U.S. MAY HAVE HIT THE JACKPOT

Eastland Co. Bought Total of $1,298,787 7th War Loan Bonds

Eastland, Texas.
Cisco Daily Press:

By letter dated July 2, 1945, published in your paper, I stated that at the close of business June 30 all towns in Eastland county had exceeded both their over-all and Series E quotas, and that details of the Seventh War Loan would be given the public at the earliest moment possible. We now have the details.

Eastland county's over-all quota was $680,000. We actually sold $1,298,787.50 over-all. Our Series E quota was $405,000 and we actually sold $551,362.50.

Over-all sales broken down by towns are as follows: Ranger, $243,526.50; Eastland, $240,871.78; Rising Star, $225,972.74; Cisco, $126,875.50; Gorman, $111,291.37; Carbon, $11,990.75; Olden, $6,257.00; Desdemona, $777, and allocations to Eastland county as a whole, $241,224.36.

The $551,362.50 Series E sales were purchased as follows: Eastland, $125,446.75; Cisco, $125,327.00; Ranger, $111,528; Rising Star, $58,574.25; Gorman, $71,085.25; Carbon, $10,990.75; Olden, $6,257.00; Desdemona, $777, and over-all allocations to Eastland county, $21,375.50.

It will thus be seen that Eastland county over-subscribed its Series E quota by 36.1% and over-subscribed its over-all quota by 90.9%. Of the 59 counties constituting the Fort Worth District, Eastland county stood 9th from the top down in the over-all subscription and 11th from the top down in the Series E subscriptions. Taking the 254 counties of the state as a whole, Eastland county was 40th from the top in the Series E subscriptions. While the data is not available on the over-all for all the counties of the state, I feel sure that we are right at the top of the list on the over-all subscriptions.

The State of Texas over-subscribed its over-all subscription by a handsome amount but only over-subscribed the Series E quota by 1.5%. The nation over-subscribed the over-all quota nearly 200% but failed to subscribe the Series E quota of four billion dollars by twenty-four million dollars. It will thus be seen that Eastland county stands almost at the top of the list not only throughout the state but throughout the nation in both her subscriptions as to the Series E and over-all quotas.

Morris White Is Back From Europe After 16 Months

Lt. Morris D. White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer E. White, route two, Eastland, is at home on leave with his wife and their 8-month-old son, after spending 16 months with the Eighth air force in England.

The lieutenant is a veteran of thirty missions and holds the air medal with three oak leaf clusters, the distinguished flying cross and four bronze battle stars. After completion of his tour of combat flying as pilot on B-24 and B-17 type aircraft, the Eastland countian was appointed assistant pathfinder forces squadron operations officer, training lead crews.

Upon arrival in Boston, White was sent to Ft. Leavenworth, where he was met by his wife and continued on to Belleville, Kan., where he met his son for the first time.

Before reporting for duty at Santa Anna, Calif., August 1, Lieutenant and Mrs. White will visit her twin sister, Mrs. George Bland, in Tucson, Ariz., and also his brother, Capt. H. D. White and family in Salinas, Calif.

Lieutenant White was a member of the 1939 graduating class of Cisco high school. Coming home from overseas, White met three other Cisco high school graduates on the transport — First Lt. Clifford L. Thomas, Staff Sgt. C. C. Southland and Second Lt. Cecil Halbert. They were photographed together and the picture has been added to the Daily Press Photo gallery.

the nation, the state, and Eastland county has such a great financial drive been made. The figures are almost staggering as applied to each unit. The only way that such outstanding sales could have been obtained is the fact that our citizens as a whole are fully aware of their duties and responsibilities in this great world crisis and are measuring up to the challenge.

Again, I am sure you would like to know the names of your local chairmen who with their committees and helpers officially conducted the campaign. They are: Ranger, W. F. Creager; Cisco, R. L. Ponsler; Eastland, V. T. Sealey; Rising Star, W. E. Tyler; Gorman, Ira Underwood; Carbon, Dr. T. G. Jackson; Olden, Mrs. Stella Jarrett; Desdemona, C. S. Eldridge. Each of these chairmen have large committees which come from a cross-section of the county, and although it would be impossible to name all the members of these committees, I am sure that each and all responded to the call like their leaders did.

We especially want to commend the newspapers, the service clubs, ladies' clubs and other lady organizations, churches, the county agent, the county home demonstrator, the picture shows, the banks, the postoffices and the private individuals who gave their services and time freely in order to make possible this great accomplishment for Eastland county.

Mrs. Paul M. Woods, chairman for the women of Eastland county, and your undersigned chairman wish to extend our thanks to all the chairmen and committees and all the other parties herein named and all the purchasers of bonds everywhere for your efforts and purchases which have made this accomplishment possible.

Very kindly yours,
CYRUS B. FROST, Chairman Eastland County War Finance Committee.
MRS. PAUL M. WOODS, Chairman Women's Section.

In Order to Grow Cisco Must Have Many more Houses

The most serious problem that confronts Cisco at this time is the shortage of housing, the chamber of commerce said today. It is a problem, said the chamber, which will determine to a great extent what Cisco's future will be after the war.

Almost every day the chamber receives inquiries for homes and apartments to accommodate families who come here to take employment, to send their children to school or simply to find a place to live. Quite a number of these want unfurnished apartments or houses, which are almost non-existent. In fact, it is almost impossible to find an unfurnished house for rent.

A great many Cisco families now own their own homes, but there is always a valuable element of a community population which cannot buy because of the nature of their employment, and must rent.

It is in this category that Cisco's housing accommodations are most short. Meanwhile there are some large homes in Cisco which could be converted into apartments during this period of shortage and thus give some relief to the situation, said the chamber. It pointed out that Cisco could insure itself of a considerable increase in population if citizens would cooperate in helping solve this problem of accommodations. Waco and other cities have done a good job in this respect because their people were progressive and patriotic enough to even inconvenience themselves in order that their communities would not fall down in a pinch. As a result, these cities are assured of new population, most of which will likely remain and establish new homes when building restrictions are lifted.

Cisco could do the same thing. Real estate men estimate that they could rent or sell between 100 and 200 modern houses or apartments within a short while if these were available. If the citizens who want Cisco to grow would realize that the test of whether or not this community can capture this new population is now—at the most difficult time—perhaps they would exert themselves to make accommodations available.

Neither the chamber of commerce or any other agency can accomplish anything without community support, said the chamber. "We are just as effective as the community spirit lets us be. We appeal to the people of Cisco to meet this opportunity with a special effort. It will pay big dividends."

Boyce House Pays Fine Tribute to E. H. Whitehead

By BOYCE HOUSE.
FT. WORTH, July 24. — The recent sudden death of E. H. Whitehead in Conroe saddened many who resided in Cisco 29 years ago and this news also brought thronging into their many minds many memories of the period that, in some ways, might well be called "Cisco's golden age."

In the summer of 1924, the writer of these lines became editor of the Cisco Daily News and a brief notice was published to the effect that the paper wished to engage the services of a young lady, in spare time, to help gather news.

The only applicant was a young man — E. H. Whitehead, teacher in the high school. It was explained that the pay would not be large but he expressed a desire to do the work and so he joined the staff. Later, the writer learned that while little more than a youth, Whitehead had engaged in an ill-starred business venture but determined to assume the payment of all the obligations and was doing so from his modest salary as a teacher when there came a setback in the form of an operation for appendicitis — and so the opportunity to supplement this income by news-gathering was welcome.

Mr. Whitehead proved to be most industrious and a good writer; and this, his first writing job, might be considered the starting-point in a career of publicity, Chamber of Commerce and civic work the results of which were felt and will continue to be felt in Texas for many years to come.

Soon, he was made publicity manager of the Cisco Chamber of Commerce. W. B. Chapman was coach of the high school and the era of gridiron greatness was ushered in. The Lobos of 1924, with such stars as Chigger Browne, Ernie Wilson, Pinky Alsbrook, Cecil Couch, Honk Irvin, Jimmie Fields and Ceedy Grist, opened the conference season by knocking off the Abilene Eagles, state champions of the previous year — and, largely through Whitehead's efforts, the Lobos became the most publicized high school team that Texas had ever known up to that time.

The huge dam had been completed not long before and his ingenuity gave the structure widespread fame as the world's largest hollow — type reinforced concrete dam. In fact, he combined Cisco's two foremost features in a single phrase, "The Big Dam Lobos."

Cisco's outstanding citizen was R. Q. Lee, a man of civic spirit, a builder, Whitehead, through a series of articles, portrayed the achievements of Colonel Lee, who became president of the West Texas chamber of commerce and congressman.

While Whitehead was with the Cisco Chamber of Commerce, there was much oil activity around Cisco, numerous shallow fields being developed in Callahan, Shackelford, Brown and Coleman counties. Cisco had emerged from the big boom of 1919-21 with beautiful churches, splendid schools, miles of paved streets and other improvements; and Whitehead painted these advantages to farmers, enriched by oil, and the city gained many citizens. Numerous boys who would have ended their schooling were persuaded by him to complete their education.

From Cisco, Whitehead went forth to become assistant manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, assistant manager of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce, and manager of the Chambers of Commerce in Temple and in Conroe. He was ranked as one of the best because of his energy, his enthusiasm, his optimism, his boundless capacity for work. But, though he had devoted himself, during the past 15 or more years to activities elsewhere, his thoughts often turned fondly back to Cisco, the scene of his earlier achievements and the home of many time-tried and true friends.

HALSEY'S AIRMEN SWARM OVER KURE NAVAL BASE AND BRING JAP FIGHTERS OUT OF HIDING

PEARL HARBOR, July 24. — Hordes of American dive bombers swarmed over a great part of the Japanese fleet hiding in the Kure naval base today in a furious assault that brought enemy planes up to defend their home skies for the first time in weeks.

Admiral William F. Halsey's powerful U. S. Third Fleet radioed back incomplete messages indicating that a major part of Japan's surviving ships and planes have finally been brought to bay and were being mercilessly assaulted.

United Press Correspondent Richard W. Johnston reported from one of the attacking ships that many Japanese war vessels were caught riding at anchor at Kure harbor on the Inland Sea.

Enemy ships and their shore batteries threw up a terrific hail of flak and swarms of fighters rose to meet American planes but Johnston said the U. S. Helldivers still got "excellent" results.

Some 1000 carrier planes were in the attack over Kure and against the chain of enemy airfields around the naval station. The carrier strike started a day of unprecedented American air action during which perhaps 2000 U. S. warplanes, from fighters to Superfortresses, were over Japan.

A record fleet of over 600 B-29s bombed Osaka and Nagoya, and Tokyo claimed still another 400 Army fighters and light bombers hit Honshu from their bases on Okinawa and Iwo Jima.

First reports from Johnston and United Press Correspondent Earnest Hobericht, also with the Third Fleet, indicated that Halsey's airmen may have at last hit the jackpot in attacking Kure and its chain of supporting airbases.

Japs Straining For Compromise Terms of Peace

LONDON, July 24. — The Times declared today that the Japanese government was "straining every nerve to achieve a compromise peace" but said anything less than unconditional surrender should be unacceptable to the Allies.

"Both Britain and the United States realize that in the case of Japan, as in the case of Germany, half measures would be fatal," the Times said.

CHURCHILL TO LONDON.
POTSDAM, July 24. — The Big Three Conference will recess tomorrow to learn the outcome of Britain's elections, to be announced Thursday, but President Truman and Premier Stalin will continue their talks. Mr. Churchill will go to London tomorrow and will return Friday if he wins the election.

Frank E. Harrell Died at 5 O'clock This Afternoon

Frank E. Harrell, outstanding business man and Cisco citizen since 1894, died at 5 o'clock this afternoon at Graham Sanitarium, where he had been since Sunday.

Mr. Harrell was born at Roby, now Fisher county, April 23, 1884, and the family moved to Cisco in July, 1894.

He had been manager of the Rockwell Lumber company of Cisco for almost 41 years and was one of the city's most active civic workers.

Funeral arrangements had not been made when the paper went to press.

WLB Again Claims Precedence Over Fla. Constitution

WASHINGTON, July 24. — The War Labor Board today announced two more decisions based on the theory that the law under which it operates takes precedence over an amendment to the constitution of Florida.

The amendment, backed by State Attorney General Tom Watson, upholds the right of collective bargaining but outlaws the closed shop in Florida.

One of the decisions held that the Florida amendment does not prevent WLB from enforcing its "maintenance of membership" plan. This provides that union members may resign in the first 15 days of a union contract period, but after that they must pay their dues and otherwise remain in good standing.

The other decision ordered continuation of a closed shop among nine technicians employed by radio station WFTL in Miami. The closed shop was first obtained by the AFL electrical workers from the previous owner of the station.

The board panel was headed by Leo L. Fabianski, a judge of the Florida circuit court at Tallahassee. He reported that the broadcasting company "had no real objection, to the closed shop." That it had offered such security to the union, but withdrew the offer because of the passage of the "right to work" amendment.

Thousands of Coworkers Knew Arthur S. Hickok, Business Genius, As A Tried and True Friend

Rev. William E. Dudley, D. D., Toledo, O., minister, friend and comrade of the late Arthur S. Hickok, who was president and treasurer of the far-reaching Hickok Oil company, parent company of Cisco Gas Corporation, Hickok Producing & Development company, Hickok Pipe Line company and the Consolidated Gas-co line company of Cisco, paid golden tribute to the departed at memorial services held in Toledo on July 3.

Because of the deep, sincere tone of the eulogy, bringing out as it does the many fine characteristics of Mr. Hickok already known to large numbers of Cisco people, who will always remember him as a personal friend and as a civic benefactor at a critical period in Cisco's business life, the Daily Press herewith reprints the tribute in full:

"Thus with the reading of these brief passages of Scripture, we meet in this hour to pay our Tribute to Arthur S. Hickok—who was largely 'the master of his fate, and the captain of his soul.' That is to say he made the most of his gifts and opportunities. Beyond that he possessed a deep faith in God and humanity. He believed that God had a purpose for every human life. For this reason he held to a belief in man's value and significance upon this planet. From the earliest beginnings he seized every opportunity, and crowned every effort with the laurels of great achievements.

"He never whined against fate. He never assumed a cynical attitude in times of trouble and crises. When other men lost hope, he moved into realms that demanded greater courage. When the economic world was in the doldrums, and business suffered its greatest collapse, Arthur Hickok set his heart and will upon the stabilization and preservation of his organization.

"Through his resourcefulness and determination, thousands of his business families escaped the ills of unemployment, and the many misfortunes that constitute an inescapable part of industrial collapse.

"This is an age in which credit is not always given to worthy business executives. Few people understand the long hours, the ceaseless strain, the intense concentration involved in the maintenance of a great organization, especially that type of organization that makes ideal relationships the basic part of its functional life.

"There are corporations here and there that are more or less heartless. There are business leaders here and there whose chief concern seems to be to clamber on the backs of others and ride them to the grave. Money is God for those concerns, and profit is the only reason for life for these individuals. This was never true of Hi-Speed! This business enterprise was concerned with motives that recognized the place and value of every individual from the highest and most gifted executive to the least and humblest employee.

"Arthur Hickok knew most of his people by name, and he was forever alert to their well-being. There are between four and five thousand employees in this man's business family. That is a big responsibility for any man if only to have the pay checks ready and regular. But the human element, for our friend and comrade, was equally important. The size of Hi-Speed never did obscure the affection of its President for any one who deserved such affection. This friend of men created for himself substantially in this world's goods, but he saw to it that those who were associated with him were the beneficiaries of his genius and labor.

"It is impossible to estimate the millions of dollars that have gone into the annual incomes of thousands of people in the form of salaries, wages, altogether apart from generous, quiet, unobtrusive gifts that were never headlined in the newspapers or proclaimed from the housetops. Schools, hospitals and churches were his beneficiaries. One hospital at least carries his name. One never heard of these charities from the lips of Arthur Hickok. He was by nature a very humble person. He had great gifts, and held a power that easily could have been misplaced or abused. But he was interested neither in the proud spirit nor the harsh heart. He lived simply and sincerely. It could be said of him, 'Blessed are the meek for they shall inherit the earth' (Sermon on the Mount, Matthew v. 5).

"Perhaps it was for this reason that the majority of his people addressed him as 'Father Hickok. I know of no greater tribute that could be paid to any business leader. His people addressed him thus because he cared. He cared for their homes and their children. He cared for their physical and spiritual well-being. He cared for them when they needed financial and moral support. From a hundred and more letters which I have read, the following paragraphs indicate his attitude toward others:

"Words cannot express my gratitude to you for the courage and inspiration you have given me to redouble my efforts to develop this north country into a territory of which we can be proud."

"Another writes, 'Please accept my deep appreciation and sincere thanks for your great kindness in making it possible for us to own a home. We thank you for the understanding and kindness of heart that made our dream come true.'"

"Or this from the southern part of the State: 'We shall never forget the discussion we had at your office a year ago when our deal was made verbally, and in one year's time there has never been one change from that agreement, which proves to our satisfaction that your word is more valuable

TRAILERS SOLVE NAVY HOUSING PROBLEM

FACED WITH THE PROBLEM of providing low-cost housing for fleet returned veterans, the Navy purchased 400 automobile trailer coaches to supplement 1,400 permanent housing units at or near fourteen naval air stations in Florida. The trailers, completely furnished and equipped with water, electricity and drainage connections, rent to officers or enlisted men for $1 a day, plus a monthly utilities charge of $2.65. THE TOP VIEW SHOWS part of the trailer community at the Fort Lauderdale naval air station. ONE OF THE LUCKY TRAILER tenants (lower right) at the Vero Beach air station is Ensign Alan Geel of Chicago, who relaxes in the bedroom, while Mrs. Geel prepares dinner. FOR EVERY COMMUNITY of ten trailers, Navy engineers have built a community building, which houses individual toilets and showers and a laundry room, where (lower left) Lt. (i.c.) than any contract. You see, we originally started in a small way and without any finance whatsoever, that to make a deal of such size and without a contract, was almost too much for us to comprehend. When you offered to finance us apparently without any investigation as to our honesty and integrity, you did something that affected us so much that we will make every effort to justify your confidence in us."

"Well, this was not blind planning on the part of A. S. Hickok whom to trust. He knew human nature, and human nature responded to his insight and confidence.

"A business so conditioned, evolves deep loyalty and affection in those who daily labor. In almost two thousand places where the Hi-Speed sign is inscribed, this Friend and Comrade of ours formulated and extended an influence for good, never to be forgotten.

"How easy it would be to eulogize in this hour, but we are not interested in eulogy. What we are concerned about are the homely, kindly and basic virtues. For these virtues which 'Father Hickok' possessed, we thank God, and take courage.

"The secret of his success is that he was interested in the common people. His trust in the common people enabled him to build a business structure that is a world in itself. These common people cooperated to the full. With but rare exceptions they were joint partners in that structure, and he knew it. That is the ideal relationship between capital and labor. A splendid loyalty existed between the executive head of this institution and his workers. This in part explains the phenomenal growth and sound health of Hi-Speed enterprises.

"Arthur Hickok was not religious as some people narrowly define religion. His faith transcended creed and dogma. Religion for this man was to exemplify the prophet Micah: 'He hath shewed thee O man what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, to love kindness, and to walk humbly with thy God.'

"This faith expanded into the Golden Rule, and the Sermon on the Mount. Hi-Speed was founded on this principle, and thrived. Its aim was to make money, of course, but beyond that was the urge to make people happy, prosperous and content. Thus the mission of our friend was not to get men into heaven but to get heaven into men through just relationships, humane attitudes, and sound common sense.

"This is the only kind of religion I know anything about. The religion that glorifies God and serves humanity to the limit of one's strength and devotion. Augmented to this, one of his assistants wrote to his chief in 1942, thus: 'The chief difference between one man and another is invincible determination, a purpose once formed, and then death or victory. And so for A. S. it was death or victory for everything that really mattered.

"Such a life will remain a challenge for all those who have followed this leader through the years. This is no time for loss of courage. This is no time for the lowering of one's faith. This is no time for faltering steps in the performance of duty. This is the hour when every individual should determine to be the finest kind of citizen possible through the exercise of courage, hard work, kindness and great faith in God and humanity.

"Let no one here imagine that 'Father Hickok' is dead and gone forever. His body soon will be placed in the pulseless dust, but his soul will march on. No life in this great world order is ever destroyed. No useful kindly life is ever lost.

"Arthur Hickok was the spiritual father of his people. He will remain the spiritual father for many of you. As some one said to me recently, 'he was like my own father.'

"On several occasions I talked with him face to face. On every occasion my life was cleansed and made better for the meeting. Certainly his genial smile helped a lot.

"Well, now he has moved on to be with his Heavenly Father. He now belongs to that glorious company of men, who, through unselfish and noble living upon this earth, has earned for itself a place in God's Heavenly Kingdom.

"Sooner or later all of us will be citizens of that kingdom, for, Swift to its close ebbs out life's little day, earth's joys grow dim, its glories pass away."

"Yet, all will be gathered to that kingdom,—that kingdom in which no life shall be desolate, and in which no night shall be dark and starless for the tired feet of pilgrims. In that kingdom, joy shall abound, strength shall increase, and 'God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away' (Revelation XXI)."

GM Plans Vast New Technical Center To Create More Jobs Through Research

UTILITY AND BEAUTY are combined in the overall design of the new General Motors Technical Center (as shown in the artist's conception above) which is to be built just outside the automobile center of Detroit with a postwar objective of creating "More Jobs Through Research." This view shows the layout of buildings and connecting roadways around the central esplanade. The central lake will supply water for cooling as well as lending beauty. At lower left is the Administration building and at lower right the new Styling Section building. Immediately above the latter is the Advanced Engineering building. To its left and just to the right of the water tower is the Process Development building. At the extreme end is the Research Laboratories building. Other buildings shown in the drawing represent potential expansion.
