EVENING HOURS.

I like to sit at evening, in the shadows, all alone, And dream through hours of bygone days, and greet the folks I've known; I roam again where sang the birds, and where the roses grew; I gather berries, ripe and red, all wet with Heaven's dew; I sit beneath the maple trees which lined the pasture lane, I wander 'long the river's bank, and hold the hand of Jane.

What though the day is long and drear and filled with strife and woe? When evening comes I sail away, in dreams, to where I know The loyal friends of other days will greet me with a smile, And welcome me back home again in their old-fashioned style. The tinsel of the city then will fade away and plain, True homespun pleasures I'll enjoy—and whispered words of Jane.

Why all this work of trying to keep within the race And beat some other fellow, as the years go on apace? The joy of life is not in wealth which man may call his own! But in the memories of friends, and days which he has known. That's why I love the evening hours, when o'er a fancied main I sail back to Love's own land, and clasp the hand of Jane.

46 YEARS AGO

(From Cisco Apert—Oct., 1895)

NIMROD, Tex., Oct. 1, 1895.—Another good rain Saturday evening. Two northers in September in succession, on the fourth and fifth Saturdays.

Early frosts would destroy a good top crop of cotton which the late rains have insured.

Farmers are not quite done gathering corn. Stopped to build more pens.

Horses and cattle are in fine condition and with the abundance of feed on hand they are not likely to go hungry for the next 12 months.

H. F. Meadows, our hog man, has nearly a hundred head of hogs in a 60-acre pasture in the shinary, and still he wants more.

Wages for cotton picking are ranging from 50 to 55 cents a hundred and board. Fifteen cents better than this time last season.

The present price of cotton, if continued through the season, will enable the farmer to get out of debt and have a little left.

Up to date very little cotton has been picked in this immediate vicinity, while other sections have gathered at least two-thirds of the crop. There will scarcely be any cotton to pick by the last of October.

Willard Roberson, Cisco's popular nurseryman, was in Nimrod last week and reviewed the orchard and vineyard on Dr. Teague's farm, and expressed himself highly pleased with the interest taken in fruit growing.

Miss Monroe Munn and little brother of the Star country, visited relatives here last week.

Doc Hall and family, of Condon, are stopping in Nimrod with relatives for a time.

What was W. R. Bushman doing in Nimrod a short time back?

J. M. Keese, of Stanton, was seen among his old haunts last Sunday.

Mrs. H. Meadows is still in very delicate health.

R. B. Ingram was one among those on the sick list last week.

Miss Ella Foley is making her home with her grandmother, Mrs. H. Meadows, at present during her illness.

Mrs. Alice Moore, who has been quite sick for the past month, is able to be up and about.

Dr. Teague has entirely recovered from his spell of sickness.

Mrs. R. B. Hogan is on the sick list.

Dr. Teague killed a beef this morning, the first killed in these parts for some time.

Mrs. Emma Parker, after a lengthy, but pleasant, visit with relatives here, returned to Burnet this week.

The prayer meeting at this place is not as largely attended as it should be, but when two or three are gathered together in His name He has promised to be in their midst, which is truly manifested by the few who faithfully attend. BAB.

SCRANTON, Oct. 7, 1895.—The wet weather has checked cotton picking. The crop is so far beyond our expectation in quality and price that most of us wear a long snile.

Lovely & Williamson are receiving some new goods.

Dr. Britton is out again after a slight sick spell.

We learn that Nat Hendrickson and the Gattis Bros. are on a land trade.

At the show some of our boys will be.

Captain Dingler and his new bug, hal.

Joe Parkhill is hauling cotton seed for Clements.

The farmers have an expression of prosperity depicted on their faces. This section is truly in fine shape for years—cribs full of corn and hogs to make our own meat.

J. R. Jones has a very sick baby.

Mr. Cunningham, a relative of A. B. Everett, is here from Mississippi.

J. P. Clements and wife are preparing to go to Mineral Wells.

Ed Burchfield is building a handsome table for the school house.

The Sunday school at this place is in a flourishing condition.

James Bradshaw is thinking of writing a book entitled "What Ray and I Saw in the East."

Oct. 8.—Some frost this morning, not enough to damage.

OLD RUSTY.

Cisco Cotton Buyers.

Below we give the names of the cotton buyers in Cisco, so that the farmer can see that there is a market here for the staple. The following are the regular buyers: Jake Alexander, J. F. Patterson, Tom Gee, H. G. Eppler, J. A. Sellers, J. T. Yeargin, C. H. Fee, Bob Malone. And besides the above, there are a number of other buyers who drop into the arena occasionally, among them J. W. Hartman, J. M. Williamson, D. J. Smith and J. J. Winston. Mr. Chastain of Eastland spends about two days each week in the hub to see that the price is run up right. Cotton sold yesterday on the streets of Cisco for 35¢.

The boys tell a good one on Special Officer Bolinger when he went to make an arrest on circus day. They say the pistol he was wearing was so big that he had to get up on the car steps to draw it.

T. E. Burchfield is running the gin at Scranton. He dropped in and said he would have to read the Apert to keep up with this section of the country and immediately "dug up" in advance.

GILLESPIE OF HORNED FROGS SEEMS IN SHAPE FOR GOOD YEAR

FT. WORTH, Sept. 19.—Kyle Gillespie's knee is standing up—that's the word that is being joyfully passed around among Texas Christian followers.
And no wonder! This Gillespie guy is a mighty handy man to have around. Even though performing with a fifth-place Horned Frog team last season, he managed to rank high among the backfield men in almost every activity that can be measured statistically.

As a forward passer, Gillespie ranked tenth in the Southwest, completing 27 for a total gain of 317 yards.
As a ball carrier, he ranked twenty-second in the section, carrying 62 times for a total net gain of 241 yards.
The combination of the two gave him twelfth place in total offense for the season. Gillespie accounted for 538 yards gain in 134 plays.

Punting 42 times, for an average of 37 yards, Gillespie placed eleventh in the Southwest in the kicking department.
But that isn't all. He showed up in the defensive statistics, too. Gillespie ranked ninth in the Southwest in the runback of opponents' punts, returning 13 for an average of 11 1/2 yards.
He also ranked ninth in the runback of opponents' kickoffs, returning four for an average of 26 yards.

And the boy set up all of these records with a knee injury that forced him to wear a brace all of the time and kept him out of the game much of the time.
In fact, he played only 260 minutes out of a possible 600 in the Frogs' full ten-game schedule.

No telling what he might do if that bum knee lets him go full strength this season!

However, they were joined by a number of men and boys from Scranton Thursday, who came with their hounds and joined the Brawley boys, and after a three-hour lively race succeeded in catching a big cat.

End of Price Control Hearings Is Sought

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—A controversy developed within the house banking committee Thursday over the demand of one of its members for speedy termination of the hearings on the administration's price control bill so as to allay public anxiety over steadily rising prices.

Representative Koppelman of Connecticut, declaring there was "cause for alarm" in the trend of prices called on Chairman Steagall of Alabama to seek an understanding in the committee on the question of closing the hearings by Oct. 3, and to limit the time allotted to future witnesses and also to limit the questioning by committee members.
Koppelman said that if the

OLDSMOBILE DELIVERS MILLIONTH SHELL TO U.S. ARMY

Presentation of the millionth shell produced by the Oldsmobile Division of General Motors Corporation by General Manager S. E. Skinner, left above, highlighted the visit to Lansing of Colonel Merle H. Davis, Ordnance Department, Washington, D. C. The shell, which was especially plated and suitably engraved, was presented to Colonel Davis. A group of high ranking army officers who were present on the occasion considered this a dramatic example of the contribution now being made by the automobile industry toward the defense program. They pointed to the fact that only a few months ago Oldsmobile's forge plant was converted from the manufacture of automobile parts to the production of high calibre shells for artillery and other army use.

RUSSIA CALLS ITS MEN FROM 16 TO 50 YEARS

MOSCOW, Sept. 19.—The Soviet Union began assembling its almost illimitable manpower Thursday for the creation of the greatest reserve military force in history—estimated unofficially at not less than 25,000,000 men—while early Autumn fog and rain were declared to be swallowing Hitler's last hope of quick and decisive victories.

Announcement of Premier Stalin's new conscription of every man between 16 and 50 not already in service to train after working hours in the use of weapons was accompanied by declarations that for Russia the struggle just had begun. Asserting that the German general staff faced the approaching Winter with no further hope for a blitzkrieg in the east, the official organ of the Soviet armies, Red Star, nevertheless warned: "... But we must realize that the war will be long and severe." "Realization of this measure (conscription) is of enormous significance in the entire course of the people's war against German Fascism," Red Star added. "Our nation never was the slave of the Germans or any other enemies and shall not become a slave now." (Regular Soviet troops already in the field against the Nazis are estimated at 9,000,000 and, the British have said, Moscow also has another 4,000,000 trained and equipped and ready to go into action at any time.) The program, which will not interrupt civilian production, will go into effect Wednesday.

GERMANS FIX LOSSES IN WAR AT 402,865

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—Germany's losses in the Russian campaign have been 402,865, the German high command announced Friday in revealing for the first time the official Nazi totals of killed, wounded and prisoners. Only one German was put out of action for every nine Russians killed or taken prisoner, the official German statement declared in estimating the Soviet losses in dead and prisoners at "at least" 3,600,000. German losses for the period between June 22 and Aug. 31 were announced as: The army, including the SS elite

Losses of the Soviets in prisoners, the German high command declared, "thus far exceeded 1,800,000," adding, "according to experience, their losses in dead are at least as high and probably higher." (Before the invasion of Russia Germany had acknowledged these aggregate losses: 42,322 killed, 148,781 wounded, 217,440 missing.) TRY A CLASSIFIED AD.

Public Safety Record Better Since 1933, Analysis Reveals

Mr. and Mrs. America can be proud of a marked improvement since 1933 in social trends affecting public safety. Reductions in the rate of automobile fatalities, in deaths from alcoholism and in incidence of crime stand out among the improvements in the period since Prohibition was repealed. Basic statistical reports recently issued by governmental and other authoritative agencies provide the figures for analysis. The 1941 edition of "Accident Facts," just published by the National Safety Council, shows that the highway fatality rate was 12.1 deaths per 100,000,000 vehicle miles in 1940. This contrasted with 19.0 in 1935, the first year for which the statistics were compiled. The average motor vehicle death rate for the prohibition years from 1933 to 1935 was 17.49 per 100,000,000 vehicle miles, while since the end of Prohibition, the average rate has declined to 15.26, and for the last three years it has averaged 12.3. The death rate from alcoholism has been halved since 1928 when the high mark of 4.9 per 100,000 population was recorded. In 1938 and 1939, the latest years for which these Census Bureau figures are available, the rate was 2 per 100,000—the lowest since 1921. The death rate from alcoholism for the first seven years of repeal (1933-1939) averaged 2.5, as against an average of 3.5 for the last seven years of Prohibition. A third major phase of social trends—the incidence of criminal offenses—also shows an improvement since Prohibition ended. In 1932, the first year for which the Federal Bureau of Investigation published compilations of municipal crime rates, there was a combined rate of 1,645 offenses per 100,000 population. The rates are for offenses "known to the police" in the following categories: murder, manslaughter, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny and auto theft. The rate for 1940 was 1,558, a decrease of about 5 per cent since 1932. Indications are that 1941 will show a still better record, as the rate for the first six months was about 752 as against 776 for the corresponding period in 1940. The 1941 figures are from 2,034 cities with a population of 64,055,156. The crime and accident reports above quoted lend emphasis to the recent statement of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman of New York, who said: "The repeal of Prohibition greatly added to public respect for law and order, reduced racketeering and gangsterism, and brought substantial economic gains to industry and labor."

ICKES REFUSES TO LIFT CURB ON GASOLINE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Declining to heed the recommendation of a separate committee that gasoline restrictions in the east be lifted, Secretary of Interior Ickes, the defense petroleum coordinator, declared such action would be "stupid." He told newspapermen the rationing of motor fuel to service stations and the 7 p. m.-7 a. m. station curfew would continue. "To take off all the restrictions now, and yell 'Come and get it,'" he said, "that would be stupid." Ickes, just back from a month's vacation in the west, stated the position of the petroleum office at his first news conference here since the committee, headed by Senator Maloney (D-Conn.), reported there was no petroleum shortage in the east, that "unnecessary alarm was created," and that "we believe that present restrictions should be lifted." The committee said the only shortage it found was one of surplus storages. Ickes said he had no comment on the committee's conclusions except to say that "The whole thing is in the lap of time and time will tell the story." However, he framed this question for reporters: "When you say there's a shortage in storage, you say there's a shortage, don't you?" To emphasize his contention that an emergency existed, he cited reports of the American Petroleum Institute showing that for the week ending Sept. 13 gasoline stocks on the Atlantic seaboard dropped 565,000 barrels, making a total decline of 1,023,000 barrels for a week period compared with a drop of only 160,000 barrels during the corresponding week of last year. East coast gasoline stocks, he said, now are about 2,700,000 barrels or 12.5 per cent less than they were at this date in 1940, while demand is about 11 per cent higher than last year. "These are the facts," Ickes commented, "I'll let the facts speak for themselves."

STREET HOLDS WAGE, HOUR CONFERENCE

ABILENE, Sept. 19.—Individual and group conferences of West Texas employers with Gus C. Street, regional administrator of the wage-hour administration, and Sterling Williams of the regional office, rang the curtain down Thursday afternoon on a district wage-hour clinic here. He emphasized that a firm was covered by the wage-hour act if only part of its activity involved interstate commerce. "The percentage of interstate commerce is of no importance. It does not matter whether your volume of interstate commerce is one per cent or 99 per cent. Coverage exists in either case." Godhavn is the capital of Greenland. Street's final activity here was a 15-minute interview over Station KRBC, beginning at 6:45, on the wage-hour act. At the morning session, Street disclosed that regulations concerning keeping of records of the wage-hour act were changed Sept. 2. "No specific form of records is required, but they must include certain information." According to the new regulations, records must include the employee's name, home address, date of birth if under 19, occupation, hour of day of week on which the employee's work week begins, basis on which wages are paid such as hourly rate or piece rate or salary, time worked each day and total for each week, and total daily or weekly straight-time earnings or wages (including straight-time earnings for any overtime worked). "When overtime is worked, records must show the regular hourly rate of the employee and total additional daily or weekly overtime payments due," said Street. The administrator explained basic provisions of the act, such as the 40-hour week, 30-cent per hour minimum wage, time and a half for overtime, and liability of all firms engaged in interstate commerce.

STRIKE BOUND SHIPS SEIZED BY COMMISSION

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The United States maritime commission today took the unprecedented action of requisitioning three ships struckbound by a labor dispute—a move which the Seafarers' International union (AFL) had threatened would precipitate a general shipping strike. Six hours after the union rejected a government ultimatum to arbitrate its war bonus demands, Capt. Greenville Conway, manager of the North Atlantic district of the maritime commission, posted notice at Weehawken, N. J., that
