POSSIBLE DOMINATION OF THE ATLANTIC BY HITLER FORCES CAUSES INTENSE SPECULATION

CISCO IS 100 PER CENT IN F. D. SUPPORT

The following question was propounded to a number of Cisco people this morning:
"Do you think congress should grant President Roosevelt's request for legislation whereby selectees, guardsmen and reservists can be retained in the U. S. army during the present national emergency?"
The Answers:
HARRY REYNOLDS, Oil Operator—I don't see what else congress could do.
J. T. EGGEN, Druggist—I think it is the proper thing. There is more of a crisis now than when the trainees were inducted into the service and congress should grant the president authority to hold the men as long as there is an emergency.
F. E. SHEPARD, Printer—The president should have the power to hold the men as long as there is an emergency. Don't think the government can make a soldier in a year, but I do think they should speed up equipment for the trainees by forcing strikers to either go to work or put them in uniforms. We have the emergency and should have the army to meet it.
L. L. MILSTEAD, Abilene Salesman, here today—By all means keep the trained men in the service as long as there is an emergency.
J. T. BERRY, Former Mayor and Lumber Man—Selectees and guardsmen should be held, as they are pretty well trained, and such men are needed in the army, rather than an army of rookies.
ROY PIPPEN, Stock Farmer—Think now and in the near future is the time we will need trained men, if we ever will need them. To deny the president this authority will be pleasing to all enemies of democracy.
M. L. PERDUE, Police Chief—Think congress should grant the president full authority by all means. It would be a calamity to release these trained men and take on a bunch of green hands, necessitating doing the work all over.
W. E. BROWN, Justice of the Peace—Believe president should have the authority to hold the trainees through the present emergency. It would be playing into the hands of Hitler, Lindbergh and Wheeler and other enemies of democracy should Roosevelt be turned down.
JOE CLEMENTS, Street Superintendent—I favor giving the president full authority to hold the men. Hitler, Lindbergh, Wheeler and enemies of liberty will be pleased if congress fails to give Roosevelt full power to act in the premises.
C. B. NEWBY, Breckenridge, Humble Distributor—There seems to be an emergency, and the president should have full power to meet it. I am with him and want to see him complete the job.
G. P. MITCHAM, Mayor—I favor holding the men in service, but do not favor sending them to Europe unless we see that England's manpower is going to be exhausted; not necessarily until that manpower is exhausted, but until we are certain beyond doubt that our men are needed to insure victory.
G. B. KILPATRICK, Water Superintendent—Believe the president should be given the authority he asks. As an ex-service man, I know it takes time to train men.

CLAIMS OF REDS, NAZIS VARY MUCH

The Russo-German war today entered its second month, with historic Moscow undergoing its first big air attack and Germans claiming that numerous columns are racing toward the Red capital.

Nazi military spokesmen, in a vague geographical reference, claim a spearhead has been driven 100 miles east of the Dnieper river. This could be anywhere from 40 to 100 miles from Moscow. The Germans also insist that Soviet resistance is weakening.

Moscow, on the other hand, says little damage has been done by the air raids on that city and that the Red troops are holding. Tokyo dispatches indicated that Japan proposes to take quick action in French Indo-China.

SAM B. KINGS HAD BIG TIME AT AMARILLO

Mr. and Mrs. Sam B. King have returned home from Amarillo, where they attended a joint convention of post office letter carriers, clerks and supervisors. Mr. King, local letter carrier, went as a delegate and Mrs. King attended as a member at large. They were absent four days.
The convention lasted two full days and transacted considerable business. Mr. King was elected a member of the executive board to represent the Cisco district.
Amarillo entertained the visitors lavishly. The banquet was served chuck-wagon style and the women attended dressed in old-fashioned clothes, which caused much merriment and general good feeling.
Approximately 800 registered for the convention and the organization voted to hold the session at Corpus Christi next year—the second week in July.

Mr. Campbell was manager of the Laguna hotel for several years and has been manager of the Gibraltar hotel at Paris since August, 1934.

TEN SUITS FILED

Pursuant to the plan heretofore adopted in collecting the taxes on automobiles, the city has filed suit against ten of the delinquents who had failed to pay their taxes, selecting them alphabetically.
Of the ten sued, eight settled in full, or made definite arrangements for the settlement, prior to the convening of court Thursday; citation had not been perfected on one and a judgment was taken against the last of the ten for the full amount of the tax, together with court costs.
Of the approximately 700 in Cisco who were liable to pay taxes, all have now paid with the exception of probably 75, and following out its policy, the tax committee states that it is going to continue to file suits until all who owe automobile taxes have paid them.

Daily gross production is about 2,500 barrels, with the daily net production about 2,200 barrels.
After approval of titles, Snow said the sale would become effective as of July 1, with actual turning over of the properties to Stanolind expected about August 1.

Keeping Out (Christian Science Monitor)

President Roosevelt's latest press conference hope that the United States can still avoid a "shooting war" will hardly reassure citizens who say the chief executive promised to stay out but is now leading the country in. For Mr. Roosevelt noticeably omits any confidence that being Britain's armorer will suffice either to defend American interests or to satisfy American consciences. And the hope of keeping America at peace is, as the president says, as general as the vote against sin.

Yet those who believe the president has tricked them in his handling of the war crisis should take account of the conviction among many Washington observers that he sincerely believed that measures short of war might be enough. In support of this view is the fact that Mr. Roosevelt probably had in mind many of the steps that have been taken—such as the bases-destroyer deal and the vast lend-lease program—which the citizens could not foresee. It is only fair to say that few of us understood fully the basic mental nature of the present struggle and saw clearly that America must have an active share in the defense of freedom. Yet there is a great need for more candor from leaders.

During the election, this newspaper wrote: With all respect we say to both presidential candidates: You owe the American people a much franker and fairer statement than the promise both of you are making that no American boy will be sent to fight in "a foreign war."

We pointed out that no man could promise to keep America out of war and that the question would be decided by fast-developing events and by what the American people thought about those events. The whole trend of American opinion has been toward a fuller recognition of the role the United States must have in a world grown small. Even the isolationists urge an active peacekeeping effort, while public opinion polls show an increasing proportion of citizens ready for active belligerency as a necessary means of making a decent peace. And few indeed can be Americans who want to keep out at any price.

Watermelons (Leon County News)

According to Hiram Forrester, president of the Buffalo Melon-Potato Growers Association, the 1941 crop of watermelons is far advanced over the 1940 crop for this time of the season. In 1940 farmers in Leon County realized approximately $400,000 cash from melons, Forrester said. Estimates of the watermelon acreage in the county has been placed at 6,000 acres, or about 2,000 under that of 1940. The reduction in acreage is due chiefly to adverse weather conditions that ruined a number of acres. The 1941 crop is considered excellent, however, and growers predict that about $200,000 will be realized from the yield.

Mandatory Joint Return (N. Y. Herald-Tribune)

The house ways and means committee has completed work on its record-breaking $3,500,000,000 (billions) tax bill, and the measure is expected to reach the house by the end of this month. It will then go to the senate for consideration, and the probability seems to be that it will be translated into law some time in September.

We are aware of the difficulties of formulating a tax program of such enormous dimensions as this one, and we realize that it is too much to expect perfection in any revenue bill. Nevertheless, we feel strongly that there is one provision in this measure which should be eliminated without ado. That is the provision for mandatory joint income-tax returns for husband and wife. There is no excuse for the inclusion of this provision except the purely political one that it offers an easy way to raise a very substantial sum—about $304,000,000—without offending many voters. It should be noted that this provision of the law not only discriminates against married persons but that it does not begin to discriminate until their joint incomes amount to $3,000 a year.

The idea of the mandatory joint return was first broached, unsuccessfully by the present administration several years ago, and at that time the chief justification offered was that it was in use in other countries, including England. This is much like the new deal argument that because the British have a large debt we too, should have one. The answer is of course, that if this country is going to follow the British income-tax law it should begin with the fundamentals instead of picking out only the features that commend themselves for their political expediency. It should begin with the British practice of putting the tax system on a broad base under which everyone, or almost everyone, would pay something. And it should abandon the capital-gains tax, which has no parallel in the British system of taxation. Needless to say, neither of these basic changes has been seriously considered either by the administration or by those framing the present bill.

Not only is this proposal for mandatory joint returns politically conceived and highly discriminatory, but so far as the legal, social and economic position of women in America is concerned, it would turn the clock back a hundred years. The fight for the position which women have achieved in this country has been won only after a struggle which has seen it opposed at one time by such liberals as Thomas Jefferson. In England married women were not entitled to their own earnings until 1870, and it was 1882 before they were established as having distinct legal personalities. In the United States, Mississippi led the way in bestowing property rights on married women, in 1839 with New York, Pennsylvania and Indiana following in 1848 and California in 1850. What this provision in the revenue bill now proposes is a complete reversal of this trend toward woman's emancipation. It would, in its philosophy, take us back to the English common-law concept which, in the words of Blackstone, declared that "By marriage husband and wife are one person in law; that is, the very being of existence of the woman is suspended during marriage."

Do You Remember?

(From Files of the Daily News, August, 1925)

Crop conditions in this section of the country—good and bad—have been repeating in 25-year cycles, according to W. H. Kittrell, who has been a close observer during the 75 years of his life. The year 1851, in which he was born, he was told was a very dry year, which was followed by two seasons of heavy rains. In 1875, in his 25th year, he lived in Madison county, and in August of that year the prospects for a cotton crop, owing to the drought, was a bale to every 10 or 15 acres. On September 17, 18 and 19, 1875, splendid rains fell, and there was no frost till very late. The result was a huge cotton crop. Twenty-five years later, in his 50th year, 1900, Mr. Kittrell lived at the foot of the hill one mile east of Cisco, on the Eastland road. Jno. F. Patterson was operating the gin there, with Uncle Tom Johnson as manager. In August Mr. Patterson stopped Doc McCarline from cutting cordwood, which was used as fuel for the boiler at the gin, telling him that he wouldn't need any wood as there would be no cotton to gin. September 8 of that year it began to rain and the earth was thoroughly soaked. Frost came late and the Patterson gin turned out 1,400 bales of cotton, ginning until March the following spring. We are now in the third cycle, Mr. Kittrell said, of the 25-year period, and conditions of the crop are similar to the other years. Who can tell but what the year may terminate as the others of the 25-year cycle? May we not look for history to repeat itself?

"I'm sorry," said Bob Bettis of the Dean Drug store to little Hartman McCall, "but I can give you only one half as much castor oil for a dime as I used to." "I'm not kidding," said Hartman. "I got to take it."

Thursday's Rotary meeting, presided over by Rotarian Ben McClinton, was one of the best in months and was thoroughly enjoyed by members and visitors. The first talk was by Rotarian J. M. Williamson, who reviewed the progress in Cisco and the nation during the past 40 years and gave it as his opinion that the advancement of the next 40 years would be equally as remarkable. In Mr. Williamson's opinion the earnest young man of today has even greater opportunities for accomplishing big things than his father or grandfather had. Dr. Harlan O. Bartlett, father-in-law of Dr. Paul Woods, made a most refreshing impromptu address. He complimented Cisco's "do it now and do it right" and said he would like to live here. In answer to a question from one of the Cisco Rotarians, Dr. Harlan said he was very well pleased with his new son-in-law, so far. P. W. Campbell lectured the new members, Rev. L. A. Webb and John A. Cameron, on the Rotary code of ethics. Mr. Campbell's talk was one of the best made at the luncheon. The concluding speaker was Rotarian L. F. Womack of Dunean, Okla.

"Cisco has one young salesman who is destined to make his name in the commercial world," said Superintendent Morgan of the Cisco schools. "Little Enders Huey is the young man I have in mind. Enders sells the Saturday Evening Post, and called at my home a few days ago. Mrs. Morgan was at home, and Enders asked her if I was a Rotarian. Mrs. Morgan replied in the affirmative, when Enders said that his father was also a Rotarian, and he was selling the Saturday Evening Post, and thought I should become a reader of this periodical. Mrs. Morgan told him she wanted to keep my classification perfect, and in order that there might be no question about it, she would buy the paper. Enders' methods seem to land his prospects, and I predict that one so young who advances modern ideas on salesmanship will ultimately have a line of talk that will land bigger customers when he enters more extensively into the commercial world."

Bob Mancill, who suffered the loss of his right eye Thursday as the result of a ginger-ale bottle exploding in his face, was resting easily at Graham sanitarium Saturday afternoon and will likely be removed to his home some time Monday. While, of course, the loss of his eye has been a great shock to Mr. Mancill and his many friends, nevertheless, the Daily News feels certain that "Sunshine Bob" will soon be on the streets again, wearing his old-time smile and always ready with a cheery salutation for those he meets.

The members of Mrs. Frank Logan's class of the Baptist Sunday school enjoyed a swimming party at Bass lake, near Gorman, Thursday evening. After the swim a picnic lunch with iced watermelons was served. Members and guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Logan, Mr. and Mrs. Hill Royer, Miss Gladys and Glenn Richardson, Inez La Roque, Emald Davis, Lucile Blitch, Quocese McClung, Desia Stubbsfield, Fay Mixon, Elizabeth Dean, Mildred Yeager, Verne Morton, Alice Kellogg and Cleo Stringer.

Mrs. J. E. Kincaid is the proud possessor of a brand new Ford sedan, which was presented to her by her sons, Charles and John Kleiner, oil operators in the Putnam shallow field. Mrs. Kincaid is duly appreciative of this handsome present from her sons, but she states it will be some time before she will learn to operate the machine, and become accustomed to dispensing with her dun pony that is familiar to all in Cisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lamb and children of Olney have been spending part of their vacation here the guests of his father, I. J. Lamb, the past week. Mr. Lamb was raised in Eastland county, but has been living in other places for the past few years. He has visited Cisco at intervals, but during this visit he saw Williamson dam for the first time, when he was taken out there and conducted through its corridors. Naturally he was amazed at this stupendous structure, but highly complimented Cisco on its foresightedness in building for the future on such a magnificent scale. Mr. Lamb is lease foreman for the Humble company in the Olney field.

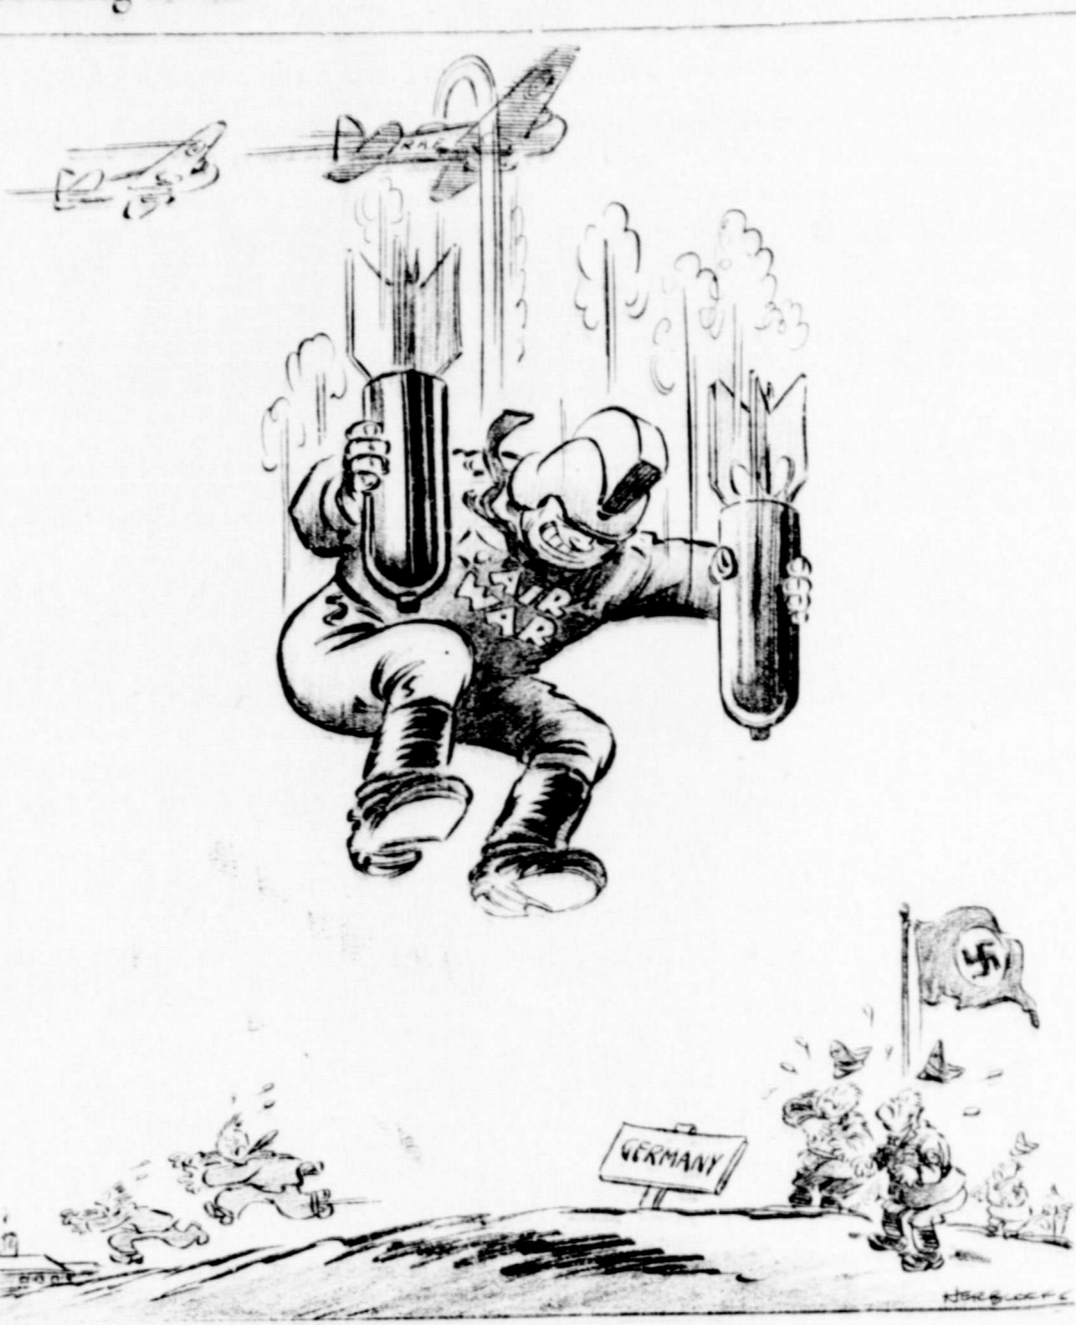

Grandpa Surles, the aged father of Dr. J. H. Surles, died at the home of Judge B. L. Russell last night at 10 o'clock, and the funeral services are being held at Putnam this afternoon, conducted by Rev. Dick O'Brien, pastor of the Baptist church at Baird. Deceased was past 90 years of age, and had been in poor health for several years. Besides his aged widow, he is survived by several children, among whom are Dr. J. H. Surles of this city and Mrs. Russell, wife of Judge B. L. Russell of Baird, at whose home he passed away.

Dr. C. C. Jones has associated with himself Dr. G. B. Harnesberger, in his dental practice here. Dr. Harnesberger comes to Cisco from Dallas, being a graduate of Baylor dental college, and previous to his coming here did interne work in special dental surgery at the Baylor hospital.

Dr. G. M. Stephenson will be program chairman at the meeting of the Cisco Rotary club tomorrow. The luncheon will be held at the Rotary club rooms and the ladies of the First Methodist church will serve the meal.

Guy Dabney shot a 44 on the Cisco golf grounds Thursday afternoon, which is his best score. Naturally, Mr. Dabney is very proud of his achievement. He was playing against J. M. Williamson, who from the start found the going difficult and was unable to make the course in less than 55. P. W. Campbell defeated A. B. O'Flah-

EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

Capital Braced for Another Farm Battle, This Time Within Department of Agriculture

BY PETER EDSON, NEA Service Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Sooner or later there will have to be a showdown in the Department of Agriculture between SMA and AAA, which are really a lot different than the Tweedle twins, Dum and Dee.

In case you're not up on your Washington code talk, SMA is Surplus Marketing Administration and triple-A is Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Or, if these things are meaningless unless presented in terms of personalities, SMA is Milo Perkins and AAA is Rudolph M. Evans. These two gentlemen speak to each other and might even be called pals, but the organizations they head operate on two different philosophies and there's the rub.

SMA's function is to remove price-depressing surpluses of farm products not covered by AAA. SMA buys the surpluses at the lowest possible prices, takes them off the market, sells them for export, or distributes them to the states for relief of the poor.

AAA monkeys with only five commodities—cotton, corn, wheat, rice and tobacco, and guarantees producers of these crops will obtain 85 per cent of the well known parity price, the "fair" price paid to farmers from 1909 to 1914 for all crops except tobacco, which has its parity based on the 1919-1929 price.

FROM this all-too-simple explanation, it can be seen that there is a fundamental difference in viewpoint. SMA buys at distress prices. AAA despises the idea of distress prices and guarantees high prices to the farmers who play along with its program. Threatening to bring the conflict to a showdown is a little measure known as the Gore amendment to the Steagall bill, which has been receiving attention of Congress these last few months. The Steagall bill is a banking bill to prolong the life of the Commodities Credit Corporation, and the Gore amendment has nothing to do with banking, but that's the funny way congressmen sometimes get things done. What the amendment would provide is that no federal funds could be used to purchase agricultural products at a price which is below parity.

Now the Gore amendment may not get any place, but it is important because it is an attempt to put over a law that would apply the parity principle to crops other than the big five. If general legislation to that effect were ever put on the books, it would do all sorts of things. It would give the farmers higher prices for everything they raised, which would be nice for the farmers, but it would unquestionably raise the cost of living for others. And it would wreck the operations of the Surplus Marketing Administration, as well as other federal activities like the Commodities Credit Corporation and even the food stamp plan.

It would mean that whenever the government went into the market to buy surpluses for relief or for export, it would have to pay full parity prices on everything, prunes as well as potatoes. Currently, it would raise the prices of all the commodities which the government is buying for aid to Britain under the lease-lend act, meats, poultry and dairy products, on which the government has asked farmers to step up production. It would cost taxpayers no telling how many more millions of dollars.

F. R. Asks Congress to Declare Emergency; Keep Army Intact

WASHINGTON, July 22—The text of President Roosevelt's message to congress on extending military service for selectees, National Guardsmen and reservists follows:

To the congress of the United States:

Last year the congress of the United States, recognizing the gravity of the world situation, held that common prudence required that American defense, at that time relatively very weak, be strengthened in its two aspects. The first called for the production of munitions of all kinds. The second called for the training and service of personnel. The Selective Training and Service act authorized the annual induction into military service of a maximum of 900,000 men for this training and service, of whom 600,000 are now in the army. The congress also authorized the induction into service of the National Guard, the Reserve Officers, and other components of the army of the United States.

In the absence of further action by the congress, all of those involved must be released from active service on the expiration of 12 months. This means that beginning this autumn about two-thirds of the army of the United States will begin a demobilization.

Before Mobilization

The action taken last year was appropriate to the international situation at that time. It took into consideration the small size and the undeveloped state of our armed forces. The National Guard, which then formed the bulk of these forces, had to be seasoned, its technical training and general efficiency greatly improved. The ranks of the National Guard and the regular army had to be brought to full strength; and, in addition, the army required for its tremendous expansion the services of approximately 50,000 reserve officers.

In effect, two steps were taken for the security of the nation. First, the Selective Service act initiated annual military training as a prime duty of citizenship. Second, the organization and training of field armies was begun—training in teamwork—company, battalion, regiment by regiment, and division by division. The objective was to have ready at short notice an organized and integrated personnel of over 1,000,000 men.

I need scarcely emphasize the fact that if and when an organized and integrated company, battalion, regiment or division is compelled to send two-thirds of its members home, those who return to civil life, if called to the colors later on, would have to go through a new period of organization and integration before the new unit to which they were assigned could be depended on for service. The risks and the weaknesses caused by dissolving a trained army in times of national peril were pointed out by George Washington over and over again in his message to the continental congress.

Situation Is Grave

It is, therefore, obvious that if two-thirds of our present army return to civilian life, it will be almost a year before the effective army strength again reaches 1,000,000 men.

Today it is imperative that I should officially report to the congress what the congress undoubtedly knows: That the international situation is not less grave but is far more grave than it was a year ago. It is so grave, in my opinion, and in the opinion of all who are conversant with the facts, that the army should be maintained in effective strength and without diminution of its effective numbers in a complete state of readiness. Small as it is in comparison with other armies, it should not suffer any form of disorganization or disintegration.

Therefore, we would be taking a grave national risk unless the congress were to make it possible for us to maintain our present full effective strength and during the coming year give training to as many additional Americans as we can, when immediate readiness for services becomes more and more a vital precautionary measure, the elimination of approximately two-thirds of our trained soldiers, and about three-fourths of the total officer personnel, would be tragic error.

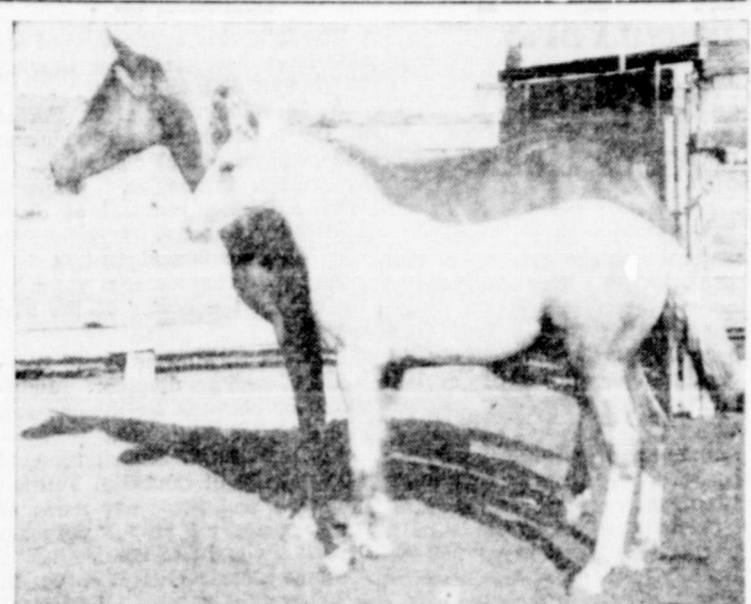

Occasional individuals, basing their opinions on unsupported evidence or on no evidence at all, may with honest intent assert that the United States need fear no attack on its own territory or on the other nations of this hemisphere.

Passed and approved this 8th day of July, A. D. 1941.

G. P. MITCHAM, Mayor.

Attest:
LONNIE SHOCKLEY, City Secretary.

Texas leads the nation in the production of fine Palomino horses. Prize money in the 1941 Palomino show which will be one of the features of the 150,000 Livestock show, has been increased to keep in step with Palomino production in Texas. With the increased prize money, the State Fair is expected to have the finest Palomino show ever held in the southwest. Shown above is one of the fine mares and colts from the vast ranch of W. B. the value. It is equally true that machines without men are of no value at all. Let us consolidate the whole of our defense—the whole of our preparation against attack by those enemies of democracy who are the enemies of all that we hold dear.

One final word. Time counts. Within two months disintegration, which would follow failure to take congressional action, will commence in the armies of the United States. Time counts. The responsibility rests solely with the congress.

Guard, who have reached the age of 28, be transferred from active service to a reserve component as rapidly as possible.

At great cost to the nation, and at increasing dislocation of private buying, we are accepting the material burdens necessary for our security. In such matters we accept the fact of a crisis in our history.

It is true that in modern war men without machines are of little value.

And, in order to reduce individual hardships to a minimum, I urge that the Congress provide that employers be asked to continue to keep jobs open for their employees who have been held in the Army. For my part I will direct the return to civil life of officers and men whose retention on active duty would impose undue hardship and that selectees and enlisted men of the National
