COST OF VICTORY

The buyer who has paid $18.75 for a war bond thinks that he has done something. So he has often at a considerable sacrifice. And yet he has not made a dent on the urgent needs of this war.

No fewer than 18,667 buyers of war bonds each, according to war department figures recently released, are needed to meet the cost of just one flying fortress. It will take 8,000 buyers to pay for one navy fighting plane. And one flying fortress will not go very far over Germany or in the Pacific.

People must just make up their minds that this is an expensive war, and that to carry it on will cost till it hurts. Hurt or not, there are no two ways about it. The war must go on until it ends in complete victory.

LIQUOR HOLIDAY

So they're going to quit making hard liquor. The war production board says "the manufacture of whiskey, gin and other beverage spirits will cease by Nov. 1."

It is hoped that this announcement will not send millions of worried citizens to the liquor shops to buy everything in sight. That would be unnecessary procedure for their own good. Hard liquor now on hand to last for about five years at the normal rate of consumption. But people buying as they are measure may have to be taken to check liquor points.

PACIFIC JOE

"The Pacific Ocean theater, generally east of the longitude of Singapore," says Admiral Ernest J. King, boss of the navy, "has been made the United States area of strategic responsibility. Consequently we have a large job on our hands considering what we have to work with. Some of our critics would have us do everything everywhere, all at once. It simply can't be done. We have to judge. We are confronted with the question, how to do the best we can with what we've got. We have to find the answer to this question daily. Where do we go from here?"

To realize the magnitude of that "Pacific Ocean theater" it is well to look at a globe-map. The theater sees at a glance that the theater of action covers not only the whole Pacific ocean but all its land areas. That means Australia, the East Indies, the Philippines, Japan, the Chinese war zone, the Alaskan Islands and the Pacific front of Siberia. It's a job enough for any navy—and only half the American navy can be used on it.

MEAT RATIONING

So meat is to be rationed in this country. But, before Americans start picturing themselves as martyrs, it may be well to digest a few simple facts.

If there is any privation in this rationing, it will be in the imagination of meat-eaters. The cut in consumption, which is to come when the authorities get around to it, is expected to bring the weekly meat consumption per person down to 2 1/2 pounds. And that is said to be just about the average in this country during the last ten years.

The fact, then, is that the meat supply of this nation is not being changed perceptibly, in spite of the immense requirements of the fighting forces. Americans will continue eating more meat than any other people in the world, except possibly Argentina. Down there, where the big steers grow an average weight of 1,000 to 1,200 pounds, a square foot of steak, two inches thick, But while we are on that subject, the Daily Press suggests that the government investigate and find out what has happened to the once-thriving industry of breaking fat hams. For the past two years very little meat has been obtainable, yet the price has advanced steadily.

WAR BOOM COMES TO CANADIAN BIG TIMBER

HELPING DAD CAULK LUMBERJACK SHOES

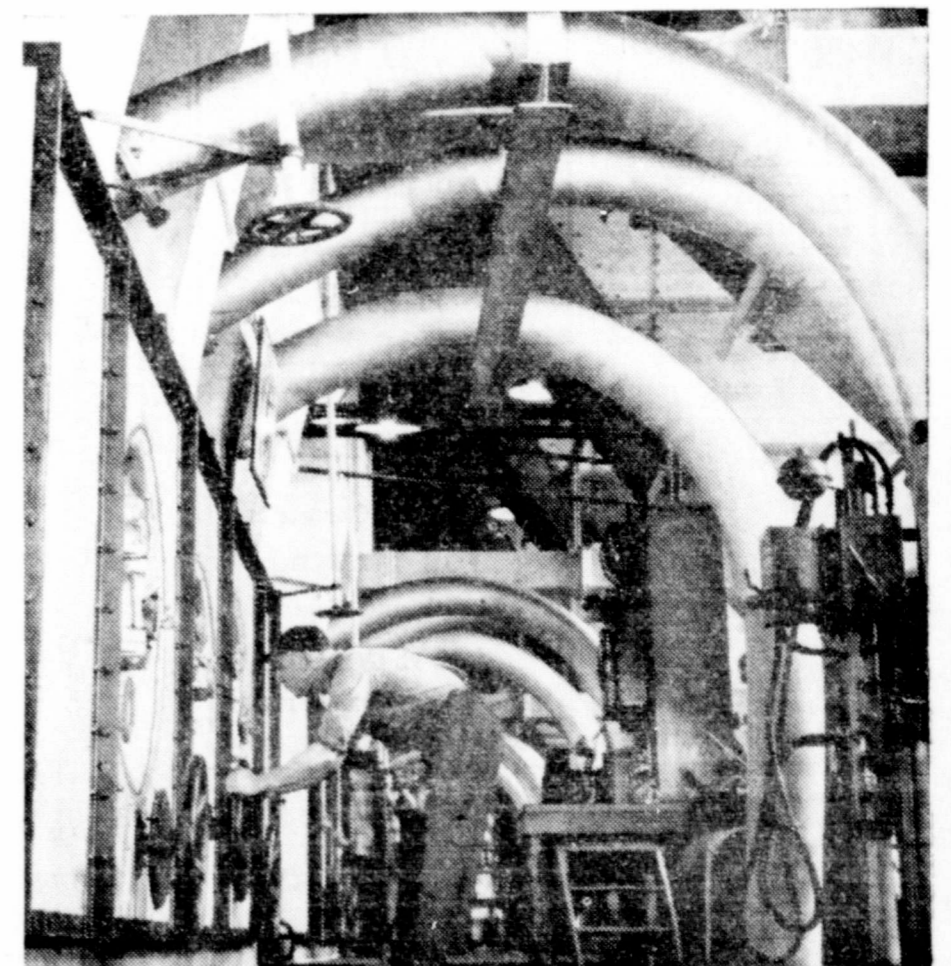

A FOREST RANGER KEEPS LOVELY VIGIL FROM TOWER.

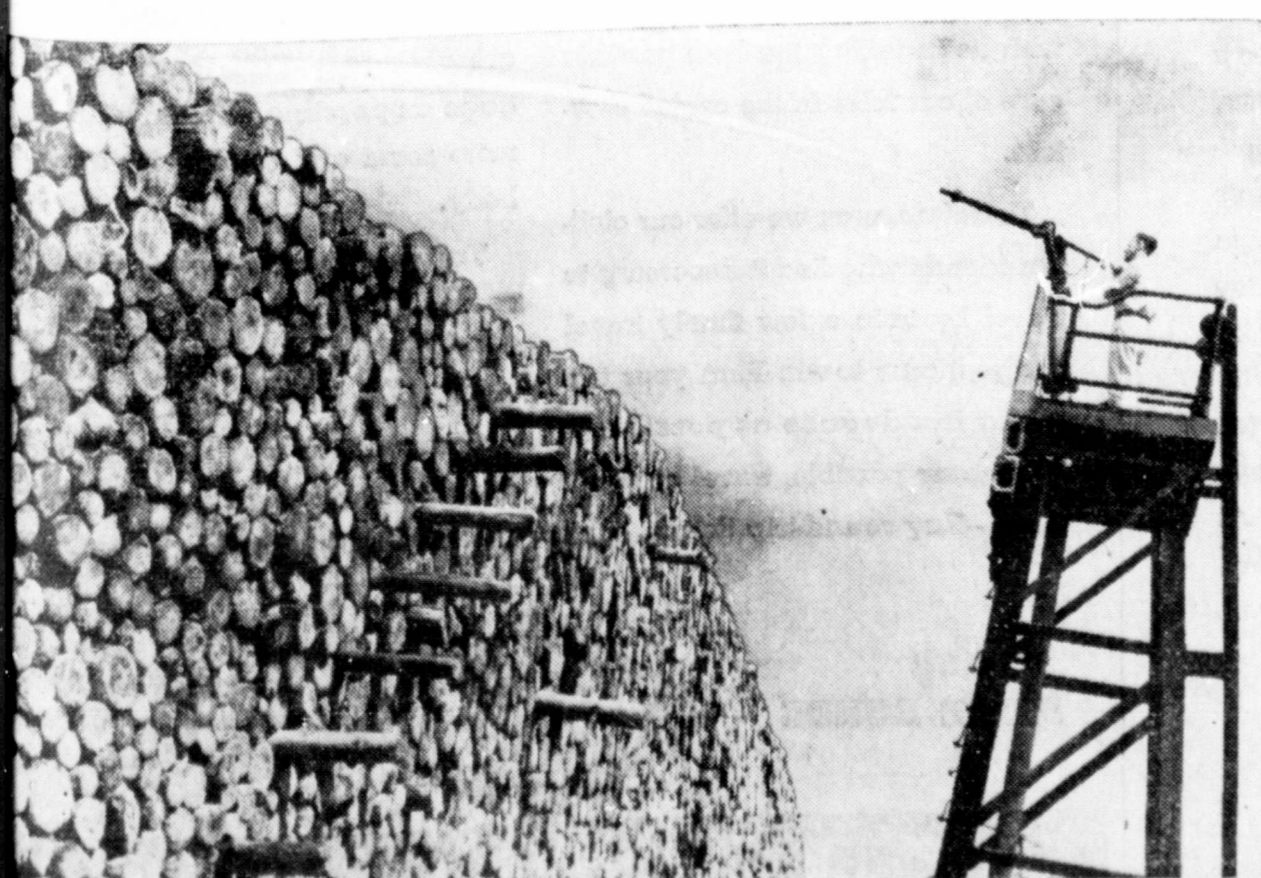

The ring of the woodman's axe, the whirl of power-driven timber saws and the crash of falling giants of the forest, spell Canada's stepped-up lumber industry of today as an all-out effort is put forth to keep up with the increasing demand for lumber in war industries and for wood pulp. The thousands of logs, felled in almost inaccessible forests, are floated downstream from the many lumber camps involved. On arrival at the mills, in some cases a hundred and fifty miles distant from the starting point, each log is identified through colored paint marks and credited to the respective company by which it was felled. The logs are then stacked in huge piles, awaiting processing either as paper pulp, piling or lumber for industry. Increased vigilance against fire, the lumber industry's greatest headache, is being maintained, in wake of last year's 404,000,000 cubic feet toll of forest blazes. Insects and fungus growth add another woe which must be guarded against. This and firefighting costs last year amounted to millions of dollars. Here is a photographic cross-section of activities in Northern Ontario region.

THE "SALS" ARE ON THE JOB

DOING her share in producing the tools of war is this attractive girl employee of Small Arms Limited, the government-owned company at Long Branch, near Toronto. The "SAL" on her smart overalls is the insignia of the company (not her name), worn proudly by hundreds of young women who are turning out quantities of Lee-Enfield rifles and sub-machine guns for their fathers, brothers and sweethearts in the armed forces. This girl is operating a milling machine on a Lee-Enfield rifle. The management of this plant's appeal for more "SALS" to meet augmented production schedules has resulted in many more Canadian women joining the ranks of these women working for victory.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys control the flow of blood through your body. When they are tired and don't work right, you may feel aches and pains, or you may have trouble sleeping. This is because your kidneys are the filters of your blood. They remove the waste products of your metabolism and keep your blood clean. When your kidneys are tired, they cannot do their job properly. This causes a buildup of waste products in your blood, which can lead to various health problems, including sleepless nights.

Thomas A. Edison, inventor of the incandescent light bulb, was very, very proud of the world's first little light plant which he placed in operation on September 4, 1882. He lived to see electricity become a household servant, obedient to the flip of a switch by grown-ups or a tiny child. His inventions helped to give us the electric elevator, the automobile, the phonograph, radio, many modern-day electric appliances... and even contributed to television... and the airplane. Late in life, he predicted that electricity had an even greater part to play in America's future, provided it remain FREE and UNFETTERED. Today... well, we see fulfillment of his prophecy in the service being rendered by America's electric companies. Companies like the West Texas Utilities, following in his footsteps under free initiative and free enterprise, have developed the electric industry to its present high degree of efficiency and dependability. Their progress would please Thomas A. Edison. And another thing—he would be pleased to know that, today, America, in time of its greatest need, has MORE electric power than ALL the enemy nations together!
