8th INFANTRY DIVISION

SOMETIMES REFERRED to as "Hitler's Nemesis" during the recent fighting in Europe, the 9th Infantry Division was assigned occupation duties in Ingolstadt, Germany at the end of World War II. The cessation of hostilities found the 9th with one of the most brilliant campaign records of the fight-ing Infantry divisions in the ETO, with battle credits for Tunisia, Sicily, Normandy, Northern France, Rhineland, Ardennes, and Central Europe.

A Regular Army division, the Ninth was first activated in 1918. inactivated after the first world conflict, reactivated in 1940 at Fort Bragg under the command of General (then Major General) Jacob L. Devers. At this time, the component elements became the 39th, 47th, and 60th Infantry Regiments; the 34th (M), 26th, 60th and 84th (L) Field Artillery Battalions.

The division went into action November 8, 1942, when its units landed at Algiers, Safi, French Morocco, and at Port Lyautey, Morocco. When hostilities ceased in that area, the 9th was given the job of guarding the Spanish Moroccan border, but it moved into action in Tunisia again in March, 1943. On May 7, it drove toward Bizerte, entering the city to mop up final resistance in Tunisia. It's next combat assignment was in Sicily when, on August 9, it went into action and by August 12 had occupied Randazzo, keypoint of the enemy's last defense before Messina and the final surrender of that area. The division was transferred to the United Kingdom in November of the same year and immediately began preparations for the invasion of the continent.

It landed in Normandy on June 10, 1944, drove hard for the east coast, crossing the Douve River and cutting off the Cotentin Peninsula. With this job done, the division turned north toward Cherbourg liberating the Cap de la Hague by July 1. Later that month it spearheaded the St. Lo breakthrough and joined in the chase which closed the Faliaise Gap. On September 2, 1944, the division became the first Allied force to begin the liberation of Belgium, entering the country near Momignies. By September 5 it had crossed the Meuse, and by September 13, it was in Germany south of Roetgen. During the German winter offensive, it relieved the 99th Infantry Division in the Monschau Forest area. and in March, the division became one of the first two units fighting in the Remagen bridgehead area. The closing days of the war found the 9th concentrating on the Ruhr pocket.

Preliminary figures show the Ninth to be fourth among all divisions in the number of casualties—22.185. In commending the 9th Division. General Bradley remarked: "The American Army is studded with splendid divisions, but rarely have two (1st and 9th Inf. Div.) teamed so expertly; never have two divisions fought longer and harder with greater skill or courage."

PUBLIC LAW 190 GI BILL OF RIGHTS 9TH CONGRESS THESE TWO LAWS

MAKE ARMY ENLISTMENT MORE ATTRACTIVE THAN EVER BEFORE

Meet "Public Law 190," otherwise called the "Armed Forces Voluntary Recruitment Act of 1945." You know the GI Bill of Rights. But do you know that, between them, these two laws of Congress offer thousands of young men financial, educational and career opportunities they've never had before?

Because of these acts, men enlisting in the new peacetime Regular Army are signing up for the "Best Job in the World." They're going to do interesting work at good pay. They're going to learn skills and trades which will fit them for good civilian icks in the future. They'll have the advantage. jobs in the future. They'll have the advantages of a long list of special enlistment privileges, including pay increases, family dependency allowances, extra pay for overseas service and for members of flying crews, and many others, including a retirement plan which is second to none.

And for men who want to continue studying after discharge, the GI Bill of Rights provides up to 48 months in the college, trade or business school of your own choice, with $500 tuition paid per ordinary school year, plus $65 a month living allowance for single men, $90 for married men.

This is too great an opportunity for any man from 17 to 34 to overlook. Get the whole story. Match it against any other openings you might have in mind. Compare it with your present job. Stop in and hear all the facts without any obligation whatsoever.
