DRIVE HITLER OFF OCEAN—DO IT NOW!

BOSTON, Mass., July 1.—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox declared flatly Monday that "the time to use our navy to clear the Atlantic of the German menace is at hand."

"Now is the time to strike," he asserted in an address to the 33rd annual Conference of Governors of the United States.

Contending that Russia could hold Germany's war machine for vital months in this crucial year, the navy secretary said that for the first time since Hitler loosed the dogs of war on the world, we are provided with a God-given chance to determine the outcome of this world-wide struggle.

"Now is the time to put in motion the huge machine we have been building since the war began," he continued. "We can insure, beyond a shadow of a doubt, the defeat of that pagan force and insure a victory for a Christian civilization."

"I would be derelict if I did not add that all of this involves risk and danger. It may involve sacrifice to the extreme.

"America must wake up, not alone to its dangers—and the dangers are real and fearsome—but to the realities of the sacrifice demanded. We must, if need be, match with American tears, American toil, American sweat and American blood the toil, the tears, the sweat and the blood which Britain gallantly has spent to hold in check the devastating spread of nazi power throughout the civilized world.

Knox contended that in attacking Soviet Russia, Hitler was "contemptuously holding our proffered aid to be a futile and empty gesture, since we were permitting it to pile up, undelivered, on our docks," and added:

"While his back is turned, we must answer his obvious contempt with a smashing blow that can and will change the entire world perspective," he said.

Loyalty Wins WTU Lineman National Valor Award

Lineman J. B. Handley of Childress shows how ordinary fence wire was used for climbing hooks in emergency that won national honors.

Loyalty to his job today is worth $150 in unexpected cash to J. B. Handley, lineman for the West Texas Utilities at Childress, who thus capitalized on the "big blizzard" of February 16-17, 1940.

Handley was selected for the Claud L. Matthews Valor Award of 1940 at the annual convention of the Edison Electric Institute in Buffalo—an award made each year for the outstanding performance of valor in the United States electric industry. A check for $150 and a handsome scroll, commemorating his restoration of lights and power on the Quitaque-Turkey electric line during a severe wind and snow storm, were presented to him at the quarterly safety meeting in Childress.

Nominated for the honor by WTU officers and fellow workmen, Handley, according to the citation, "on his own initiative and at great personal risk patrolled 10 miles of transmission lines, improvised means for climbing ice-coated poles, made necessary poletop repairs and restored electric service to the towns of Quitaque and Turkey..."

Handley and two other linemen, Bob Adams and Jay Hunter, were doing routine repair work on the Quitaque-Turkey line, February 16, 1940, when the blizzard struck. They were instructed to return to Childress where they were headed when the line went out. They then tackled the job of making repairs.

Taking turns walking a mile across farm and pasture to patrol the line, while the other two followed the road in a pickup truck, Handley, during his turn, was isolated when the truck was stuck in a snow drift and unable to meet him at the next crossroad. He then continued the patrol alone and without tools, which had been left in the truck to make walking easier in the snow, which by then made it difficult to see from one pole to another.

Late that evening he found a farmhouse where he spent the night, resuming his patrol the following morning—much colder, the wind much stronger, and the snow much deeper.

Half way between Quitaque and Turkey, Handley found the lines damaged by winds and snow. Equipped only with pliers, without safety belt or climber, he took wire from a nearby fence to use for foot-ropes in climbing seven ice-coated poles where wires had been torn loose from insulators by the wind and the weight of snow and ice.

"It was a trick I learned when a kid," he said. "We'd take a long piece of wire, tie it loosely around a pole, and use the ends to make a loop for the foot. By the time I'd climbed those seven poles, knocking the ice off with my pliers and slipping the wire upward a few inches at a time, I was getting pretty good at it and making fair time."

Repairs were made and Handley reached Turkey at mid-day, with lines ready to be energized and service restored with less than 24 hours' interruption. The storm was one of the most severe ever recorded in West Texas, disrupting all forms of traffic and communications for several days.

His feat was cited as "showing a high measure of foresight, courage, resourcefulness, and determination well beyond the reasonable demands of duty."

FRYERS AND LOMAX ON O-9 NEW CORN WEDNESDAY; GO QUICKLY SANK FRIDAY

E. C. McClelland, well-known farmer who lives 12 miles northwest of Cisco, was in Cisco today and called at the Daily Press office to renew his subscription.

While in town, this energetic farmer quickly disposed of two dozen frying chickens and 45 dozen juicy roasting ears.

MISS CLARK TO BURKETT
Miss Betty Elda Clark of Cisco, a graduate of Texas State College for Women, has just been employed as a teacher of home economics in Burkett for next year. Miss Clark majored in home economics. The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. F. E. Clark, she was well-known on the TSCW campus, having participated in numerous student activities.

Otis Lomax, native of Cisco and son of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Lomax, considers himself a very lucky member of Uncle Sam's navy. He could easily have been on the ill-fated submarine U. S. S. O-9 when it went to the bottom of the ocean and remained there.

"A letter just received by his mother expresses thanks for his own safety and deep regret at the loss of his shipmates.

Young Lomax is sent out four times each week on submarine tests. He was on the O-9 Wednesday before it sank on Friday. Only a few weeks ago Lomax and his ocean-trapped shipmates had enjoyed themselves together while on a brief leave of absence in New York City.

2 CARS CRASH; MERE LUCK ALL THAT SAVED 'EM

The light on highway 80 at A avenue, just east of the railroad viaduct, was the scene Monday afternoon of what might easily have been a serious collision between two automobiles.

The Buck passenger car of L. S. Jenkins and a Ford V8 belonging to R. B. Owens of Sweetwater, crashed as the two cars neared the light.

Jenkins and Mrs. Jenkins were driving north, while the Sweetwater car was driving west. Besides Owens, passengers in his car were his wife, his mother, Mrs. W. L. Owens, of Abilene, and R. B. Carr of Mt. Vernon. Mr. Carr and Mrs. W. L. Owens were riding on the rear seat, while Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Owens were in front, with Mr. Owens driving.

Asked the cause of the collision, Owens said he could not tell, as he only remembered "going down the highway; then his car was turning over."

The elder Mrs. Owens received a slight cut on her chin, which was given first aid treatment at the Humble service station nearby.

Jenkins' car was slightly damaged, but the body of the Sweetwater car was pretty badly wrecked. Both machines were able to travel under their own power.

None of the other occupants of the two cars were injured.

HUEY LAID TO REST OAKWOOD MONDAY P. M.

The body had rested at the home since dissolution until the funeral hour, when a very beautiful and impressive service was held. As the casket reposed in front of the church altar, banked high with beautiful floral offerings from loving friends, a quartet composed of Ernest Hittson, W. Frank Walker, George Boyd and Harry Schaefer, sang "Lead Kindly Light," which was followed by a duet by Mrs. L. E. Richardson of Longview, and Mrs. W. W. Wallace of Cisco, who sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd."

Dr. Smith paid an eloquent tribute to the departed.

Grave attendants were P. W. Campbell, Abilene, Sam Baugh, Nimrod; E. P. Crawford, F. D. Wright, Leon Maner, Dr. Paul M. Woods, Charles Spears, Cisco, and Coleman Williams, Midland.

ONE THOUSAND VOTES ARE STILL OUT, BUT THESE IN RURAL AREAS WHERE GOVERNOR STRONGEST

(The United Press)

DALLAS, July 1.—Texas' political wonder, Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, sprang another surprise today as he apparently headed toward election to the United States senate.

Returns, including 250 counties complete, gave him 174,350 and Cong. Lyndon Johnson 173,971.

This gives the governor a lead of 379 votes. About 1,000 votes are still out, and these are mostly from rural sections where O'Daniel has shown most of his strength.

Murray - Allen Wedding Rites Last Friday

A quiet wedding took place in Cisco last Friday night at 9:30 o'clock when Miss Donnye Murray and Bernie Allen were married in a ceremony in which Rev. Mart Agnew officiated. The couple was unattended and only a few close relatives and friends were present.

The bride wore a navy blue military dress with military cape attached. Her accessories were of white; for "something old" she had an heirloom of an old opal ring, brought from England many years ago; "something borrowed" was a beautiful pearl clasp. Preceding the wedding a lovely dinner was served in the home of her aunt, Mrs. J. T. Waddell, Jr.

Decorations of cut flowers were placed about the rooms and a bowl of the blossoms centered the dining table. Present at the dinner were Miss Donnye Murray and Bernie Allen, Mrs. Horace P. Winston, grandmother of the bride; Mrs. Eva Bishop of Denver City, the bride's mother; Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Allen, Miss Estell Allen, Arthur West of Odessa; Jimmy and Ella Gwen Waddell and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Waddell. The young couple left on a brief honeymoon trip, after which they plan to reside in Cisco.

Little Patsy Ruth King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam King, is recovering from an illness of several days at her home, 1200 M avenue.

THE WHEELS ARE MOVING

One of the most unusual production operations in which General Motors corporation has ever engaged is the turning out of a tiny, but vital defense item, watch-like in size and precision, weighing scarcely seven ounces and accurate to one ten thousandth of an inch.

The product is a feather-weight motor, known as the AutoSyn motor, essential to the safe operation of modern defense aircraft, and being produced by the Delco division of General Motors at Rochester, N. Y., at the rate of several hundred daily.

Four months after receiving the initial defense order, the G. M. plant in Rochester was retooled and its regular production on the line now, this quick action followed, except late in 1940, of $2,500,000 sub-contract from Bendix Aviation corporation. Though fully developed by Bendix, the motor presented a stiff production problem for Delco Appliance engineers, as it had never before been produced in volume. Today, with vital production problems solved, output is increasing daily and volume will continue to mount sharply in the months ahead.

In multiple installations of as many as 20-odd in one aircraft, the function of the motor is to "tell" the pilot the exact position of the moving parts of his ship. For this purpose, the motor work in teams. As an example, a transmitter motor operating on a 27-colt, 400-cycle alternating current is attached to landing gear and also to a receiver motor, which is attached to a dial on the instrument panel. Thus the slightest movement of the landing gear causes a movement of the rotor in the transmitter motor which, by means of a three-phase line connection, causes an exactly similar movement of the rotor in the receiver motor. This movement actuates the needle on a dial on the instrument panel to register for the pilot the exact position of his landing gear.

AutoSyn motors working in teams serve a similar function not only in registering movement and location of the bulky moving parts of the plane, but also in registering engine speed and oil pressure. To serve such exacting purposes, fine materials and skilled manufacturing methods are necessary. The field lathe is built of carefully selected high silicon lamsonite steel and assembled into a nickel silver case, after which it is machined to precision dimensions. At each step in the operation, the unit must pass a complete inspection and if at any stage it is more than one ten thousandth of an inch too large or too small it is rejected.

Similar inspections to similar limits are maintained as the rotor is built up. The rotor is mounted on highly sensitive ball bearings, which are stored previous to use, in glass vials filled with high quality oil and which are never touched by human hands. Final assembly of the unit is performed in a completely dust-free, air-conditioned room, especially constructed for the purpose.

EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

Why Propose Joy-Rideless Weekends and Cold Houses When U. S. Ships Gasoline to Japan and Russia?

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The more you examine this American Petroleum Institute proposal that the entire United States—yes, even the western hemisphere—be put on a joy-rideless weekend and a cold house week, in order to "conserve" fuel oil and gasoline for defense purposes, the crazier it looks. Why the United States of all countries, with an estimated 19 billion barrel oil reserve underground, and with production now rigidly restricted by the states, should feel an oil "shortage" so acute that it is being reflected in higher prices, is something that requires looking into if ever anything did. It just doesn't make sense, but in trying to get at the why and wherefore, you run into a long series of riddles.

In the first place, there is no "shortage" of oil or gasoline. The big East Texas oil fields, which run wild until state quotas on production were put into effect, could more than supply all U. S. needs if wells now kept on limited supply were allowed to produce to capacity. That would leave the immense production of California, Oklahoma, Illinois and Louisiana as reserve. How does that add up to make a shortage?

The only real, imaginary or apparent scarcity in sight is one that might affect the Atlantic seaboard, and it would hit here only if there should develop a shortage of transportation for petroleum products. Transportation in this case means: 1—Tankers to ship the oil from ports on the Gulf of Mexico to ports on the Atlantic Coast. 2—Tank cars to ship the oil by rail. 3—Tank trucks to haul by highway. 4—Pipe lines.

Take 'em one at a time.

At least 33 tankers, aggregating some 200,000 tons of shipping, have in recent months been transferred from U. S. to foreign registry. These with some 16 other tankers are engaged principally in shipping oil for Britain. Vessels under U. S. Registry cannot ship directly to England, but they can go into neutral ports of South America or Africa for trans-shipment. These 49 tankers, however, represent less than 10 per cent of the tanker tonnage owned by U. S. oil companies and should not create a shortage of bottoms if vessels left in the U. S. coastal trade were supplemented by other means of transport.

Latest figures on railroad tank cars, collected in September, 1940, indicated there were 105,800 tank cars in petroleum products service. Nearly 99,000 of these cars were owned by the oil companies or their subsidiaries, 7000 being owned by the railroads. There was, however, a surplus of 16,000 tank cars for the business then existing, which indicates that the transportation of petroleum products by rail could be stepped up if correctly organized and traintoad rates put into effect to reduce cost of haulage, with requirements for immediate unloading and return of empties.

Tank trucks and trailers are now used extensively by the oil companies for highway haulage from railroad to supply stations. Organization of these tank trucks into a pool for long-distance transport could be of material relief in strategic areas. Standard limit of capacity on these tank wagons is 4000 gallons weighing some 18 tons. State legislation in Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi limits loads to 15 tons and in Kentucky it is nine tons. Restrictions like these might have to be modified, but there is a fair means here for increasing transport facilities to maintain supply.

Because shipping by tankers is the cheapest means of transport for petroleum products, pipelines to the Atlantic seaboard are not numerous, but even the existing 37,000-mile pipeline network could be made to carry increased traffic. One difficulty here is that the pipelines are owned by the major oil companies or their subsidiaries, and though by law pipelines have been declared to be common carriers, tariffs imposed by the pipeline companies make their use by independent oil producers almost prohibitive.

And why gas prices should go up in Iowa, or why the entire east should have joy-rideless weekends when we have gasoline to export to Japan and Soviet Russia is something it would take a diplomat to explain.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Panama in Crucial Geographical Position

PANAMA became prominent early in the course of World War II when a great many United States merchantmen were placed under Panamanian registry to avoid restrictions of the United States neutrality act.

Because the strategically vital Panama Canal cuts through the center of Panama, this small Central American nation is in a position of possible danger, although strong American naval and military forces are stationed in the Canal Zone or in bases guarding the approaches to the canal.

With sabotage in the Canal Zone and neighboring vicinity an ever-present danger, the above stamp, issued in 1937 to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the fire department, is especially significant today. The stamp shows modern fire-fighting equipment, and there is little doubt that it would be available to the Canal Zone should need for it ever arise.

Panama, always important because of the narrow isthmus separating the two oceans, achieved her independence from Colombia in 1903 with the help of United States Marines, who were sent in to protect American interests in connection with canal negotiations which were then proceeding.
