SHORTAGE OF LABOR DELAYS 3D WATER TANK

The city commission decided to take steps to eliminate fire hazards in the city limits, caused by tall grass and weeds that have become inflammable because of extreme drought during the past month. Monthly accounts were also discussed and passed at last night's meeting of the commissioners. It was brought out that the delay in completion of the College Hill water reservoir was caused by shortage of labor for this kind of work. Some other matters of detail nature were discussed and acted upon. Commissioners present at the meeting were George Boyd, A. V. Clark, H. S. Drumwright, C. J. Kleiner, Neil Lane, Mayor G. P. Mitcham and City Secretary George W. Downie.

WANTED: 6,000 MEN

Eastland county enlisted three men for the United States navy during the first week of an intensive recruiting campaign to be conducted in the Dallas district during August and September. The Eastland county quota for August is 28 and the same quota will be assigned for September, according to C. C. Wylie, in charge of the navy recruiting station at Abilene.

This is a drive for 6,000 recruits for the navy in north Texas and it will mean that crews have been provided for more than thirty destroyers.

The Cisco American Legion committee which is helping in the recruiting is as follows:

Newspaper and Publicity—Doc Cabaness, Hershel Lyle and W. Jack Anderson.

Advertising—W. R. Huestis, Rex W. Moore and Charles D. Robart.

Finance—Paul Poe, H. A. Bible and James F. Wright.

H. SCHMIDT WAS IN CHARGE OF LION PROGRAM

Lion Harry Schmidt had charge of the program at today's luncheon at the Lions club and introduced Rotarian R. L. Ponsler who had been invited to repeat his talk of last week at the Rotary club on the subject of aerial warfare as outlined in the book, "Victory Through Air Power."

Two new Lions were brought into the club and their initiations will be held soon. They are Harvey Thurman, service station owner, and Carter Belew, Laguna hotel manager. P. R. Warwick was a visitor, the guest of Jack Anderson.

Mr. Ponsler talked along the line of his address to Rotarians last week, saying he had brought along the book and if he forgot what he wanted to say, he would just read from the book.

He incidentally mentioned that Bill Donohoe, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Donohoe, of Cisco, was driving a big B-24 bomber out in California. He showed other pictures as brought out in the book quoted from.

Rotarian Ponsler reiterated his statement of last week that a nation must control the air if it expected to win future wars, and he added that he very much doubted that the allies would form the second front until they had air superiority. The fact that land based seaplanes were superior to sea based fighters, was emphasized.

At a directors meeting following adjournment, it was decided to table the motion to make a drive for donations for equipment for the Camp Bowie hospital as sought by Red Cross representatives.

LITTLE TOWN NAMED JOSHUA DOES ITS BIT

JOSHUA, Aug. 11.—Joshua's 85 men in the armed forces—more than 10 per cent of the town's population—were honored at a Jack Landers Day program here Tuesday night.

Will Scott of Cleburne, head of the Johnson county war bond sales committee, was in charge of the program at the high school auditorium. Mrs. M. W. Crowder, Sr., sold war bonds and stamps in the crowd of more than 400 present, the Cleburne high school band played and Emmett Brown, Cleburne high school superintendent, and W. W. Galbreath, Joshua superintendent, made the principal speeches.

A service flag with 48 stars hung in the auditorium as evidence of the Joshua high school's participation in the war.

Joshua's heroes include Roger C. Simpson, naval aviation machinist, who was with Lieut. E. H. O'Hare when he downed six enemy planes in a single day near the Gilbert Islands; Maj. Murray W. Crowder, Jr., with a bombardment group in Australia, and Chester Maxey, who is in India.

Recognition was paid to two Joshua boys, James Boyle and Delbert McClanahan, who have not been heard from in three months.

Joshua, by the way, is the birthplace of Silliman Evans, well known Texas newspaper man who married a Cisco girl, Miss Lucille McCrea and who is now publisher of the Chicago Daily Sun and the Nashville Tennessean.

MARINES ADVANCE TULAGI

American Marines, together with parachute troops, were believed to be fighting their way into the interiors of three main islands of the Japanese-held Solomons today against fierce enemy resistance on the sixth day of the American Pacific offensive.

Unofficial reports from Australia said the Commando-trained leathernecks were "making progress" and appeared to be established firmly in the Tulagi harbor area.

There were no further communications, however, to throw light on the struggle in which considerable American as well as Japanese losses must be reckoned with, because of the difficulties involved in such an island invasion.

Unofficial reports from the southwest Pacific battlefront gave a picture of the American Marines battling their way inland on the Solomons—with bayonets and grenades—under savage Japanese air bombings and machine-gun strafings.

The Japanese were believed to be putting up a desperate delaying battle, while they rushed reinforcements of troops and planes to the battle zone from their other Pacific bases.

The difficulties of the occupation lay partly in the fact that the Americans had the guns of their warships but no land-based fighter planes to protect their attack and their land-based bombers were compelled to strike from 1,000 or more miles away. The Japanese, on the other hand, had "Zero" fighters and bombers in the Solomons and other air forces in occupied islands nearby.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's American and Australian air squadrons continued to support the Solomons attack, smashing at Japanese bases along a 2,700-mile front to prevent a diversion of enemy air strength to the Solomons.

Striking the Japanese in New Guinea, the Allied planes shot down two Zero fighters and damaged others in an air battle over the little island of Sumari, boosting their four-day bag of enemy planes to a total of 26. The Japanese airdrome at Rabaul in the Bismark Islands northwest of the Solomons were attacked at night and Australian bombers struck at Dutch-Portuguese Timor, setting fire to two Japanese ships and bombing an unidentified warship.

MRS. BRANTON BURIED TODAY, LONG BRANCH

Funeral services were held today at 4 p.m. at Rising Star for Mrs. Emma Branton, 56, wife of Walter Branton, who died in a Ranger hospital Tuesday. Burial was in the Long Branch cemetery following the service in Rising Star.

Deceased was a niece of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Poe of Cisco, who were in attendance at the services. Others going from Cisco were Mrs. J. E. Spencer, Mrs. Paul Poe and Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Poe.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Branton is survived by eight children. One son, Garland Branton, former Eastland county treasurer, preceded her in death. Also surviving are two brothers, Dr. W. S. Poe, Eastland, and Jim Poe, Fort Worth; and two sisters, Mrs. F. B. Lovett, Eastland, and Mrs. Virgil Bean, of Plains, Texas.

GERMANS ARE FIGHTING FIRES RUSSIANS IGNITED IN THEIR OIL WELLS AS THEY RETREATED

MOSCOW, Aug. 12. — German armored forces, advancing through towns and fields laid waste by a Soviet scorched-earth retreat, swept into the Caucasus mountains today and drove Red army defenders back upon the highway center of Mikoyan Shakhur, barely 150 miles from the Turkish frontier.

Every occupied city, town and hamlet in the North Caucasus was reported in flames or in ruins today, as the out-numbered Russians fought desperately and thus far vainly to stop relentless German drives toward their Black Sea bases on the west and the valuable oil wells of Grozny on the east.

(Indications that the Russians had fired their own oil wells came from radio Vichy, which broadcast that "fire fighting armies" were marching behind German troops in the Caucasus, "fighting fires that the Russians had ignited in their oil wells.")

(The Germans claimed today that they had taken Slayvanskaya, 20 miles northwest of Krasnodar and 30 miles from the Black Sea mouth of the Kuban river)

The Russian position in the North Caucasus, it was said, appeared to be irretrievable.

What the Russians had not destroyed in their scorched earth campaign, the Germans now savagely demolished. The fertile Kuban Valley, a few weeks ago filled with golden, waving wheat, tasseling corn and peaceful Cossack villages, was in waste.

Not a hamlet, it was said, escaped the torch of the Germans, apparently venting their anger because the Russians had destroyed most of their crops.

The Soviet noon communique reported Russian forces engaged in defensive battles with a numerically superior enemy in the Krasnodar area, some 65 miles from Maikop, which the Germans had stormed.

"The enemy is bringing up reserves and in spite of huge losses incessantly attacking," the communique asserted.

In the Maikop area and around Cherkess, 175 miles northwest of the oil fields of Grozny, where the Germans had commenced a new drive toward Grozny and the Caspian Sea, the communique reported "intense fighting with enemy tanks and motorized infantry."

Stubborn battles were reported in the areas of Kletskaia and northeast of Koteinikovski, 75 miles northwest and 90 miles southwest of Stalingrad, respectively, but the communique indicated German pincers aimed at industrial Stalingrad from those points had not gained.

Dispatches from Kletskaia said Russian tanks had surprised troop concentrations behind the German lines and plowed into them, grinding German soldiers beneath their treads. The Russians made a surprise attack after getting behind German motorized infantry which had penetrated Russian positions. It was not made clear, however, whether the penetration was recent, or one reported several days ago.

DEAD BUND

It was reassuring to read the other day, in the Cincinnati Free Press, a German language newspaper, the editorial statement that the German Bund had "ingloriously and completely disappeared from American life." Also that the demise "should have occurred long ago." Such a declaration, from such a source, is fitting dismissal of a phase of American life and citizenship which should have vanished with the last world war, but which survived to some extent in American life until lately.

Many German-American immigrants and their descendants hoped that bonds of language and culture between the old country and the new could survive and strengthen again, but these hopes proved vain. Hitler's Germany has nothing in common with the culture and spirit that once led Americans of many origins to Germany as a shrine. Culture, humanism, music, art, decency in public and private life, civility, cooperation with other nations and cultures throughout the world, all these are gone. Intelligent sons of the Germany that was can not associate with the Germany that exists today.

RAIN AND FREIGHT

Water levels on the Great Lakes and their outlets are up this year more than a foot and still rising. Presumably a large area around that region, including much of northern United States and southern Canada, is starting a new cycle of rainfall, after a comparatively drought of several years.

It is a good thing for the vast water-borne traffic of the Great Lakes, whose shipments of iron ore and other materials from the Superior region this year is expected to reach about 160 million tons. The higher the water rises, the more ore and other freight can be carried.

The rainfall is good for forests and crops, too, which are making a fine growth. But unfortunately men to handle the timber and crops are scarce. As for the increased water sports of the Great Lakes region, there is not much left of them now.

MERCHANT JACKS

The boys of the merchant marine want to know why they're not considered good enough to get the benefit of the USO. They make a good case.

It seems that no one not in uniform is allowed in the sacred precincts of the service clubs. But the boy who sails on the boat that carries motors and batteries and airplane parts to the troops overseas risks his life all the time. Surely he is serving his country in her war, and serving it importantly.

Couldn't these men be given arm bands that would be recognized? The old sailors who do not want such entertainment as is furnished the boys of the fighting forces would not be likely to ask admission, but the boys of the same age as the soldiers and sailors for whom the service clubs are maintained are just such boys as these others. Would it not be a good idea to let them have their chance at the doughnuts and cigars, the writing paper and dances?

RECOVERING STEEL

There is a plan afoot for an organization to get at the business of recovering steel for war purposes. The idea behind it is that there must be a great deal of idle steel tied up in wholly or partly fabricated form in plants which had ordered it to make stoves, baby buggies, sewing machines, refrigerators, dishwashers and other things whose manufacture has been frozen. It is believed that over a million tons may be turned up from such sources.

Steel is developing dangerous shortages, and the season for bringing the iron ore down the lakes by water freight will come to an end before many months have passed. Any steel thus

MASONIC PRECEPTS

Speaking to visiting Masons in the armed forces at a dinner sponsored by Ancient Craft Lodge No. 647, Des Moines, Ia., Charles Grabl, adjutant general of the state of Iowa, recalled the proud past of the fraternity in our national life. "Since the ideals of Masonry are in full accord with the democratic ideals which make our form of government what it is, I am humbly proud to be an American Mason," he stated. "With this conviction, I want nothing more for myself than that I may live up to the precepts of Masonry in so far as it is humanly possible for me to do so."

Stating that Masons were willing to protect their country with their lives, he continued: "War veterans' organizations to which I have the honor to belong emphasize the virtues of Justice, Freedom and Democracy; Masonry holds aloft Liberty, Equality and Fraternity."

"Liberty—freedom from external restraint or compulsion—opposed to slavery, serfdom, bondage, subjection.

"Equality—likeness in status.

"Fraternity—state of being brothers. . . .

"As an American, a soldier and a Mason I take pride in knowing that Masonry has had the consecrated faith of so many great American minds in the military and out. Outstanding American generals whom I may call brothers are George Washington, Andrew Jackson, John J. Pershing and Douglas MacArthur, to name a few. Among other brothers who fought for American independence were Lafayette, Von Stueben, De Kalb, Paul Revere, Sullivan, Putnam, Jefferson and Hamilton. . . ."

He pointed with pride to the fact that both Benjamin Franklin and John Marshall were Masons, and that more than half the signers of the Declaration of Independence and delegates to the Constitutional Convention were members of the craft.

Turning to contemporary problems and the task before us, Mr. Grabl said: "We were and still are altogether too tolerant of enemies within. No Mason worthy of the name believes in Nazism, Fascism, Communism, or any other ism which would destroy Americanism, but too many of us were too prone to feel that regardless of what might happen elsewhere nothing could seriously disturb us. . . ."

"We have a long and glorious tradition to live up to, a tradition of intense passion for freedom, of love of fair play and justice, of daring to fight for the right, of valor to stand up against odds, of boldness to pioneer along frontier trails, be the hardships and obstacles what they may. . . ."

"Our American traditions were established by Washington and his indomitable continental at Valley Forge; immortalized by the defenders of the Alamo; put into deathless expression by Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg, and now are being emblazoned on the pages of contemporary history by the heroes of Corregidor and Bataan. . . ."

"Masonry and Masons have had their full share in making America what it is; I know Masons will meet every challenge in the crisis with which our country is confronted, and I am confident that Masons will be among the most useful Americans in the titanic task of reconstruction in the peace which is to be."—Scottish Rite News Bureau.

stored may well be turned to the war effort.

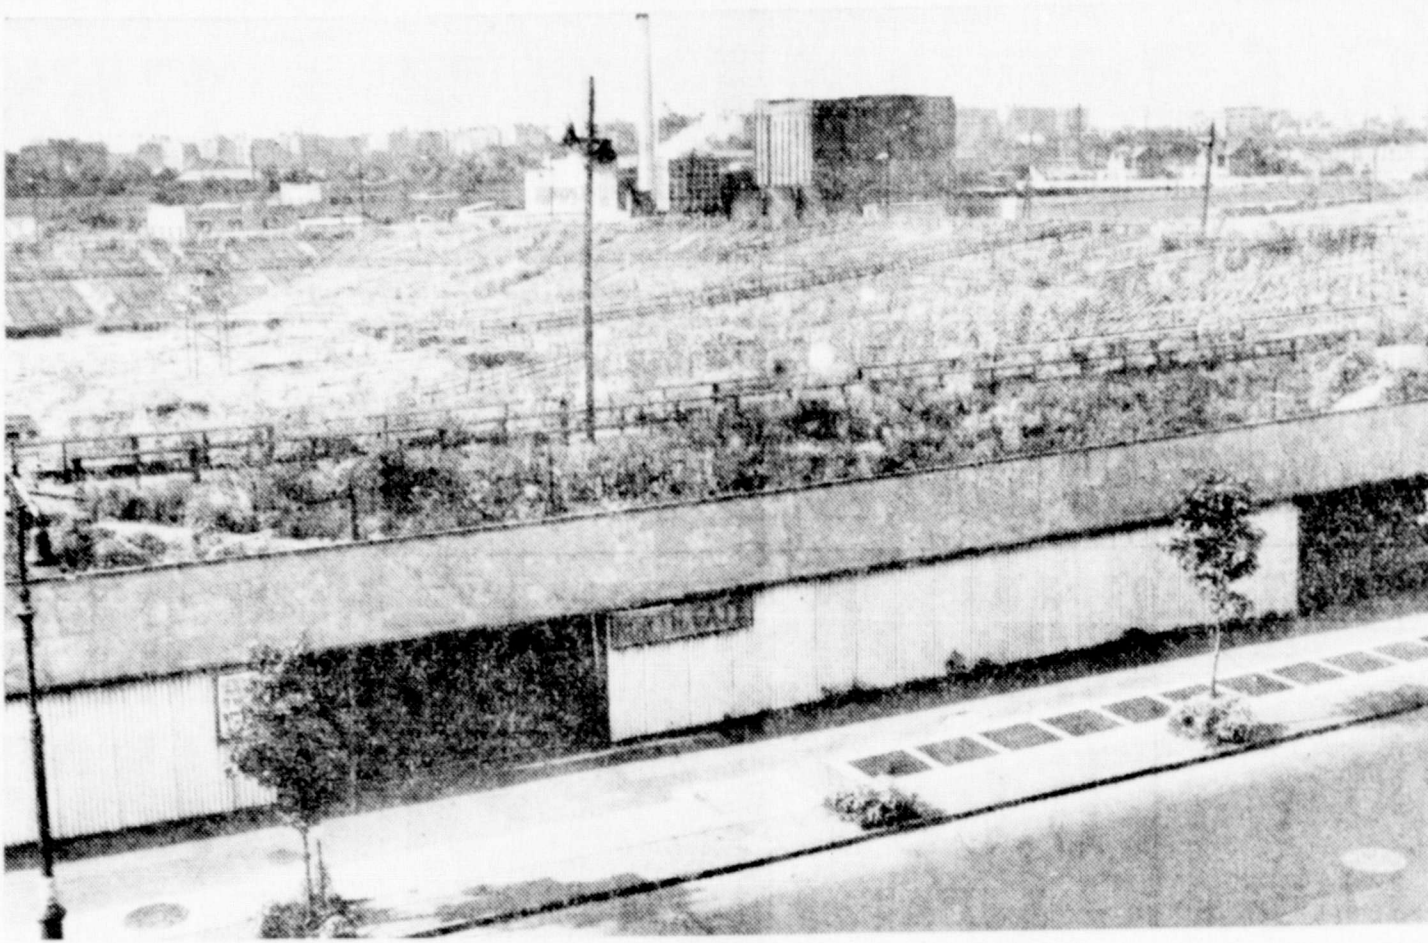

The demand for scrap grows louder. Steel must come before victory and peace. Wherever it is hiding, it must come out and go to war.

MAYOTTE

Mayotte is another unfamiliar name which has been brought to public attention. It is one of the Comoro Islands, northwest of Madagascar, and like Madagascar, a colony owned by the Vichy French. It has just been seized by the British to stop Japanese submarines which had been doing deadly work from this obscure island in the Indian Ocean.

Mayotte first appears on a map drawn in 1527. It has hardly been better known since then than when first discovered. Arabs, the Sakalava tribes of Madagascar, and the French have been its owners. Like so many other places, its value lies less in itself than in its location. Lying athwart the Mozambique channel by which most traffic runs from East Africa to India and Ceylon, it is important that it should be owned by our friends. That is why the British have just taken it away from the Vichy French. Its seizure is a distant forward step toward the elimination of the submarine menace.

Saboteur: One who cripples a plant for three months. Great men: Those who argue and hold up production for three months.

BOXING BOWL TO BE JUNKED—Never much of a success, Madison Square Garden's outdoor "Bowl," at Sunnyside, Long Island, is destined for demolition. Its metal will be used in the national war effort. Bowl's seating capacity was 60,000.

GREAT-GRANDSON OF GENERAL STONEWALL JACKSON

CAPTAIN THOMAS J. J. CHRISTIAN, JR.—In tradition, it may be said, Stonewall Jackson's famous "foot cavalry" has taken wings. The tradition is borne by the Confederate leader's great-grandson, Thomas Jonathan Jackson Christian, Jr., recently promoted to the rank of captain in the Air Corps. Born in 1915, the son of Brigadier General Thomas J. J. Christian, the young officer was graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1939 and the following year was transferred at his request from the Field Artillery to the Air Corps. Captain Christian received his "wings" at Kelly Field, Texas, and after serving as a flying instructor at Randolph Field was ordered to duty in April 1941 at Clark Field in the Philippines. He has since been assigned to an unannounced overseas station.

ARE YOU MOVING AWAY?
On account of war time conditions more of our people are being dislocated than ever before. Some are moving out, others are moving in. If you own property and want to sell, most any buyer will first want an abstract. Many sales are lost because the title is not up in good shape, or down to date, at the moment the buyer is ready. Be prepared; get your order in to us today.

"Can I buy a Gas-steam Radiator, without a priority?"

Yes, if you need it

Steam Heat Without a Basement
Imagine the pleasure of steam heat on a small investment. These Radiators make their own thrifty steam, and you may have them vented or unvented.

Also Floor Furnaces, Circulators, Radiant Heaters
If you positively need them, you can buy them now

Of course we're going to be short on heaters! We've got to stop the enemy, and it takes that metal for ships and planes. But you can buy right now from the heater stock on hand, for those houses that have no heating at present. (Also, you can buy a Gas Range, if you haven't one). Down Payment, Monthly Terms.

Get ready for a war-time winter, with a house that's healthfully warm. Have you been wanting modern built-in heaters? . . . Floor Furnaces, Gas-steam Radiators, or Circulators? They were built to last for many years; they add definitely to the sale value of a place; and when you have a vented firebox, it means no sweating walls. With your cheap Natural Gas, the operating cost is especially economical. Simple installation, in houses old or new.
