TRAGEDY.

Criticism of the caliber of treatment being received by war veterans in the veterans' hospitals throughout the nation, is spreading with the rapidity of a prairie fire. American men in the armed forces on active duty receive the best medical care in the world. But when they are retired to the status of veterans and are referred to the tender mercies of the Veterans' Administration, they are subjected to incredibly poor hospital and medical care, according to reports. They have been receiving this kind of abuse apparently because the veterans' hospitals are swamped in red tape and high authorities are politicians rather than medical experts.

Altogether, it is a shameful episode, and not the least tragic fact is that it will take precious time to effect a clean-up.

With public opinion aroused, there will undoubtedly be an investigation — a bill has already been introduced in congress demanding a thorough one. But there will be interminable delays while the bureaucratic machinery of government turns out endless reports. Some day, months or years from now, veterans lying helpless in wards of these government hospitals, who all this time are getting care which would not be countenanced for a moment in a modern hospital, may get relief, if still alive.

This is what happens when politics is mixed with medicine. It is a terrible example that should awaken all of us to the danger of hasty action on the question of how far we permit government to go in controlling civilian care. A mistake could mean lowered medical standards and the needless sacrifice of countless lives.

FOLLY.

Practically everyone is in the habit of blaming the war exclusively for the dangerous growth of government control over the country. The plain fact is that the country was headed for such control long before war started. The war did no more than greatly speed up the trend.

The underlying cause of attempts to freeze prices, wages and other costs, can be described in four words — government spending beyond income. For years the people have been warned of what this kind of spending was leading to. War has brought home the folly of annual government deficits without limit, in a way that will be remembered for many generations.

The war will not end the "emergency" of borrowed money. That is why some people who fear the consequences of excessive government borrowing, are turning to increasingly dictatorial government, in the hope of escaping the inevitable price of unlimited government borrowing.

It is a vicious circle — the more the government borrows, the more it must control. The only winners will be those who want to see American representative government and the freedom of the people destroyed. The only ones who can break the circle are the people themselves, by revolting against both peacetime borrowing and regulation.

HIGHWAYS.

By M. R. Alburn.

"When comes April," sang the poet Chaucer some 600 years ago, "nature pricks men in their hearts; they long to go on pilgrimages." Spring still stirs hearts, but today there is no such slow and easy journeying afoot or horseback as Chaucer had in mind. Trains have no room, cars neither gas nor rubber. Travel becomes a pleasure of the imagination.

But some day tourists will drive from Alaska to Cape Horn and back again. Difficult parts of the roads are done — the Alaskan and most of the Central-American sections. They are as yet no pleasure boulevards, but they give assurance that neither Alaska nor Panama would be cut off if sea communications were to fail.

On the Inter-American, through mountains and jungle, every form of transportation and road-building was used — ox-carts, bulldozers, trucks, jeeps, hand-picks, wheelbarrows, mules. Builders made use of a masonry bridge built by Spanish colonials in 1592, its mortar mixed of lime, milk and honey; of wooden bridges like Caesar's over the Rhine, and of the most modern ones known to engineering. Workers endured heat, illness, insects, long waits for materials. Late in 1943 U. S. government construction stopped. Other countries will finish their sections after the war.

OR BY A BROOK—or near a lake.... It's great to be young and dream and plan.

The dream-homes being planned today call for frozen food cabinets and automatic washers and electric blankets and air conditioning and lots more electric conveniences.

They'll have them, too. And the electric service that keeps them running will continue to be both cheap and friendly. That's one way we can help make dreams come true!

No wage is "too high" that is earned!

WHAT OF THE wages of the future? This question is bound to come up in any discussion of post-war planning.

On this, our attitude is clear. No wages are high that are earned. Fifty dollars a day earned is none too high. But a dollar a day unearned is much too high.

More Productive Methods

Wages are a part of the product. They are not the result of the employer's generosity, nor the employee's ability to bring pressure to bear.

American industry has continuously developed methods whereby a man receives more pay for fewer hours but still increases production. And so it will continue to be.

But wages are only one of industry's problems.

A Better World Must Come

Millions of young men and women have been withdrawn from their homes and careers. Business is shorthanded. Many industries have been seriously disrupted. Public debt and the casualty lists mount higher every hour.

Victory, therefore, is the greatest concern of everybody. After Victory, all of us must strive to build a better world... a world in which such misfortune can never happen again.

Material things... radar and plastics and television and giant planes... will contribute much toward building a better and stronger American people. But these alone are not enough.

Confidence is the first need... confidence that work brings reward. Such confidence cultivated in a people generates enterprise and effort.

Industry, being part of the people, responds to the same stimulus... and is ready to initiate and work and invest all for the treasure of life in America.

Youth Must Have Opportunity

The way must be kept clear for independence in business... and for young men to start new businesses. Vigorous competition and initiative have carried our country safely and far.

American business is not performing its complete function unless it makes available to every family traditional American standards of living. American business also must serve social order and social advance. There is little room for racial or religious prejudice or class distinction when a country is alive with energy and is working.

These are some of the thoughts we hold as we look toward the day when wages will again be earned by building the goods of peace.
