the work committee, the all-important policy recommending group, opening at 2:30 p. m. Dinner and business sessions of the WTCC directors for consideration of the first resolutions submitted by the work committee is scheduled for 7 p. m., and first entertainment feature, a dance, is scheduled for 9 p. m.

Friday's full-day schedule will begin at 7:30 a. m. with a breakfast for both new and old directors for receiving reports of the organization's work, for election of the 10 district directors for 1941-42, and to consider additional resolutions.

Beginning at 8:30 a. m., the 10 finalists in the annual "My Home Town" speaking contest will begin their final elimination program.

A public affairs conference under the chairmanship of J. D. Hamlin of Farwell is scheduled for 10 a. m. to consider progress made in the WTCC good government campaign and discuss legislation.

PROGRESS IS MADE TOWARD STRIKE PEACE

Allis - Chalmers Tie-up Is Settled; Big Steel Walkout Postponed

Settlement of the stubborn Allis - Chalmers strike and postponement of the threatened big steel labor strike until April 15 were developments in the troubled labor front today cheering to mediators.

Representatives of the Ford Motor company and of the CIO were to meet in a conference tonight arranged for federal and state mediators in an attempt to settle the dispute closing down most of the plants of the vast Ford industrial empire. Hope was expressed for settlement of the strike.

The defense mediation board obtained a settlement of the Allis-Chalmers strike, which was called by a CIO union on January 22, after 19 hours of negotiation in Washington. The settlement, subject to union ratification, provides for a referee to decide certain disputes, speedy negotiations over a wage increase and a clause which the union said would provide it proper security. The 7,800 men will return to work Tuesday on vital defense contracts.

Makes Contribution To Easter Egg Hunt

It is the plan to hide 3600 eggs, including hen eggs and candy eggs, in the parks at Lake Cisco on Sunday. The hunt will begin shortly after 3 o'clock.

The Rev. Prince expects to conclude the meeting and return to Cisco by Saturday of this week.

Would Have U.S. Take Over Social Security

Sponsored by Reps. Omar Burkett of Cisco, W. W. Bridges of El Paso, and John Connelly of Trenton, a resolution calling on the federal government to take over administration of the social security program in its entirety has been introduced in the house of representatives at Austin.

The resolution, copy of which has just been received by the Press, asserts that the action, said to have been suggested by President Roosevelt, would eliminate the disparities and inequities existing under the present policy of joint state and federal government administration and effectually solve the condition under which the social security program has become a "political football."

Whereas, It is stated in the public press that President Roosevelt is considering recommending to the congress of the United States that the social security program as to assistance for the needy aged, the needy blind, and the dependent children be assumed by the federal government, thereby relieving the states of their obligation to participate therein; and

Whereas, The social security program as applied to assistance to the aged needy has resulted in grievous inequities in the various states, there being great disparities in the sums paid under the administration of the social security laws of the various states; and

Whereas, It is obvious that aged persons and other needy individuals should be dealt with in all of the states on a basis of like treatment and equal payments to all persons, it being evident that a needy aged person in one state is as needy as a needy aged person in another state, and there being serious discrepancies, which discrepancies are the basis of widespread dissatisfaction with the administration of the old age assistance and other social security laws; and

Whereas, The social security program in this and other states has become a political football and has engendered ill feeling in the various elections; and

Whereas, Much misunderstanding exists as to the limitations of the various legislation in complying with the federal social security laws; and

Whereas, It would be more

Home Economics Freshman Wins In Area Contest

The Cisco high school home-making department, under the direction of Miss Billie Bishop, Saturday made another contribution to the school trophy case, when Miss Bonnie Jo Mapes, freshman student, placed first in the clothing contest held at John Tarleton college.

The contest, given for Areas One and Two, out of the 10 areas in the state, was based on selection and construction of a garment suitable for school wear for a girl of the high school age. The dresses were modeled by the individual contestants and judged by directors of the Tarleton clothing department.

Miss Mapes also won the local contest in the department, qualifying her for the Texas Home-making rally to be held in San Antonio from April 30 to May 3.

There will be two other contestants chosen, one each from the second and third year classes, to enter the contest, but these have not yet been selected.

April 30 Closing Date for Mattress Applications

Closing date for applications for mattresses under the AAA cotton program for low-income rural families will be April 30, those who expect to make applications were advised today.

Miss Ruth Ramey, county home demonstration agent, said: "All families in the county who are eligible to receive mattresses under this program and who have not made applications, should do so on any Saturday starting Saturday, April 12. Committee members will be at the chamber of commerce to help you with the application."

Please make plans to be at the place nearest you on one of the three Saturdays in the month and do not see the committee members at their home and do not go to the chamber of commerce on other days, for there will be no one there to take the application.

Miss Ruth McKissick of Texas Christian university in Fort Worth is expected in later this week to spend the Easter holidays with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. T. McKissick.

BERLIN SAYS ADVANCE MADE IN BALKANS

Greek Reports, However, Assert Invaders Fail in Attack

Progress of the war in the Balkans today was more or less of a military mystery, with the general outlines of the developing conflict only partially revealed in fragmentary and conflicting reports.

Both sides appeared reticent to give out any information and the military was closely in control of whatever was broadcast. It was evident, however, that the nazis were meeting stubborn resistance in their drive to invade Greece and push across Yugoslavia.

Berlin announced that its forces had penetrated Greece and Yugoslavia in spots from 20 to 30 miles that Belgrade had been bombed four times and that the city was a sea of flames. The nazis claimed 84 Yugoslav planes were destroyed, 35 of them in the air, and that four British bombers had been blasted out of the skies.

Toward Salonika
So far as can be determined the major drive of the Germans is directed toward Salonika, principal port of British debarkation, where, Berlin asserted, the British are threatened with another Dunkerque, more disastrous than that on the western front.

The general strategy of the nazis in Yugoslavia appears to be a sweep northward across that country to the Adriatic sea, to isolate the Yugoslavs from their Greek and British allies. The Germans make no secret of the fact that the task before their military now is an extremely difficult one, involving as it does mountainous terrain, naturally well disposed for defense, and quite different from the level open country of Poland and the low countries.

Hitler seems to be abandoning his blitzkrieg tactics and to be pushing his troops slowly but surely into the Balkan sectors. Stubborn resistance

Reports from Athens insisted that the Greeks are resisting stubbornly, that two German attacks have been turned back by the bayonets of the Greek fighters and that German progress is impeded by the heaps of dead nazis before their objectives. Athens claims that only one outpost has fallen to the German advance.

Tanks, armored cars and motorcycles led the advance, with the German air force, as usual, bearing the brunt of the assault, as the nazis sought to open paths for massed infantry.

Claims of Berlin that Belgrade, heavily bombed, has been blasted into a silent and burning city, were disputed by the fact that the Belgrade continued to send out messages each half an hour, telling the public what to do when the German planes come over.

Turkey, it was believed, would remain aloof from the conflict so long as Bulgaria did not enter the conflict. Bulgaria announced it would continue to pursue its former policy.

Hitler announced that the Germans have no intention of attacking Turkey. Protests of Bulgaria against Yugoslav aerial attacks upon border airports went without reply.

Italians Join
Italian planes joined the axis assault upon Yugoslavia by bombing four Adriatic ports, while four German planes attacked airports and other objectives in southern Yugoslavia.

Time, observers say, is the essence of the nazi attack. If Yugoslavia can hold out for six months in their southern mountains, the nazi plans will be thrown out of gear. Greece will be stiffened and Turkey possibly will be brought

● SERIAL STORY

DOLLARS TO DOUGHNUTS

BY EDITH ELLINGTON

Copyright, 1941, NEA Service, Inc.

YESTERDAY: The dance hall is a new thrill for Bee. She is so much in love with Anthony, and she knows he loves her. Sam and Toby seem to have settled their difficulties, too. En route home, on the subway, Bee sees a headline: HEIRESS BELIEVED KIDNAPED!

MASQUERADE MUST END CHAPTER XXIV

KIDNAPER! The paper said that Beatrice Davenport had been kidnapped. It was incredible, fantastic, so ridiculous that Beatrice wanted to scream.

She wasn't kidnapped. How in the world had that story gotten started? Her head hummed.

She was supposed to be in South America. Of course, she'd never so much as booked passage on a liner. But even if someone, somehow, had run across that damaging fact—did that make her kidnapped?

Then, like a blow, she remembered. Clarence was the one who thought of kidnappings!

Oh, the fool, the blundering idiot! This story must have come from him. She'd disappeared—he couldn't find her—Weeming said she'd gone to South America and Clarence, shocked because their marriage was only a week away, must have tried to find out where in South America . . .

The thoughts flitted through her head so swiftly that only now was the train stopping at the station. The doors opened. She looked at Toby, her head bent to take in more of the tabloid story. "Come on, Toby!" Sam pulled at her.

"Oh, quick, buy me a paper! The Duchess has been kidnapped. Halleujah!"

Stiffly, Beatrice walked out of the train beside Anthony. Toby had seen that picture. Didn't she recognize it?

Now they were on the platform. Anthony was looking straight ahead, his jaw a hard line, a little bunch of muscles twitching at the corner of his mouth. Beatrice felt her insides growing cold—dissolving with a little horrid sensation that was like nausea. "Anthony—?"

He didn't answer.

Oh, he had seen! He knew! But he still had said nothing, while the others chattered. Her mouth was dry. She wanted to ask him and couldn't.

On the stairs of the street she stumbled. Anthony caught her. He smile was tender.

No! He didn't know. He couldn't! Not and smile like that. Dimly, as from a long way off, Toby's voice came to her. "They must be holding her for ransom. Boy! Wait until this news hits the store! The girls will be dancing in the aisles! They'll run up a flag on that roof where they

Men who would do that should be executed. Why, it's—it's—"

"All right, kidnaping is terrible," Toby admitted. "But, Sam, this is the Duchess. You work for her as well as we do. Doesn't she deserve it?"

"She's the kind who'll fall in love with one of the gangsters," Terry said. "Wouldn't that be a laugh? Anything for a thrill, with those girls!"

"I hope she gets a good, hard jolt. I hope every one of the gangsters holding her looks like a guerrilla, I hope—"

Beatrice found her voice. "Toby, why do you hate her so?" To her own ears, she sounded shrill and brittle. But she couldn't stop. "What has she ever done to you, besides having been born the granddaughter of Michael Huntington?"

"What has she ever done for me?" retorted Toby. "A girl who has the power of life or death over so many thousand employes might take an interest once in a while! Just because she is a girl, she ought to make things easier for all the girls who work for her. The millions of little petty cheapnesses that Huntington's gets away with. Like not giving Getz a pension."

"Why, if I owned Huntington's I'm make it a model store. If I got millions out of it, the way she does, I'd be generous enough to share some of it with the poor."

unlucky dopes who have to work there.

"Do you know, some firms divide part of the profits at Christmas. Everybody gets a bonus, according to how long they've been there. What do we get at Huntington's? A lot of extra work!"

They had reached their apartment house. Sam McArdle said, soothingly, "No place to get a paper, Toby. Forget it. They'll probably find her visiting a friend somewhere. I suppose her guardian got excited when he learned she wasn't home . . ."

Anthony looked startled. "That's right. Her guardian. You handle a lot of stuff about her in the comptroller's office, don't you?"

It struck Beatrice then that Anthony hadn't said much up to now. What did he look so startled about?

SHE fought for self-control. She must act perfectly natural. Without a paper, tonight was a relieve. In the morning when they looked at that picture in the tabloid more closely—and the other pictures later edition would surely contain—

At the door, the men said good night. Anthony drew her a little away from the others and pulled her into his arms. With his arms around her, Beatrice faced the bleak knowledge that tomorrow it would be over. Tomorrow he might hate her.

She wanted to rush at him, to say, "Listen, Anthony. Beatrice Davenport hasn't been kidnaped. I'm Beatrice Davenport." But she wanted to put off telling him, too. "I love him so much. It will hurt him so terribly . . ."

"Darling," said Anthony. "You're shaking."

"What's a girl supposed to do in your arms, Anthony?" She a 10-gallon hat will be given as a second prize and a pair of spurs as a third prize. Winning stories will be published throughout the nation.

The contest was launched after the Sidewalk Cattlemen's association drew national attention with its publication of cow-boy boot-wearing regulations to cut down on the promiscuous wearing of the high-heeled outfit by drugstore cowboys and city slickers.

"Cowboy boots for cow owners only," the association declared, drawing up the following boot-wearing regulations: (1) Owner of two head of cattle, entitled to wear boots; (2) owner of three head, can stuff one pants leg in;

(3) owner of four head, can stuff both pants legs in; (4) owner of six head, can wear spurs.

The contest will run two months. Entries are being mailed to the Madisonville Sidewalk Cattlemen's association, Madisonville, Texas.

"The taller the story, the better," the association declared, "the truth should never stand in the way of a good yarn."

when there is conflict, particularly because with the increasing complexity of our economic life the interests and rights, even the very lives of us become more and more dependent upon the functioning of the industrial organizations that have arisen to serve the nation. That fact is now sharply illustrated in the defense crisis. Not merely the efficiency, but the lives of the soldiers we have in training depend upon the reality of whether or not they have guns in their hands. No group of men, be they employers or employees, has the right to acquire any interest in production superior to that of these boys. No group of men, employers or employees, has any right to the rewards of labor or use of capital superior to the interest which the people of America have in the defense of their heritage.

There has been, during these years, a tendency to consign responsibility and authority to Washington. This trend has created a false conception of the authority that the states should exercise with respect to the difficulties that arise within their borders. If Texas should assume a more practical and firm attitude toward the government of her own disputes the very fact of so doing would create a more favorable atmosphere for industry. No one should conclude that labor is all at fault or that industry is the sole culprit. The ideal before the average laboring man is one of peaceful and profitable employment of the skill he possesses. Industry has as its prospect the orderly and profitable operation of its plants. If both can be assured of the means for maintaining fair and just relationships there is little doubt that both seek the place where such a harmonious condition can be maintained.
