Christmas Tree Boss Co. Employees and Program At Entertained With First Presbyterian Christmas Party

An interesting Christmas program will be presented by the new Sunday school classes at the First Presbyterian church at 7:30 this evening. Jolly Saint Nicholas will be there in person and will bring out gifts from the tree at the close of the following program.

In Little Town of Bethlehem, Sunday school group, away in a Manger, a carol, with voices by members of the Bethlehem class.

Song of Christmas, Dot and in Crofts, Silent Night, by entire group.

Grace Lutheran Church, Rev. O. L. Savage.

Cisco Postoffice Will Render Nice Holiday Service

Sunday night the children of Grace Lutheran elementary school, assisted by the young people of the congregation, will present at the church the old but important story of the birth of the Savior in recitation and song. The entire service will not be much over an hour and the entire service will be invited.

Group leaders are Virginia Lee Ziehr, who will give the welcoming address, Richard Ziehr, Alfred Huber, Millie Mae Newell and Elaine Ziehr. In the evening service the pastor, Rev. T. Naumann, will answer the question, "Does God Still Love

British Troops Now Control The Main Athens Port

AUTHENS, Dec. 22.—British troops and tanks crossed Piraeus harbor in assault craft, landed on the northern rim and drove inland early today, bringing the entire port area under British control.

The landing in the former ELAS stronghold was carried out virtually without opposition, but resistance stiffened several hundred yards inland and fighting still was going on at noon.

Left-wing ELAS troops seized the northern part of the harbor with its main decks and warehouses in the early stages of the civil war some two weeks ago. Piraeus is the main port for Athens, five miles to the north-east, and the bottleneck through which most supplies for the capital pass.

Stevenson Asks For 12,550 More War Job Workers

AUSTIN, Dec. 22.—War Manpower Commissioner officials who are scouring Texas for an additional 12,500 workers for war industries today had the backing of Gov. Coke R. Stevenson.

The governor announced a three-point program yesterday in an urgent appeal to Texans to do their part in meeting wartime manpower needs.

The three points:

If a person is not engaged in a wartime job, ask the United States Employment Service for referral to one.

If a person has a wartime job, stay with it until the war is won.

Observe strictly voluntary manpower controls which are in effect in all Texas communities.

VOTE ON STRIKE

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—A strike vote among 12,000 employees of the New York Telephone Company here, including local operators, has been ordered by the general executive committee of the Telephone Employees Association, an affiliated union.

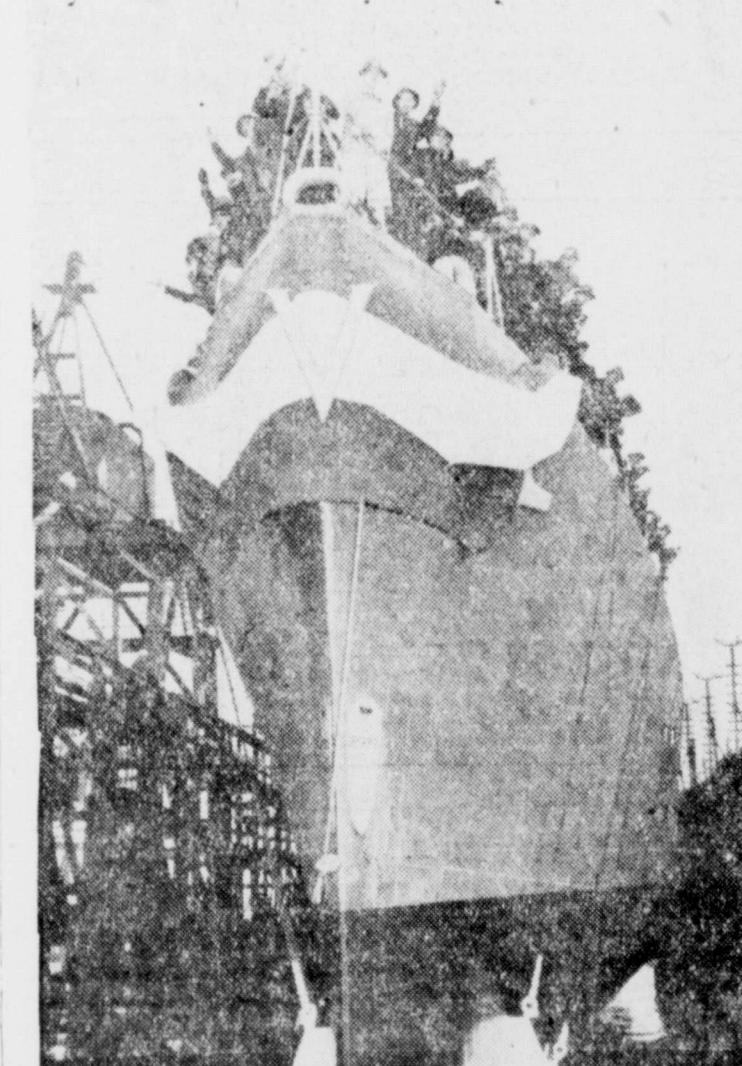

DISCOUNTS BREAKTHROUGH

LOUDSPEAKER OUT OF GAS—So American gunners roll 57 mm. gun into position by manpower in town on the Saar front during advance of Gen. Patton's army.

UNDER FIRE—These three nurses, Lt. Claire Farrissey, Florence Balfour and Betty Crippen know what it feels like to be under fire. Here land mine explodes close behind them, while from the front hail of shots sing over their heads—in training.

ROCK ISLAND BUILT IT—LOS ANGELES NAMED IT—Because they topped bond sales in the Fifth War Loan campaign, citizens of Rock Island, Ill., purchased this destroyer. Mrs. Ruth Arnold Welsh, of Pasadena, Calif., mother of ARM 3/c Robert K. Huntington, hero of the Battle of Midway, in whose honor the ship was named, christened the destroyer as it slid down the ways in the Todd Pacific Shipyards in Seattle, Wash. This is only one of many ships war bonds put in the water.

JAPS MOVE FACTORIES

CHUNGKING, Dec. 22.—Because of increasing American air raids on Japan, Japanese authorities have conscripted large numbers of laborers in north China to help move war factories from the Japanese mainland to Manchuria, Chinese informants said Friday.

Russians Pledge Allies Greater Action At Once

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Soviet Russia has promised to meet the rising Allied demand for Red army action by hurling some three army groups against the Germans on the eastern front.

The forthcoming offensive as it expands probably will involve up to six army groups and its route may well be across the broad Polish plain directly into Germany.

The Red army high command has informed the United States and Britain of the offensive's starting date, Soviet sources in Washington said.

This could not be confirmed in American military quarters but there is evidence that Allies are counting on the upcoming winter drive.

Informants said the projected drive will disclose newly aligned Red army forces. Since last summer, when the Leningrad front, three Baltic, three White Russian and four Ukrainian fronts were in action, the lineup of Russian armies has been a mystery.

As his dramatic order was flashed out to grim-faced American G.I.'s the first encouraging report since the Nazi thrust was launched six days ago was wire-pressed by United Press Correspondent Jack Frankish from U.S. 1st Army headquarters.

Frankish reported that the Germans had been stopped cold in their forward progress in Belgium and Luxembourg caught the Allies off balance to a greater extent than any development since the tide of war turned at Stalingrad two years ago.

It would be difficult and possibly undesirable to delineate the Allies' failure at the present stage of the offensive, but the progress of the Germans makes it obvious that they scored an outstanding surprise.

The finger of blame seems to point at Allied military intelligence, which critics already were saying terribly underestimated the strength of the enemy's mobile reserves.

Intelligence would appear to have neglected completely—or was ignorant of—an enemy concentration of no less than 15 divisions in the Eifel mountains east of Belgium and Luxembourg.

Similarly, either air reconnaissance over the Eifel mountains was neglected or its reports disregarded by the Allied high command out of belief that a German attack in its present strength was impossible, observers theorized.

Setback Blame Is Laid at Door Intelligence Dept.

PARIS, Dec. 22.—Military observers believed today that the German offensive in Belgium and Luxembourg caught the Allies off balance to a greater extent than any development since the tide of war turned at Stalingrad two years ago.

FOUR CHILDREN DIE

FT. WORTH, Dec. 22.—Four little Negro children were burned to death Thursday night when fire roared through their home at 904 Luella . . . only minutes after they had taken a final look at their Christmas tree before going to bed. The parents were away from home.

Expected Live Cattle Ceiling Be Unpopular

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Economic Stabilizer Fred Vinson, holding in his lap the decision of government action to relieve the acute meat crisis at retail levels, is expected to order price ceilings on live cattle by the end of this week.

Brought to a head by threats of New York City retail meat dealers to close their shops beginning Christmas Day unless the government acts to give them a better profit margin, the final decision may prove highly unpopular with cattle producers.

EISENHOWER ASKED HIS MEN TO RISE TO NEW HEIGHTS AND TURN HITLER'S GAMBLE INTO DEFEAT

PARIS, Dec. 22.—Front reports today said American First Army troops in desperate fighting have stopped the German drive across Belgium but there was no indication that the dangerous Nazi thrust across Luxembourg had halted and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower called upon his men to rise to new heights and turn Hitler's "great gamble into his worst defeat."

Eisenhower, in an order of the day to all American troops, left no doubt that the great battle of the west is the crisis which will determine whether Germany can be crushed quickly or whether the war must be prolonged many months.

As his dramatic order was flashed out to grim-faced American G.I.'s the first encouraging report since the Nazi thrust was launched six days ago was wire-pressed by United Press Correspondent Jack Frankish from U.S. 1st Army headquarters.

Frankish reported that the Germans had been stopped cold in their forward progress in Belgium and Luxembourg caught the Allies off balance to a greater extent than any development since the tide of war turned at Stalingrad two years ago.

COSTLY DREAMS

Before the middle of 1945, end of the federal fiscal year, some weary worker in Washington will yank a crank or touch a button and watch a calculating machine grind out some self-tale totals about Uncle Sam as a farm executive and plantation operator. The figures will not be flattering but enough preliminary data are available already to cushion the shock for his admiring public.

About ten years ago a foolish notion grew suddenly, almost mysteriously, popular. The idea was that poor farmers got poor (anyhow didn't get rich) because they never had a chance. Big fat capitalists, it seemed, kept the juice squeezed out of them all the time.

So Uncle Sam, with Rexford Guy Tugwell standing on his shoulder and whispering in his ear, dashed to the rescue.

Rescue the Farmer.

A famous federal project, one of many, to fortify hand-picked relief cases "back on the soil," was the 2,271-acre Deshee farm near Vincennes, Ind. It was taken for granted that 42 families could make a living there after the government had paid half a million dollars for the land and one of 20 agricultural lending agencies had helped out with $100,000 more. It was, however, too much to expect. They couldn't make a living.

With 50 acres per family, homes clustered in artistic groups like chairs at a lawn fete, the "farmers" were supposed to do specialty production of top-grade produce and truck to yield fancy prices. Unfortunately, somehow, the plan didn't work. Deshee is being sold, as are many of the government's other pipe-dream farms. Among them is the 3,453-acre Lake Dick farm near Pine Bluff, Ark.

Psychology of Relief

An early discovery at Deshee was that specialty farmers don't often get on government relief rolls. The relief farmers knew little more than the need to plant seed and scratch the ground. By this method of operation Deshee had 20 families too many. Finally the community shrank to eight families. Many of them left because they didn't like the surroundings. People on relief became fastidious.

High prices on just about everything of value, an aspect of war-born inflation, is what saves our country from charging off these high-falutin agricultural experiments, almost completely. Losses on Deshee, and others to sell soon, may be small because of well-timed sales, but this fails to prove that the government can farm. Administration has sold quite a lot of all with human misfits on the land.

No Future in This Up to now, the Federal Security

Administration has sold quite a few of the government's resettlement projects. The total number disposed of before the end of 1944 cost the taxpayers of America less than 40 cents on the dollar.

In farming, government management is showing a loss of 60 per cent. It would mean a reduction cut in half, wages less accordingly and prices advanced perhaps doubled. Undertake a big scale, it would mean standards half as high as used to — for all of us in favor of keeping our private enterprise system.

HIGHBROW ARMY MEN

NATIONS THAT SURVIVE

A sergeant, writing from New Guinea to the editor of the Saturday Review of Literature, has a complaint to register. He resents the fact that many publications here seem to think the soldier cares for no literature beyond the funnies. But let him tell it:

"Since you are good friends to brains in the Army, I'm sure you'll not be surprised to know that any noon I can see men escaping the glare of New Guinea through reading Joyce, James, Melville, Foster and a host of others. This morning for 5 shillings the PX sold, with rapidity and gusto, volumes of Santayana, Spinoza, Confucius, Bertrand Russell and Plato. Don't misunderstand me. I am not saying every soldier in a slit trench is discussing the Categorical Imperative, but, believe it or not, some may be. True, we have many more Superman readers, and I am glad to relieve Guinean gloom with lively sorties with that latter day hero, though usually I prefer the humors of Bugs Bunny. What I mean is that I resent the tone of many U. S. periodicals which let their writers imply that all GI Joe wants to read is Superman."

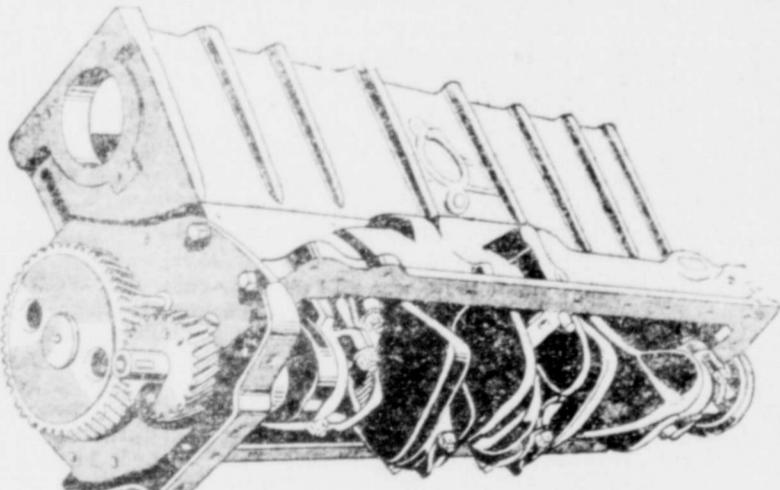

Any army librarian would agree that many soldiers read more, and more widely, than they did as civilians. Especially the one who, checking old records, discovered that a large group of books had disappeared within one month, apparently into the packs of an outfit going overseas. What were they? Pocket-sized editions of philosophy, poetry, essays and drama, including Shakespeare, Keats, Spinoza—and Noel Coward.

TIME flies and before you know it, the calendar will remind you it's time to get busy and make your Christmas gifts. Nancy Holmes of the Best Foods kitchen suggests that you try her favorite uncooked fondant. From this one basic recipe you can make three entirely different candies so delicious and so pretty that Nancy suggests you send several boxes as Christmas presents.

Basic Uncooked Fondant
one sifted cup confectioner's sugar
one cup margarine
dash salt
dash milk
Add sugar gradually to vitaminized margarine. Add salt and evaporated milk and mix thoroughly. Divide fondant mixture into 3 parts. Yield: approximately 4 dozen candies.

Dominoes: To 1/2 fondant mixture add 1/2 teaspoon almond flavoring and 2 squares melted baking chocolate. Mix well and knead on bread board sprinkled with confectioner's sugar until smooth and glossy. Roll or press into rectangle 1/4 inch thick. Cut into pieces the size of dominoes. Decorate with small round candies to imitate dominoes.

Mint Patties: To 1/2 fondant mixture add few drops wintergreen or peppermint flavoring. Tint pale green with food coloring. Knead as above. Shape into flat patties. Decorate with small red candies and pieces of citron.

Orange Tapioca: To 1/2 fondant mixture add 1/2 teaspoon orange flavoring and 2 tablespoons grated orange rind. Tint pale orange with food coloring. Knead as above. Press thin orange patties between walnut halves.
