FIRST BAPTIST REVIVAL BEGINS SUNDAY

Rev. H. M. Usry of Howard Payne college will direct the music during the revival services which begin at First Baptist church Sunday morning and continue through the following Sabbath.

Rev. Cooper Waters, the pastor, will do the preaching and will speak twice daily throughout the week—10 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

Special services during the week will include a young people's service Tuesday evening and a choir from the colored Baptist church Thursday evening. The Juniors will meet each evening at 7 o'clock to form a booster band under direction of Mr. Usry.

All singers in the choirs of other churches are invited to join the Baptist choir during this meeting, says the pastor, regardless of church affiliation, and will be warmly welcomed. Mr. Waters especially urges that members of the church plan to attend each service if at all possible.

CLAUD AUSTIN NOW MASONIC GRAND MASTER

WACO, Dec. 3.—Claud L. Austin of Dallas, grand master of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Texas in fact since last April, became grand master in name as well yesterday.

Austin, a member of A. C. Garrett Lodge of Dallas, was elevated from deputy grand master to grand master at the grand lodge communication. He has been serving as acting grand master due to the military duties which prevented Lieut. Rogers Kelley of Edinburg, the grand master, from carrying on his Masonic activities.

Another man in military service was placed at the bottom of the ladder leading to eventual election to grand master with the election of Lieut. Bruce Brannon, a Navy chaplain, as grand junior warden.

Lonnie Irvin of San Antonio again was elected a member of the committee on work. Irvin has served twenty-five years on this important grand lodge committee.

Grand lodge officers were promulgated all along the line. State Land Commissioner Bascom Giles of Austin going up from grand senior warden to deputy grand master and former Gov. Pat M. Neff, president of Baylor University, advanced from grand junior warden to grand senior warden. J. J. Gallaher was re-elected grand treasurer and George H. Belevy remained grand secretary. J. W. Stovall, San Angelo lawyer, was elected grand junior deacon and J. M. Witten, Cisco postal clerk, grand senior steward.

8,000 AIDED IN FOOD PRODUCTION

Rotarian R. N. Cuck had charge of the program at the Rotary club yesterday, presenting Alejo Lopez, Mexican student of the Grammar school, in a guitar musical program and M. D. Fox, teacher of agriculture in the high school, in a talk on "Food Production and Preservation."

Mifford Johnson, high school football player, was introduced as the new junior Rotarian taking the place of Harry Grantz. Other visitors were John Potter of the navy, just back from the fighting front; Mrs. J. W. Slaughter of Cisco and W. T. Walton of Abilene.

Johnson was introduced by Rotarian Burl Williams and O. J. Russell reported on the recent bowling contests, saying the Rotarians were now winners of all their contests and would take on the high school boys next week.

President Lonnie Shockley announced that the annual sacrificial dinner would be held December 23 and, following a consultation, it was further announced that Rotarians would donate 25 cents each for a Christmas offering to wounded soldiers in Camp Bowie.

Young Lopez played one instrumental number and sang two numbers at the urgent request of the club.

Mr. Fox gave statistics showing the amount of food that had been grown and canned by the Cisco and Eastland chapters, emphasizing the fact that the more than 7,000 jars of canned goods would go a long way toward helping in the food program of the war department. There were more than 8,000 people engaged in the agricultural programs in this area during the year, Mr. Fox said. He also called attention to the farm implements repair training school that was conducted, and showed how it aided in enabling farmers to keep their implements in running order without usual delays.

CIVIL RIGHTS NOT IMPAIRED MANN STATES

AUSTIN, Dec. 3.—Alleging that labor unions have failed to show how the Manford Act would impair their civil rights, Atty. Gen. Mann asked Dist. Judge Moore of Austin to find Texas new regulatory statute constitutional.

This argument was made in a closing brief filed for the state by Asst. Atty. Gens. Fagan Dickson and Fowler Roberts. It was the reply to arguments made by C. I. O. and A. F. of L. in the first over-all attacks made on the statute.

The unions have requested Judge Moore to issue a declaratory judgment restraining enforcement of the act as unconstitutional.

The state contended that even if civil rights were violated by the act, the unions would not be entitled to an injunction against state officials.

NEW AUTOS FOR TEXAS.

AUSTIN, Dec. 3.—The December quota of new passenger automobiles for Texas—1,134, with seventy-four in reserve to meet any unforeseen local needs—is the lowest in the almost two years of rationing. Only one other state, California, received a larger quota than Texas, being 1,493, with ninety-seven in reserve.

PIGS IS NOT—Scores of hogs jam pens at St. Paul, Minn., but there's no pork chop surplus. Reason—shortage of manpower to slaughter the pigs. Yard officials ask farmers to stop delivering until slaughterers catch up.

EMPHASIZE RELIGIOUS LIBERTY

Next Sunday being the anniversary of the Pearl Harbor disaster, the American Legion and the churches of Cisco will combine efforts to recognize the armed forces of America.

American Legion families are urged to attend some local church Sunday morning and give their presence as a symbol of their belief in religious liberty, one of the things for which our soldiers are fighting.

All relatives of the fighting men of this and the last war will be honor guests and will be recognized in the various churches of the city, says Rev. Cooper Waters, chairman of the Ministers' association and Rev. Leslie Seymour, the secretary.

COEDS OUTNUMBER BOYS AT U. OF T.

AUSTIN, Dec. 3.—More than a third of the men enrolled at the University of Texas during the current semester are in uniform. Of a total of 3,270 men enrolled, 1,132 are in the navy.

Coeds outnumbered men, 3,628 to 3,270, a contrast to prewar days when there were approximately two boys to every girl in the student body.

Total enrollment this winter is 6,898, including 345 new freshmen attending the university for the first time and 382 transfers from other colleges.

LAND FOR LEASE.

DENISON, Dec. 3.—Bids will be opened here Dec. 10 on the leasing of 50,000 acres of land in the Denison Dam reservoir area. The land, leased only for 1944, is in tracts of from 100 to 500 acres. The land may be used only for pasture or feed production. The 50,000 acres are located above 650-foot elevation and never subject to overflow. The only construction permitted will be temporary fencing.

REDS TAKE VITAL HIGHWAYS

MOSCOW, Dec. 3.—Gen. Konstantin Rokossovsky has driven the Germans from a commanding road junction northeast of Zlobin and pinned them back against the Dnieper in a strategic victory presaging the capture of the White Russian rail hub, front dispatches reported today.

Attacking in force at dawn yesterday, Red Army assault forces overran the vital highway system above Zlobin and now were threatening to outflank the town in a maneuver to squeeze out the Germans and break over the road to Poland.

The attack neutralized Dovsk, which controls the Mogilev-Gomel and Krichev-Bebrusk highways. The threat to Zlobin, junction of the Leningrad-Odessa and Gomel-Minsk railroads, was so keen that it had virtually lost its value as a gateway for the Germans withdrawing from the Gomel sector.

TEXAS VITALLY INTERESTED IN NATURAL GAS

AUSTIN, Dec. 3.—Possibilities for development of a vast synthetic organic chemicals industry in Texas, based largely on natural gas resources, are described as almost breath-taking by Elmer H. Johnson, analyst for the University of Texas bureau of business research.

Writing in Texas Business Review, Johnson urged careful consideration of the natural gas question, one which has provoked recent controversy as a result of plans to construct a large new line to export natural gas from the Corpus Christi area to West Virginia.

"It hardly seems necessary to reemphasize the tremendous stake Texas has in the natural gas resources of the United States or the immensity of the importance of natural gas to Texas," Johnson summarized.

"The promise natural gas gives for substantially supplementing our future gasoline supplies alone would entitle Texas natural gas reserves to very careful consideration.

"It is as yet impossible to do more than suggest some of the mileposts that appear as certain on the horizon of future chemical developments based upon hydrocarbons which are readily supplied from petroleum and natural gas. What is certain is that these developments loom large and that they will occupy a highly important position in the expanding economy that will come in the post war period.

"What is certain also is that modern chemical technology can utilize the hydrocarbons of natural gas in many of these developments just as well as, if not better than, those obtainable from petroleum. In all these things Texas has a vital interest. Should not Texas be truly concerned as to their best use?"

SAYS IT WOULDN'T HELP.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Treasury Secretary Morgenthau denounced last night as a "potential waste of government funds" the senate-approved plan to spend up to $15,000,000 a year for war bond advertising in small newspapers. "I should like to have it on the record that it will not help sell war bonds," he wrote Senator Byrd of Virginia.

TWO-THIRDS OF CAPITAL IS NOW PARALYZED; FORTY-ONE BRITISH PLANES WERE LOST

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The Royal Air Force swarmed back to Berlin last night and, crashing through intense German opposition, dropped 1200 to 1500 tons of bombs which, according to neutral reports, left the surviving two-thirds of the capital "completely paralyzed."

Upwards of 600 British planes struck through the moonlight, the beams of hundreds of searchlights, a curtain of anti-aircraft fire and massed German fighters to deliver another staggering blow at bomb-groggy Berlin.

Forty-one bombers were lost in the Berlin raid and supplementary operations. The main bombardment left the city aflame and belching smoke which towered three miles high, the air ministry announced.

Dispatches relayed through Sweden described the raid as "truly devastating." They said at least 30 blockbusters were among the hundreds of bombs dropped on the city, many of them around the Potsdamer Platz, the Anhalter rail station, and the northern and southern factory districts.

The city is without gas, water or electricity, the Swedish reports said, and in effect it is "completely paralyzed." Street traffic was blocked, and no newspapers appeared.

The Nazi-controlled Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau reported from Berlin to Stockholm that biggest and most violent air battle ever fought over German territory took place over the capital last night.

The air ministry said the Germans had massed scores of fighter planes over and near Berlin in a desperate effort to save it from further devastation.

Lanes of flares to serve as guideposts for the fighters were laid as much as 50 miles from the capital and up to the city itself, the air ministry said. In addition, the raiders ran into a forest of searchlight beams and intense ground fire.

Bucking through the strong defense shield, the British bombers hammered home their attack, which began a few minutes after 8 o'clock, and lasted just over half an hour.

Observers believed Sir Arthur T. Harris, chief of the RAF's Bomber Command, now was committed to an attempt to destroy Berlin with a series of 1000 to 1500-ton raids, interspersed with an occasional super-assault, such as that in which 2300 tons were dropped Nov. 22.

The air ministry's announcement that huge fires were left burning in the capital appeared to confirm reports that the RAF was using a new type of incendiary bomb so powerful that they cannot even be compared with those dropped by the Germans on London.

Three newspaper correspondents were missing following the raid. They are Lowell Bennett of the United States, Norman Stockton of Australia and a third whose name and nationality were not immediately disclosed.

In making one place available for an American correspondent to go on the raid, the air ministry invited the three American news services to draw lots. The U. P., A. P. and I.N.S. balloted, and I.N.S., represented by Bennett, won, and thus became obligated to cover the story for all three.

FALSE ALARMS.

Towards the close of the last war, a wire flashed that an Armistice had been signed. People wept and laughed. They danced in the streets. Strangers clasped hands and shouted with tears or smiles or both. The release from tension and anxiety was beyond words. Then came the news that the first message was false. The reaction back into grind and destruction was terrible.

Soon, fortunately, the true news came. Had the war lasted long after that first message, many people would have been hard put to it to keep their sanity. The press, which suffered as a whole for the ill-considered haste of one member, would have suffered still more. Its reputation for integrity was at stake.

As this war nears its last stages, the temptation for correspondents to wire what they think is true but cannot yet prove will be very great. It has become a world where one radio station boasts that it scooped others by five seconds on some point of news. The temptation of war-torn humanity to believe what it wants to believe instead of waiting for proved fact will be very great.

It will be well to be warned by the false armistice. Appearance of Germans before a conference of Allies may not mean anything definite. Negotiations will be attempted, but the war will be fought until unconditional surrender is signed. When the fact is accomplished, the world will know soon enough. Meanwhile, proceed as the armies will—as if the war were to last ten years.

BEAU, THE SPANIEL.

Beau, you have killed a tiny bird, which flew not till today. Against my orders, whom you heard forbidding you the prey.

Nor was he of the thievish sort, Or one whom blood allures, But innocent was all his sport, Whom you have torn for yours.

My dog! what remedy remains, Since, teach you all I can, I see you, after all my pains, So much resemble man?

—W. COWPER.

Peanut Hulls.

Dallas News: Since the beginning of the Spanish civil war, America has had difficulty in getting enough cork for commercial use here. A cork industry is now being developed in California, and cork oaks are being grown experimentally in Texas. Meanwhile soft-drink bottlers and other users of cork are watching with interest the production of a substitute made from peanut hulls, which are plentiful in Texas and in many sections of the South.

In his home laboratory in Atlanta, Herman M. Kulman has been grinding 20 to 40 per cent of the peanut hull fibers into a fine meal, then milling it with a liquid to form a cork-like material. Bottles of grape juice and tomato juice capped with this material have survived tests of time, water, citric acid, turpentine, vinegar, peanut oil and other oils. The inventor believes his material will prove useful in gaskets, inner soles, wallboard and refrigerator linings.

Business Week reports that an Atlanta company is preparing to manufacture items under Kulman's patent and expects to get contracts with government agencies and large soft-drink manufacturers. It notes that the Kulman product is more expensive than natural cork but says he hopes to get it on a competitive basis when production builds up and processing machinery can be obtained. Success of this project would be a boon to peanut growers, who now get about two dollars a ton for hulls sold as fuel or feed but might receive from $6 to $7 a ton for those used in making a substitute for cork.

Gifts From Your Own Kitchen

I HAVE you considered the number of delightful gifts that you can make right in your own kitchen? This year, especially, something good to eat will be more than welcome. And you could not make a better choice than these little Coffee Fig Puddings. They are particularly tasty because of the delightful flavor imparted by the coffee which is used in the recipe. There is enough coffee now, you know, so that we all can enjoy it as a flavoring, as well as a beverage.

This delicious Coffee Fig Pudding makes an ideal gift... it is both good to eat and good to look at, tied up in a bit of gay paper. But make enough so that your own family can enjoy it at Christmas dinner or any other time. Served with freshly made, full-strength coffee it makes a grand dessert. Also, it's just the thing to serve at that coffee party when friends drop in for a visit during the holidays. An important point too is, that if placed in the refrigerator, this pudding will keep indefinitely. Here is the recipe and it's tested, of course.

Coffee Fig Pudding

- 3 cups sifted flour 1 teaspoon nutmeg 1 teaspoon salt 1 cup cut figs 1 teaspoon baking powder 1 cup seedless raisins 1/2 teaspoon soda 1 cup ground nut 2 tablespoons allspice 1 1/2 cups coffee 1 cup molasses

Mix and sift flour, salt, baking powder and spices. Add fruit. Add molasses and coffee to suit, mix well and stir in flour-fruit mixture. Place in 5 or 6 small greased bowls or molds, cover tightly and steam 2 1/2 hours. Remove covers and cool. Recover until ready to steam for use. If puddings are to be kept for more than a few days, they should be placed in the refrigerator. Yield: About 20 servings.

Hi-Ho, Hi-Ho, Off To Work They Go

Production of life belts at the General Tire & Rubber company plant in Akron began to skyrocket after the girl workers in the department arrived one morning in these red white and blue sweaters. Improvement in morale and in the number of life belts turned out for American soldiers was immediately apparent, company production men said. The fad started when one of the girls knit herself a stars and stripes sweater and wore it to her work bench. Others picked up the idea and in the first week these eight lassies were all togged out in red white and blue.
