A PRAYER.

We come before Thee, our Father and our God, to worship, to praise Thy name, and to thank Thee for Thy great mercy and Thy many blessings. We confess our sins, but we come with boldness to Thy throne of grace, for our trust is in Him who is our advocate and our mediator. We pray that Thou wilt show to each one of us Thy will for this day, and help us to do it.

Lord, grant that Thy will may be done more and more by all men during these troublous days, and that Jesus may not only be given a place in the throne room of our hearts, but may we let Him be seated on the throne and crown Him Lord of all.

THE FIGHTING DUTCH.

The Dutch seem to be the greatest boy scouts in military history. They count that day lost whose low-descending sun views at their hands no worthy action done. Their idea of a good deed is to sink a Jap ship, and they have consistently sunk at least one a day ever since that Far East war started.

Their contribution to the good cause has been all the more welcome because, for some reason or other, not much has been expected of them. The other combatants and the world in general seemed to assume that they would just stall along and do a little for the general cause here and there and now and then. Instead, they have come right to the front and been the most consistent and persistent performers in the Far-Eastern drama.

They have reason for fighting hard because, in the Dutch Indies, they have a great, rich domain to preserve. In doing it they are preserving their own home, for they are committed to those Far-Eastern islands as fully as our own ancestors were committed to America in pioneer times.

They were steeled to fight all the more because their European homeland was under the iron heel of the Destroyers. And it might have been assumed, from Dutch history, that they would prove their mettle. Even so, the intelligent and aggressive action of those East Indian colonists has been an eye-opener. And they have fought as hard and effectively for their British, Filipino and American allies as for themselves.

When the final honor roll is called, they will at least stand as high as any. And in the meantime they set a glorious example.

DOOMED TO WALK.

It begins to dawn on the American people that their great private transportation system is going to shrivel from now on, at least while the war lasts.

Millions of us have forgotten how to get around in any way except by stepping into an automobile and turning a key and pressing down our right foot and turning a wheel this way and that. And many of us, lucky enough to be well stocked with cars and tires when the government cracked down on rubber and steel, may still follow that procedure if the war doesn't last too long.

But many people will be feeling the pinch soon. And millions of us will find ourselves, one of these months, in the amazing situation of actually using, to get to work and around generally, the physical means that God has given us for that purpose.

Maybe it's just in time. For there is such a thing as evolution. It's hard to say just how fast that principle works, but possibly another decade or two of riding instead of walking would have left us incapable of physical locomotion and entirely dependent on machinery. In short, the war may have saved our legs for us. Also our general physical vigor, if we are wise enough to use freely now whatever there is left of it.

FOOD FOR ALL.

War is producing shortages in many fields, but food isn't one of them. As the president recently said, "There is enough food for all of us and enough left over to send to those who are fighting on the same side with us."

The fact that an abundance of food exists in this country, however, isn't all there is to the question. The great majority of consumers live considerable distances away from food-producing areas. They are dependent upon the agencies of distribution to bring them food at the lowest possible price. And here is where we Americans are extremely lucky. This country's food retailing system is unequalled in the world.

American merchants are fully aware of the problems of the times. They are aware of the great responsibility that they must discharge if the consumer is to be protected. The principal food chains have adopted a four-point public pledge which is indicative of what food distributors are doing. First, they will maintain efficient, economical distribution. Second, they will avoid speculation and unjustified price increases. Third, they will maintain adequate stocks of food products at all times and recommend substitutes when shortages develop. Fourth, they will cooperate fully with the government, producers and consumers.

A great many independent stores have subscribed to similar pledges of public service. And if work of this kind is to achieve full success, consumers themselves must do their part. Waste must be reduced to a minimum—the fact that we have plenty of food is no excuse for needlessly dissipating it. Excessively large buying makes for price increases and consumer hysteria. Buy normally and get the most for your dollar.

Retailers in other fields, where serious shortages exist, are also doing their utmost for consumers. It is to the great credit of retailing that there have been practically no cases of profiteering. Your merchant is doing his full part to help ease the strains and dislocations that war inevitably produces.

Old Man 1941. San Angelo Standard-Times: A tottering old man, he was 1941, departed this world last midnight and most every one was glad to see him leave—giving as usual a big welcome to 1942, a youngster in swaddling clothes.

But today is only the first of 365 days of 1942 and what the year will bring remains to be determined as the days come and go. Last year was a very unusual year in some respects, taking in weather, economic, political and war conditions, but as a whole it wasn't altogether a bad year. West Texas prospered in many of its undertakings, failed in others, but in the latter category there were but few.

West Texas felt the war, particularly America's entrance, and at the same time struggled in the lap of luxury through one of its best crop years on record; prices for livestock held up well, as did those of farm products. West Texas witnessed considerable improvement in its vast highways program, in cities where defense units were established, including army camps and aviation pilot training schools, much new residential building and the like.

Few, if any, suffered greatly from what 1941 offered, and last night when the old man took out he was probably snickering at the antics of the world, laughing at the big welcome being given 1942 and saying to himself, "Bud, you ain't seen anything yet."

DO YOU REMEMBER?

(Cisco Daily News, January 20, 1927.)

With 152 tickets actually sold and others expected to make last minute reservations, indications Thursday afternoon were that easily 200 persons, including those on the program, will be present at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the First Methodist church when the annual banquet of the Cisco Retail Merchants' association is held. The crowd will gather in the main auditorium, and will go from there to the dining hall in the basement promptly at 7:30. B. B. Longacre, secretary, declared. The program features an address by Al Shuman, Fort Worth newspaper man, who is said to have much of interest to say to all retailers.

Next week will see the hatching of several thousand chicks in the Cisco territory, J. B. Chandler, manager of the Bankhead Poultry Producers' association asserted. Mr. Chandler said most of the hatcheries in this section have been in operation about two weeks, and that the first hatch of the year is about due. Baby chicks are bringing fancy prices this year, he said, with the price ranging from 10 to 30 cents each, depending on the quality.

The body of Mrs. J. D. Alexander, prominent Cisco club woman who died recently at East Wilton, Maine, following an operation for appendicitis, was scheduled to leave for Cisco Thursday, according to a message received by Mrs. Homer A. Bible from Mrs. Alexander's niece, Mrs. V. T. Lochhead. The telegram said arrival of the body in Cisco could be expected Monday afternoon.

A. Grist, in keeping with his idea of helpfulness to this farming community has made all arrangements to hold a power farming meeting here. These interesting sessions are being conducted in cooperation with the J. I. Case Threshing Machine company, and will be held at the city hall on January 24 and 25. One of the most direct ways of adding to the income of the farmer is by reducing the cost of operation. The most satisfactory way of doing this, is of course, by power farming machinery. The purpose of the power farming meeting is to discuss ways and means of getting the most out of one's equipment. Practical and experienced men will talk with those attending these meetings. These talks will be illustrated with charts, lantern slides and moving pictures. Each day's program will be entirely different. Tractors, threshers, plows and combines will be discussed showing many models and parts. Everyone is invited regardless of the kind of equipment he has on his farm. Mr. Grist said.

The importance of acquaintanceship in its various aspects formed the topic for the Cisco Rotary meeting Thursday noon. P. W. Campbell, chairman of the Rotary education committee, presided. J. E. T. Peters discussed "The Importance of Acquaintance in World Relations." J. H. Morgan talked on "The Importance of Acquaintance in Club Relations," and W. W. Wallace spoke on "The Importance of Acquaintance in Individual Relations." The prevailing idea in the talks was that better acquaintance or understanding fosters greater peace and profit. Following the luncheon, six Rotarians went to the home of A. B. O'Flaherty, in Humboldt, who was sick, and held a meeting so as to make up his attendance.

WOMEN LABOR TIRELESSLY IN CIVIL DEFENSE

By CORRINNE HARDESTY
U. P. Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—A day in the life of a woman volunteer defense worker is more crowded than a debutante's social schedule and more hectic than a housewife's blue Monday.

Volunteer defense work, covering anything Americans may do on the home front in total war, went into high gear with the attack on Pearl Harbor. Most active organizations so far are the American Red Cross, American Women's Voluntary Services and the Office of Civilian Defense.

At the office of the motor division of the AWVS, smartly uniformed Bernice Reedy was on duty at 7 a. m. to answer telephone calls for emergency motor service.

In spite of the confusion of 50 or 60 women "who want to do something" milling about, Miss Reedy dispatched a car to take a small child to a throat clinic.

No Lunch Hour.

She directed three fur-coated, shrill-voiced women to the registration desk and at the same time arranged transportation for a troupe of entertainers to Camp Upton.

While she ate her lunch off a tray she arranged to have surplus food from a day market picked up and delivered to a social service agency.

The motor corps is only one division of the AWVS, which is organized in 28 states and has 150,000 workers. In the last two weeks more than 1,000 eager women have registered at its local office.

Motor corps volunteers must have a driver's license. They take courses in first aid, convoy driving, map reading and mechanics and must give 50 hours service before they can wear the corps uniform—a tidy, two-piece outfit in gray blue gabardine with lots of brass buttons.

Air raid and fire warden, many of whom registered with precinct police and fire chiefs months ago as a lark, found themselves in class rooms, manual and notebook in hand.

To a timid woman in a class of 35 prospective wardens, who asked "What can you expect in a black-out?" Miss May Breen, instructor, answered crisply, "a lot of darkness."

10,000 Jobs Listed.

She proceeded to outline wardens' duties: Enforcing lighting restrictions; helping steer persons to safe places; assisting victims; reporting fires, and organizing neighborhood groups.

Most members of the warden classes proceeded immediately to first aid classes. These are organized by the Red Cross with some duty to fit every woman's talent.

At the Office of Civilian Defense a group of 40 interviewers who volunteered to help volunteers, struggled at cataloging qualifications of 600 workers a day. The OCD acts as a clearing house. The idea is to get volunteer workers into one of the 10,000 jobs listed with the OCD.

"I got up at six this morning to get to a class in airplane spotting, before I came here," a weary interviewer said as she catalogued her last applicant.

"I guess I'll end the day by going over to the Red Cross blood bank and give 'em a pint—if I have any red corpuscles left!"

Honey in Song

Hilda Burke, Metropolitan opera soprano, like many other famous singers, drinks hot milk and honey to give added richness to her voice before a performance. She is pictured in her dressing room at the Metropolitan Opera House.

America's Second Line of Defense

Today America's destiny rests in the hands of two defense lines — our armed forces and those of us working in essential industries.

One of our Nation's most important essentials is oil — not only for our defense requirements, but for all related civilian activities.

Texas supplies over one-third of America's oil and we Texans who work in this vital industry—250,000 of us — are proud of our part in providing it. We know how necessary it is to National Defense.

There can be no interruption in the flow of these materials so vital to our Nation's safety. The task calls for the all-out skill, experience and loyalty of every American.

The Texas oil industry to a man is on the job.

A COMPLETE STOCK OF GREASES.

We still have some Prestone and Antifreeze, but buy at once, for this is positively the last.

May we suggest you lay in a supply of Canned Oil. In a few weeks it will be almost impossible to get quart tin cans.
