RICH MAIKOP OIL FIELDS MAY BE DYNAMITED

CANCER HAS ONE OF FINEST PEACH ORCHARDS IN THIS AREA; HEAVY RAINS RUINED 1942 CROP

At the tragic loss of so many other-choice peaches.

The rains washed away sprays as fast as they were applied and as a result they were at the mercy of what ever insect ravage came that way. Abundance of moisture multiplied the worms and insects.

Unlike many persons who try to get the most possible from an unfortunate venture that turns out badly, Mr. Spencer chose to maintain his reputation for quality rather than sell low quality fruit at good prices, just because of the great demand.

Strict grading was made and only the choicest pickings and selections were sold as good fruit. The culls were sold as such and customers were told the truth about the quality, with prices according.

Spencer still thinks commercial orchards of apples, pears and plums, with peaches predominating, are the best for farmers with land suited to fruit growth. Red sand and clay soils with plenty of sugar content in the soils, are especially suited to such fruits. He said many farmers and orchardists make the mistake of planting fruits that have no commercial demand or, owing to their texture, cannot be hauled from orchard to consumers without spoilage.

AIRPORT GROWS IN FAVOR

By CHARLES D. ROBERTS
Airport Clearance Officer.

There was a big crowd of local people at Cisco Municipal Airport last Sunday, making their first visit to the port, not realizing the many improvements that had been made at the grounds since it became the site for local flyer training and a stopping port for passing planes along this beam.

Yes, it is really surprising how the local interest is picking up. In fact, a private class of five, mid-age young local business men, will start training this coming week. They will soon be flying this own private planes, thus keeping up with modern progress in business and commercial transportation.

Many others took advantage of the $1.00 rate for flights over the city that are now being offered. Only safe, trusted pilots are used for this service.

From recent reports army planes will soon start coming in from Coleman on their cross-country training, using the Cisco airport as their northeast turning point. Ciscoans are invited to see them come in next week.

DR. LEE CLARK, JR., SON OF CISCO WOMAN, HAS BEEN ASSIGNED TO 650-BED HOSPITAL

M'CRARY QUIT T.-P. JOB TO JOIN MARINES

Billy Gerald McCrary, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan McCrary, who has been employed in the T. and P. ticket office at Abilene, has resigned his position and joined the United States marines—the hottest fighting contingent on earth.

McCrary, who was born and reared in Cisco and graduated from Cisco high school in 1939, went to Dallas Saturday for his examination.

FT. WORTH, Aug. 8.—The war and the rumblings of its beginnings have traced a devious path in the career of Dr. Lee Clark, Jr., of Jackson, Miss., grandson of the late Randolph Clark, one of the founders of Texas Christian University and son of Mrs. Randolph Lee Clark, Sr., of Cisco.

His research, as a youthful chemist for Du Pont after his graduation from the University of South Carolina, is aiding the war machine today in the field of alloys.

In Paris, as a resident surgeon in the American hospital, he heard Germans speak of the defects of the first World War and discuss the possibilities of the inevitable second conflagration. "Good Will" flights from London to Melbourne and air races outlined the aviation inferiority of the continent and pointed the way to an important future for long range bombers.

He saw the French, serene in the notion that their Maginot Line was an impregnable barrier. He wrote letters home which pointed to the signs and to the fact that not even the Maginot Line could stop an air armada.

Dr. Clark came back to America after a year, and became associated with the Mayo Clinic. There he did research with Dr. Randolph Lovelace on the oxygen mask for air pilots. They were faced with the problems of high altitude flying—blackouts—air sickness that pilots suffered at high altitudes.

This research—and all the credit goes to Dr. Lovelace, Dr. Clark emphasizes—has made possible the high altitude flights so important now on bombing forays.

Dr. Clark has been commissioned a captain with an assignment in surgery at the 650-bed hospital at the Air Force Technical Training School at Goldsboro, N. C., where he is scheduled to report next week. One of his air corps chiefs will be Dr. Lovelace, who is now in charge of oxygen research for the army air corps.

Dr. Clark's departure and that of Dr. John W. Worsham of San Antonio, ex-roommates at the Medical College of Virginia at Richmond, and later brothers-in-law, has kept the J. B. Lovejoy home on the Benbrook Road in a state of perpetual motion with some 20 assorted relatives on hand this week to tell the boys goodbye. Mrs. Lovejoy is a sister and a sister-in-law.

Dr. Clark married his medical school sweetheart, known professionally now as Dr. Bertha Davis. All her sisters-in-law say she's completely glamorous and unprofessional until she goes into action.

She couldn't come to the farewell party, but remained at their home in Jackson, Miss., with their two youngsters, aged 3 and 5. She studied with her husband in Paris, was in a French hospital there, and later was at Mayo's. She has been asked to return there, and she may do so, for the duration, Dr. Clark said.

And another brother-in-law, Dr. John C. Henthorne, (who was Dr. Clark's roommate, too) and who now is an eminent pathologist, will carry on the practice in Jackson. His wife is the former Miss Helen Clark.

Mrs. Randolph Lee Clark, Sr., of Cisco, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Mignon Clark, has returned from Fort Worth where she spent several days with her son, Dr. Lee Clark, Jr., whom she had not seen for about a year and a half.

The family group of some 20 persons were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Lovejoy at Benbrook Farm, near Fort Worth.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The war department announced Saturday the authorization of the following construction: An airforce installation in connection with Bryan Field, Bryan, Texas, to cost in excess of $2,000,000. An addition to the William Beaumont General Hospital, El Paso, to cost in excess of $2,000,000.

ALLRED A CISCO GUEST

Judge James V. Allred, aggressive candidate for the United States senate in the runoff with Senator W. Lee O'Daniel, arrived in Cisco at 8 o'clock last night and was met by a delegation of representative Ciscoans who were awaiting him in the lobby of the Laguna hotel.

After a few introductions, the distinguished guest was escorted to the roof garden of the hotel, where an appetizing dinner arranged for by J. E. Spencer, chairman of the Cisco Allred committee, awaited Judge Allred and the following invited guests: Mayor G. P. Mitcham, A. D. Anderson, Forrest D. Wright, S. H. Nance, George W. Downie, George Boyd, W. C. McDaniel, Nick Miller, J. L. Thornton, R. E. Grantham, R. N. Cluck, L. H. McCrea, W. H. LaRogue, E. L. Jackson, J. B. Pratt, Jesse Proctor, O. J. Russell, Pete Nance, W. J. Foxworth, P. R. Warwick, O. L. Stamey, Rev. Leslie W. Seymour, G. R. Kilpatrick and Dr. G. M. Stephenson.

In Fine Shape

The former governor of Texas and until recently federal judge, was in excellent physical condition when he arrived in Cisco, notwithstanding he had been on the go since early morning, with four full-time speeches behind him, together with several impromptu talks to audiences at wayside points between Seymour, Olney, Graham and Breckenridge. He came to Cisco direct from Breckenridge.

Forceful Speaker

Judge Allred was introduced by J. E. Spencer in a brief but comprehensive talk in which he emphasized the candidate's worth and ability as a man, saying his record as attorney general for two terms, governor for two terms and during his tenure as federal judge was above reproach and unassailable even by the professional politicians, who have persistently but unsuccessfully fought him whenever he offered for office.

After a few complimentary remarks directed at long-time Cisco and Eastland county friends, Judge Allred touched on the following salient points of his candidacy:

"The independent oil men are entitled to a higher price for their crude and, if elected, I promise that I will do my best to see that they get it. Many independent oil men already have been forced to the wall and others are facing ruin because of curtailed production and rising costs of everything they have to buy.

"I will also continue my efforts to have additional pipelines built to provide more outlets for Texas oil. Many will remember that, when governor of this great state, I sought additional pipelines, but my efforts at that time were blocked by the same interests now opposing my candidacy for the United States senate."

The speaker scored isolationism as the cause of the present war and altogether responsible for our unpreparedness when the treacherous Japanese struck at Pearl Harbor on December 7. He said the predicate for World War II was laid when a small group of isolationist senators prevented ratification of President Woodrow Wilson's World War I peace treaty.

That treaty was the sweetest dream of permanent peace since that of the Nazarene Himself. And, Allred added, we were warned by the far-seeing Wilson that its rejection would lead to another and more terrible war within 25 years. Despite this warning, Allred said, the isolationists blocked ratification and now the

RUSSIANS MAKING DETERMINED STAND IN CAUCASUS FOOTHILLS, BUT NAZI HORDE IS RELENTLESS

MOSCOW, Aug. 8. --- Red Army demolition squads stood ready today to blow up the great Maikop oil fields of the Caucasus to prevent them from falling into the hands of German forces which have broken Russian defenses at Armavir and are closing in upon Maikop from two sides.

The German break-through at Armavir, city of 80,000 and vital oil and pipeline junction on the Kuban river, threw the Russian defenders back upon the foothills of the Caucasus mountains and carried the Germans to within 60 miles of Maikop whose wells supply a great bulk of the Red air force's high-test aviation fuel.

(The German high command reported the capture of Armavir and a pounding drive on across the Laba river which is a tributary of the Kuban to capture the town of Kurgannaya which is only 30 miles east of Maikop and midway between the oil fields and Armavir).

Front-line advices reaching Moscow made it clear that the Red army under Marshal Semyon Timoshenko was prepared to lay waste to the Maikop fields at the enemy's approach.

The Maikop fields, together with those of Grozny, have produced 10 per cent of the Soviet union's oil.

The swift 100-mile southward drive of the German armored forces down to Armavir from the Byelo-Glina sector, accompanied by a steady advance of another column striking down upon Krasnodar farther to the west near the sea of Azov coast threatened to trap large Russian forces still fighting around Kushchevka.

Stiffening Russian resistance was said officially, however, to have stemmed at least for the time being the Germans' big pincer assault on Stalingrad industrial metropolis on the Volga.

Russian tanks and artillery threw back successive German attempts to storm across the Don in the Kletskaya sector about 70 miles northwest of Stalingrad and Red army lines were reported holding somewhere north of Kotelnikov to the south.

Fierce battles were said to be underway around Armavir with the Germans throwing masses of infantry, armored units, dive bombers and sub-machine gun infantry into the attempt to storm Maikop.

The Moscow press acknowledged that the Red armies, with their back to the Caucasus mountains, were in a grave position and that the Russians including Don and Kuban Cossacks still battling around Kuchchevka might not be able to escape eastward.

Simultaneous with the drive on Maikop it was believed that the Germans would strike out to the southeast, following along the main railroad paralleling the Caucasus foothills.

They probably will attempt to reach the Prokhladnenski railroad junction about 165 miles southeast of Armavir and 40 miles southeast of Georgievsk, where the line branches down to Ordjonikidze and southeast to the Caspian port of Makhach Kala.

On the Germans' northern flank south of Voronezh on the Don to the northwest of Stalingrad Russian forces were said in mid-day dispatches to have encircled several communities on the west bank of the Don and enlarged their bridgeheads in the face of three strong Nazi counter-attacks.

For the moment, Russian tanks had checked the southern claw of

HIS FIRST SPEECH OF RUNOFF CAMPAIGN, O'DANIEL PREDICTED G. 22 VICTORY BY BIG VOTE

FT. WORTH, Aug. 8.—Senator O'Daniel opened his runoff campaign for re-election here today with a declaration of deep interest in the effort and the prediction he would go back into a majority that would break the power of "pro-politicians" and "the interests" in Texas.

Speaking in a fifteen-minute broadcast he declared he would not indulge in mud slinging and referred frequently to Judge Allred as "my yes-man."

Seizing his opponent for a withdrawal in the runoff of the big O'Daniel margin in the first primary, O'Daniel declared it recited that a second hard election would be brought to the people at a time many Texas families were being saddened by bitter fighting from the fighting fronts.

Judge Allred with changing his "termites-eaten" platform in an effort to overcome O'Daniel's lead in the first race. "My yes-man opponent is about labor racketeers," he said. "Now he wants to stop union initiation fees which dues to $1 a month."

Fort Worth June 19, he said, Allred was one of the labor leaders. "Now he had a change of heart," he said, and wants to join the unions.

Speaking to his friends to get them working diligently for the runoff, O'Daniel predicted a victory over "this gang of us" as forever would end the dominance of political racketeering in this state."

O'Daniel said that despite his fund of apparently unlimited size and despite the united opposition of special interests, the rank and file of his campaign have given him over 49 per cent of the first primary vote in a lead in 215 out of 254 precincts.

"My yes-man opponent," he said, "got only thirty-four out of 254 precincts."

O'Daniel declared that many had written him "bubbling

RECENT REGISTRATIONS

J. C. Pace, Jr., wife and son, Sweetwater; flying an Aeronca Chief, stopped over enroute to Fort Worth.

Marvin L. Beuck, Burbank, Calif., a short stop, flying a Columbia-50 from LaMetro airport, Los Angeles, to Love Field, Dallas.

Lt. M. J. Carroll, Rising Star, is in to spend Sunday at home. Met him in a car. Lt. Carroll is stationed at Lubbock. Flew a small Taylor Craft plane.

R. B. Cowden, Midland, was in for a short stop, flying a Stearman Hammond pusher type plane. He was taking the ship to Fort Worth to be overhauled, then to the Atlantic coast for patrol under the C. A. P. to help run down subs in the shipping lanes. When this funny looking plane landed here Sunday it brought out about 100 cars in addition to the usual turnout. Some came who had never visited the port before.

Monday, a big Stinson 5-passenger plane made a stop from Helena, Ark.; was carrying four army instructors on a pleasure trip west, between classes. They were eastern boys and this was their first trip west. They liked the country.

Alex Howard and R. D. Tyler of Abilene made a stop; flying an Aeronca plane. Cleared for Stamford.

H. C. (Chief) Brown with Joe Coulter made a business trip to Coleman, flying Brown's private plane, a Porterfield, which is the red plane seen flying over Cisco. Brown went through a class last year and is considered an extra good pilot by the instructor and the boys at the airport.

Four young men of Baird have bought the silver plane, known as the J-2, from Jack Lauderdale, who is now taking an instructor's course at Abilene. He will soon be training the boys for fighting "overthere." The young men who bought the plane are E. L. Dunlap, W. A. Banks, Bruce Bell and E. B. Brown, Jr. This ship is carried at the airport as the "Baird Flying Club." These men are taking instructions under the able leadership of J. D. Higgins of Fort Worth, who is now connected with the flying school here. (He is young, good looking and unmarried).

Instructor Joe Coulter has under his wing John (Ace) Harvey of Eastland, who has about 25 hours of flying to date. He is making a real pilot and will soon have his private certificate and has promised A. D. Anderson he

PINING FOR ACTION

Ernie Pyle says the American soldiers in Ireland have only one kick. They like the food, they even like their officers better than in the last war. They have enough money and they don't mind physical inconvenience. What they don't like is just waiting around.

The soldiers are kept busy, so they are not growing soft or flabby. They just think they've been trained enough now, and they want to get the job done. Because though Ireland is all right, America is better and they now appreciate their home towns and associations as never before. They want to fight. They want to conquer Hitler. Then they want to go back to the U. S. A.

Kipling had a word for it, speaking of the married men in the queen's service at an earlier day: "He wants to do his little bit, and he wants to go home to his tea."

Well, who can blame them? It is fine that they are not grumbling, but itching to get after their proper business of winning the war.

STEEL AND GUILT

Louisiana seems to be getting religion. At least, that preliminary step in the process known as "conviction of sin" seems to have come to some of its people. In the days of the incredible Huey Long, black markets would probably have been taken in stride, near or no war. Huey and his gang were doing no wronging about the public good. But now the Higginses, who are trying to finish building a plant for the making of many boats, and who cannot get any more steel to do it with and have to shut up shop—those Higginses know black markets are bad. They are telling the world that their methods have been legal, but the markets, nevertheless, are black and wicked.

It's a fantastic tale, and to anyone who had not heard the equally fantastic stories of business in the last war, it would be incredible. It's bad, but at least now Louisiana knows it. A good many of those warehouses, were in other states. Do their citizens, too, feel the pang of guilty conscience? Or is it just possible that Americans in general are arriving at a comfortable conviction of other people's sin?

BARTERING INDIA

So India goes bargaining again! She bargains with a knife at her throat, willing to give up the substance of freedom for the shadow of treachery, willing to sell her birthright for a mess of pottage, willing to let an aged dreamer of cloudy and mystic dreams decide her fate in a world of guns and bayonets.

Poor, foolish India! If England were to let her get away with this illusion, how terrible her fate would be!

Fortunately, Britain is realistic, has had long experience in Indian affairs, and like a wise parent, will doubtless come down hard on a rambunctious child for its own and the family's good.

BETTER SOLDIERS

The Americans who fought the last war were good, but the men fighting in this war are better. They have had better nourishment and better education. Thus on the whole they are now taller, stronger, more intelligent and better for war, as they likewise are for peace.

ONE WHO REFORMED

Because Rollie Hensley, baseball player, reformed, he is now sitting pretty. This sounds like a copy-book story, but is none the less true.

A few years ago Rollie was admittedly a good catcher, but one that few managers wanted on his team. It was the old story; he could not leave drink alone. His escapades were the story of the American League. It was actually true that he was unable to do without drink. It was his master, he knew it, and wanted to be free from it.

Then somehow he got in touch with Alcoholics Anonymous, that society of reformed drunkards which delights in adding to its numbers. Its members do not preach nor convert, they interest themselves only in a man who wants to stop drinking but cannot. How they do it, no one knows, but time and again they have made teetotalers out of the heaviest drinkers. They made one out of Hensley.

The other day he seemed to have come to the end of his big league career. Then the New York Yankees, baseball's top dogs, found themselves in desperate need of a catcher. Willing to take anyone, they took Hensley. Now he is due for a share in the world's series money, three years after drink had left him on the ash-heap. It was worth $50,000 for Rollie Hensley to reform.

Some copy-book stories are true.

entire world is once more baptized in blood.

The mistakes of the last war must not be repeated," Allred declared, "and to guarantee that they won't be, there must not be one drop of isolationist blood left in the United States."

President Roosevelt sought to rehabilitate the nation's defenses from the first year he took office. Allred said, but he was opposed at every turn by isolationists.

"They denounced him as a warmonger when he called attention to the war-like preparations of the aggressor nations," he said. "They were unable to prevent passage of the Selective Service Act, but they did succeed in inserting a clause in the law which said our boys could not fight outside of the Western Hemisphere."

Allred interpreted that clause to mean that American soldiers could not fire a shot until our own shores were invaded.

"If it had not been for that isolationist interference with President Roosevelt's defense program," he said, "MacArthur could have had 200,000 more fully equipped soldiers in the Philippines, and if he had had them the Japs never would have dared to attack."

This brought cheers from the crowd.

Allred recalled the isolationist opposition to extension of the Selective Service Act just a year ago this month.

"Just a year ago this week," he declared, "men stood on the floor of the United States senate and denounced Roosevelt as a warmonger and this bill as the will of a dictator. The bill finally passed with a majority of one single vote. That encouraged our enemies and the Japanese attacked just four months later."

The speaker called for the drafting of a "cotton charter" to secure the farmers of Texas a full return for their labor.

"We have an Atlantic charter of human liberties to serve as a foundation for world peace at the end of this war," he said, "so why not a cotton charter to develop new uses for cotton?"

He urged development of the charter idea to the point where farmers may raise all the cotton they can, and markets would be found for their product.

"There never is too much cotton," he pointed out. "The trouble is that the people who need it simply can't buy it, and that is where the federal government must help in a constructive way."

Declaring that the forgotten men of the war effort, Allred renewed his demand for a minimum price of 25 cents per pound for cotton during the war.

JAF ATTACK NEAR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Military experts expressed belief today that the long-expected Japanese attack on Siberia may be made soon unless the Germans suffer sudden, major reverses in their battle for the Caucasus.

Rep. Warren G. Magnuson, Democrat of Washington, said in Seattle last night that Japan and Russia already are fighting an undeclared war and it was "common knowledge" that the Japanese recently sank several Russian ships in the Pacific.

A CALL TO DUTY

The challenge is coming clear and strong to every man in Cisco to enlist in the DEFENSE PROGRAM, which just NOW is to BUY WAR STAMPS AND BONDS.

AND BUY SYSTEMATICALLY—EACH MONTH!

The armies of dictators are marching steadily onward --- and that means steadily toward the liberties of our own country which they expect to overthrow, just as they have ravaged those of other nations, coming in their path of destructiveness.

We must rally around our own Defense Leaders, giving them our cooperation --- and for us who remain at home, it means furnishing the money with which to carry on --- to buy food, arms, ammunition, build tanks, ships, war planes and big guns.

We can all help by buying War Stamps and Bonds systematically --- regularly, not just a few, but a regular schedule of buying each month --- a certain part of our earnings --- 10% of our earnings as a minimum --- more if possible.

Winning this war is no child's play or morning exercise --- it is a man's job with the enemy winning all the scores thus far. Overwhelming mass production --- greater than our enemies can muster, is our only possible chance for ultimate victory --- that means billions in dollars. Cisco must and will do her part. Start Now;

If It's to Build We Have It
BURTON-LINGO LUMBER CO.

Bill's a bigger man than his dad was in '17

...and ELECTRIC POWER, too, has grown to Meet the Wartime Needs of 1942!

Plenty of Electricity on Hand
WASHINGTON, July 22. (AP)—J. A. Krug, chief of the power branch of the War Production Board, expressed confidence today that war production would not be crippled by a shortage of electric power. "We have sufficient electric power," he said, "to meet all the requirements of war production and for essential civilian needs, if used wisely—as far as we can see ahead."

WAR DEPARTMENT figures show that today's average soldier is nearly an inch taller and ten pounds heavier than in 1917—a great gain for one generation and a real tribute to the men of science and the men of industry who helped build Bill's husky frame.

We're glad electric service had a hand in it.

Food experts discovered new vitamins and better diets for Bill; doctors developed new serums, drugs and healing techniques; and electric research worked out new and better ways to refrigerate... preserve... his food so it would be fresher, safer, cheaper.

Even before Bill was born, electric servants freed his mother of much household drudgery—so that she and her children might be healthier and happier.

At the same time that the electric industry was helping Bill to develop into a stronger, healthier man than his dad, it also was expanding to provide the power vitally needed in 1942. In back of Bill today is plenty of electricity for building tanks and planes, guns and ships... power to run the factories making weapons with which Bill will win the war!

Actually, this country now has five times more electric power than we had in 1917.

And over 90 per cent of ALL the nation's commercially generated electricity is being provided by companies like this institution... companies that developed the American way, free to work and create things that men and women want and need for everybody's benefit.

This company "grew up" that way—organized by a few men with foresight to see West Texas' great need for ample, cheap electric power. Today, it represents the savings of thousands of small stockholders, operating under good business management, regulated by the government, paying taxes, and providing excellent service at low cost.
