ROOSEVELT STARTS 10TH YEAR IN WHITE HOUSE TOMORROW; HIS HEALTH GOOD DESPITE BIG JOB

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, war President of the United States, today completed nine years in the White House.

The fight for human rights throughout the world is now the absorbing occupation of President Roosevelt, just as on March 4, 1933, when he was first inaugurated, the economic improvement of the masses of his own country was the dominating theme.

Nobody in history has been President of the United States as long as Roosevelt. He shattered all precedents in 1940 when he ran for a third term, and defeated the Republican candidate, Wendell L. Willkie, by 449 to 82 electoral votes. Until then it was the unwritten tradition that no President should serve more than two terms of four years each, in accordance with the precedent set by the first President, George Washington.

Roosevelt's popularity here and abroad continues to be very high, his health is good, and there's every reason to believe he will serve out his three full terms. In fact, here are some Republicans who are worried over the possibility that in 1944 he may feel impelled to break another precedent, and seek the Democratic nomination for the fourth time.

As he begins his tenth year in office, Roosevelt is more and more occupying the role of Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces of the United States. He is the supreme director of the United States war effort, and not only deals with the large scale aspects of it, but occupies himself with much detailed matter.

Gets Congress' Support

The "war powers" which he enjoys under the Constitution and the many laws and proclamations are so vast that nobody really knows how powerful he really is. Since the United States has the presidential system of government, with fixed terms of office, Roosevelt's powers are unlimited.

AIRPORT TO TAKE ON LIFE

In a few days an airplane pilot training program at the Cisco municipal airport will be under way, with Reg Robins as operator and Haywood (Doc) Cabaness as chairman. P. R. Warwick of the chamber of commerce has been named by Mayor G. P. Mitcham as co-ordinator.

This program — made possible by contributions totaling about $2,000 by private citizens — will be supervised by the federal government and will furnish elementary training in flying for young men between the ages of 18 and 25 — high school graduates or those with the 15 hours required for entrance to college, who can meet the physical requirements.

The government will pay for 15 of the students and the money raised locally will take care of the five necessary to complete the class of 20 men. Trainees who qualify for admittance to this class are really in the army, but will have to furnish their own subsistence for the four month period of training here, after which they go to another field for more advanced training, at which time they will receive $75 per month and, unless they "wash out," should become second lieutenants in the air corps in about a year. This class would go through their training, up until the time they receive their commissions, as a unit. We know of no other way in which a young man with the qualifications as outlined in this plan could become a flying officer in the army in the same period of time.

Applicants for instructions in this class, living within a radius of 15 miles of Cisco, are urged to take advantage of this opportunity. Application for entrance into this class may be made at Cisco city hall or at the Cisco chamber of commerce.

ENUMERATION OF CHILDREN BEGINS THUR.

Supt. R. N. Cluck of the city schools announces that school enumerators will begin taking scholastic census tomorrow, and it is important that parents see to it that some one who can give the information be at home, since each child between the ages of 6 to 17 years, inclusive, is worth $22.50 to the community in dollars and cents for public school apportionment to this community.

"If a strange man rings your door bell it will probably not be a book agent, but the census taker," Mr. Cluck said.

veit does not need periodically to go before Congress for a vote of confidence, as does his colleague, Prime Minister Winston Churchill of England.

Under the spirit of "war unity" now prevailing, Congress is inclined to grant Roosevelt all he needs in the line of appropriations and supplementary legislation connected with the war effort. However, Congressmen still make a show of maintaining their independence when dealing with regional issues, or questions of agriculture, rivers and power.

One of "Great" Presidents

The two-party system of government is being maintained, and Republicans expect to wage strong contests for many seats in the House of Representatives and some in the Senate in the legislative elections of November. Nevertheless, there is a tendency to "rally around the President," and reduce the intensity of political divisions which normally prevail.

Roosevelt's career, as a man who strongly fought for social reforms, improved living conditions for the masses, and then became leader in a war against the totalitarian states, undoubtedly will give him a place in history beside the great Presidents of the past — George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson.

"Hundred Days" Historic

The fortunes of war, and the manner in which the peace is settled, will naturally have a profound effect on the degree of importance which will be ascribed to his occupancy of the Presidency.

The nine years Roosevelt already has served can be divided roughly into three parts. The first period started off dramatically on March 4, 1933, when with the banking structure of the nation tumbling, Roosevelt imparted confidence in the masses, and began

J. H. LATSON MOVED TO NEW STORE BLDG.

J. H. Latson, Jr., announces today that he is ready for business at his new location at 900 W. Eighth street, where he is just completing a modern stucco store building.

He will have free delivery at all times, he states, and will feature staple and fancy groceries and an up-to-date market for quality meats. His hours are from 7 a. m. to 9:30 p. m.

His formal opening will be held later, he states.

PLEDGE SIGNERS CALLED

Cisco defense guard will meet tomorrow night in the high school gym, as usual. The hour is 7:30.

Attendance has been fair of late, it is stated, but nevertheless a large number of those who signed cards pledging two hours a week to the guard, have not been present at these meetings. These men are respectfully urged to make an effort to be present tomorrow night. Completion of the unit is necessary and the only way to do this is for the members to attend regularly.

As soon as the unit has been completed, application will be made to the adjutant general of Texas for full recognition as state guards.

At the meeting tomorrow night, members will be measured for uniforms and the uniforms will be ordered immediately.

Non-commissioned officers will be appointed from the ranks at this meeting.

It is also announced that those who have not signed the defense guard pledge, but who wish to do so, will be given an opportunity to sign the pledge Thursday night if they are present.

TAX PAYMENTS ARE IMPROVING FIGURES SHOW

Clyde S. Karkalits, county tax assessor-collector, reports that 1941 tax collections now total $394,831.53.

Of this sum $319,280.53 is current taxes and $75,551.44 delinquent taxes.

This is better than the average collections during the past six-year period, Mr. Karkalits stated. The six-year average total for current taxes is $301,435.23; delinquent, $35,452.57.

UNDAUNTED BY PAST FAILURES, G. P. MITCHAM AND CO-WORKERS STILL LABOR FOR DEFENSE PLANT

Letters, telegrams and records of telephone conversations between himself and Mayor W. C. Hoffmann of Eastland and Mayor Bill Walker of Ranger, relative to securing some kind of defense project for Eastland county were made public by Mayor G. P. Mitcham at a special meeting of chamber of commerce directors and public-spirited citizens last night.

While there was much in this correspondence to cast gloom on the chances of Eastland county in the fight for a defense plant, it does show how hard these mayors, including Mr. Mitcham, have striven to secure something in the nature of a payroll for this part of the state.

Mitcham wants the public to know that Cisco has not ceased its efforts and will not do so until something has been secured to bolster the financial condition of this section of the state. Inspectors of a proposed site are now being urged to look over one proposed project and Mitcham has not given up but, on the other hand, sees some grain of encouragement.

It was announced today by Mr. Mitcham and the committee in charge of securing Cisco's part of the funds necessary for the civil aeronautics training school, that funds had been obtained and the school was definitely secured.

All that is now lacking, the Mayor stated, is the students— young men between the ages of 18 and 26, whose tuition will be

MENTAL HYGIENE

AUSTIN, March 4.—Members of the board of control, trustees for the state's vast eleemosynary system, will confer here March 15 with Dr. G. S. Stevenson of New York, medical director for the National Committee for Mental Hygiene. Board Chairman Weaver Baker said his agency would discuss administrative and treatment methods with Dr. Stevenson, an authority on mental hygiene. Dr. Stevenson will come to Texas primarily to attend the Texas Mental Hygiene association convention in Fort Worth.

RECORD U. S. DEBT

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The treasury says its record-breaking $62,380,505,166 debt on Feb. 28 included $7,893,380,259 on savings and defense bonds. These and other outstanding bonds totaled $44,305,312,589; notes, $8,397,621,175; bills, $2,091,743,900; special notes and bonds to Government trust funds, $6,689,908,000. The average interest rate of outstanding securities was 2.464 per cent, compared with 2.542 per cent on the similar date last year.

GET POISON FOR RATS NOW AT FIRE DEPT

Citizens of the residential sections are requested to call at the Cisco fire department and get their rat poison, together with full printed instructions of how to administer it, said Mayor G. P. Mitcham today as he told of the successful drive underway in the business section.

Persons should call at once, so that the residential drive will be waged all at one time.

If only a portion of the people drive on the rats at one time, they will likely rendezvous at places where no poison is used.

Get this poison not later than tomorrow, the mayor urged.

The poison is dangerous to all animals, but is quite harmless if handled and placed properly. Keep all pets, stock and fowls confined while the bait is out and keep it out of reach of irresponsible persons. Follow directions carefully.

DISTRICT GOVERNOR LEE FROM DECATUR WAS GUEST OF CISCO LIONS TODAY; MANY VISITORS

Cisco Lions were especially honored today by the visit of District Governor A. B. Lee, of Decatur, making his first official visit. A number of visiting Rotarians included Edward Lee, president of the local Rotary club.

Other visitors were Miss Marian Jacobs, on the program for vocal numbers, assisted at the piano by the Lions sweetheart, Miss Betty Slicker. Coach K. C. McCasland of Cisco Junior college and his basketball team were also introduced.

A further number on the program was the short, pithy talk of Bill Latch, former Lobo star and now a member of the U. S. marines.

Lion H. R. Garrett and W. H. LaRogue were presented plaques for special work in the Melvin Jones birthday drive during January.

Governor Lee was introduced by Past District Governor W. H. LaRogue, who stated that Lions had found teachers made the best workers and leaders for Lionism, since they had the natural incentive for civic betterment. Mr. Lee, as superintendent of Decatur schools, had been so valuable a worker that Lions of district 2-E had impressed him into service as a leader.

Governor Lee's address was

ST. LOUIS BOY BAGS SIX BIG WAR BOMBERS

WASHINGTON, March 4.—"Lieut. Edward H. O'Hare, United States Navy, fighter pilot, personally accounted for six bombers of the enemy."

In that terse sentence of an official communique, the navy Tuesday night gave credit to its newest ace for a recent busy afternoon west of the Gilbert Islands in the equatorial Pacific.

Eighteen Japanese heavy bombers roared over in two waves to attack a task force of the United States fleet. The 27-year-old St. Louisan knocked down half a dozen personally; 10 more were blasted by other American fliers and by anti-aircraft fire, and none of the surface craft in the United States task force was damaged.

"So far as we know," a navy official said, "Lieutenant O'Hare's feat was the highest single bag and a record for the war."

DIES TELL OF MOVE AGAINST THE PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Chairman Martin Dies of the house committee investigating un-American activities, said today the committee had uncovered a plot to undermine the confidence of the people in President Roosevelt.

"The evidence is directed at the person of the president," Dies told the house, "and not at his policies."

COSTLY FIRE

ST. LOUIS, March 4.—A spectacular fire attracting 15,000 onlookers, swept through part of the vast Hill-Behan lumber yard Tuesday night, causing damage estimated at $300,000.

TAX AMENDMENT NEEDED

Congressman Boland of Pennsylvania has introduced a bill to amend the capital gains and losses tax. That bill should be passed for two reasons: to spur industrial expansion; and to produce additional tax revenue for government.

The great fault in the capital gains tax, in the words of Congressman Celler of New York, "is to prevent the investment of capital in new enterprises." It makes for extreme conservatism in investment, and tends to dry up the supply of that "risk capital" which is indispensable for new industrial development.

There is a world of difference between a fair and equitable income tax based on earnings from capital, as contrasted with a tax on the growth in value of capital itself. The "capital gains" tax might better be called a "penalty" tax on management, enterprise and savings. It discourages an investor from risking his capital with the hope of increasing it and making two dollars work and produce taxable income where but one dollar worked to produce tax revenue before. As Senator Tom Connally explained the matter: "In the case of ordinary income the taxpayer has to pay the tax; he has no choice. But in the case of capital gains... if the holder does not sell, you do not get any tax... We should make it more attractive to a small man to sell instead of offering him a premium to hold."

This country needs maximum industrial development—and it also needs maximum tax revenue. The new bill would help to achieve both those vital purposes.

UNITING FILIPINOS

There is no unifier like a common enemy. China has learned that in her five years of war with Japan. Now the Filipinos are learning this too.

With twenty-three tribes, exclusive of the dwarf Negritos, who are of a different race, and at least three religions, Christian, Mohammedan and pagan, the Filipinos have been pretty thoroughly divided. Some have liked our rule and some have not. But whatever our faults, the Japanese are worse, and the Filipinos are finding this out. Knowledge of the bombing of Manila and worse atrocities has spread throughout the islands.

When you face an enemy like that, and are helped by some one of different race and creed, the differences are apt to lose importance. When the war is over, whether they are independent or under our government, the Filipinos will be much more of a unit than ever before.

MYSTIC MESSAGES

A little French is a useful thing. Hundreds of Americans lately have been puzzled by getting cables from relatives or friends marked "Sans origine." Unless they know French, which is still an "international language," they take that for the name of the place from which the message was sent. It merely means "without origin." The soldier and sailor boys may know where they are, but they are not allowed to tell. And such messages will probably be arriving out of the air, so to speak, as long as the war lasts. The secrecy is necessary for military reasons, and news in any form is welcome.

WOMEN CHANGE TIRES

Education in these times broadens and grows more practical. Colleges no longer feel obliged to stick to "academic" work. Getting through the war comes to be as important as getting through the text books.

So college girls are found taking courses in elementary motor mechanics and sound driving practice, and many who have been driving by luck or instinct are learning how the old car really works, how to save gas and oil, change tires and clean spark plugs, and so on.

It's great stuff, and they're getting a kick out of it, even if young brother is annoyed. Girls are demonstrating again, as they did in the last war, that they can develop into good mechanics when they put their minds on it. And if they learn such things by studious effort, instead of absorbing mechanical knowledge by instinct, as boys are inclined to do, it comes to about the same thing in the end. Thousands of girls will soon be putting kid brother in his place, with more accurate knowledge, and also graciously instructing mother as to what makes the bus go.

All this, however, may have its dangers. Men, being naturally lazier than women, may say: "All right—if they're so clever about cars, let 'em take over the whole transportation problem. We'll sit on the right and let 'em drive us around." And it would be just like the women to do it.

Roosevelt Starts--

to pull the nation out of a long deflationary cycle.

In the historic "First Hundred Days," Congress passed every bill submitted to it with hardly any discussion. Reform after reform was started, although many of these ultimately were ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

Court Battle Recalled

The doctrine of the "Good Neighbor" had its start with the Roosevelt inaugural message in 1933, and became well established by Secretary of State Cordell Hull at the Montevideo Conference in December, 1933, and by the actions of the then Ambassador to Cuba, Sumner Welles in the turbulent days of Cuba.

The second phase of Roosevelt's administration began about 1935, when some of the initial enthusiasms were decreasing and many early collaborators were being dropped.

Encouraged by his 523 to 8 electoral vote victory over Governor Alf M. Landon in 1936, Roosevelt the following year began his struggle with the Supreme Court, and in 1938 he sought to "purge" various Democratic Senators who were no longer enthusiastic "New Dealers."

Arouses Democracy

Roosevelt failed in both these fights, although he did eventually see the Supreme Court entirely modernized through vacancies created by deaths and resignations, which gave him a chance to appoint younger men to that high tribunal.

The third period of Roosevelt's Presidency began around 1937-1938, when he foresaw the necessity of awakening the forces of democracy to the dangers they faced.

His Chicago speech of 1937, in which he suggested that the aggressors be "quarantined," so startled public opinion in the United States that an "isolationist" reaction developed and did not disappear entirely until the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor.

Solid Support Now

Early in 1939 Roosevelt saw the necessity of amending the Neutrality Laws, so that Britain and France might make purchases of arms, planes and munitions in the United States to overcome the big advantages which Germany had in such supplies.

He was unable to convince Congress that this should be done until after the war started. Then the "Cash and Carry" system was adopted, which remained in effect until the "Lend-Lease" policy was established early in 1941.

War struck the United States on December 7, 1941, and Roosevelt thus automatically began a new period. "Interventionists" and "isolationists" are now firmly behind the President in his program for "all-out" production in 1942, designed to enable the nation and its allies to seize the initiative in 1943.

QUESTION IS: "SHALL WE SPEND MILLION AND HALF ON BIG BEND PARK OR WAIT UNTIL WAR ENDS"

AUSTIN, March 4.—Purchase of additional land for Big Bend Park on the Rio Grande should not be halted because of the war, State Park Board secretary Frank Quinn insists.

The state park board has been authorized to spend $1,500,000 for the land and after acquiring it turn the whole tract over to the National Park Service, for improvement and operation.

The appropriation of $1,500,000 for the purpose has come under fire as the largest single item of expense authorized by the legislature that met before the war. Wisdom of the expenditure when the rationing and automobile manufacturing restrictions are in effect has been questioned.

Gov. Coke R. Stevenson said he has not been requested to assemble the legislature in special session to repeal the appropriation and thought it would be unwise to do so after the project has been carried through to its present stage.

He said some members of the legislature were urging that the officials voluntarily hold up the expenditure. If this were done, the appropriation would lapse automatically on Sept. 1, 1943.

Quinn predicted, however, that the State Park Board would go right ahead with the project. He said he would advise the members to do so. He cited as reasons:

1. About one-half of the $1,500,000 expenditure is really taking the money out of one pocket and placing it in another. The money will come out of the state general revenue fund. About half of it will be spent to buy land now owned by the state school fund. State Treasurer Jesse James will honor a parks board warrant on the general fund and deliver it to Land Commissioner Easton Giles. Giles who will receive the warrant for the permanent school fund will re-deposit it in the treasury to the credit of the school fund.

2. Options have been obtained on a major part of the land that is not state school land. If these options should be forfeited, much expense would result in renewing them after the war—perhaps some could not be renewed.

3. While development of the park may be delayed because of the war, it will go ahead to a considerable extent and be that far advanced toward providing an attractive tourist point after the war.

4. If the parks board permitted this appropriation to lapse, future legislatures might not reappropriate the money.

Removal of the state medical college from Galveston was not considered seriously by the legislative committee that investigated the college affairs. One member suggested it, another said removal would be over his dead body, and the others thought so little of it that the committee report ignored it.

University of Texas president Homer Rainey did not advocate it. When queried about it he said he thought the medical school should be at Austin with the rest of the university to take advantage of the university laboratories and other facilities. He recognized that Austin lacked clinical material for so large a medical school.

Were the removal of the college considered desirable, it would not be practical at this time. Galveston was selected as site for the medical school by popular vote. To change it would require a constitutional amendment. Committee Member Arthur Cato of Weatherford who suggested removal, Governor Stevenson and President Rainey all agreed that it would require such an amendment.

A constitutional amendment can be adopted only by a majority popular vote. It cannot be submitted to vote except at a regular session of the legislature. No regular session can be held until January, 1943. In that session any 11 senators can block submission, for two-thirds of the senate's 31 members must vote for a submission. If nobody opposed submission, a popular election scarcely could be held before mid-summer or fall.

Then an even more difficult obstacle would be met. War priorities has cut off the supply of building materials. The state is having difficulty getting authority to make badly-needed extensions of state hospitals. No hope is held out that priorities would be granted for the building required in abandoning one plant to set up a new medical school.

How soon building could start would depend on how long the war lasted.

Efforts of Texas courts to streamline the law books has encountered a set-back. New rules of procedure authorize the courts to designate some of their opinions for omission from the law books. The rule is to prevent cluttering the reports with opinions that settle only a particular set of facts without establishing any principle of law or varying from the accepted construction of the law.

The Third Court of Civil Appeals recently made such a notation on one of its decisions. Since then the State Supreme Court has granted a writ of error in the case and will review the decision of the Court of Appeals.

If the Supreme Court reversed the lower court, it will probably have to publish both the decision of the Court of Appeals and its own decision to make the ruling beneficial to lawyers.

The Court of Criminal Appeals has streamlining of the lawbooks under consideration now.

State's Attorney Spurgeon Bell has suggested to Presiding Judge Frank J. Hawkins that hereafter the publication omit statement of cases where appeals have been dismissed after being filed. In such case the court makes no ruling on any disputed matter. There are many cases also in which the defendant decides to accept the verdict of the trial court and lets his appeal stand without going to the expense of having a record of the trial filed with the Court of Criminal Appeals. In such cases the Court of Criminal Appeals merely affirms the lower court decision, noting that there has been no statement of facts submitted.

MEN AND WOMEN OF THE FBI CLASS

FBI Clerks Find Varied and Exciting Positions in the Bureau with Opportunities for Higher Posts

Clerks in the mail section of the FBI Files Division.

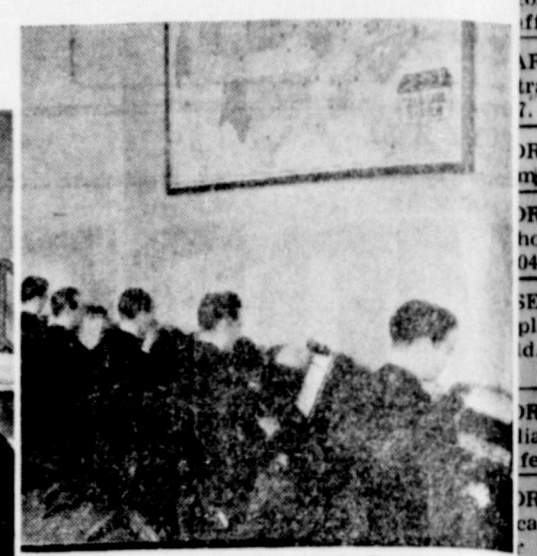

Perhaps the most glamorous position in the Federal Bureau of Investigation is that of Special Agent or G-Man, but not every employee of the Bureau can be an active chaser of spies, kidnapers and bank robbers. In order to keep the nation's leading law enforcement agency at its top pitch of efficiency, hundreds of clerks are needed for every branch of FBI activity.

Now, with increased national defense work the FBI is offering greater opportunities than ever before to young men—as clerks, stenographers, typists, file clerks, office machine operators and messengers. High school graduates may qualify as clerks at $1440 per annum even without typing or stenographic ability.

After the office day is over, you can find FBI clerks picking up textbooks and dashing out to attend classes at law or accounting colleges so that they may qualify as Special Agents. The FBI likes to pick its higher-salaried men from the ranks of clerical employees who have the proper qualifications, and even a mimeograph operator who plugs away at his studies can become the country's crack counter-espionage agent.

Clerical employees of the FBI are not under civil service regulations. Applications are filed with the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Department of Justice, Washington, D. C. or with a field office, and applicants are interviewed personally by an Agent in Charge.

As soon as a clerk is accepted by the Bureau, he is sent to school. Incidentally, going to school is regular routine for every FBI employee—from executives and Special Agents down to messenger boys. At the Clerical School, the new employee learns about each division of the Bureau so that he can see just how his tasks fit in with the general work of the FBI. He may be assigned to the mail section of the Files Division

Teletype clerks in the FBI Communications Section. Over these wires coded messages to the 55 Field Divisions, concerning spies and public enemies.

On mimeograph and multilith machines operated by FBI clerks who have shown aptitude for such work, instructions and information for the FBI field force are printed.

where thousands of records must be handled daily. If the new clerk shows an aptitude for the mimeograph or multilith machine, he is put to work printing instructions and information for the FBI field force. An exciting section of the FBI office is the Communications Service, where teletype operators receive and send coded messages concerning spies and public enemies to the 55 Field Divisions of the FBI. Clerks who can type may be assigned to this division or to any one of a dozen others of equal importance. Clerical employees of the FBI aren't stalemated at any one particular job. An In-Service Training School provides continuous and progressive training every year even for experienced clerks. And there is always the stimulus of better and more skilled positions to make life interesting for the FBI clerical employee.

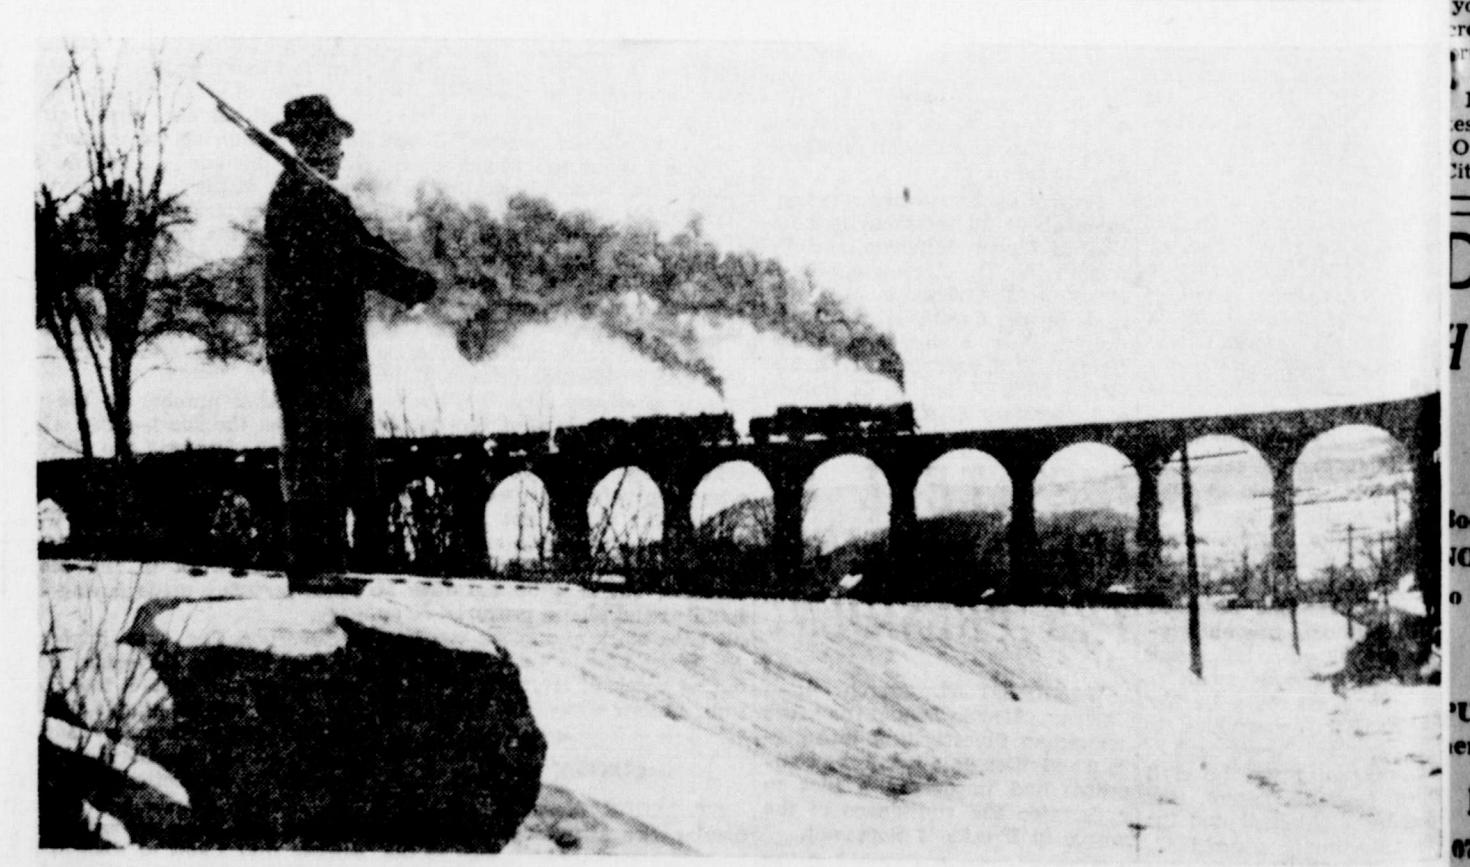

New Army Meal Ticket Good News for Restaurant Owners

What may prove a boon to restaurant owners is the Army's new practice of issuing meal tickets instead of cash to soldiers for the purchase of meals while traveling. These tickets allow a soldier to spend a maximum of 75 cents a meal in restaurants and $1 a meal in railroad dining cars—in many instances more than he would spend if he were paying cash.

For a meal, he fills in a few blanks and mails the ticket to the finance officer at the post from which the soldier traveled. When the meal tickets are received by the finance officer, they are given immediate attention and checks for the full amount are sent at once. Now that the United States is at war, more and more of these meal tickets will be used. Restaurant operators who wish to share in the task of feeding the soldiers will acquaint themselves with the new meal tickets and be prepared to honor them.

Form for United States Army Meal Ticket, No. A.M.T. 687401, dated February 4, 1942. Issued to Pvt. John Doe at Fort Churchill, Alabama. Includes fields for name, rank, unit, and signature.

Modern Gas Ranges Are easy on the Groceries

They handle them with kid gloves

THREE OF THE WAYS A CP GAS RANGE WILL HELP YOU SAVE VITAMINS

- VITAMIN-SAVING BURNERS. Simmer settings make possible the "waxless" cooking of vegetables, without overcooking the under side.
- VITAMIN-SAVING BROILER. No preheating necessary. Meats retain more vitamin rich juices, because cold-start broiling enables you to broil the portion nearest the flame, without overcooking the under side.
- VITAMIN-SAVING OVEN. CP controlled heat enables you to roast meats with minimum of water, and yet avoid drying out. Low temperature CP roasting also enables you to reduce meat shrinkage.

"Well-fed" doesn't always mean "well-nourished," not by a jugful of Vitamins. It takes smooth cooking to take enough of those Vitamins down the "little red lane," and an automatic Gas Range can handle them with kid gloves. Spin a dial, and click a simmer-burner, for foods that come to the table at top-form (no over-cooking). Roll out a smokeless broiler, for perfect steaks with juices intact.

Look for "CP" on a Gas Range; it means Certified Performance

Help yourself to a Modern Gas Range. It makes it mighty easy to feed a family right.
